Welding is accepted by many ship designers as far superior to the earlier rivet method of building ship hulls, both in strength and flexibility. Those two elements will be of importance in view of the atom bomb's blast effect, a crushing blow delivered over the whole area of a vessel.

From 1912 to World War II

Of the eight large American combatant ships—four battleships, two cruisers and two carriers—only the carrier Independence was commissioned during the war. The age of the others dates back as far as the 1912 model battleship Arkansas.

In contrast, the Prinz Eugen, an Admiral Hipper class cruiser, was completed by Hitler's Germany in the early days of World War II. It was a shot from one of her main batteries that struck the magazine of the 42,000-ton British battleship Hood in the North Atlantic in 1941 and blew her up. The Eugen has a sleek, trim hull and a mast structure closely resembling that of recently built American battleships.

Reporters boarding the Sakawa at her target position in Bikini Lagoon found the Japanese cruiser's hull and topside structure in undamaged condition, although quantities of guns and equipment had been removed, some of it for laboratory study by the Navy Department.

The third captured enemy vessel, the Japanese battleship Hagato, displays in torn steel and fire-blackened decks the accuracy of American naval aviators who located here at the Yokoshuka naval base during one of their many strikes in the closing days of the war.

Admiral W. H. P. Blandy, task force commander, who inspected the Nagato along with the other two enemy ships, said he believed her hull was intact and that she would make a satisfactory target.

Except for the hull, however, the Nagato is a mass of wreckage.

Confrees Refuse to Lift OPA Price Curbs on Meat; One Year Extension Voted

ALL FOOD SUBSIDY PAYMENTS TO END BY APRIL 1, 1947

Decontrol Board, Independent of Agency, Will Be Established.

SENATE GROUP YIELDS

Controls to Remain on Poultry, Dairy Products, Petroleum.

JUN 25 1946

WASHINGTON, June 24 — (AP) Congressional conferees agreed tonight on a full year's extension of price control after eliminating Senate provisions which would have ended controls on meat, poultry, dairy products, petroleum and tobacco next Sunday midnight.

The bill goes to the House tomorrow for ratification and there is a possibility the Senate may act later in the day.

NIGHT

Other Disputes Settled

Clearing up other major points which had been in disagreement, the joint committee decided on:

1. Holding subsidies of all kinds to $1,000,000,000 and ending food subsidies next April 1.

2. Creation of a decontrol board, independent of OPA, which could overrule the price administrator or the Secretary of Agriculture if they failed to remove controls from specific commodities.

3. Modification of the Wherry amendment adopted in the Senate, to provide that distributors, wholesalers and retailers must be allowed percentage markups and discounts which were effective last Jan. 1.

Long Night Session

Three and a half hours were required to reach the agreement. The conferees went into session behind closed doors a few minutes after 8 p. m. (E.S.T.) and threw open the doors to reporters at 11:35.

Senate Majority Leader Barkley announced the report was signed by a majority of the seven conferees from each house.

Senator Taft (R-Ohio) announced that he and Senator Millikin (R-Colo) did not sign it. Senator Radcliffe (D-Md), running for renomination in the Maryland primary, was not present.

All the House members except Rep. Crawford (R-Mich) approved the pact, and his colleagues said he planned to do so tomorrow.

Victory For House

The decision to take out the section calling for almost immediate decontrol of meat, poultry, dairy products, tobacco and petroleum represented a victory for the House.

The Senate prevailed on the length of extension (the House had voted for only nine months) and on creation of the decontrol board.

Questioned on Veto

When a reporter asked whether the President is likely to veto the revised bill, Barkley replied:

"I'm not going to speculate on what the President is going to do about the bill. I am going to urge the Senate to adopt it, as I think it is the best we can get under the circumstances."

OPA was given 30 days after July 1 to make the necessary ceiling adjustments called for under the new price formulas. Members explained it would be a gigantic job to figure them all out.

The Senate had voted to hold subsidies to $1,100,000,000 and end food subsidies next May 1. The House wanted to cut off the $715,000,000 a year meat subsidy June 30, and stop all food subsidies at the end of 1946.

As Barkley put it, "The committee cut off one month and one hundred million dollars" from the Senate figures.

Taft said the food subsidies were trimmed to $869,000,000 of which no more than $629,000,000 can be spent in the last half of this year.

Washington, June 24—(AP)—OPA reaches its night of decision tonight. Rep. Wolcott (R-Mich.) predicted the final form of price control extension legislation should be determined by 10 P. M. (D. S. T.)

DAY

Wolcott is a member of the joint Congressional Committee harmonizing differences between House and Senate OPA bills. The conferees meet at 9 P. M. in a session which Wolcott said probably will be conclusive.

If a deadlock develops on any of the four provisions which remain in dispute, the lawmaker said the decision may be checked directly to the House and Senate, by reporting disagreement and asking for instructions.

The committee has no time to waste, for OPA expires Sunday midnight unless the extension bill is enacted.

"I am very optimistic we can come to an agreement within an hour," Wolcott told a reporter. "Every member should have made up his mind on the remaining problems by the time he enters the conference room."

Two reasons lay behind the unusual night session. Some of the conferees wanted time to consult with colleagues who are not members of the committee. In addition, the banking committee from which the House conferees were picked had a date to confer with the rules committee on procedure for calling up the British Loan Bill in the House.

If an OPA measure is agreed upon tonight, the House can take it tomorrow. There will be no opportunity to amend it; the House must either vote it up or down, or send the conferees back with instructions to yield or hold out on controverted points.

goes to the Senate, where there is always the chance of a time-consuming filibuster. It was learned that the possibility of such a development was discussed in the conference sessions.

Four Major Disagreements

Although four major disagreements remain, the key to the dispute is whether to accept Senate amendments lifting price ceilings on meat, poultry and dairy products, petroleum and tobacco at the end of June.

House members take the attitude there is no need to single out specific commodities for special treatment, in view of the decontrol policy already agreed upon. In general, this policy calls for removal of ceilings as soon as the supply of a commodity exceeds or balances the demand for it.

The House members cite the Taft-Wolcott amendment as another argument why specific decontrols are not needed. That amendment, approved by the conference, declares that ceilings must reflect to producers, manufacturers and processors their 1941 prices plus average increased unit costs since then. At least the same dollar increase in ceilings would have to be passed on to distributors and sellers of the product.

Wolcott said if the decontrol problem is settled tonight, the other points at issue can be cleared away in a few minutes.

The House voted a nine months extension of price control and the Senate raised it to a year. It appeared to be a toss-up which period would prevail.

Th House called for an end of the $715,000,000-a-year meat subsidies on June 30, with other food subsidies to go December 31. The Senate was willing to pay them until next May 1.

The Senate approved establishment of a decontrol board, independent of OPA, which could overrule the price administrator (or the secretary of agriculture, in the case of farm commodities) for failure to remove ceilings from specific items. This provision, of course, stands or falls on the decision on specific decontrols.

Members of the committee professed to have no knowledge of whether President Truman may veto their handiwork. Likewise, they would not hazard a guess whether, in event of a veto, a resolution continuing OPA a matter of weeks or months without change could be put through Congress.

However, Senator George (D-Ga.), not a conferee, said he thought Congress would accept legislation extending rent control only.

Decision Slated Tonight On Extension Of OPA

House and Senate Conferees Will Attend Session Regarded as Conclusive — Deadlock Will Result in Reference of Matter Back to Both Bodies

STRIKE BY BUYERS URGED IF OPA GOES

Washington, June 24 (A. P.).—Senator Taylor (D.-Ohio), speaking to a "Save OPA" rally at the Washington Monument grounds today, suggested a buyers' strike if the OPA's major controls are abolished and prices jump.

The final shape of legislation extending the OPA after June 30 is being decided by a House-Senate conference committee.

After delegations representing housewives and labor groups had swarmed in and around the Capitol demanding that Congress "save OPA," Taylor told the rally that consumers can make prices come down by refraining from buying.

Representative Helen Gahagan Douglas (D.-Cal.), told the same rally, sponsored by the Independent Citizens Committee of the Arts, Sciences and Professions: "A majority of the Democrats and a few Republicans know that a 50 per cent rise in living costs will be as ruinous to our economy as the atom bomb was to Hiroshima."

The visitors buttonholed Senators and members of the House to plead for continuance of the present price control law. Taylor said they represented a march on Washington organized by various labor groups and citizens' committees in the East and Midwest.

SEES PENSIONERS HURT IF OPA GOES

Washington, June 24 (A. P.).—Watson B. Miller, Federal Security Administrator, said today that the beneficiaries of social security insurance "stand to suffer additional hardships if controls over prices are relaxed." He said that field studies by the Federal Security Agency "show that the great majority of some 6,000,000 beneficiaries under the (Social Security) act already have been pinched by the rising costs of living, and many are suffering actual hardship."

Without direct reference to price control extension legislation, Miller declared that "any marked rise in living costs would make it impossible for social insurance beneficiaries and others to live on small fixed amounts acquired through earnings in earlier years."

"Further rise in prices," Miller said, "would cause hardship to millions of retired workers and their families. It would bring distress to millions of widows who are trying to keep their families together, their children in school, their homes intact. It would contribute to the privation and misery of millions of aged and blinded persons and to the nation's dependent children."

SOVIETS KEPT PLANS SECRET FROM ALLIES

Eisenhower Report Tells of Delay on Data—Lauds Final Red Offensive

Washington, June 24—(AP)—Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower recorded in his final report today as Supreme Allied Commander in Europe that he was kept in the dark about Russia's grand strategy until four months before V-E Day.

Then, however, Marshall Stalin came through with full plans for the Red Army's final offensive, which becme one jaw of a vise that crushed the German war machine "to a degree never before experienced in the history of modern armies."

Eisenhower's belatedly published 123-page detailed report to the combined chiefs of staff covered the fateful 11 months from D-Day in Normandy to the German surrender. It was released by the War Department, which said only minor details were deleted for security reasons.

Teamwork Lauded

In it the present Army Chief of Staff recorded briefly his difficulties of co-ordination with the Red Army while lauding the teamwork of the Western Allies. The United States and Great Britain, he said, fought as "one nation."

Aside from teamwork, Eisenhower concluded that the victory was due to Allied might and "invincibility of spirit" and to miscalculations by Hitler and Field Marshal von Rundstedt, the Nazi commander in the West.

In Eisenhower's judgment, three battles were decisive in liberating Europe:

1. The battle of the Normandy beaches, where the foe was revealed as a stubborn fighter but beset by difficulties of supply and communications resulting largely from the Allied hammering from the air. "Completely misled" by Allied diversionary operations, von Rundstedt held the bulk of his forces in the Pas-de-Calais opposite England waiting for a second assault which never came.

2. The battle of the Falaise pocket, where the enemy "showed that fatal tendency to stand and fight when all the logic of war demanded a strategic withdrawal."

3. Battles west of the Rhine during February and March, 1945, where "the armies which had been intended to defend Germany were shattered beyond recovery."

Needed Soviet Pressure

Of the Russians, Eisenhower said that in planning for the final spring drive last year it was recognized that its success hinged to a large degree upon the weight of the Red Army's pressure in the east, and he noted:

"Up to the end of 1944 I had received no information on matters affecting Russian grand strategy, although I had expressed my willingness to afford any such information concerning my own overall plans as the Red Army might desire.

"At Christmas time, however, following upon a message which I sent to the combined chiefs of staff explaining the difficulty with which I was faced in attempting to evolve plans while still ignorant of the Russian intentions, President Roosevelt secured from Marshal Stalin his agreement to receive our representative in order to discuss the correlation of our respective efforts in the forthcoming Spring."

Accordingly Eisenhower's deputy, Air Chief Marshal Tedder, and others of his staff received from Stalin in January a "ful explanation" of the plans for a four-pronged offensive by 150 to 160 Red Army divisions.

Red Push Big Success

Its success proved "even greater than had been anticipated," Eisenhower wrote.

His chronicle detailed air and naval as well as ground operations, and he acknowledged that "without the overwhelming mastery of the air . . ., our assault against the continent would have been a most hazardous, if not impossible, undertaking."

"We achieved a degree of tactical surprise for which we had hardly dared to hope," he said.

Of the German final Ardennes counter-offensive which developed into the Battle of the Bulge in December, 1944, Eisenhower said he took a "calculated risk" in holding a quiet 75-mile front with no more than four divisions.

As von Rundstedt's desperate assault smashed forward, Eisenhower said he put the American forces north of the salient under command of Britain's Field Marshal Montgomery because it would have been "impracticable" for Gen. Omar N. Bradley to direct tactical operations both north and south of the bulge.

Subsequently, Eisenhower rejected a British chiefs of staff proposal that Montgomery be given command of all ground forces for the whole front north of Luxembourg, directly under the suprere commander, as likely to result in decreased efficiency.

The proposal, he explained, was "based upon the assumption that all the remainder of the front would remain on the defensive, contrary to my plans."

"When there is more than one army group in a single theater, there cannot logically be an over-all 'ground cammander' separate from the theater or supreme commander," Eisenhower contended.

The Rhine crossing—speeded by the unexpected seizure of the Remagen Bridge—was carried out as originally planned, with Montgomery, Bradley and Gen. Jacob L. Devers each commanding an army group.

Highlights From Eisenhower's Report

Washington, June 24 (A. P.).—Highlights of Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower's final report on the war in Europe between D-day and V-E-day:

The lack of infantry was the most important cause of the enemy's defeat in Normandy, and his failure to remedy this weakness was due primarily to the success of Allied threats leveled against the Pas-de-Calais.

At the time of the German surrender, I had under command a total of ninety divisions: sixty-one American, thirteen British, five Canadian, 10 French, and one Polish. These averaged about 17,000 in combat strength, well over twice the strength of Russian divisions.

Without the overwhelming mastery of the air, our assault against the Continent would have been a hazardous, if not impossible, undertaking.

Had the program of production which the Luftwaffe envisaged been put into effect, our mastery in the spring of 1945 would have been precarious, for our own production had not enabled us to meet the jets on equal terms. The German effort was too little and too late.

Special mention must be made of the great assistance given us by the F. F. I. in the task of reducing Brittany.

I unhesitatingly class Gen. Bradley's tactical operations during February and March, which witnessed the completion of the destruction of the German forces west of the Rhine, as the equal in brilliance of any that American forces ever have conducted.

When the time came for launching the main assault across the Rhine, the Allied armies under my command had been built up to a total strength on the Continent of nearly 4,000,000 men.

We could, in effect, apply against the enemy on the Continent a force thirty times as large as the Allied armies which defeated Napoleon on the battlefield of Waterloo.

The war was won before the Rhine was crossed.

Never, during the entire campaign, were we forced to fight a major battle without the weapons that were needed.

The Allied navies and mercantile marines were able to land over 500,000 men by D-plus-9; a million tons of stores, and nearly 300,000 vehicles were put ashore by D-plus-38.

More important even than weapons, however, was the indomitable fighting spirit of the men of the Allied nations who wielded them.

NEWS ON UNRRA IS NOW CENSORED ONLY BY MOSCOW

JUN 25 1946

Truman Says U. S. Press Can Report Freely in Other Countries.

Washington, June 24 (A. P.).—President Truman notified Congress today that arrangements had been made for American correspondents to report on UNRRA activities in all countries except Russia. In a letter to Speaker Rayburn, the President said that the Soviet censorship rules will bind radio and news correspondents, regardless of what they are reporting.

However, he added, arrangements had been made for UNRRA commissions to report on activities dealing with that organization in the Ukraine and Byelo-Russia (White Russia). When Congress appropriated new funds for UNRRA operations, it directed the President to use his influence to obtain the right for American correspondents to report on activities in countries receiving aid.

A State Department memorandum attached to the President's letter explained that through the arrangement for UNRRA commissions to go into parts of Russia receiving help, there will be the possibility that the American public might obtain information from the Ukraine and White Russia.

Text of Truman Letter.

The President's letter to Rayburn was as follows:

To the Speaker of the House:

In accordance with the recommendation in paragraph B of Public Law 262, Seventy-ninth Congress, I have, through appropriate channels, taken steps to advise countries receiving UNRRA assistance of the desire of the United States Government that the admission to those countries of properly accredited members of the American press and radio be facilitated in order that they might be permitted to report without censorship on the utilization and distribution of UNRRA supplies and services.

I am advised that satisfactory arrangements are in effect to permit American press and radio representatives to report without censorship on the UNRRA programs in all UNRRA-receiving countries except the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics. There is attached a transition of a communication dated March 12, 1946, to the Secretary of State from the charge d'affaires of the U. S. S. R. with reference to the situation in that country, which in effect states that the censorship rules in force for all correspondents in the Soviet Union will be applied to correspondents desiring to report on the utilization and distribution of UNRRA supplies.

I am also advised that accredited representatives of UNRRA have been given necessary facilities for observing and reporting on the distribution of UNRRA supplies in all receiving countries including Ukranian and Byrlo-Russia Soviet Socialist Republics and have submitted extensive and detailed reports.

HARRY S. TRUMAN.

The Russian Note.

The President transmitted the following translation of the Russian communication:

The charge d'affairs of the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics presents his compliments to the Secretary of State and with reference to the note of the Acting Secretary of State of January 8, 1946, has the honor to communicate the following:

Inasmuch as special commissions of the United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration will be sent to the Ukrainian S. S. R. and the Byelo-Russian S. S. R., American official circles and the public will have the responsibility of receiving information of interest to them concerning the utilization and distribution of the supplies and services of the United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration through these commissions.

With reference to the request of the State Department for granting representatives of the American press and radio the possibility for full and free execution of their functions in accordance with the desire expressed by the Congress of the United States, representatives of the American press and radio on the territories of the Ukrainian S. S. R. and the Byelo-Russian S. S. R. should be guided by the rules in effect on all the territory of the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics, and for that reason the establishment of any special rules regulating the activities of representatives of the American press and radio on the territories of the Ukrainian S. S. R. and Byelo-Russian S. S. R. is not contemplated.

REDS GOT U. S. JOBS, REES SAYS IN HOUSE

Kansan Calls for Inquiry on Civil Service Clearances—Board Denies Charge

WASHINGTON, June 24 (AP)—Representative Rees, Republican of Kansas, said today that the Civil Service Commission had approved Communists and their followers for federal jobs, and he demanded an investigation. The commission issued a denial.

Mr. Rees urged his colleagues, in a speech, to approve a resolution authorizing a House Civil Service subcommittee to scan the commission's records of its check-ups on federal workers' loyalty.

He said that during the war the commission set up a special board which "time and again" reversed the reports of investigators who had looked into the background of prospective Government employes.

"The evidence I have shows that in 75 per cent of the cases involving communist activities of federal employes," Representative Rees declared, "this board of advisers to the Civil Service Commissioners reversed the findings of the investigator who actually conducted the investigation."

Mr. Rees also demanded a reopening of the cases where the employes were cleared. The commission declared it had no authority to do this, since once an employe had been approved, the question of his fitness in the future was for his superior to decide.

The commission's statement said that since July 1, 1940, it had rated 1,283 persons ineligible for employment on loyalty grounds, of whom about half were rated ineligible "because the commission believed they were Communists or followers of the Communist party line." It added that because of lack of funds, its investigations covered only "a small percentage" of the total new employes.

As for the commission's overruling of investigators in 75 per cent of the cases, it said that this statement "is absolutely inaccurate as far as any fiscal year during the war period is concerned."

The commission defended the practice of separating the functions of investigating cases and making decisions on them.

"It is an elementary principle of just administration," it said, "that there should be a divorce between those who are charged with the responsibility of investigation and those who are called upon to recommend a fnal decision."

MRS. LUCE ATTACKS RUSSIAN AGGRESSION

WASHINGTON, June 24 (AP)—Representative Luce of Connecticut declared today that the "mission" of communism "is to overthrow" the democratic world.

"There can be no Russian appeasement because the heart and core of communism is that it cannot survive in a democratic world and its mission is to overthrow that democratic world," she told students of twenty-four Catholic universities at the International Pattern Institute.

Mrs. Luce said the price of peace is to face these "facts" about Russia: "She is a dictatorship," has "launched a tremendous plan of aggression which has already enveloped vast territories in Europe and Asia," and has "an underground in every country in the world and every Communist party member is an agent for the U.S.S.R."

To offset what she termed "Russian aggression," Mrs. Luce suggested:

"The maintenance of an army, navy and air force of sufficient strength and size to make it seem imprudent and unrealistic to start a war; our assistance in so far as possible in the rehabilitation of Europe and Asia; legislation for the betterment of our depressed classes and fair treatment of them, and proper appeasement of Russia, e. g., promise her we won't seek new and far flung bases to fortify around the world if she won't seek new bases and fortify hers."

WALLACE REPORTS MERGERS GAINING

Secretary Finds Pattern Is Similar to That Following First World War

WASHINGTON, June 24 (AP)—Secretary of Commerce Henry A. Wallace reported tonight a sharp increase in business mergers, with larger companies absorbing small ones in a "trend closely resembling corporate concentration that occurred following World War I."

Noting that mergers and acquistions during the final three months of last year reached the highest level since 1931, with preliminary indications that the high rate is continuing this year, Mr. Wallace declared in a statement:

"If it continues for a number of years it will have important repercussions on the nation's economic system, primarily because competition will be further reduced and opportunitites of small business further limited."

The number of mergers and acquisitions during the first three months of this year was reported one-third higher than the corresponding period of last year, but below that for the last three months of 1945 because of a "normal seasonal trend."

The recent turn to corporate mergers has been most pronounced, Mr. Wallace said, among alcoholic beverage companies, drug and pharmaceutical companies, dairy concerns, paper mills, textile mills and metal and fabricating plants.

Mr. Wallace made a comparison of the present trend with experience following the first World War, in support of his report that mergers are most common in prosperous times. He said that since V-J Day "there has been a spectacular increase in the number of small lines absorbed by larger ones."

"The highly liquid asset position of the nation's corporations, their ownership of well-established nation-wide outlets and their nation-wide advertising programs all give impetus toward the trend to further corporate mergers and acquisitions," he said.

FRENCH BLAMED FOR FAILURES OF REICH RULE

U. S. Aide Says Haggling May Force New Occupation Plan

Columbus, Ohio, June 24—(AP)—Assistant Secretary of War Howard C. Peterson said today the whole basis of German occupation plans will have to be revised radically unless the Allied powers end their haggling at Berlin.

Moreover, he asserted that as long as the conquered Reich is not treated as an economic whole the American occupation zone "will be a burden—and a heavy one—on the American taxpayer."

In a speech prepared for a luncheon meeting of the Columbus Chamber of Commerce, Peterson ascribed failure to carry out terms of the Potsdam agreement primarily to French objections, adding that Russia presented difficulties but "to a lesser extent."

Backing up what he termed the imperative need to set up central administrative agencies to deal with foreign trade, finance, industry, communications, transportation and food and agriculture, Peterson reviewed the physical characteristics of the four occupation zones and declared:

"To oversimplify, the British have the industry, the Russians have the food, we have the scenery, and the French have the objections."

Planning on Unit Basis

All of the planning on reparations and the restorations of German economy," he continued, are based upon treating Germany as an economic unit. Unless some minimum central administrative machinery is determined upon, military government officials will have to revise radically the whole basis for our occupation of Germany."

Peterson reviewed the food difficulties in the U. S. zone, declaring:

"Our inability to match the Russian level of feeding does not, in the eyes of the Germans, reflect too favorably on the democratic way of life."

But Peterson insisted that the Army has done a "highly commendable job" in Germany. Most of the criticism that has been heard in this country, he continued, "fails to view our accomplishments in proper perspective. . . .

"We are being criticized today because the youth of Germany still are unreconstructed Nazis. Remember that a boy starting his education when Hitler came to power had 13 years of schooling under the Nazi regime. You cannot expect us in 13 months to change completely his basic philosophy of life. There is no magic wand that will perform miracles overnight."

Hungary Praises U.S. Aid To Get Gold Nazis Stole

Thanks America for Pledge to Return Nation's Bullion

WASHINGTON, June 24 (AP).—Hungarian Premier Merenc F. Nagy has expressed his country's thanks to the United States for its co-operation in restoring Nazi-looted Hungarian gold found recently in the American occupation zone in Germany.

In a message, made public today by the State Department, Mr. Nagy said he is confident the recent Hungarian mission to Washington "will have a great influence upon overcoming the difficulties in the way of peace and recovery." Mr. Nagy and his aids left Washington Wednesday.

In reply, Dean Acheson, Acting Secretary of State, said he fully shared Mr. Nagy's conviction that a constructive purpose has been served by the conversations.

Mr. Nagy's visit gained him:

1. United States assurances that all other identifiable Hungarian property found in the American occupation zone in Germany will be returned.

2. United States consideration of an increase in the American credit limit to Hungary for purchase of American surplus property abroad.

The amount of gold to be returned to Hungary has not been disclosed. Mr. Nagy said, however, that it will be used to help stabilize Hungary's monetary system and economy.

DAVIS SAYS LAWS BANNING STRIKES ARE INEFFECTIVE

Tamiment, Pa., June 24—(AP)—Industrial peace in the United States cannot be secured by passing legislation outlawing strikes, William H. Davis, former chairman of the War Labor Board, maintains.

"We cannot maintain a free economy and legislate against strikes in private industry," Davis declared in the closing session of the four-day Tamiment Social and Economic Institute yesterday.

Davis recommended, however, that Congress approve "a comprehensive legislative program designed to remove some of the causes of the insecurity felt by workers and employers."

"Unemployment insurance, health and medical services for families of low and moderate income at costs they can afford, fair minimum wages and continuance of price control stabilization laws in effective form," were urged by Davis as a definite way of finding "industrial peace."

Davis, now on the faculty of the University of Pennsylvania, asserted President Truman handled the railroad strike capably, pointing out:

"The country as a whole learned that the Federal Government would act to preserve the general welfare in such a crisis and that it would be backed up without any significant element of disunity.

"When the general welfare—the preservation of the economic and social structure of the nation—compels the Government to act, it should be the recognized duty of all those with special skills in that trade or industry to make their skills, influence and experience available to the Government for the duration of the Government operation."

ITALIAN VETERANS SEEK RIFLES FOR CEREMONIES

WASHINGTON, June 24—(AP) Legislation directing the government to supply rifles for ceremonial purposes to the Italian-American World War Veterans of the U. S., Inc., was introduced today by Rep. Fuller (R-NY).

The Italian-American veterans, Fuller said in a statement, claim a membership of 32,000 in six states—New York, Connecticut, Massachusetts, Pennsylvania, New Jersey and Ohio.

"Under existing law," he explained, "unless a veterans' organization's name is actually in the law, or on an approved list, that organization is not entitled to any consideration in regard to the rifles—no matter how patriotic the services of its members during the war."

Fugitive German P. W. Caught

WASHINGTON, June 24 (AP).—The Justice Department today announced the arrest in Lordsburg, N. M., of Franz Gaisch, twenty-eight, an escaped German prisoner of war who was trying to reach South America via Mexico. Gaisch was arrested by border patrol inspectors on a west-bound freight train, a Department spokesman said. Gaisch escaped June 8 from the Port Allen, La., guardhouse where he was serving a sentence for escaping from Camp McCain, Miss. The spokesman said he worked two days in New Orleans on a banana barge and later took a west-bound freight.

Unknown Soldier Bill Signed

WASHINGTON, June 24 (AP).—President Truman today signed legislation directing the Secretary of War to place beside the body of the first Unknown Soldier in the Arlington National Cemetery Mausoleum that of an unknown service man of World War II. Selection of the body, as provided in the bill, will be made from among the unidentified dead who lost their lives in overseas combat.

Senate Votes War Fiancee Bill

WASHINGTON, June 24 (AP).—The Senate passed and sent to the White House today a bill to permit foreign girls engaged to marry American service men to enter this country regardless of immigration quota limitations. The measure was approved without comment as the Senate agreed to House amendments to the immigration act. Alien girls could enter the United States after proving to American Consuls in their country that they are the fiancees of veterans now in this country. They would have to post a bond guaranteeing their return fare in case the wedding failed to come off.

Mrs. Wood Gets Legion of Merit

WASHINGTON, June 24 (AP).—Mrs. Helen H. Wood, widow of Colonel Arthur Wood, former Police Commissioner of New York, today received the Legion of Merit from the War Department. It was given for her administrative ability in recruitting, organization and direction of the Women's Army Corps while serving as staff director of the W. A. C. Army Air Forces Western Flying Command from May, 1943, until February, 1945. Mrs. Wood was discharged as a lieutenant colonel.

N.A.M. Spurns House Hearing

WASHINGTON, June 24 (AP).—Representative Augustine B. Kelley (D.-Pa.) hinted tonight at possible contempt action against the National Association of Manufacturers, which he said had refused to send representatives to a Congressional hearing tomorrow on labor-management unrest.

The hearing has now been postponed.

DISLIKES TO BRING CHARGE

Kelley, chairman of a House Labor subcommittee empowered to investigate labor unrest, wrote Walter B. Weisenburger, N.A.M. executive vice president;

"The subcommittee dislikes to bring a charge of contempt against the National Association of Manufacturers and hopes your decision may be reconsidered."

His letter, which he made public, said the N.A.M. decision not to be represented "appears to be in contempt of the public interest, which so clearly would be served by prompt and conscientious study of the factors behind labor-management unrest."

AGAINST FURTHER STUDY

Kelley said Weisenburger had informed him, in turning down an invitation for N.A.M. witnesses to appear at the hearing, that the N.A.M. "does not believe that any further study should be used to relay legislation correcting the (labor) abuses which already are apparent."

ESPIONAGE TRIAL DELAYED ON COAST

SEATTLE, June 24—(AP) Federal Judge Lloyd L. Black today postponed until tomorrow the opening of the espionage trial of Russian Navy Lt. Nicolai G. Redin to permit defense counsel to complete a study of the juror list.

Michael S. Vavilov, Russian consul-general, was here from San Francisco to report the trial to his government.

The defendant appeared in dress uniform. He told reporters he expects acquittal. Consul-General Vavilov told interviewers that upon acquittal, Lieutenant Redin will return to naval duty.

The U. S. government charges that Redin, while on duty here, induced ahd attempted to induce Herbert Kennedy, a shipyard worker, named as principal government witness in Redin's indictment, to obtain for Redin the plans of the destroyer tender, the U.S.S. Yellowstone.

10,000 Veterans Seek 1,588 Jeeps

Ex-Wac in Line That Was Started Night Before

BENICIA, Calif., June 24 (AP).—Ten thousand car-hungry veterans, forgetful of war-time vows never to ride a jeep again, besieged Benicia Arsenal today to buy 1,588 jeeps offered for sale by the government.

It was first come, first served. But it was the twenty-sixth man in line, Peter Bosko, twenty-four of Oakland, an ex-corporal, who bought the first jeep.

Mr. Bosko knew what he wanted. Quickly he selected a jeep priced at $250.40 disdaining the cheapest ones at $99 and the cream of the lot at $700.

Mr. Bosko started to drive off. The jeep snorted, coughed, died.

Two special mechanics, on the alert for just such an emergency, pounced on his prize, made a few quick adjustments, and Mr. Bosko drove happily away.

Captain Frank Fisher, arsenal public relations officer, estimated at fully 10,000 the number of veterans trying to get a car. There were several women among them. Miss Dorothy Howard, of San Francisco, a former Wac, said she was there to get a jeep "for essential personal transportation."

There were extra guards on hand to keep the crowd in line, and extra traffic details. Coffee and sandwiches were served throughout the day by the Benicia American Legion Auxiliary.

The line of jeep seekers started forming Sunday, and by nightfall numbered 500.

Lilienthal Urges 'Faith In Men' to Control Atom

Says They Can Use Science for Good, Not Evil

GRINNELL, Iowa, June 24 (AP).—International control of atomic energy must rest on "faith in men," David E. Lilienthal, chairman of the Tennessee Valley Authority, declared here tonight.

Mr. Lilienthal, oneof the five-man board which wrote a government atomic energy report made public last March by the State Department, addressed the biennial convention of the Congregational Christian Churches.

"My four associates and I advanced a specific plan that, if put into effect by the peoples of the world, we believe could provide security against the evil applications of science's latest great discovery, the release of atomic energy," he asserted in his prepared address.

The T. V. A. head said this report proposed "putting the faith in men to practical use" and was a concrete case of how men could put science to work for good rather than for evil.

POLAND BEGAN THE FIGHT ON THE SPANISH QUESTION IN APRIL WITH A CHARGE THAT GENERALISSIMO FRANCO MENACES WORLD PEACE, HARBORS GERMAN WAR CRIMINALS, AND SHELTERS NAZI SCIENTISTS DEVISING NEW METHODS OF WARFARE.

ONLY RUSSIA, MEXICO AND FRANCE SUPPORTED POLAND AT THAT TIME, BUT WHEN IT APPEARED THAT POLAND WOULD BE BEATEN, LT. COL. W.R. HODGSON, SITTING FOR AUSTRALIA, PROPOSED THAT A SUB-COMMITTEE OF FIVE MEMBERS OF THE COUNCIL INVESTIGATE THE CASE AND REPORT BY MAY 31. THIS WAS APPROVED AND THE DELEGATES OF POLAND, FRANCE, CHINA, AUSTRALIA AND BRAZIL WERE NAMED TO THE SUB-COMMITTEE. AUSTRALIA WAS GIVEN THE CHAIRMANSHIP.

AFTER CONSIDERING HUGE PILES OF EVIDENCE AND HEARINGS REPRESENTATIVES OF THE SPANISH REPUBLICAN GOVERNMENT IN EXILE, THE SUB-COMMITTEE REPORTED THAT FRANCO IS A POTENTIAL THREAT TO PEACE. IT RECOMMENDED THAT THE QUESTION BE GIVEN TO THE GENERAL ASSEMBLY MEETING IN SEPTEMBER WITH A RECOMMENDATION BY THE COUNCIL THAT THE ASSEMBLY CALL FOR A BREAK IN RELATIONS BY ALL UNITED NATIONS IF FRANCO STILL IS IN POWER AT THAT TIME.

AT THE SUGGESTION OF THE UNITED STATES DELEGATE, HERSCHEL V. JOHNSON, THE RESOLUTION WAS TONED DOWN TO LEAVE TO THE ASSEMBLY THE WHOLE QUESTION OF BREAKING RELATIONS OR "OTHER" ACTION AGAINST FRANCO.

THE RUSSIAN DELEGATE CONSISTENTLY OPPOSED THE SUB-COMMITTEE RECOMMENDATION AND THE COMPROMISE, DECLARING NEITHER STEP WENT FAR ENOUGH AND THAT FRANCO HAD BEEN PROVED TO BE A MENACE TO PEACE AT THE PRESENT.

RUSSIA INVOKED THE VETO LAST WEEK ON A SHOWDOWN ON THE SUB-COMMITTEE RESOLUTION, KILLING IT.

Bad Nauheim, Germany, June 24--(AP)--Col. C. B. Mickelwait, the U.S. Army's European theater judge advocate, told 12 American publishers and editors visiting the Lichfield cruelty trials here today that the army holds soldiers responsible for their illegal brutality, even though done upon orders from superior officers.

The newspapermen, who are making a tour of the European theater, left for Berlin after attending the trials and a luncheon given by Brig. Gen. T. F. Bresnahan, continental base section commander.

At the [redacted] Col. Mickelwait briefed the editors on the background of the trials, in which six officers and 10 enlisted men are accused in connection with alleged brutality to soldier prisoners at the Lichfield, England, detention camp guardhouse.

The editors questioned Mickelwait about the army's policy regarding illegal and cruel punishments if ordered by superiors, as most of the Lichfield defendants contend they were.

"No one is justified in carrying out improper or illegal orders," Mickelwait answered. "Although the facts must always be tested to see whether the defendant should have known the orders were illegal, and orders may be considered as mitigating circumstances. There ought, of course, to be greater responsibility in relation to the responsibility of the position held and the opportunity to judge the legality of orders."

JUN 25 1946

Asked by one editor what recourse a soldier had if he considered an order illegal, Mickelwait explained that the soldier could appeal to "the proper commander" or to the inspector general or, if tried for disobedience, he could challenge the legality of the orders as a defense.

"Does an ordinary private know that?" one editor asked.

"I think that most of them do," Mickelwait replied.

He told another questioner that he did not know of any attempts to keep out of the trials any reference to "the responsibility of higher-ups" for conditions at Lichfield.

The newspapermen declined to comment on the conduct of the trials, explaining that their visit was too brief for them to judge.

RUSSIAN-ATOMIC (400)

LONDON, JUNE 24-(AP)-PRAVDA, ORGAN OF THE COMMUNIST PARTY IN RUSSIA, TODAY DESCRIBED THE U.S. PROPOSALS FOR CONTROL OF ATOMIC ENERGY AS "REFLECTING OBVIOUS ASPIRATIONS TOWARDS WORLD DOMINATION."

"IN THAT VERY MIXED UP PLAN," HE CONTINUED, "EVERY POINT EVOKES BEWILDERMENT AND IS PREGNANT WITH EVERY SORT OF COMPLICATION.

"DO THEY THINK IN WASHINGTON," IZAKOV CONTINUED, "THAT THE NOISE RAISED ABOUT THE FORTHCOMING ATOMIC BOMB TESTS IN THE PACIFIC WILL BE A SPECIAL SOURCE OF INSPIRING TRUST IN THE UNITED STATES?"

PRAVDA'S WRITER TOOK PARTICULAR EXCEPTION TO AMERICAN HANDLING OF ATOMIC RESEARCH AND PRODUCTION:

"X X X THE MANUFACTURE OF ATOMIC BOMBS IN THE UNITED STATES IS NOT EVEN IN THE HANDS OF GOVERNMENT BODIES, X X X ITS SEPARATE PHASES ARE SOLD TO PRIVATE MONOPOLIES, FOR INSTANCE THE DUPONT DE NEMOURS CHEMICAL TRUST.

HE TERMED THE PHASE OF THE AMERICAN PLAN PRESENTED BY BERNARD M. BARUCH PERTAINING TO ELIMINATION OF THE UNITED NATIONS VETO POWER IN MATTERS PERTAINING TO ATOMIC ENERGY "ANOTHER SUBSTANTIAL DEFECT."

"IT CALLS FOR ABANDONMENT OF THE BASIC PRINCIPLES OF THE WORK OF THE SECURITY COUNCIL AND, IN PARTICULAR, THE ABANDONMENT OF THE PRINCIPLE OF UNANIMITY OF THE GREAT POWERS WHEN DECIDING ESSENTIAL QUESTIONS," IZAKOV WROTE. "COMMENTING ON THIS POINT OF BARUCH'S PROPOSALS THE AMERICAN PRESS CHATTERS ABOUT THE NECESSITY THAT 'THE POWERS SHOULD ABANDON THEIR SOVERIEGNTY.'

"WHAT THEY HAVE IN MIND IS THAT THE POWERS SHOULD ABANDON THEIR SOVERIGNTY--IN FAVOR OF THE U.S.A.

"THE EXPERIENCE OF THE PAST FEW MONTHS HAS ILLUSTRATED QUITE FORCIBLY THAT THE RULE OF THE UNANIMITY OF THE GREAT POWERS IS AN INVARIABLE CONDITION FOR PRESERVING THE EQUALITY OF THE PARTIES IN THAT BODY OF THE UNITED NATIONS UPON WHICH THE MOST RESPONSIBLE DECISIONS DEPEND.

"TWO DIFFERENT TRENDS IN MODERN INTERNATIONAL POLITICS ARE APPARENT IN THE SOVIET PROPOSALS AND IN THE AMERICAN PLAN RESPECTIVELY," IZAKOV CONCLUDED.

"THE FORMER REFLECT THE STEADFAST SOVIET POLICY OF PEACE AND THE DEFENSE OF GENERAL SECURITY, WHILE THE AMERICAN PLAN IS A PRODUCT OF 'ATOMIC DIPLOMACY' REFLECTING OBVIOUS ASPIRATIONS TOWARD WORLD DOMINATION. BUT IN OUR DAY, SUCH ASPIRATIONS CAN HAVE NO SUCCESS."

THIS COMMITTEE, HE SAID, WOULD FOLLOW THE PROCEDURE EMPLOYED AT DUMBARTON OAKS AND SHOULD DRAW UP A PROGRAM EMBODYING SUCH QUESTIONS AS THE SETTING UP OF AN ATOMIC AUTHORITY, THE EXCHANGE OF SCIENTIFIC INFORMATION, A SURVEY OF RAW MATERIALS AND THE CONTROLS TO BE ADOPTED.

"By blood and by fire Yehudah has fallen; by blood and by fire it will be restored again."

THIRD NIGHT LEAD WAR CRIMES (330)
BY MORRIE LANDSBERG

TOKYO, TUESDAY, JUNE 25-(AP)-BARON KIJURO SHIDEHARA, FORMER PREMIER OF JAPAN, TESTIFIED TODAY BEFORE THE ALLIED WAR CRIMES TRIBUNAL THAT THE JAPANESE GOVERNMENT TRIED IN 1931 TO CONTROL THE ARMY AFTER THE MANCHURIAN INCIDENT BUT FAILED TO KEEP THE MILITARY FROM GRABBING MORE TERRITORY.

THE 71-YEAR-OLD FORMPER PREMIER, WHO SERVED AS FOREIGN MINISTER UNDER PREMIER BARON WAKATSUKI, WAS CALLED AS A PROSECUTING WITNESS IN THE TRIAL OF 28 OF JAPAN'S FORMER LEADERS.

"A GREAT STRAIN WAS PUT ON (THE CABINET'S) FOREIGN POLICY IN SEPTEMBER OF 1931 BY THE OUTBREAK OF THE MANCHURIAN INCIDENT," SHIDEHARA SAID. "SHORTLY BEFORE, I RECEIVED CONFIDENTIAL REPORTS AND INFORMATION THAT THE KWANGTUNG ARMY WAS ENGAGED IN AMASSING TROOPS AND BRINGING UP AMMUNITION AND MATERIEL FOR SOME MILITARY PURPOSE. I KNEW FROM THOSE REPORTS THAT SOME KIND OF ACTION WAS CONTEMPLATED BY THE MILITARY CLIQUE. THE WAKATSUKI CABINET AND MYSELF, AS FOREIGN MINISTER FOLLOWING THE MANCHURIAN INCIDENT, MADE EVERY EFFORT TO CONTROL THE ARMY AND PREVENT FURTHER TERRITORIAL EXPANSION BUT WE WERE UNABLE TO DO SO."

SHIDEHARA SAID THAT THE CABINET WAS FORCED TO RESIGN AS A RESULT OF ITS INABILITY TO CONTROL THE ARMY AND SUPPRESS ITS AGGRESSIONS IN MANCHURIA.

NOW A STATE MINISTER IN THE CABINET OF SHIGERU YOSHIDA, HIS SUCCESSOR AS PRIME MINISTER, SHIDEHARA TOLD OF STRONG OPPOSITION BY THE MILITARY TO RATIFICATION OF THE LONDON NAVAL TREATY AT THE TIME WHEN HE WAS FOREIGN MINISTER IN THE MAMAGUCHI CABINET.

A163KX

SHIDEHARA'S AFFIDAVIT WAS ENTERED INTO THE RECORD ONLY AFTER STRENUOUS OBJECTION BY OWEN CUNNINGHAM OF DES MOINES, ATTORNEY FOR HIROSHI OSHIMA, WARTIME AMBASSADOR TO BERLIN. CUNNINGHAM CONTENDED SHIDEHARA SPOKE ENGLISH AND THERE WAS NO REASON WHY HE SHOULD NOT TESTIFY BY DIRECT EXAMINATION.

JUN 25 1946

THE TRIBUNAL'S CHIEF JUSTICE OVERRULED THE OBJECTION AS "FATUOUS."

WILLIAM J.MCCORMACK OF CHICAGO, ATTORNEY FOR GENERAL JIRO MINAMI, THE WAR MINISTER IN THE HAMAGUCHI CABINET, SOUGHT TO DRAW FROM SHIDEHARA CONFIRMATION THAT TWO DIVISIONS WERE KEPT FROM THE JAPANESE ARMY WHILE THAT CABINET WAS IN POWER. HOWEVER, SHIDEHARA SAID THAT ACTION WAS INITIATED BY THE PREVIOUS CABINET.

COUNSEL FOR FORMER JAPANESE FIELD MARSHAL SHUROKU HATA CHARGED TODAY THAT SOME OF THE WAR CRIMES BLAMED ON THE ONETIME COMMANDER OF THE EXPEDITIONARY FORCE IN CHINA REPRESENT A "CASE OF MISTAKEN IDENTITY."

MARINE LT.ARISTEDAS LAZARUS OF NEW YORK CITY FILED A PETITION ASKING THE INTERNATIONAL MILITARY TRIBUNAL TO ORDER THE APPEARANCE OF FORMER LT.GEN.HIKOSABURO HATA AS A WITNESS TO SHOW THAT IT WAS THE LATTER AND NOT THE FIELD MARSHAL WHO WAS INVOLVED IN THE MANCHURIAN INCIDENT.

LAZARUS SAID LT.GEN.HATA WAS CHIEF OF STAFF OF THE JAPANESE KWANTUNG ARMY WHEN RUSSIA ENTERED THE WAR AGAINST JAPAN AND THAT NOTHING HAS BEEN HEARD OF HIM SINCE. THE PETITION SAID THAT IT WAS THE LT.GEN.HATA AND NOT THE FIELD MARSHAL WHO WAS MENTIONED IN MANY COUNTS OF THE INDICTMENT.

MARSHAL HATA WAS COMMANDER OF THE CENTRAL CHINA EXPEDITIONARY FORCE IN 1938 AND THE FOLLOWING YEAR BECAME THE CHIEF AIDE DE CAMP TO THE EMPEROR. HE WAS APPOINTED MINISTER OF WAR ON AUGUST 30, 1939, AND WAS CONCURRENTLY PRESIDENT OF THE MANCHURIAN AFFAIRS BOARD. HIS LAST POST, LAZARUS SAID, WAS COMMANDER IN CHIEF OF THE JAPANESE SECOND ARMY CORPS.

UNTIL THE 11 JUDGES CAN AGREE OTHERWISE, THE INTERNATIONAL MILITARY TRIBUNAL WILL ADMIT ALL TESTIMONY SHORT OF "SCANDALOUS" INTO THE RECORD OF THE TRIAL OF 28 OF JAPAN'S TOP-RANKING WARTIME LEADERS.

THE QUESTION CAME UP MONDAY DURING CROSS-EXAMINATION OF A WITNESS TESTIFYING ON HOW PREWAR JAPAN CLAMPED A RIGID CENSORSHIP ON THE PRESS.

SIR WILLIAM WEBB, TRIBUNAL PRESIDENT, SAID THE COURT HAD TRIED TO FORMULATE A DEFINITE RULE COVERING THE POINT BUT IT HAD NOT BEEN SUCCESSFUL TO DATE.

SO, HE SAID, THE COURT WILL PERMIT ANY STATEMENTS WHICH ARE NOT ACTUALLY "SCANDALOUS."

FOUR WITNESSES WERE CALLED MONDAY AS THE PROSECUTION NEARED THE END OF ITS PRESENTATION OF THE PROPAGANDA PHASE OF JAPAN'S EMPIRE BUILDING POLICIES. ONE OF THEM, A JAPANESE NEWSPAPER MAN NAMED TOMIN SUZUKI, TESTIFIED THAT FORMER PREMIER HIDEKI TOJO "BETRAYED" HIS OWN FOREIGN MINISTER, SHIGENORI TOGO, WHEN HE LED THE COUNTRY TO WAR. BOTH TOJO AND TOGO ARE AMONG THE DEFENDANTS.

ABOARD THE U.S.S. APPALACHIAN, JUNE 24-(AP)-THE BOMBARDIER LET GO HIS PRACTICE BOMB RIGHT ON THE NOSE TODAY AND THE ADMIRAL HOPES THE ATOMIC BOMB TEST ITSELF GOES AS WELL AS THE FINAL WARM-UP.

RESULTS OF THE REHEARSAL BOMBING STAGED IN BIKINI LAGOON SHOWED THAT THE PRACTICE BOMB EXPLODED IN THE AIR BETWEEN THE BATTLESHIP NEVADA--BULLSEYE OF THE TARGET FLEET--AND THE CARRIER INDEPENDENCE.

"IT WAS SWELL," SAID VICE ADM. WILLIAM H.P. BLANDY, COMMANDER OF THE ATOMIC TEST FORCE. "I HOPE THE REAL SHOW GOES AS WELL."

THE REHEARSAL, IN WHICH SCORES OF PLANES AND SHIPS AND THOUSANDS OF NAVAL PERSONNEL WENT THROUGH A PRACTICE MANEUVER AS INTRICATE ALMOST AS THE REAL TEST SCHEDULED IN ANOTHER WEEK, WAS LIKE THE MAIN EVENT IN EVERY DETAIL EXCEPT THE BOMB.

THE BOMB WAS A COPY OF THE ATOMIC BOMB IN SIZE AND APPEARANCE, BUT ITS CHARGE CARRIED NONE OF THE TREMENDOUS FORCE OF THE ATOMIC WEAPON.

THE SUPERFORTRESS CARRYING THE PRACTICE BOMB TOOK OFF FROM KWAJALEIN AIRFIELD AND BEGAN THE FIRST BOMB RUN AT 8:20 A.M.

ELEVEN MINUTES LATER IT WAS OVER THE TARGET FLEET, BUT THE FIRST WAS A NEGATIVE RUN BECAUSE THE BOMBARDIER COULDN'T SEE THE NEVADA WITH ITS WHITE-PAINTED TOP DECKS BECAUSE OF CLOUDS.

THE PLANE THEN CIRCLED AND MADE ANOTHER RUN AND THIS TIME EVERYTHING CLICKED. IT WAS "BOMB AWAY" AT 9:14 A.M., BIKINI TIME.

POLAND SUPPORTS SOVIET PROPOSAL ON ATOMIC ENERGY

JUN 26 1946

Dr. Lange Demands That A-Bomb Be Discarded in World Politics.

AUSTRALIA BACKS U. S.

Security Council Committee to Discuss All Suggestions on Controls.

F. CARPENTER

NEW YORK, June 25—(AP)—Poland gave its full support today to Russia's atomic control plan and demanded that such weapons as the atomic bomb be discarded as a means of "international politics and of pressure by one nation upon another."

NIGHT

The Polish delegate, Dr. Oscar Lange, named no names in his address to the United Nations atomic energy commission, but Poland thus became the single country on the 12-nation commission to back Russia's plan unequivocally.

Every member of the commission now has spoken. Russia did not mention the United States plan but every other nation—including Poland—either endorsed the United States plan or said both proposals contained some good material which could be used as a starting point for building atomic controls.

Australia Backs U. S.

Australia was the last to present its views, Dr. Herbert V. Evatt expressing his country's support in substance of the United States proposals.

Evatt, moving for quick action, said a working committee of 12 members—representing each nation on the commission—would take up all proposals and suggestions made in the general discussions. It will meet Friday at 10:30 a.m. The commission adjourned subject to the call of the chairman.

The United States on June 14 proposed creation of an international atomic development authority to control every phase of atomic energy. The United States, the only nation now possessing atomic bombs, further agreed to dispose of its stock and cease manufacturing them when it is assured sufficient controls have been set up.

Russia on June 18 countered with a suggested international convention outlawing atomic weapons—as did the United States—and providing that existing stocks of bombs be destroyed within three months after the convention becomes effective.

Plans Differ on Veto Right

One major difference between the United States and Russia is over the veto plan. The United States opposes any veto on atomic controls; Russia insists the veto should stand.

Lange coupled his demand for discarding atomic bombs with a warning to those "who believe that they can profit from the martial use of atomic energy for their own narrow and selfish purposes."

"No temporary advantage, by whomever held, will prevail against the will of the people to preserve their freedom and against the conscience of mankind," Lange said. He cited Hitler and his "lightning warfare" as an example.

Before Lange spoke a spokesman close to the delegate had said that Poland would offer its own "startlingly simple" plan for atomic energy control. But Lange told the commission:

"Without prejudice to long range plans like that proposed by the United States, the representative of Poland wants to urge this commission to adopt immediately measures leading to the outlawing of atomic warfare. The proposal of such a measure has been laid before us by the representative of the Soviet Union.

"This representative has proposed a draft convention aiming at the immediate outlawing of the production, keeping and use of weapons based upon atomic energy" and also for the immediate destruction of all such weapons in whatever part of the world they may be. The draft convention proposed by him provides also for means of individual punishment for violators of this convention.

"In the name of the government of Poland, I want to give my full support to the Russian draft convention proposed."

Favors Disposal of Bombs

Regarding the United States plan put forward by Bernard M. Baruch, Lange said his government "most heartily endorsed" Baruch's proposal that the manufacture of atomic bombs shall stop and that existing bombs shall be disposed of pursuant to the terms of a treaty to be made between the United Nations.

Alexandre Parodi, French representative, said his government approved the principal contained in the American plan—the aim of eliminating from the world every threat of the use of this new arm and of all other scientific arms which may produce comparable destructive effects.

Urges Study of Proposals

Parodi said France thought it would be the wrong method to desire at the outset that the commission members take up positions on all the questions of principle which are raised either in the American or Soviet plan. He called for a working committee composed of one delegate of each nation, assisted by experts, to study and decide upon the methods of work in the commission.

He said there might be established two sub-committees: One to study a convention eliminating the use of the atomic arm and all other methods of mass destruction; the other to deal with scientific and technical information.

Parodi said the commission risked compromising its work "if we were to demand at the outset from any country that it should place before the public at a sole stroke the results of several years of prodigious technical and industrial effort without receiving in return guarantees involving the adoption of an effective system of international control."

He was referring to the Soviet plan, which envisions the destruction of atomic bombs three months after a convention is effective and a system of controls for all nations six months after the convention is effective.

Dr. Eelco van Kleffens, of the Netherlands, briefly told the commission his country was studying both the United States and Russian plans, which he said provide the necessary basis for starting. He expressed belief the United States and Russian plans were not irreconcilable.

The shortest speech was made by Col. Mohamed Bay Khalifa, representing Egypt. He said Egypt agreed completely with the United States plan.

The last speaker was Dr. Evatt, who said his government advocated a system of effective control and inspection along the lines indicated by Baruch.

Evatt expressed opposition to the veto question in general but said the matter of the veto should be aken up only in conjunction with he general plan.

Australia Seeks To End Atom Control Deadlock

JUN 26 1946

Master Committee to Reconcile Conflicting Views of U. S. and Russia, Plan Leans Toward Program as Outlined by Baruch

C. Gromyko

New York, June 25—(AP)—Australia put forward today a proposal to set up one master committee to draft plans for atomic energy control and reconcile, if possible, the bitterly contested points of divergence in the separate programs proposed by the United States and Russia.

The Australian plan appeared to lean toward the United States' program calling for a supreme control factor which would emerge eventually as the international atomic development authority proposed by Bernard M. Baruch.

DAY

It opposed the Russian proposal to set up two separate committees, the first for exchange of scientific information on atomic developments among the United Nations and the second to be concerned solely with atomic control.

The Australian plan was disclosed by Dr. Herbert V. Evatt, Australian Foreign Minister and chairman of the United Nations Atomic Energy Commission, which is scheduled to meet in its third session at 3 P. M., D. S. T. today.

Its disclosure came close on the heels of a Moscow press attack on the American atomic policy in which the official Communist newspaper Pravda accused the United States of attempting to wield "atomic diplomacy" as a measure of "evident striving for world rule."

Polish delegate Oscar Lange announced he also would present an atomic control program today, and the French member, Alexandre Parodi, said he was prepared to offer some modifications intended to provide common ground for discussion based on the United States program.

The Netherlands and Egypt also were to be heard before Chairman Evatt sums up the various views of all the 12 delegates—from the Security Council nations and Canada—and offer the Australian plan for a single master committee to draft an integrated plan for control of atomic energy.

The committee, Dr. Evatt said, would deal with all such questions as the setting up of an international authority, exchange of scientific information, a survey of raw materials and the adoption of necessary controls.

The Australian said smaller committees could be set up, but the master committee would set forth all the conditions for their work so the problem of atomics should be handled with "utmost dispatch."

Lange worked until late last night on what was described as a simple atomic control program based on a pronouncement made before the General Assembly in London last January 24 by Zygmunt Modzelewski, Polish undersecretary for foreign affairs.

This proposed that atomic energy should be turned exclusively to peaceful uses and outlawed as a weapon for mass destruction. Lange's last-minute endeavors were concerned with presentation of the plan on a basis calculated to win general acceptance.

The Polish delegate, hoping to leave Thursday for consultations in Warsaw, also was busy with a last-ditch attempt to keep the Spanish question alive in the Security Council.

The resolution he lodged last April 19 demanding that the Security Council order an abrupt U. N. diplomatic break with the Franco regime as a threat to peace was finally defeated yesterday by a majority vote of seven to four. The only nations voting for the measure were Poland, Russia, France and Mexico. Russia last week vetoed a twice-compromised subcommittee proposal to refer the whole Spanish issue to the General Assembly in September.

Lange's newest move was a resolution to keep the Spanish issue "under continuous observation" of the Council and retain the question on the agenda until September 1.

Britain's Sir Alexander Cadogan offered an amendment proposing that the issue remain on the docket until the Assembly meets, a move which was interpreted by Russia as meaning that the matter would automatically go then to the Assembly without further action in the Security Council.

Lange countered by suggesting the appointment of a drafting committee to bring forth a revised resolution.

Chairman Francisco Castillo Najera appointed a committee composed of Lange, Cadogan, and Dr. Evatt, chairman of the subcommittee which investigated Spain. They will report to the Council at its next meeting at 3 P. M., D. S. T., Wednesday.

After yesterday's session, a representative of the exiled Spanish Republican leadership which strongly supported the move against the Franco regime said: "This is the burial, with flowers, of the Spanish case."

Excerpts From Speeches Made Yesterday at Meeting of U. N. Atomic Energy Commission

JUN 26 1946

The following are excerpts from the speeches made yesterday by Alexandre Parodi of France, Dr. Oscar Lange of Poland and Dr. Herbert V. Evatt of Australia at the meeting of the United Nations Atomic Energy Commission at Hunter College, in the Bronx:

M. Parodi, N Y Times
France:

Mr. President, at the opening meeting of this Commission, Mr. Trygve Lie, the Secretary General of the United Nations, reminded us of the serious importance of our meeting. The president of the American delegation, Mr. Bernard Baruch, underlined heavily this element in his declaration * * *. Every one of the speakers who spoke after him, last of all our Soviet colleague, Mr. Gromyko, in his speech of last Wednesday, emphasized this quite exceptional aspect of the subject which has brought us together.

I wish, in the first place, to affirm in my turn that my country feels very strongly the tragic character of the problems posed by the atomic arm. Exhausted by the war * * * the nations have been suddenly placed, before they had yet found the true spirit of peace, before a discovery which opens to their knowledge of the universe entirely new perspectives and which threatens to overturn the conditions of their political and social life.

Humanity considers with terror the immense force which it suddenly finds between its hands, an immense force as it presents itself at the present stage of destruction. * * * The unprecedented problem which these discoveries place before humanity is of such gravity that if humanity is unable to triumph over its own imperfections it is threatened with terrible regression and maybe with utter disappearance.

The French delegation * * * measures the importance of the stake that humanity has in this matter and the importance of the part which humanity will play in this Commission and the responsibilities that lie upon this Commission. You may count on the fact that the French delegation will give you every possible assistance without any other consideration in mind than the common good.

In the second place, I wish to indicate, at least briefly, as by way of information how the distrust between one country and another plays a fearful role. I would like to point out the extent to which France has participated in atomic research. I wish to do this all the more because French science has played a very large part in the work which from one discovery to the next has led to the construction of the atomic bomb, that field of research of nuclear physics being undoubtedly that in which the men of my country have made their very great contribution to the progress of science since the beginning of this century. * * *

I wish now, gentlemen, to inform you as to my attitude upon the possibility of the international regulation of this problem, which is the more pressing and at the same time the more difficult to deal with because its implications are so redoubtable.

Two Major Plans Discussed

In this connection, two plans coming from two nations which are at present the most powerful in the world have been submitted for our consideration. These plans are of the very highest importance because of the inspiration which has dictated them to their authors and because of the eminence of the two states concerned. On the concordance or discord of views between these two states the peace of the world depends in a very large measure.

Let us consider, with all the attention that it merits, the proposals which have been submitted to us—the first of those that have been submitted in the name of the United States by Mr. Bernard Baruch. The great American nation has a primordial responsibility in the matter which we are studying, because it is the United States which first succeeded in freeing atomic energy and which has perfected the arm which is derived from this discovery because she alone has used this arm and because she alone, at the present time, is the only country, as far as our information goes, which possesses this arm. The American Government is fully aware of this responsibility, and I would thank the American Government in the name of the French Government for having taken account of this fact in the plan which it has laid before us.

The French delegation wishes to say that it considers this plan as a most generous and a most broadminded plan which could be proposed to the commission. * * *

The aim of the plan is to eliminate from the world every threat of the use of this new arm and of all other scientific arms which may produce comparable destructive effects. France, which hopes fervently that the atomic bomb may never be used, approves the principle contained here. * * *

We have, now that the delegate of the Soviet Government has made his statement, another element of capital importance that we must take into account for the future ordering of our discussions. The plan presented in the name of his Government by Mr. Gromyko is, like the American plan, aimed at proposing the most appropriate means to spare humanity the ravages which a new conflict would cause through the employment of atomic arms.

These means that are proposed as conceived by the Soviet Government are in part different from those suggested by the American Government. But after the first examination that the French delegation has carried out upon these two plans it would appear that on those points on which the plans are not in perfect accordance they are, nevertheless, not irreconcilable. * * *

The chief characteristic of the proposition that the Soviet delegation brings us is its legal character. Independently of the proposal as to methods of work, it consists essentially of traditional diplomatic solutions, such as a draft international convention to forbid the employment of atomic arms. This indispensable element of a general system for the solution of this great problem may be generally accepted, since the president of the American delegation spoke in so many words of an adequate regulation of atomic energy, including the renunciation of the atomic bomb as an arm.

But, like the American delegation, which has also made this clear, the French delegation considers that a convention eliminating the atomic arm should include not only, as Mr. Gromyko has emphasized quite rightly, the characteristic of a solemn engagement but it should also be insured that its strict application is absolutely guaranteed.

In this entirely new field * * * not only no violation but no possibility, no suspicion, of violation can be tolerated. This means that the notion of control and guarantee of observance are inseparable in the convention itself.

The Soviet plan provided expressly for this and recommends that the organization for control and supervision should be one of the subjects to be studied by the committees whose establishment the plan envisages. It appears, then, that we are all in agreement upon a certain number of principles. The atomic arm must be eliminated. The obligation which our Governments shall take upon ourselves for this purpose, shall be applied under supervision and control. Efficacious sanctions shall be applied to anyone violating these obligations.

It is as regards the relative importance to be attached to these various principles, and above all the order in which their application must be effected, that divergencies of view appear between the two plans presented to us at the present state. These divergencies are certainly such that a sincere desire to succeed should be capable of removing them.

The notion of progress by stages is included in the terms of reference assigned to us by the General Assembly, which lays down that the Commission shall proceed with its work in distinct stages, so that the success obtained at the end of each stage shall develop among the countries the confidence necessary to enable them to pass to the following stage. This consideration concerns not only the exchange of scientific information referred to in Paragraph A of the declaration of the 26th of January but also to the establishment of a system of control for atomic energy, the elimination of atomic arms and the establishment of safeguards envisaged in other paragraphs.

The nature of the problem itself imposes upon us the necessity of dealing with this subject and also the inequality which reigns today among the nations from the point of view of knowledge of the production and of the use of raw materials, energy and atomic arms. In this connection we should run the risk of compromising the success of our work if we were to demand at the outset from any country that it should place before the public, at a sole stroke, the results of several years of prodigious, technical, and industrial effort without receiving in return guarantees involving the adoption of an effective system of international control. And it should be demanded that other countries should themselves make the first step in placing their resources in raw materials under international control. It would be too much to demand this without supplying them with information as to the manner in which these materials should be treated. It is thus, through a wise arrangement of the steps into which our task is to be divided, that we shall find the solution of the problem confided to us.

Inverse Approach Suggested

The French delegation further considers, and this is another point upon which I wish to lay some emphasis, that it is not necessary and that it would even be the wrong method to desire at the outset of our work that we should take up positions on all the questions of principle which are raised either in the American or in the Soviet plan. It seems to us that the inverse method is recommended by the very nature of the questions that we have to deal with. It is not possible for a state to pronounce itself upon the obligations which will be demanded of it, if it does not first know exactly the possible contents of such obligations or if it is not, first of all, insured, for instance, that an effective system of control of the production of atomic energy may be finally set up; or again, if it is not yet able to gauge to what point the inspection of mines and factories will be insured by these necessary guarantees.

On all these points a preliminary study, both legal and scientific, should be carried out in our deliberations. Two essential aspects characterize our work. One is of an essentially practical character, technical and scientific, and the other is of a fundamentally legal and political character, but these two aspects, however different they may be, must be treated in close relation one with the other. It may truly be said that the scientific aspect of the problem conditions the other aspect.

The French delegation considers, then, that the best method would be to proceed through the setting up of a working committee, a single working committee composed of one delegate of each nation, assisted by experts of whatever nationality may be desired, whose expert competence the delegate may consider necessary. This committee's task would be to study and decide upon the methods of work of the Commission. These methods might consist in the establishment of two subcommittees, one composed of a small number of scientific and legal experts, having as its task the examination of a convention to eliminate the use of the atomic arm and all other methods of mass destruction.

It might study also what is, in our opinion, an indispensable complement of the proposed convention, the structure and the status of the international authority designed to insure, on the one hand, the strict application of the convention and, on the other, the placing at the disposal of all countries of the world, atomic energy.

The second subcommittee would have as its task the collection and the furnishing to the working committee, according to its needs, of the scientific and technical information necessary for the accomplishment of its task. In this way we should insure the proper coordination of these two inseparable aspects of the work of the Commission. The accomplishment of these tasks would permit us to realize, on one of the most critical points, international security, which is the essential aim of the United Nations. * * *

Dr. Lange, Poland:

JUN 26 1946

* * * The threat of atomic warfare is hanging over the peoples of the world like a heavy cloud. It poisons international relations and may even today be considered as seriously endangering the mutual confidence, and consequently also the peaceful relations among nations. The discovery of the atomic bomb has become a source of mistrust between nations, a source which must be removed as quickly as possible.

We have been discussing the technical and economic problems concerning the production of fissionable material, of control of plants, of strategic distribution of raw material and plants. This is all important and interesting, but it is not the most important thing. In order to restore confidence among nations the peoples of the world must know one thing. They must know that atomic bombs are no longer being produced. They also must know that such bombs as are available have been destroyed. * * *

The representative of the United States, Mr. Baruch, told us at the first meeting of this Commission that "we are here to make a choice between the quick and the dead. That is our business." He also proposed that (a) manufacture of atomic bombs shall stop, and (b) existing bombs shall be disposed of pursuant to the terms of a treaty to be made between the United Nations. The Government of Poland most heartily endorse these proposals.

These proposals are but an implementation of the mandate which this Commission has received from the General Assembly. The resolution of Jan. 24, 1946, under which our Commission was established provides us with terms of reference designed to guide our work. These terms of reference provide "for the elimination from the national armaments of atomic weapons and of all major weapons adaptable to mass destruction." * * *

In connection with this problem, I should like to point out to you that we have had in recent history other kinds of weapons considered incompatible with the ethical ideas of our culture and civilization. Such weapons are gases and certain liquids. Their use for purposes of warfare has been eliminated by the Geneva Protocol of June 17, 1925, and the conscience of the civilized world felt so strongly about it that even in the last World War, the most destructive of all, these weapons were not used.

The successful record of the Geneva Protocol points the way toward the elimination of atomic energy as a means of warfare. Without prejudice to long-range plans like that proposed by the United States, the representative of Poland wants to urge this Commission to adopt immediately measures leading to the outlawing of atomic warfare. The proposal of such measure has been laid before us by the representative of the Soviet Union.

This representative has proposed a draft convention aiming at the immediate outlawing of the "production, keeping and use of weapons based upon atomic energy" and also for the immediate destruction of all such weapons in whatever part of the world they may be. The draft convention proposed by him provides also for means of individual punishment for violators of this convention.

In the name of the Government of Poland, I want to give my full support to the draft convention proposed. It contains all the basic ideas which were brought forward in the name of our Government * * * at the January meeting of the General Assembly.

Nuremberg Parallel Noted

* * * An important feature of the proposed [Soviet] convention is, in my opinion, Article 3, which requests that the contracting parties "shall pass legislation providing severe punishment for the violation of the terms of this agreement.' This, indeed, introduces a new and important principle: the principle that individuals, whether private persons or public officials, are responsible for violations of an international agreement designed to maintain the ethical standards of civilized life. This principle was recently adopted, for the first time, as the legal basis of the Nuremberg trial. * * *

Another point in the proposed draft convention I should like to comment upon is Article 2. This article states that any violation of the convention constitutes a serious crime against humanity. I should like to go further and to state that such violations shall be considered a breach of the peace and an act of aggression of the sense of Article 39 of the Charter of the United Nations.

Furthermore, in order to reinforce the outlawing of atomic warfare, I should like to propose that the prohibtion of the use of production, keeping and use of atomic weapons be written into the Constitutions of all important states of the United Nations. This might be achieved either on the basis of a separate resolution of the General Assembly or through incorporation into the convention proposed by the representative of the Soviet Union.

After the completion of this first step of our program, namely the outlawing of atomic warfare and the destruction of the means of such warfare, we can proceed toward further steps. Such steps are (a) the exchange of scientific information and also of control of the use of atomic energy for peaceful purposes and for the well-being of mankind; (b) the development of a system of international control and inspection which will secure the exclusive use of atomic energy for the aforesaid peaceful purposes. At this stage we also may consider the problem of international sanctions, which should gradually supplement the internal control and sanctions proposed by the representative of the Soviet Union.

The exchange of scientific information concerning atomic energy is also of great importance for the development of mutual confidence between the nations of the world. * * *

I spoke of steps to be taken after the adoption of the convention to outlaw the production, keeping and use of atomic weapons. Adoption of this convention must be step No. 1 in our program. This, however, need not imply that we postpone the study of the next steps until later. We should begin to study them right now.

In this direction the representative of the Soviet Union has provided us with a helpful suggestion. He has proposed that two committees be created: one for the exchange of scientific information; the other for the prevention of atomic energy being used to the detriment of humanity. The latter committee should prepare the international agreement for the outlawing of atomic weapons and should concern itself with methods of control of atomic energy for the benefit of humanity. I should like to urge this Commission to proceed without further delay to the setting up of these two committees. * * *

The Government of Poland is committed to the principle of equality of all nations and to the promotion of cooperation among big powers. It is our firm belief that if such cooperation will be forthcoming we shall be able to overcome the political difficulties of the problem of atomic energy, just like the scientists have overcome the scientific and technical difficulties. If this cooperation will be forthcoming we shall be able, as the representative of Great Britain has put it to us, "to achieve the impossible."

The people of Poland have suffered from war more than any other nation. During the last war we have lost 6,000,000 dead in our struggle against the invaders who believed in the use of unbridled force and destruction in the relations between nations, in the struggle against an aggressor who used methods and weapons that made no distinction between combatants and peaceful civilian populations.

With this experience in mind, we demand today that all weapons incompatible with the ethical principles of our civilization be outlawed once and forever; we demand that the possession and potential use of these weapons cease to be used as a means of international politics and of pressure by one nation upon another. We know that this desire of ours is shared by all the peoples of the world. * * *

Dr. Evatt, Australia:

* * * The highly complex problem which confronts us should be considered as a whole. It is not sound to deal with any one of its many aspects in isolation. Action which is proposed in one direction must necessarily have a bearing on action which is taken or proposed in other directions.

From this point of view * * * the plan submitted by the United States representative offers a sound basis for planning. The Australian Government is in general agreement with the proposal made by Mr. Baruch that, as part of a single plan, an international authority be established for the purpose of preventing the misuse of atomic energy and insuring its use for the purpose of promoting the general welfare of mankind.

Mr. Gromyko has suggested the study of a draft international agreement forbidding the manufacture and use of atomic weapons, to be followed by other measures involving strict supervision and control to see that the terms of the agreements are strictly observed. This suggestion must receive careful consideration and, I believe, it can be fitted into the general plan implied in the United States proposals. Mr. Gromyko's proposals, however, do not, in my view, give sufficient recognition to the essential interrelation between all the various parts of the one great problem. * * *

There is one step which might well be taken immediately. The importance of radioactive substances in scientific research in general and in medical research in particular is so great that it is in the interests of every nation that supplies of these materials should be available to all workers in these fields at the earliest possible moment. No one country or group of countries would wish to have a monopoly of these materials. Even if for the time being one or a few countries alone possess the facilities for the manufacture of radioactive substances, all countries should be able to secure on reasonable terms their fair share of such substances. * * *

If an atomic development authority effectively controlled all sources of raw materials and all plants for the exploitation of atomic energy, as suggested by Mr. Baruch, that would in itself insure that no materials will be diverted to military purposes. It is necessary, however, to guard against a country setting up its own plants in secret. Precautions against such an evasion will be required but such precautions need not give a vast army of official inspectors the right to delve into all the activities of a nation in the spheres of general mining and engineering, * * *

The Australian Government agrees in principle with the proposal for the establishment of an international authority to act as the organ of the U. N. in the field of atomic energy. The exact relation of such an authority with the United Nations will require detailed consideration. One question of this character which was referred to by Mr. Baruch is the application of the so-called veto. It is essential that the precise nature of this special privilege should be clearly understood. * * *

At present the veto power relates solely to a particular method of voting in reaching decisions of the Security Council on matters of substance as distinct from procedure. If any one of the five permanent members of the Security Council chooses to do so it can block a decision of the agreed majority (seven) of the eleven Council members. Thus the so-called veto can only be exercised in the course of voting in the body of the Security Council by a permanent member in order to prevent a vote by seven members of the Council from becoming effective. It is erroneous to apply the term "right of veto" to decisions of the United Nations generally because it is only in relation to one of its organs that the right has been conferred. The right applies solely to the special circumstances of the operations of the Security Council and the possession of such a right in the Council does not give any claim to a similar veto in respect of the operation of any other international authority.

To some extent the recommendations of this Commission will require review by the Security Council. In such review the veto may be exercisable according to the circumstances. In this Commission itself no veto is exercisable unless we decide to introduce it, which is not contemplated. * * *

However, I think I should add that in my view nothing has been disclosed regarding the nature of atomic energy or of the possible functions of the proposed international authority on atomic energy to indicate why any particular nation or nations should be accorded the right of veto over the decisions of the agreed majority of the authority. Some lesser powers have important supplies of some materials; one large nation, the United States, has highly developed plants and very special technological knowledge; a number of other nations, large, middle-sized and small, have brilliant scientists; but none of these facts seems to me an argument for applying the special voting rule of the Security Council to the decisions of a new international authority. We should in any event take this matter of the veto up only in conjunction with the general plan. * * *

To sum up, the Australian Government favors a general international convention which will:

(a) Vest in an international authority control of all rights in raw materials, processes, plants and the products of plants for the exploitation of all forms of atomic energy, leaving, however, as much freedom as possible to national and private research and other activity where this is not dangerous to international security.

(b) Establish a system of effective control and inspection along the lines indicated by Mr. Baruch.

(c) Provide that, when the controls and safeguards have been effectively organized, the manufacture of atomic weapons and the stockpiling of material for military purposes cease and that existing stocks of bombs be dismantled.

(d) Provide that all information of importance for the peaceful use of atomic energy shall be made available to all nations through exchange of personnel and through free and open publication, nothwithstanding that some such information may be of some slight military significance.

(e) Accelerate all development for converting atomic energy to peaceful purposes.

(f) Provide that there shall be a just and equitable sequence for the implementation of all the provisions of the convention, including the provisions set out in (a) to (d) above, and on acceptance by each of the parties to the convention of all its obligations and sanctions.

Prayda Criticized

JUN 26 1946

Washington, June 25 (AP)—A charge by the Communist newspaper Pravda that the American plan for international control of atomic weapons "reflects evident striving for world rule" today provoked sharp criticism from members of the Senate's special atomic committee.

Calling the charge "ridiculous," Senator Russell (D., Ga.), a committee member, said he thought "the Russians should stop judging all other nation's motives by their own selfish motives."

"Nobody in the world has ever offered to give away so much for so little," the Georgia Senator declared. "The Baruch plan is a generous proposal in which we offer to give away a development bought with our genuis and our money. All we ask in return is protection for the world and ourselves against its use for destructive purposes.

Wants Control First

"I am bitterly opposed to revealing one iota of information until we have some irrevocable plan of inspection, and I think the majority of Congress is in the same frame of mind. There can be no veto in the operation of such international control."

The Georgia Senator said he feared Russian insistence on the veto, renewed in the Pravda outburst, may deadlock United Nations atomic negotiations, a view shared by Senator Johnson (D., Col.), another committee member.

Both said the result of ultimate failure to agree on international controls was likely to be a new armaments contest.

Sees Armaments Race

"If the Russians continue to maintain the position that they must have a veto over the operation of the control machinery," Johnson said, "an atomic bomb armament race becomes inevitable."

Pravda, the official organ of the Communist party, charged that the American plan for gradual disclosure of secret processes as controls are set up and prove workable was an attempt to clinch "the monopoly position of the United States in the production of atomic weapons for an indefinite period." This, it said, reflected a striving for "world rule" which "cannot succeed."

But Senator Huffman (D., Ohio) said the Russians, as well as everybody else, ought to know from the American record in two world wars that this country wants no new boundaries nor reparations.

Bikini Tests Mentioned

"Having refused to take for ourselves more of the world when it was at our feet, no one can seriously accuse us of attempting to dictate to the world now," he declared.

Huffman, who had opposed holding the Bikini bomb tests, noted that Pravda complained that the noise raised over these experiments is the "main source of distrust toward the United States."

While he said he had expected that reaction from the Soviets, the Ohio Senator said he didn't think the Russians had any cause for alarm.

"They know we are not an aggressor and should know that our only aim is to preserve world peace," he said.

RUSSELL FEARS DEADLOCK

Senator Declares Lack of Pact for Control Is Likely to Start a New Armament Contest.

Washington, June 25 (A. P.).—The threat of a United Nations deadlock over atomic energy control, followed by a global atomic arms race stirred Congress today as the result of Russia's blunt "do-it-our-way" approach to the problem.

Leading lawmakers declared emphatically that this country is not going to surrender its A-bomb secrets until tested international controls are set up—something which the Soviet plan does not appear to guarantee.

A charge by the Communist newspaper Pravda that the American plan for international control of the weapon "reflects evident striving for world rule" provoked sharp counter-criticism from members of the Senate's special atomic committee.

Calls Charge Ridiculous.

Calling the charge "ridiculous," Senator Russell (D.-Ga.), a committee member, told a reporter he thinks "the Russians should stop judging all other nation's motives by their own selfish attitudes."

"Nobody in the world has ever offered to give away so much for so little," the Georgia Senator declared. "The Baruch plan is a generous proposal in which we offer to give away a development bought with our genius and our money. All we ask in return is protection for the world and ourselves against its use for destructive purposes."

The Georgia Senator said that he fears Russian insistence on the veto, renewed in the Pravda outburst, may deadlock U. N. atomic negotiations, a view shared by Senator Edwin C. Johnson (D.-Col.), another committee member.

Both said the result of ultimate failure to agree on international controls is liable to be a new armaments contest.

"If the Russians continue to maintain the position that they must have a veto over the operation of the control machinery," Johnson said, "an atomic bomb armament race becomes inevitable."

Pravda, the official organ of the Communist party, charged the American plan for gradual disclosure of secret processes as controls are set up and prove workable is an attempt to clinch "the monopoly position of the United States in the production of atomic weapons for an indefinite period." This, it said, reflected a striving for "world rule" which "cannot succeed."

But Senator Huffman (D.-Ohio) said the Russians, as well as everybody else, ought to know from the American record in two world wars that this country wants no new boundaries nor reparations.

"Having refused to take for ourselves more of the world when it was at our feet, no one can seriously accuse us of attempting to dictate to the world now," he declared.

ANGLO-POLISH DEBT AGREEMENT SIGNED

JUN 26 1946

London, June 25 (A. P.).—An Anglo-Polish financial agreement setting forth terms for the settlement of Poland's war debt to Britain was signed today, and the occasion was marked by a Polish official's denial that Poland is completely under Russian domination.

"The opinion that Poland does not wish to or cannot develop her economic relations in western Europe, being too closely linked to or dependent on the Soviet Union, is just a legend," said E. Drozniak, chairman of the National Bank of Poland. "The difficulties in establishing commercial relations with the West did not originate with us. We have already started discussions concerning monetary and transfer agreement, and I think that in the near future talks concerning a trade agreement should be started."

The Anglo-Polish financial agreement, Drozniak said, requires Poland to pay for the maintenance, welfare and education of all Poles in the British Commonwealth up to June 1, 1946. Drozniak explained that "henceforth Poles who do not want to return to Poland will be supported by the British Treasury." The pact also provides that $12,000,000 of Polish gold reserves in Britain will be handed over to help meet Polish war debts.

Debts for civilian expenditures by the former Polish Government-in-Exile in London have been cut from $128,000,000 to $40,000,000. Poland's payment of these debts is to begin in five years, and will be made over a fifteen-year period. The military debt of $88,000,000 will be held in abeyance.

PRAVDA SEES NO IRAN CASE LEFT

Says Country Was Saved From Intervention.

London, June 25 (A. P.).—Boris Izakov, Pravda's international observer, accused "British and American politicians" today of keeping the question of Iran on the agenda of the United Nations Security Council despite the fact that Iran's major internal troubles have been "painlessly solved."

"Fortunately for the peoples of Iran," Izakov wrote in the official Communist party newspaper, "no intrusion into her (Iran's) affairs was permitted. Saved from outside interference, Iran has painlessly solved one of the key problems of her internal life.

"Yet, upon the demand of the British and American politicians, the so-called Iranian problem still remains on the agenda of the Security Council. These politicians apparently do not appreciate the improper and ridiculous position in which they place themselves."

Izakov's article was broadcast over the Moscow radio.

He said the agreement between the self-proclaimed autonomous government of Azerbaijan Province and the Iranian Central Government satisfactorily settled Iran's domestic problems, "which certain imperialist circles and their agents in Iran endeavored to utilize to kindle civil war in the country and provoke international complications."

The Iranian issue was placed on the Security Council agenda at the opening United Nations meeting here in January when Iran complained that Russia was interfering in Iran's internal affairs.

BROWDER TAKES OFF

He Leaves Britain by Plane—Due in New York Today

LONDON, June 25 (AP)—After having been held incomunicado for two days by the British Government, Earl Browder, former head of the Communist party of the United States, was en route by plane to New York City tonight on the final leg of his round-trip journey to Moscow.

Mr. Browder left Heath Row Airport, fifteen miles from London, today in a Constellation plane, a spokesman for the American Overseas Airlines said, and he is due at La Guardia Field about 4 P. M. (Eastern Standard Time) tomorrow.

Mr. Browder, who arrived from Paris Saturday, had been confined in the barracks of British security police at the airport. The British-imposed ban on interviews and other communications with Mr. Browder was enforced up to the moment of the plane's departure.

Earl Browder Flying Back From Europe

London, June 25—(AP)—Earl Browder, former head of the Communist Party in the United States, left for New York by air today, after two days spent in security custody imposed by the British Government.

A spokesman for American Overseas Airlines said Browder left Hearthrow Airport at 8:05 G. M. T. (3:05 D. S. T.) in a Constellation plane. The plane is due at La Guardia Field, New York, between 9:30 and 10:30 P. M., D. S. T., tonight.

The airline spokesman said Browder, returning from a visit to Moscow, was escorted to the ship by British security officers, who had held him incommunicado since his arrival Saturday night, and was placed in custody of the plane's commander, Capt. C. T. Robertson.

FAMILY TO FLY FROM BRITAIN

Mother and 3 Surviving Quadruplets Hop July 4.

London, June 25 (A. P.).—Norah Carpenter and her three surviving quadruplets, children of an American soldier, booked passage by plane today for New York and a reunion with former Staff Sgt. William (Red) Thompson of Pittsburgh. The quadruplets were born in a little cottage in Derbyshire in February, 1944, near the camp where Thompson had been stationed. One baby died, but Maureen, Madeleine and and Michael no ware all sturdy youngsters of two years and four months.

Thompson admitted paternity and after receiving his Army discharge was divorced by his wife. He now plans to marry Miss Carpenter.

She and her children are to leave here by Pan American July 4. The children had their first train trip yesterday, but behaved like seasoned travelers. Miss Carpenter completed the red tape of obtaining passport and visas and said that Thompson would meet them in New York and take them on to Pittsburgh. "He'll have to give me a hand with them," she said with a laugh. "I won't have their Granny and Grandpa with them like I have here in London."

As she spoke, her parents, with agility belying their years, were at the American embassy trying to safeguard inkpots and forms on the Visa Officer's desk from six clutching baby hands.

Maureen and Madeleine wore identical blue sun bonnets, white slippers and white silk dresses made from the cut-down christening robes. They kept the embassy officials busy and puzzled. Michael had a blue linen baseball cap setting off his red thatch.

"I can't see how you can tell the girls apart," an embassy clerk said, shuffling their photographs. Their mother said it was easy: Maureen is bossy and enterprising; Madeleine is "ladylike" and her hair is a little less curly.

"We'd better get back to Heanor now and do the packing," he added. "I've got everything ready and am just waiting for the fare to arrive from Red. If the children were under two, we could go cheaper, but now they'll have to pay half fare. But it's worth it to get there quickly."

Finds Them Cute.

Pittsburgh, June 25 (A. P.).—William H. Thompson studied intently an Associated Press wirephoto from London of his three surviving quadruplets and their English mother last night and then chortled: "Gosh, they're real cute, aren't they?"

Beyond this, however, he had little to say except: "All I'm interested in is getting the babies and Norah over here. I haven't heard from Norah yet. I sure hope she gets that visa soon. I'm not going to say anything about my plans until I hear from her." He is now employed in a Pittsburgh printing shop.

BYRNES IS CHEERED BY MOLOTOV TALKS

JUN 26 1946

U. S. Secretary Meets Russian in Third Private Conference at Paris.

PARIS, June 25—(AP) American informants declared tonight that U. S. Secretary of State James F. Byrnes was much encouraged by his series of two talks with Soviet Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov, which presumably dealt with the key issue of Trieste.

Byrnes saw Molotov for an hour during the afternoon in the third closed personal meeting of the two men in less than a week. Later Byrnes conferred privately and at length with British Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin and then with Georges Bidault, French president and foreign minister.

The American secretary was believed to have reported to his British and French colleagues on the progress of his conversations with Molotov.

American quarters were said now to be optimistic over chances of the four-power foreign ministers' council reaching an agreement on the major issues of the Italian peace treaty. While reporting that progress had been made, one high American source cautioned, however:

"We're not out of the woods yet."

There was no official word on the subject of Byrnes' talk with Molotov, but American sources said that in the foreign ministers' council session that followed, Byrnes and Molotov made concessions to each other on minor issues in the Italian peace treaty.

Act on Allied Claims

The only actual accomplishment of the ministers today was adoption of a clause providing that Italian assets should be used to satisfy claims by Allied nationals against Italy, informants said.

Byrnes, who presided at today's session, again sought a decision on the Dodecanese islands and the Franco-Italian frontier, but Molotov objected to consideration of either, and attempted to raise the Danube river issue, informants said.

Byrnes ruled the council should work on the Italian treaty first.

Molotov told the council he was preparing a formula on the Dodecanese islands which was not quite ready for circulation, and said he still needed time to study an Italian memorandum on French claims to the Tenda and Briga sections of the Italo-French border.

Urges Speed

He urged speed in settling the colonies question, and at his suggestion the sub-committee on colonies will meet at 9 a.m. tomorrow.

The third meeting of Byrnes and Molotov in less than a week and the second in 24 hours was held in Molotov's offices in Luxembourg palace at Byrnes' request. They remained closeted for an hour while Bevin and Bidault waited for them in the palace bar.

Their talks coincided with reports of unrest along Italo-Yugoslav frontier and from Washington that the Navy department had dispatched a cruiser and two destroyers to Trieste. In Rome the new constituent assembly cheered assertions that Italy would not accede to giving Trieste to Yugoslavia.

As evidence of a better feeling between Molotov and Byrnes, American sources gave this account of what happened at the session following their meeting:

Molotov urged the deletion of an American-sponsored clause providing for compensation by Italy for property expropriated by the Italian government during the war, on the grounds it would be difficult to find a formula which would satisfy everyone.

Molotov suggested it would be better to have each nation handle such claims through bilateral agreement with Italy.

Byrnes observed that this clause was really necessary but in view of the Soviet insistence on its deletion he was willing to do so.

"That is very good," Molotov exclaimed.

Discuss Compensation

Byrnes then took up the clause providing for compensation to Allied nationals for personal injuries at the hands of Italians, and observed that since Russia had agreed to drop a similar section in the Romanian treaty, the Russians should do likewise in the Italian draft.

Molotov replied he was willing and Byrnes declared, "very good."

The deputy ministers meeting this morning, drew up a list for their chiefs of 10 issues in the Italian treaty.

This was not intended as a council agenda, however, and the calendar was left blank to allow for additional discussion on Trieste, American sources said.

But with both American and Russian quarters opposing a French compromise calling for 10-year internationalization of the port, the council was believed to be at a standstill for time while awaiting new instructions from the capitals of the conferees.

The remaining issues in the Italian treaty, as listed by the deputies, included the Dodecanese Islands; the Italian-Yugoslav frontier; personal injury by Italians in Allied nations; reparations; compensation for damaged United Nations property; Italian assets abroad; compensation for expropriated Allied property; the French-Italian frontier; Italian colonies, and surplus Italian naval units.

problem on which the Russians were believed staking everything, could be decided.

Deputies of the Foreign Ministers drew up a list of ten problems attached to the Italian treaty on which the Ministers have deferred decision. The list, which will be submitted at the afternoon session, includes the Dodecanese Islands; the Italian-Yugoslav frontier; personal injury by Italians in Allied nations; reparations; compensation for damaged United Nations property; Italian assets abroad; compensation for expropriated Allied property; the French-Italian frontier; Italian colonies, and surplus Italian naval units.

Connally Reports Progress at Big Four Talks on Europe's Peace Problems.

L. NEVIN

Paris, June 25 (A. P.).—Secretary of State Byrnes and the Russian Foreign Minister, V. M. Molotov conferred privately at the Luxembourg Palace today, an American informant said, and then went into a session of the Foreign Ministers Council that was reported to have made some progress in solving Europe's peace problems.

DAY

The council met this afternoon with nothing on its agenda, and it was thought possible that the Foreign Ministers had intentionally left their schedule open in order to tackle the key problem of Trieste.

The American informant declined to say what subjects were discussed by Byrnes and Molotov. Molotov had conferred privately with Byrnes at the American's hotel yesterday also.

Some Progress Made.

Senator Tom Connally (D.-Tex.), a member of the American delegation, said that "some progress was made" at this afternoon's two and a half hour session, but refused to elaborate.

Another informant said the Russian delegation was noticeably postponing decisions on relatively small questions until the Trieste at examining the remaining differences preventing completion of peace pacts for Romania, Hungary and Bulgaria. American sources voiced doubt that the French plan for Trieste—claimed by both the Italians and the Yugoslavs—would work.

They said the plan, under which the strategic Adriatic port city would be internationized under the United Nations for 10 years with its final sovereignty to be decided by plebiscite at the end of that time, was under study, but commented that similar plans in the past never had worked very well. This apparently was a reference to Danzig and Fiume.

The sentiment of the Russians, who have adamantly demanded that the city be given to Yugoslavia, was reflected in a dispatch from Moscow which quoted the official Russian news agency, Tass, as saying the Soviet Union could not accept internationalization because it would be contrary to Yugoslav national aspirations.

Russian Foreign Minister Vyacheslav M. Molotov and James F. Byrnes, U. S. Secretary of State, discussed the French proposal last night at a 30-minute conference in the American delegation headquarters and later dined with British Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin.

The British position on the proposal was difficult to guage, but conference observers speculated that since first news of the French suggestion came from British sources, London might be trying to chill the idea with premature publicity.

The deadlocked questions of the French-Italian frontier, free navigation on the Danube and disposition of Italian naval units all were discussed yesterday by the Big Four, but without any agreement.

The British, French and U. S. delegations urged adoption of a joint statement supporting the principle of free navigation on the Danube, but Molotov objected on the ground that such action was improper unless the Danube countries participated.

Byrnes then suggested that a general European peace conference be convoked so that those countries could be heard on the question. Molotov replied that it was a proper matter for such a conference, since nations such as Brazil and oNrway had no interest in the Danube.

Then, American sources said, Molotov urged a joint statement, independent of treaties, expressing "confidence" that all riparian states would support freedom of navigation. Byrnes said all nations having world trade were interested in the matter and there the discussion ended.

Italian Chamber Cheers Statement On Venezia Giulia

G. BYIA

Rome, June 25 (AP)—The newly elected Constituent Assembly at its inaugural session today elected as president a right-wing Socialist opposed to joint action with the Communists, and cheered wildly assertions that Venezia Giulia, including Trieste, belongs to Italy.

The Assembly chose as its head 48-year-old Giuseppe Sargagat, who returned from anti-Fascist exile to become liberated Italy's first Ambassador to France. He was elected by an overwhelming 401 out of 466 votes.

Rejects "Hard Peace"

The session was marked by impassioned, defiant assertions that the new republic created in the same election in which the Assembly was chosen, could not accept a hard peace. Ratification of the peace treaty will be one of its principal tasks.

Vittorio Emanuele Orlando, Italian premier in the first World War, drew the biggest ovation with his declaration that treatment of Italy "threatened" by the Foreign Ministers Conference in Paris was "an offense to the soldiers, sailors, aviators and partisans who fought and died by the tens of thousands."

Reports have been received here that the Big Four foreign ministers were considering a French suggestion for internationalizing for ten years the port city of Trieste, claimed also by the Yugoslavs.

NIGHT

Premier Reiterates Stand

Premier Alcide de Gasperi told the Assembly that he had informed the foregin ministers "eye to eye" that Italy "will never be able to support certain mutilations."

While packed galleries watched, the assembly opened its deliberations in the Chamber of Deputies hall in Monte Citorio Palace. In token of advent of the republic, whose constitution the Assembly will write, most of the hall's fittings reminiscent of the ousted House of Savoy had been removed.

Virtually all diplomats accredited to the Italian Government attended the session, including the Soviet Ambassador and the Papal Nuncio, whose seats were just one place from each other. Rear Admiral Ellery W. Stone, USN, chief Allied commissioner, also was present.

Unemployed In Demonstration

While the Constituent Assembly was meeting, unemployment demonstrations and other disorders occurred in widely separated parts of Italy.

A news dispatch from Venice told of demonstrations by unemployed war veterans in the region of Venezia in the northern part of the country. These demonstrations centered in the cities of Padova, Vicenza, Treviso and Venice. More than 2,000 veterans jeered city officials in Venice when they promised aid.

In the southern end of the country similar demonstrations occurred at Catanzaro in Calabria where veterans marched on the city hall and demanded work. A carabiniere was slain in Catanzaro in a gun fight between law officers and bandits.

In the provinces of Naples and Caserta some 13,000 millers and balers struck in protest against the wages they were being paid.

Promote Claim on Trieste.

Rome, June 25 (A. P.).—The Constituent Assembly of the new Italian republic wildly cheered assertions today that the disputed Venezia-Giulia region must remain Italian. It was the first meeting, and the deputies elected Giuseppe Saragat, 48 years old, a right wing Socialist and former Ambassador to Paris, as president. He received 401 of the 466 votes cast.

Victor Emanuel Orlando, premier during the first world war, who presided at the opening session, said "no material force and no immoral barter" could detach Trieste and other cities of Venezia Giulia from Italy. Yugo-Slavia, with Russian support, has laid claim to Trieste and much of the disputed area.

DAY

Alcide de Gasperi, interim chief of state, told the assembly that he had told the Foreign Ministers at Paris that "the Italian community will never be able to support certain mutilations."

U.S. Sends Three Warships To Troubled Trieste Area

JUN 26 1946

Fleet Units Assigned Task of Supporting 'Army of Occupation.'

WASHINGTON, June 25. — (AP)

The United States moved today to place its present entire Mediterranean naval strength—a cruiser and two destroyers—off troubled Trieste, focal point of sharp differences with Russia.

The Navy disclosed that Vice Admiral Bernhard H. Bieri, commander of these forces, is proceeding to Trieste aboard his flagship, the new 10,000-ton cruiser Fargo. The two destroyers of his command, the Small and the Powers, already are there.

Supports Occupation Troops

The function of the Mediterranean naval force, as described tersely by a Navy department spokesman, is to "support the army of occupation." The Mediterranean force is a part of Admiral Henry K. Hewitt's 12th fleet with headquarters in London. The 12th fleet, comprising all the naval strength in European waters at present, consists of three light cruisers and six destroyers.

The Navy let news of the Fargo's assignment become known as American and foreign diplomatic authorities here continued jittery over the possibility of an international explosion at Trieste—even while Secretary Byrnes and Foreign Minister Molotov negotiate at Paris.

Officials here have received several reports over the last three weeks of a possible Yugoslav attempt to seize the city despite the fact that it lies wholly within the Allied zone of occupation in Italy and is protected by British and American troops drawn up along the so-called "Morgan line" facing Yugoslavia.

Troop Movements Reported

Several reports reaching the American government are known to have spoken of troop movements in Yugoslavia. Last week's blast in the Yugoslav press about Allied activities around Trieste was interpreted here as a possible prelude to some Yugoslav activity.

The problem is one of many. As the Navy disclosed the dispatch of the Fargo to Trieste from Malta, without offering a reason, acting Secretary of State Acheson told a news conference:

Correspondent Ejected

1. That Russia has rejected all American protests against violations of the Potsdam agreement for new freedom in Romania and has forced Reuben Markham, Christian Science Monitor reporter, to leave the country. Markham fled to Athens over the weekend. The Russians did not like some of his reports on conditions in Romania.

2. That the United States fears Russian censorship may be applied to reports of UNRRA activities in the Ukraine and Byelorussia although it has no knowledge that such reports have been censored to date. He made this comment in response to queries about President Truman's report to Congress yesterday that he had been unable to get the Russians to agree to abandonment of censorship on accounts of UNRRA activities. This led some congressmen to predict that efforts will be made to withhold further UNRRA aid from the Soviet Union.

3. That the Russians still are completely silent on the United States proposal for a 25-year treaty among the big powers to keep Japan disarmed. At Paris Molotov has vigorously opposed a similar treaty for Germany.

The Trieste problem and the possibility of an outbreak there has been a source of concern to top American officials since before Byrnes left for Paris almost two weeks ago. Some contend the Yugoslavia and Russia are waging a kind of war of nerves on the Allies to wear down their resistance to Russian-backed Yugoslav demands for the key city.

Started By Belgrade Report

Last week's flareup of charges and countercharges started by the stories published at Belgrade on alleged Allied troop movements in Trieste brought the disclosure from the Allied command at Rome that some precautionary measures were being taken.

It also became known that British naval strength in the Adriatic, on which Trieste is one of the principal northern ports, had been augmented by two United States destroyers. The assignment of the Fargo considerably increases American participation in naval moves to strengthen the Allied position at Trieste.

The 10,000-ton Fargo has twelve 6-inch guns and twelve 5-inch guns and smaller armament. She is under command of Capt. Wyatt Craig, of Russellville, Ala.

Missouri's Cruise Recalled

The last time a naval vessel was dispatched with public disclosure beforehand to an area of potential Soviet-American troubles was earlier this year when the mighty battleship Missouri was sent to Turkey with the remains of a former Turkish ambassador to the United States.

In the present case officials privately interpreted the dispatch of the Fargo as outright evidence of this Government's intentions to uphold its commitments in the Trieste area.

The fate of Trieste and the surrounding countryside known as Venezia Giulia is supposed to be fixed finally by the peace treaties on which the British, French, American and Russian foreign ministers are now working at Paris.

City Italian, Country Yugoslav

Trieste belonged to Italy prior to World War II. Its population is overwhelmingly Italian, but the population of the surrounding countryside is overwhelmingly Yugoslav.

The United States has been holding out for the city to be given to Italy, with as much as possible of the surrounding countryside to be given to Yugoslavia. Russia has demanded the whole area for Yugoslavia. Britain and France, originally sharing the American view, have recently talked of some sort of compromise by internationalizing the city.

Six American Business Chiefs on Visit There Call for Move to Develop Foreign Trade

TASK THUS FAR NEGATIVE

Burgess, Reed Hold Time Ripe for Positive Action to Spur Two-Way Commerce

BERLIN, June 25 (AP)—Six American business executives who came here as guests of the military government urged today that controls over entrance into the German market be relaxed.

They insisted that other measures be taken "to get German economy moving and to develop foreign trade."

"We were much impressed with the negative job that has been done here — denazification, decartelization and demilitarization," said Randolph Burgess, vice chairman of the National City Bank of New York. "What now is needed is positive action to get things going with trade, to get exports to pay for Germany's food and other necessary imports."

Controls Not Worth Struggle

Philip Reed, chairman of General Electric Company, observed that "controls over entrance into Germany are hardly worth the struggle, but if we could get the American importer and German exporter where they could meet, we could do business."

All six agreed at a news conference that the United States market would accept goods that Germany, presently short of coal, could produce. Mr. Reed said it was not a question of building up Germany. He commented:

"Anyone who wastes time now worrying about Germany exceeding a prescribed level of industry or minimum standard of living is dealing with an academic subject. Right now it is a question of working up to it, instead of worrying about cutting it down.

"There are manifold problems of coal shortages, obsolescent machinery and other things, but we think it is necessary to get going on the immediate job. We should get German economy into low gear or second gear but not let it get into high gear. We should keep a governor on it by national and international control."

Freer Movement of Goods

The business men urged early establishment of central administrative agencies for Germany, easing of zonal restrictions and freer movement of people and goods.

Haggott Beckhardt, economist for the Chase National Bank of New York said that "economic integration of Germany is needed also to help the recovery of western and central Europe and to contribute to Continental stability."

"There is such a shortage of goods in the American market that what Germany would provide would be welcome," Mr. Beckhardt said.

Robert Wason, president of the National Association of Manufacturers, said Germany had such a big internal job repairing war damage that "the time hasn't arrived to worry about export business on a big scale."

Others on the tour were John Addink, chairman of the National Foreign Trade Council, and Robert Gaylord, chairman of the executive committee of the National Association of Manufacturers.

The group spent two days conferring here with Military Government officials. They returned during the day to Paris, where they attended sessions of the International Chamber of Commerce. They will fly to the United States tomorrow.

Czechs could be assimilated into the German race only by destroying the intelligentsia, were accompanied by a letter bearing von Neurath's name and saying he agreed with the plan.

"I did not write it, but I agreed with its contents," von Neurath finally acknowledged after Fyfe pounded home the same question time after time.

"Higher Ups" Blamed

Bad Nahheim, Germany, June 25 (AP)—A former duty sergeant at the United States Army's Lichfield (England) guardhouse testified before a court-martial today that a "general get rough policy—get just as rough as you can get" was ordered into effect at Lichfield by 'higher ups."

The sergeant, James M. Jones, of Muskogee, Okla., who is serving a six-month term for beating United States soldier prisoners at Lichfield, appeared as a defense witness at the trial of Pfc. Thomas E. Warren, of Plainview, Texas, former guard charged with cruelties.

Jones said that two lieutenants, also defendants, gave him orders to "get rough" and to "beat prisoners to the floor."

"The lieutenants indicated it was the desire of higher ups. They wanted it done so prisoners wouldn't come back to the guardhouse and we could get them into combat," Jones said.

Asked if he ever had seen Warren mistreat prisoners, Jones replied: "Yes, sir, I've seen him."

of Jews and the dissolution of political parties in Germany by the Nazis represented "a necessary cleaning up of public life."

Under cross-examination by Sir David Maxwell Fyfe, British prosecutor, he said that he still holds these beliefs but that he feels the Nazi policies "should have been carried out by different methods."

He did not bring up in the Cabinet such activities as the mass beating of Jews, he said, because he felt it was more effective to protest occasionally to Adolf Hitler himself. Von Neurath also agreed that he knew in 1934 that the Nazis were seeking the revolutionary overthrow of the Austrian Government, but added that he did not then quit the Cabinet because he felt that such matters were not the responsibility of his office.

He contended that the reports of Jew-baiting were distorted, but hedged when asked by Sir David where he had got the information which enabled him to pass such a judgment.

"Why did you go on with a Government that was using murderous instruments for political action?" Sir David asked.

"Such mishaps cannot be avoided," Von Neurath replied.

Says He Had to Obey.

Von Neurath, testified earlier today that he was more or less a figurehead in his role as Protector of Czecho-Slovakia and that all major decisions were taken in Berlin. The ministries pulled the strings and the governors of occupied territories had no other choice but to carry out their directives, he declared.

The decrees he issued for the application of laws against Jews and for the economic plundering of the Protectorate were direct orders from Hitler, he said. He tried to ameliorate conditions somewhat by allowing synagogues to remain open and permitting religious freedom in other ways, and while some clerics were arrested, he continued, they were "not arrested as clerics—they were arrested as political opponents of the Reich."

Von Neurath said he also had to forbid certain religious processions, because the Czechs made use of such occasions for political purposes.

Today's session opened with another declaration by the tribunal that the German defense attorneys are demanding too much time for summing up. Justice Sir Geoffrey Lawrence, presiding, ruled that there were "only a few cases of very wide scope" and that all the others would have to confine their summing up addresses to a half-day each. None will be permitted more than a whole day.

Von Neurath Accused Of Plan To Wipe Out Educated Czechs

JUN 26 1946

Nuernberg, June 25 (AP)—The prosecution introduced surprise documents before the international military tribunal today purporting to show that Baron Constantin von Neurath proposed a plan to destroy the Czechoslovak race by systematic elimination of its educated class.

Sir David Maxwell Fyfe, British prosecutor, confronted the former German Foreign Minister and Reichsprotector for Czechoslovakia with memoranda sent to Hitler August 31, 1940, but gained only the admission that the documents were genuine.

Shifted Blame to Hitler

The defendant shifted the responsibility to Hitler and to his own Secretary of State for Czechoslovakia, Karl Hermann Frank, who was hanged in Prague last month.

Lichfield Guard Lays Brutality To 'Higher Ups'

JUN 26 1946

Policy of 'Get Just as Rough as You Can' Ordered, Witness Testifies at Trial

BAD NAUHEIM, Germany, June 25 (AP).—A former duty sergeant at the United States Army's Lichfield, England, guardhouse testified before a court martial today that a "general get-rough policy—get just as rough as you can get"—was ordered into effect at Lichfield by "higher-ups."

The sergeant, James M. Jones, of Muskogee, Okla., who is serving a six-month term for beating American soldier prisoners at Lichfield, appeared as a defense witness at the trial of Private First Class Thomas E. Warren, of Plainview, Tex., former guard charged with cruelties.

Simultaneously, somewhat similar testimony was given at another court martial — that of Colonel James A. Kilian, of Highland Park, Ill., former Lichfield commandant who is being tried on charges of authorizing cruelties.

Testifies at Kilian Trial

Sergeant Judson Smith, of Cumberland, Ky., first guard to be convicted of beating prisoners at Lichfield, testified at Kilian's trial that "things were done in accord with official policies and instructions." He added, however, that he could not say whether Kilian actually witnessed any of the alleged beatings.

Smith said that shortly before his trial several months ago, a number of defendants met with their lawyers and Kilian in London, and that Kilian suggested they "stick together."

"Colonel Kilian had just returned from the United States, and he was saying things were tough there with strikes and everything," Smith said. "I spoke up and said: 'It's tough on us, too, over here for forty months.' Then Colonel Kilian said: 'Let's all stick together and get this thing over with and get home.'"

Smith was a prosecution witness, presented in an attempt to show that the former commandant was responsible for alleged cruelty by guards. Jones, on the other hand, was offered by the defense in Warren's court martial to attempt to prove that guards merely obeyed orders of superiors.

Says He Saw Mistreatment

Jones said that two lieutenants, also defendants, gave him orders to "get rough" and to "beat prisoners to the floor."

"The lieutenants indicated it was the desire of higher-ups. They wanted it done so prisoners wouldn't come back to the guardhouse and we could get them into combat," Jones said.

Asked if he ever had seen Warren mistreat prisoners, Jones replied: "Yes, sir, I've seen him."

Kilian, as he previously had done at the trials of two other defendants, declined to testify at Warren's court martial. The court conceded that he did not have to testify if his evidence would tend to incriminate him.

"Since I have done nothing criminally wrong I cannot incriminate myself," Kilian replied, "so I'll have to go further back to basic law and refuse to answer because my statements might be used against me."

victed of beating prisoners at Lichfield. Smith asserted that shortly before his trial several months ago, several defendants met with their lawyers and Kilian in London.

"Col. Kilian had just returned from the United States, and he was saying things were tough there with strikes and everything," Smith said, "I spoke up and said, 'it's tough on us, too, over here for forty months.'

"Then Col. Kilian said: 'Let's all stick together and get this thing over with and get home'."

Changed His Mind.

Smith said that after that conference he and several other Lichfield defendants who had considered pleading guilty changed their minds and decided to deny mistreating prisoners. He said he first told an "untrue story" in his own trial.

"Then we talked to our lawyers who got his immunity from perjury to tell the truth," he continued.

It was after several guards changed their testimony in Smith's trial that Kilian and three other officers were charged for offenses at Lichfield.

Smith on the stand yesterday described beatings at the guardhouse, a story he had related in five trials since his own. Frequent recesses were taken to allow rest time for Smith, who is under medical observation.

Two former Lichfield prisoners testified in the simultaneous trial of Pfc. Thomas W. Warren of Plainview, Tex., that Warren beat them when he was a guard at the prison camp.

Nazi 'Soldier's' Grave Yields Art Treasures

JUN 26 1946

WESEL, Germany, June 25 (AP).—The art treasures of Wesel, valued at millions of marks, were discovered today in a grave where local Nazi officials solemnly attended the burial of a purported "unknown soldier" in November, 1944.

The townspeople, suspicious of the burial at the time, later reported the event to Allied officials. The grave was opened todaly, and the coffin was found to contain trinkets, jewels, money and vases—but no body.

German Gets Year for Snub

HANNOVER, Germany, June 25 (AP).—A German medical practitioner, a Dr. Mentzlaff, was sentenced to one year's imprisonment today for failing to stand when the British national anthem was played at a concert at Goettingen on June 30. Dr. Mentzlaff, charged with disrespectful behavior toward the Allies, protested he was sitting in a corner of the gallery and did not notice the other 900 in the audience stand.

General Draja Mihailovitch was accused before a Yugoslav military tribunal today of countenancing the to... NIGHT ...ing of Yugoslav citizens by his Chetnik forces.

Guza Glavinic, twenty-nine, seventh witness to testify in the treason trial of the bearded defendant, said she and ten men were billeted in a rural school building when the Chetniks attacked with mortars and machine guns, and that Mihailovitch stood a few paces away while some of her companions were kicked and beaten to death.

"He never said a thing to stop it," she said.

Mihailovitch was asked if he recognized the witness, who was wearing glasses on the stand. "Certainly I do," he replied, "but she had no eyeglasses at that time."

Another witness, Ninko Sakic, when asked the routine question of whether he was "in dispute, in hate or in friendship connected with Draja Mihailovitch," replied: "I hate him, but I am not connected with him. He is responsible for the death of 300 of my (Partisan) comrades."

SAYS CHETNIKS BEAT CITIZENS

JUN 26 1946

Witness Puts Mikhailovich at Scene of Cruelty.

G. Palmer

Belgrade, June 25 (A. P.).—The seventh witness to testify against Gen. Draja Mikhailovich at his trial on treason and collaboration charges said today that the bearded Chetnik leader watched his men beat Yugoslav citizens to death in August, 1941, without making a move to stop them.

DAY

The witness, 29-year-old Guza Glavinic, testified that she and ten men were billeted in a rural school building when the Chetniks attacked with mortars and machine guns and that she and her companions were kicked, beaten and some of them killed while Mikhailovich stood a few paces away.

"He never said a thing to stop it," she said.

She described Mikhailovich as wearing a "black cape, spectacles and a beard." Confronting the witness on the stand, Mikhailovich asserted his cape was gray, not black, and said he had no beard at that time.

Asked by the court president whether he knew the woman, Mikhailovich replied:

"Certainly I do, but she had no eye glasses at the time."

The witness was wearing glasses on the stand.

Former Premier Testifies.

Another prosecution witness, Mimilos Trifunovic, one-time Premier of the Yugoslav Government in exile in London, testified that the emigre Cabinet never had any direct contact with Mikhailovich.

"All our telegrams came through the British line," Trifunovic said.

In reply to a direct prosecution question as to whether the exile Government—in which Mikhailovich at that time was Minister of War—ever issued orders to Mikhailovich to fight against the Partisans while Trifunovic was premier, the witness answered: Never."

He denied having received any formation that Mikhailovich llaborated with the Germans.

According to newspaper men in a position to know, the crux of the dispute, which may become a full-sized blow-up, seemed to be whether a public information officer should act as a press agent, glossing over deficiencies if necessary, or use his office to give correspondents and the public a complete picture.

Hochstetter, a native of Pittsburgh, Pa., and a former Washington newspaper man and wartime OWI officer in Turkey, said his personal relations with his Russian chief were cordial but that "I have found that the attiture of Col. Sergeichik and his advisers had made it increasingly difficult for me to carry out my responsibilities as I see them."

"It is my view that a public information officer of UNRRA is an international public servant charged with the two-fold responsibility of explaining all aspects of the UNRRA program to the beneficiaries and of accounting for UNRRA's activities to the contributors," he said.

Once before, after a sharp disagreement over policy, Sergeichik had asked Hochstetter to ask for reassignment. Hochstetter refused.

ican correspondents to recipient countries.

"Apparently we did not go far enough and will now have to get tougher," Representative Clarence Brown (R.-Ohio) told a reporter. "It may be that the House now will be willing to insist that no UNRRA funds supplied by the United States be used in countries which won't allow our reporters to go inside and find out how the money is being used."

Brown was one of the leaders in the previous fight to put a "no reporters—no money" provision into UNRRA legislation.

The final $465,000,000 American allotment to the UNRRA fund is included in a deficiency appropriation bill scheduled for House consideration late this week. It will bring this country's total contribution to $2,700,000,000.

Reporting to Congress on Russia's position, Mr. Truman said yesterday: "Satisfactory arrangements are in effect to permit American press and radio representatives to report without censorship on the UNRRA programs

FRANKFURT AM MAIN, June 25 (AP).—German police reported today that three American paratroopers stabbed and beat a German father and mother when they refused the Americans a midnight rendezvous with their daughter.

Hochstetter said his dismissal was a result of "basic differences in concept on the conduct of public information activities in Yugoslavia."

House Group Stirred Over Russian Ban on American Correspondents.

Washington, June 25 (A. P.).—A "none-for-Russia" tag on this country's $465,000,000 final contribution to UNRRA became a definite possibility today.

President Truman's disclosure that Moscow has balked at letting American correspondents report on the relief agencies activities in two Soviet republics sent influential House members into an angry huddle. They tried before but failed to bar the use of United States funds in nations which refused to give American press and radio representatives free access to UNRRA news.

Finally they settled for a provision requiring the President to seek through appropriate channels to obtain admission of American correspondents in all UNRRA receiving countries except the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics."

In his report to the House through Speaker Rayburn, the President transmitted a Soviet diplomatic memorandum asserting that "the censorship rules in force for all correspondents in the Soviet Union will be applied to correspondents desiring to report on the utilization and distribution of UNRRA supplies."

Accredited UNRRA representatives, the President said, have received "necessary facilities" for observing and reporting" the agency's activities in the two Soviet republics involved—the Ukraine and Byelorussia.

Reveals Proposal On Nazis in Denmark

Copenhagen, June 25 (A. P.),—Russia has agreed to take half of the 250,000 German refugees in Denmark and incorporate them into the Soviet-occupied zone of Germany, the United States, Britain and France will take the other half, Danish Foreign Minister Gustav Masmussen said today. The Germans have been here since the end of the war.

Masmussen, who has just returned from Moscow, said notes had been sent to the three Western Powers asking them to consider the proposal.

DANES INTERESTED IN WEATHER BASE

JUN 26 1946

Copenhagen, June 25 (A. The Danish Government, however, "wants to discuss the base entirely alone," he told a news conference.

He said Henrik Kaufmann, Danish Minister to Washington, would arrive shortly for consultations about the termination of the Danish-American agreement of 1941 concerning Greenland.

In this agreement the United States undertook the defense of Greenland, obtained the right to build military bases and installations and recognized Danish sovereignty over the island.

BUDAPEST, June 25 (AP).—Hungarian inflation took another astronomical spiral today as a 100-trillion bank note was placed in circulation. JEWS REFUSE PART IN TRIAL

JUN 26 1946

Palestine Court Told Defendants Aren't Interested

Jerusalem, June 25 (AP)—A 28-year-old defendant, oldest of 31 Jews charged with illegal possession of explosives, smilingly informed a Jerusalem military court today that "we are not interested in the trial—we do not plead mitigating circumstances, and we do not ask the court's mercy."

While the trial of the alleged members of Irgun Zvai Leumi, Jewish underground military organization, went into its second day, the Government said no new leads have been received by the British in the last 48 hours in their search for three kidnapped British officers, held by Irgun Zvai Leumi.

[Reuter said in a Jerusalem dispatch that three men and a woman were arrested in a house at Rehovoth, Jewish village near Tel Aviv, following discovery of a hoard of arms, ammunition, grenades and other explosives.]

Hebrew Songs Sung

Haim Luster, oldest of the 31 defendants, told the court president that they refused to enter a plea of self defense, and most of the Jews politely refused to take any part in the proceedings.

Apparently in high spirits, they sang Hebrew patriotic songs and chatted with relatives during a fifteen minute recess. The crowded courtroom was heavily guarded.

After the recess, the prosecution introduced as evidence guns and ammunition allegedly confiscated when the 31 were arrested in the desert south of Tel Aviv April 3.

Menachem Ben Asher Schiff, 18, told the court:

"Our fathers trusted you in giving you the Palestine mandate. They wanted to build up this country, but you cheated them. . . . It is not we who are law-breakers, but our rulers. You are officers of an enemy army. You have the task to treat us not as the accused, but as prisoners of war."

Negotiation Attempted

Meanwhile, British authorities disclosed they had attempted unsuccessfully to obtain the release of the kidnapped officers by negotiating through intermediaries with their captors.

A high Government official added, however, that no negotiations were in progress now with Irgun Zvai Leumi, Jewish underground military organization, which has kidnapped a total of six officers within the last fortnight.

Two of the six have been released, and a third escaped.

Unconfirmed reports persisted that the underground had broadcast, through the illegal Jewish radio, an ultimatum to the British that the three hostages would be killed unless the death sentences imposed on two members of Irgun Zvai Leumi were commuted to life imprisonment.

British Unable to Locate Kidnaped Officers.

Jerusalem, June 25 (A. P.).—Military and police authorities said today that they were "absolutely without a hint" as to the whereabouts of three British officers kidnaped June 16 by Irgun Zvai Leumi, Jewish underground military organization.

Extensive checks failed to confirm reports that the kidnapers had broadcast a threat to kill the three officers unless two Irgun members now under sentence of death have their sentences commuted to life imprisonment. The reports circulated widely throughout Jerusalem, but there was no evidence that such a broadcast had been made.

One military officer remarked, however: "It can be assumed they meant business or they wouldn't have kidnaped the officers in the first place."

A high ranking official said negotiations with the underground had been attempted through intermediaries, but that none was in progress now.

Bevin Replies To Wagner and Mead Charges

JUN 26 1946

Says He Wants a Fair Deal for Jews, Explains View on a Palestinian State

WASHINGTON, June 25 (AP).—British Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin replied today, through the British Embassy here, to the cablegram sent to him July 15 by Senators Robert F. Wagner and James M. Mead, of New York, accusing him of a "false and anti-Semitic utterance" in his Bournemouth speech to the Labor party.

The reply was in the form of a letter to the two Senators, to which he atached the full text of his June 12 speech, indicating certain points which he said deserved to be studied in their context.

Among the points was a statement that Bevin was determined the Jews should be given fair treatment, that he would not agree to their being excluded from any country, and that he championed equal rights for them in whatever country they were settled.

He also said that although he was opposed to a Jewish national state, he favored a Palestinian state of some sort, "from which the voice of the Jews in Palestine could be heard in the chancelleries of the world."

Bevin denied that he had said he would not agree to the admission of 100,000 Jews to Palestine. He said that if they were put there, he would have to send another division of British troops there and he was not prepared to do it.

The letter was made public by the British Ambassador, Lord Inverchapel, who stated: "In sending this reply, Mr. Bevin has asked me to convey to you his good wishes and to stress that in his Bournemouth speech he was concerned to put forward, in an atmosphere of realism, some constructive suggestions which he hopes may be of assistance in the meetings of American and British officials who are engaged in discussing together the recommendations of the Anglo-American Committee of Inquiry."

IRANIAN AIRWAYS CANCELS FLIGHTS TO TABRIZ AIRPORT

JUN 26 1946

TEHRAN, June 25. — (AP) Iranian Airways announced today it had cancelled a schedule flight from Tehran to Tabriz, capital of Azerbaijan province, because it did not wish to risk its equipment on "enemy fields." The company's planes are operated by American personnel.

Joseph S. Iseman, operations manager of the company which is connected with Transworld Airlines, said that the flight was cancelled yesterday in view of the experience of an American military attache a few days ago.

The attache, Col. William T. Sexton of Leavenworth, Kan., reported Saturday that he and three aides were jailed for eight hours by Azerbaijan officials, although their flight to Tabriz had been cleared "through all competent Iranian authorities."

Iranian Airways cancelled a scheduled flight to Pahlevi, resort town on the Caspian sea, last weekend after a Foreign ministry official reported that Russians were in control of the airport and had refused to permit American planes to land.

Iseman said the Pahlevi flight was cancelled on orders of the Iranian minister of roads and communications, on grounds that the Rusians objected to operations by American crews.

Ninety per cent of the stock of Iranian Airways is Iranian-owned. The remaining 10 per cent is owned by Transworld Airlines, which also has a five-year operating contract.

The company serves 10 major centers of Iran and also has routes from Tehran to Baghdad and Cairo. Its equipment was purchased from surplus properties.

A Soviet line operates three lines, connecting Tehran and Meshed, Pahlevi and Tabriz.

The attache reported last Saturday that he and three aids had been jailed for eight hours in Tabriz when they arrived in the Azerbaijan capital by plane on a flight that previously had been cleared "by all competent Iranian authorities."

Attacks On U.S. In China Increase

Nanking, June 25 (AP)—Outspoken demands for the withdrawal of United States armed forces from China caused grave concern today at the headquarters of Gen. George C. Marshall, President Truman's special peace envoy.

A spokesman for 54 "anti-civil war" groups in Shanghai demanded today that American forces go home and that United States aid to China stop immediately. The demand came in the wake of a statement Monday by Mao Tse-tung, Communist leader, blaming the United States for "the outbreak and propagation of civil war in this country."

The Shanghai groups protested that United States aid was encouraging "Fascist forces of reaction" to foment civil war.

Thinks Chiang Wants War

Their spokesman, Dr. Tao Heng-chi, told a press conference that "I am inclined to think Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek wants civil war," and that reactionary supporters of the Generalissimo especially desired it as their one chance of hanging onto power.

Tao emphasized that the 54 groups for which he spoke had no Communist affiliations.

General Marshall, who had been reported making some progress toward a Government-Communist agreement, was noncommittal. Other American sources, however, saw in the demands an organized campaign to influence the course of peace negotiations.

Both India Parties Accept Long-Range Plan For Union

New Delhi, June 25 (AP)—The Congress party and the Moslem League, India's two most powerful political groups, today accepted the British plan for a federated union of India but split on a proposed interim cabinet of fourteen to rule while a constituent assembly draws a charter of independence.

The Congress party, dominantly Hindu, rejected the interim government and the Moslem League accepted it.

An official announcement from the British on an interim government was expected within the next few weeks, although some sources predicted the original proposals would be scrapped entirely and new discussions started.

Earlier Announcement Cited

The British, in proposing the interim government on June 16, said that if either of the two major political parties, or both, rejected the proposal the British would proceed with formation of an interim cabinet "as representative as possible."

Under the British long-term proposals a union of India would be established, embracing both British India and the princely states, with control of foreign affairs, defense and communications, and the power to levy taxes for those three purposes.

The League's formal acceptance of both the interim government and the long-term proposals was announced by its secretary, Nawabzada Liaquit Ali Khan. Previously Moslem League leaders had indicated they were favorable to both.

Jinnah And Wavell Confer

M. A. Jinnah, president of the League, conferred with members of the British Cabinet mission and Viceroy Lord Wavell for more than two hours late tonight, after which the League Working Committee met to hear Jinnah's version of the talks.

The Congress party instructed Prime Ministers in eight provinces where it is in power to proceed with selection of candidates to a constituent assembly. The delegates will be picked by the provincial legislatures, according to the proportionate representation of Hindus, Moslems, Sikhs and others.

Action of the Congress party in accepting the long-range proposals was regarded as having removed one of the major stumbling blocks from India's road to complete autonomy. The acceptance was made known in a letter from Maulana Abul Kalam Azad, Congress party president, to Lord Wavell and the British Cabinet mission.

League Assails Gandhi

The official organ of the Moslem League, the newspaper Dawn, accused Mohandas K. Gandhi, the spiritual leader of the Congress, of being responsible for the failure to accept the interim government.

"At long last the Congress is reported to have rejected the interim plan," said the newspaper. "Who knows if anything ever will be the 'last'?

"Tomorrow and tomorrow and tomorrow have crept in their petty pace for so many days on end that the tomorrow of bold, decisive action would seem to be never.

"With the sands of time, the sands of Moslem patience are also running out."

INTERIM SETUP REJECTED BY INDIAN PARTY

New Delhi, June 25—(AP)—The All India Congress Party accepted today a long-range British plan for an independent federated Union of India, but rejected proposals for the establishment of an interim government.

In view of the Congress Party's acceptance of the long-range plan, informed quarters said, a new official statement on India's constitutional future may be made shortly—perhaps tonight or tomorrow.

May Scrap Plan

There was some speculation that the British proposals for an interim government might be scrapped and that new suggestions would be submitted to leaders of all Indian political groups.

The original proposals called for a 14-man cabinet, on which the Congress Party and the Moslem League each would have had five representatives, with the remaining four seats going to minority groups.

The Moslem League announced its acceptance of the British Cabinet mission's long-range proposals for Indian independence on June 6, and its spokesmen had indicated approval of the interim government plan although the league had taken no formal action on that question.

While the Congress Party's acceptance of the long-range proposals was generally regarded as a long step forward in settling India's political future, the newspaper "Dawn"—organ of the Moslem League—was critical of the Congress' failure to approve the interim government plan after long delay.

"At long last the Congress is reported to have rejected the interim plan," Dawn said. "Who knows if anything ever will be the 'last'.

'Patience Running Out'

"Tomorrow and tomorrow and tomorrow have crept in their petty pace for so many days on end that the tomorrow of bold, decisive action would seem to be never. With the sands of time, the sands of Moslem patience are also running out."

Azad said the Congress Working Committe would follow up it stelephone message to the viceroy with a written statement.

Asked whether the acceptance of the long-term British proposals was conditional, Azad replied:

"There are no conditions, but our interpretation of the proposals has its place and we stand by it."

In response to a question as to whether any new approach had been made to the working committee by the cabinet mission, Azad declared: "I cannot say anything at the moment about that."

He said the resolution embodying the working committee's decision might be released later today.

The decision was arrived at after a final two hours' meeting of the party's working committee and was announced by Maulana Abul Kalam Azad, the party president, who communicated the information to the Viceroy, Lord Wavell, by telephone.

three of the twenty-eight war crime defendants backed him when he tried in 1931 to buck the Japanese Army's campaign of conquest in Manchuria. The aged, post-surrender Premier, who was Foreign Minister in those days, appeared as a prosecution witness, but his testimony under cross-examination bolstered the defense.

Shidehara said that Toshio Shiratori, former Ambassador to Italy and one of the alleged architects of the Tri-Partite Pact with Hitler and Mussolini, and Gen. Jiro Minami supported his conciliatory policy. Shiratori then, the witness declared, was Acting Chief of the Bureau of Information and Minami was Minister of War, and Minami tried to "keep order" in the Army but the Government was without a direct voice in Army affairs.

Forced Out the Cabinet.

Shidehara also testified that Mamoro Shigemitsu, who as Foreign Minister signed the Japanese surrender on the battleship Missouri, likewise carried out the Government's conciliatory policy. Shigemitsu in [illegible] was Minister to China.

The Government of that period headed by Baron Reijiro Wakatsuki, had no territorial ambitions, but the Mukden incident put the military clique in firm control of its own aggressive destiny on the mainland, and the blast that blew up the Mukden Railroad likewise blew the Wakatsuki Government from power, Shidehara said, because it was unable "to prevent a further expansion of the incident in Manchuria" and for that reason resigned.

Questioned by William J. McCormack of Chicago, a defense attorney, Shidehara said that the Cabinet announced the Mukden Incident in "self-defense" after the army had sprung it on the Government, but thereafter "bent every effort to halt it." He declared further that Minami "did everything in his power to cooperate with me in maintaining peace and order," and that Shiratori "definitely and completely fulfilled his duty in line with the peace policy."

EDEN ASKS WORLD ATOM AGREEMENT

Ottawa, June 25 (A. P.).—Anthony Eden said in an address today that much of the "atmosphere of mounting misunderstanding among the great Powers could be ended by an "international understanding or the future of atomic energy."

"There is no major Power on earth today that is in a position to make war and that has it in its heart to do so," the wartime British Foreign Secretary told the Canadian branch of the Empire Parliamentary Association.

He drew a gloomy picture, however, of "the anxieties and disappointments of the present time," saying: "We see the Allies of the recent battlefields glowering at each other and recriminating against each other in an atmosphere of mounting misunderstanding. They spend weeks in the discussion of issues which, given a fair measure of good will, could be settled in a few hours."

Eden declared that if the United States, Russia and the United Kingdom "cannot reach an understanding and maintain it, not one of the three will enjoy full confidence in the future or full security for its people."

WAR CAPTIVE TO HANG

Lethbridge, Alberta, June 25 (A. P.).—A former German infantry sergeant and winner of Adolf Hitler's Iron Cross is to be hanged here shortly after midnight tonight for his part in the murder of an anti-Nazi fellow German prisoner at the Medicine Hat internment camp on July 22, 1943.

The condemned man is Werner Schwalb, 31 years old, a former member of Rommel's Africa Corps. He will be the first prisoner-of-war hanged in Canada by order of a civil court. Pvt. Adolf Kratz, 25, was sentenced to hang with him, but his sentence has been commuted to life imprisonment, and a third defendant, Cpl. Johannes Wittinger, 30, who won a new trial on a technicality, was acquitted last Saturday.

Former Carrier Now Grain Ship

Montreal, June 25 (AP) — The steamship Empire MacKindrick, former aircraft carrier converted into a grain ship, docked here this morning after arriving from Liverpool and will return to the United Kingdom in a few days carrying grain. The vessel made the voyage to Canada empty.

during the long years of their rule in this part of the Pacific. Natural history, oceanography and the kindred subjects were to the Japanese secrets to be kept as closely as fortifications.

Defeat of Nippon opened the doors. Selection of Bikini Atoll, in the Marshalls, for the bomb tests required the presence of scholars.

The setting of the tests required expert advice on such matters as the structure of coral atolls, fish, bird and insect life, plants, and ocean currents. The bomb testers want to estimate what will happen to Bikini atoll when the blasts shake its islands and reefs, and how far the bomb blast and radioactive poison will reach.

A corps of scientists, including Cmdr. Roger Ravelel of the Scripps Oceanographic Institution of La Jolla, Calif., and Dr. Ralph Sawyer of the University of Michigan, hope that studies made in conection with the bomb tests will settle debate over the structure of atolls—whether they are coral caps to old volcanic cones or are built up on a slowly subsiding base of rock upthrust from the sea bottom.

Observations at Bikini by the survey ship Bowditch show this atoll is a shallow saucer, not more than 180 feet deep at any point, fringed with small islands and a chain of coral reefs and sand cays. The outer edge of the atoll ends in an abrupt drop into about 600 feet of water, a submarine precipice. Then the wall of the atoll angles outward at about 45 degrees, continuing downward until a depth of approximately 12,000 feet of water is found at five miles offshore.

Effect On Coral

Ravelle thinks the underwater bomb blasts may shake away coral at the lip of the atoll in small landslides extending perhaps 500 feet along the edge. This prospect is made more likely by the fact that this section of the Pacific is free of earthquakes which elsewhere in the world tend to settle rock masses and formations.

The bombs may make a dead reef of the now living coral atoll of Bikini. The scientists think it possible that radioactivity, contaminating the water in and outside the lagoon, can kill the animal and plant organisms and thus destroy the life cycle that builds up the reef.

At Bikini has been discovered several new or rare marine plants, among them a green water plant called tydemannia. Dr. W. R. Taylor, University of Michigan Botanist, said the plant had been seen only on one previous occasion — in the Dutch East Indies at about the turn of the century. Scientists report that an important element in the structure of the reef is a rock-like water plant, lithothamnion, which calcifies as it grows and becomes part of the coral formation.

Undersea Census

Dr. Leonard Schultz, curator of the fishes for the National Museum at Washington, has taken a fish census. He finds that the population of the reefs averages about four-tenths of a fish per square yard, a fairly heavy population for this part of the Pacific Ocean, generally classed as a marine desert. About 50 specie of edible fish were found, including tuna, sea bass, bonita and mackerel.

Dr. Schultz does some of his census-taking through use of a paralyzing vegetable poisoning. He pours some in the water, the fish settle to the bottom in a dazed condition and the doctor goes down with a diving mask to look them over. It sounds easy until one looks at the pounding waves that surge in over the knife-edged coral where the fisheries experts wade and dive.

Birds, rats and lizards are the job for Dr. J. P. E. Morrison, another curator for the Washington Museum. He has found on Bikini about five types of tern, but no resident landbirds. Cats and dogs of natives in the islands have kept the bird and rat population at low ebb, the doctor explains.

From these and other seemingly unrelated factors, the atom bombardiers hope to find how good a weapon they have. Peaceful science is a beneficiary.

Conference Measure Pruning Agency's Powers Wins After Hot Debate.

BILL GOES TO SENATE

Barkley to Call for Action Today by Upper Chamber.

WASHINGTON, June 25—(AP)—The House stamped final approval, 265 to 105, late today on the compromise OPA bill after beating down a last-ditch effort to lift all price ceilings on meat and dairy products.

NIGHT

The bill, extending the wartime price control agency for another year but pruning many of its powers, next went to the Senate for a last vote there before being sent to President Truman.

Senate to Act Today

Democratic Leader Barkley (Ky) told the Senate he is prepared to bring it up for action tomorrow.

Although Chester Bowles denounced features of the legislation as "booby traps," Speaker Rayburn (D-Tex) predicted President Truman will sign it.

The voting came after Rayburn took the floor to tell his colleagues that unless they accepted the compromise "there will be no OPA at all."

Chairman Spence (D-Ky) of the Banking committee, leader of the administration's battle for OPA, declared that if price control were killed outright at this time "a disaster that is indescribable would come upon the American people."

But OPA aides were reported to be gathering data on which to base a recommendation that the measure be vetoed.

Rep. Marcantonio, American-Labor representative from New York, read to the House a telegram from Philip Murray, C.I.O. chief, urging the House to kill the compromise which Murray described as "not price control but in effect legalized inflation."

Sign in Gallery

A gale of excitement swept the House at the beginning of its critical OPA debate, as two men in the gallery spread a huge sign saying: "Detroit auto workers plead to save OPA."

Shouts of "throw them out" came from many legislators and Speaker Rayburn ordered the sergant at arms to get the banner out of the gallery. He said the display violated House rules and declared "if OPA is saved it will not be in the gallery but on the floor of this House."

The compromise legislation would allow price increases on many items. But it preserves controls over major market basket commodities, including meat, poultry and dairy products. It keeps rent control intact.

Spence said that in his opinion "this bill is workable." He told his colleagues that OPA during the war and immediately following the war "has saved the American economy" and that to destroy it before supplies come nearer to balance with demand would be experimenting with an "economic atomic bomb."

Rayburn said: "I will not, so far as I am concerned, shoulder the responsibility of killing all price control."

Leading the opposition, Rep. Buffett (R-Neb) said the bill "is an attempt to continue to hoodwink the people of this country," and Rep. Smith (R-Ohio) shouted: "God help us save America for Congress won't."

Last-Ditch Fight Fails

The last-minute effort to remove livestock meat and dairy products from price control was made by Rep. Rizley (D-Okla) and was defeated 221 to 150.

A continuation of the same fight was promised in the Senate whose original bill exempted those items, plus poultry: Senator Wherry (R-Neb) was set to demand that the compromise be turned down and the conference committee be told to start all over.

"If we accept this bill," Wherry told reporters, "we will have vindicated everything Chester Bowles has done. The black market in meat will be continued with full congressional approval."

While there was no official comment either from Stabilization Director Chester Bowles or OPA Director Paul Porter, officials familiar with their views told a reporter privately that they expect both will recommend a veto.

"Remember," this official said, "that Bowles has stated he would accept no compromise that would increase the chances of inflation. He has made it clear he believes that amendments which remain in the bill would mean inflation."

Work on Economic Studies

At both OPA and the Office of Economic Stabilization, staff officials rushed preparation of studies for President Truman on what these agencies believe the consequences of the conference bill would be. When they are sent to the White House, these surveys will be accompanied by the recommendations of Bowles and Porter on disposition of the bill.

Bowles' associates say he recognizes the possibility that OPA and price controls might go out the window if a Presidential veto were upheld by Congress. However, they represent him as hopeful that Congress would vote an emergency extension of price control as it now stands, until legislation more acceptable to the administration could be enacted.

As for the possibility of Bowles resigning, he reportedly will wait on the fate of the bill before making up his mind. His friends said, however, that they believed it a foregone conclusion he will quit if the conference bill should become law.

There was no such conviction with respect to Porter. The feeling at OPA was that while Porter probably will urge a veto, he will stay on as price administrator even if President Truman does not follow his advice.

Immediately after the final House vote was taken, 14 House members presented to newsmen a signed statement declaring the compromise bill is "not a price control but a bill to legalize inflation."

"This bill flouts the will of the American people, the 14 said. "The polls have won 10 to one for effective price control. Passage of this bill in the name of continued price control would deceive the people for only a short time. We the undersigned refuse to share responsibility for the inflation that will be ushered in by this bill."

Those signing included Rep. Kopleman (D-Conn).

Price Rises Allowed to Spur Output—Three-man Decontrol Board Provided—Spence Says Truman Will Sign Bill.

JUN 26 1946

Washington, June 25 (A. P.).—Representative Spence (D.-Ky.), chairman of the House Banking Committee, expressed the belief today that President Truman will sign the compromise OPA bill worked out last night by a Senate-House conference committee. In his opinion Spence said, the bill is workable.

The Kentuckian, who has battled for months for continuation of a strong price control law, made this statement to newspaper men as the House convened two hours earlier than its usual noon meeting time for a session which probably will see a showdown vote on the OPA compromise.

Spence voiced confidence the House will approve the compromise. The measure's renewal of OPA powers is far short of what the administration had asked for. But, at the same time, its curtailment of ORA powers is a good deal less drastic than the administration had expected in view of separate actions taken by the two chambers when the renewal legislation was first taken up.

With other legislation scheduled for prior consideration, a final vote on OPA was not expected before late in the day.

Left intact were price controls over meat, butter, cigarettes and gasoline, but the one-year extension of the war-born agency yanked away many of the OPA's powers over the national economy.

The House, then the Senate, and finally President Truman must approve the measure if it is to keep all price ceilings from expiring next Sunday midnight.

Although a last-minute decision knocked out sections which would have ended controls over livestock, poultry, dairy products, tobacco and petroleum at the end of this month, many of the bill's provisions were written specifically to force a raise in prices.

To Spur Production.

Advocates contended that such a course would spur production and put the nation on the highway to prosperity. But Stabilization Director Chester Bowles damned them in advance as "booby trap" breeders of inflation.

Among them:

1. An end to the OPA's controversial program calling for specific quantities of lower-cost clothing.

2. A halt to so-called cost-absorption on such things as automobiles, refrigerators and radios.

3. A requirement that average unit cost increases since 1941 must be reflected in all price ceilings.

Last night's session was forced by widely varying extension bills passed separately by the House and Senate.

The conferees—representing both chambers—convened behind locked doors at 9 o'clock last night in the capitol office of Senator Barkley (Ky.), the majority leader.

Three and one-half hours later Barkley beckoned 20 waiting reporters into the marble-decorated room and announced the agreement.

A majority of the seven delegates from each House signed the committee's recommendations he reported. Senator Taft ((R-Ohio), quickly amplified the declaration: he and Senator Millikin (R-Colo.), had not done so, he said. And Senator Radcliffe (D-Md.), another conferee, was home for a primary election.

The House conferees added that only Rep. Crawford (R-Mich.), had failed to sign on their side. But they said he would do so today.

The refusal of Taft and Millikin to approve the report immediately led to speculation whether they would oppose it in the Senate and attempt to force a further revision.

Each House has its choice of voting the conference's recommendations up or down, or sending the bill back to the joint committee with instructios for specific changes.

Avoids Roll Call

Barkley carefully had avoided a roll call vote in the Senate on the meat - poultry - dairy decontrol amendment, which was approved by a narrow margin in the banking committee.

The Senate lost out in conference on all specific decontrols. However, it prevailed on the full year's extension, for the House had voted only nine months beyond June 30.

Senate theories came out on top again in creation of a three-member decontrol board, to be appointed by the President and confirmed by the Senate. Independent of OPA, the bi-partisan board could overrule the price administrator or the secretary of agriculture if either, without good reason, rejected an industry's request to lift ceilings.

The secretary of agriculture was given control over all farm products, whereas heretofore OPA has had the final say.

Because of the many ceiling adjustments that will have to be made under the compromise version, the conferees inserted a provision giving OPA 30 days after July 1 to re-price articles still under control.

The conferees reached their own compromise on the hotly-disputed issues of subsidies — Government payments designed to keep down retail prices.

They voted to hold them to an even $1,000,000,000 and to quit paying food subsidies next April 1.

The Seate had voted for $1,100,000,000 and May 1, OPA itself had asked for a total of $2,051,000,000. The House said meat subsidies ought to be stopped June 30, this year, and all food subsidies by December 31.

If the conference decision holds, not more than $629,000,000 can be spent for food subsidies the remainder of this calendar year. The only subsidies which would extend beyond April 1, 1947, are those for copper, lead, zinc and sugar.

Barkley said that if the House passes on the bill in short order the Senate may act on it today. The House program called for an unusual 11 A. M. (D. S. T.) meeting.

Barkley, a confidant of Mr. Truman, declined to predict whether the President would veto the bill if approved in the form cleared by the conference.

"I am not going to speculate what the President is going to do about the bill," he said.

"I am going to urge the Senate to adopt it. I think it is the best bill we can get under the circumstances."

FOOD.

Conference Bill—Retains price control on meat, poultry and dairy products—three market-basket items the Senate sought to decontrol.

Present Law—No provision for removing food price ceilings at any specific time, hence no change.

DAY

CLOTHING.

Conference Bill—Eliminates a requirement that manufacturers produce inexpensive clothing.

Present Law—Requires producers to turn out the same ratio of low to high-cost garments they did during 1943.

SUBSIDIES.

Conference Bill—Limits future subsidies of all kinds to $1,000,000,000 and ends food subsidies on April 1, 1947.

Administration Request—$2,051,000,000 for use through June 30, 1947, with elimination on payments on specific items at the discretion of the OPA and the Office of Economic Stabilization.

DECONTROL.

Conference Bill—Removal of price controls when supply and demand of a commodity come into approximate balance. This would be done by a specially created decontrol board, independent of the OPA, with power to overrule the Price Administrator or Secretary of Agriculture, if either failed to act.

Present Law—Under standards set up by Office of Economic Stabilization, the OPA removes price ceilings when (1) supply and demand of a commodity is about in balance and the agency believes prices will not rise unduly; (2) or when the item is insignificant in the cost of living or doing business; (3) or when the administrative burden of retaining controls is out of proportion to the value of retaining them; (4) or when there will be no diversion of materials or man power to non-essential items, or when removal of ceilings will not impair price control of other items.

PROFITS.

Conference Bill—Prohibits reduction of pre-war profit margins of wholesalers and retailers of reconversion items such as auto-

How Report Affects the OPA

JUN 26 1946

Washington, June 25 (A. P.).—Here are major price control provisions the House-Senate conference committee approved in voting to continue the OPA through June 30, 1947, as compared with the present law:

1945

mobiles, household appliances and farm implements.

Present Law—The OPA has cut pre-war markups and discounts of dealers in several industries. This kept the full amount of price increases granted to manufacturers from being passed on to the public.

Manufacturers' Ceilings.

Conference Bill—Provides that ceilings for producers, manufacturers and processors must include prices during October 1-15, 1941, plus the average industry-wide increase in unit cost since that time. For example, if a manufacturer's base period price for a lawn mower was $12, and the average industry-wide cost increase was $1.50, the manufacturer's new ceiling would be $13.50. The OPA would be given until July 31 to make the necessary ceiling adjustments. This amendment also provides that distributors, wholesalers and retailers shall be allowed the trade mark-ups and discounts prevailing last January 1. No price ceiling may be established which would give such dealers a lesser return.

Present law—The OPA bases manufacturers' ceilings on average 1936-39 industry-wide prices, allowing increases required to maintain an industry's earnings at the level of that period. A secondary standard allows increases on an individual product basis in hardship cases.

TRANSFER OF AUTHORITY.

Conference Bill—Transfers to the Secretary of Agriculture authority to decide which farm commodities may be kept under price control. Ceilings could not be retained unless the Secretary certified the commodity was scarce.

Present Law—The OPA has this authority.

Cotton and Woolen Textiles.

Conference Bill—Manufacturers' ceilings would include the cost of raw cotton or wool (with parity the floor), plus a weighted average of mill production costs, and a reasonable profit on each item based on 1939-41 earnings.

Present Law—The OPA usually bases ceilings on parity, rather than actual market costs. To this it adds the average 1936-39 profit on major items.

BAN ON CEILINGS.

Conference Bill—Prohibits establishment of ceilings for any commodity which was not under price control on April 1, 1946. Ceilings could not be fixed on raw cotton, for example.

Present Law—No such restrictions.

COTTON FUTURE MARGINS.

Conference Bill—Prohibits Government control of margin requirements for trading in cotton for future delivery.

Present Law—The OPA raised margin requirements.

GRAIN.

Conference Bill—Authorizes the Secretary of Agriculture to allocate feed which he controls to feeders of livestock and poultry in domestic areas where the Secretary rules an emergency shortage exists.

Present Law—No such specific authorization.

Conference Bill—Gives farmers who sold their wheat before April 1, when the Government bonus went into effect, the same price advantage received by persons who sold later.

TOBACCO AND PETROLEUM.

Conference Bill—Continues price ceilings on tobacco and petroleum products.

O.P.A. Backers Carry Sign Into House Gallery

2 C.I.O. Men Held Briefly by Police After Cries of 'Throw Them Out'

WASHINGTON, June 25 (AP).—Cries from the House floor of "throw them out" met the display of a huge sign in the visitors gallery today: "Detroit auto workers plead to save O. P. A."

Speaker Sam Rayburn, Democrat, of Texas, ordered the sergeant at arms to remove the sign declaring: "If O. P. A. is saved it will not be in the gallery but on the floor of this House."

Those holding the sign immediately folded it.

The painted poster, about two by six feet, was displayed from the gallery as the Speaker banged his gavel signaling the House to begin consideration of compromise legislation continuing the Office of Price Administration but extracting many of its teeth.

Ordering it removed, Mr. Rayburn declared that "it violates the rules of this House."

The banner was displayed by two men who were taken in custody temporarily by Capitol police.

They identified themselves to reporters as Mike Novak and William Stachiw, members of Dodge Local No. 3, Detroit, United Automobile Workers, a Congress of Industrial Organizations affiliate.

They said they had not met with success in trying to tell their Congressmen about their views on the O. P. A., so "we decided to tell our story this way."

Mr. Stachiw added: "This seemed like as short a speech as we could make to tell Congress what we think about O. P. A."

Capitol police said later the two men were released, after being warned against any repetition of their act.

Officers said House rules specifically forbid display of banners in the Chamber, and subject violators to a possible fine of $500.

DRAFT BILL SENT TO TRUMAN, EXTENDING ACT TO MARCH 31; EXEMPTS 18-YEAR-OLD CLASS

JUN 26 1946

SELECTIVE SERVICE WILL CALL NO MEN IN NEXT 2 MONTHS

Extension Until March 31 Permits Drafting of TWENTY-YEAR-OLDS

18-YEAR-OLDS EXEMPT

Pay Increase Voted, Covering Servicemen in All Grades.

WASHINGTON, June 25 — (AP) Congress continued the draft law and voted pay boosts for servicemen today after notification from the Army that it will draft nobody in July [illegible] August.

The House then the Senate speedily passed compromise bills for these purposes after months of bickering and sent them to President Truman, who is expected to sign them before the present draft extension expires Sunday midnight.

Extend Until March 31

The draft bill continues the act in force until March 31, bans the induction of 18-year-olds while still requiring them to register, permits the induction of men 19 through 44 and requires the discharge of draftees after 18 months' service at their request.

The pay increase bill is estimated to cost $632,000,000 a year. It provides raises ranging from 50 per cent for buck privates and apprentice seamen to 10 per cent for high officers.

The House agreed to the pay bill on a voice vote, spent an hour arguing about the draft of teen-agers, which it originally opposed, and then approved the draft bill, 259 to 110.

Senate action came late in the day and on voice votes within ten minutes.

Senator Edwin C. Johnson (D-Colo), acting chairman of the Military committee, obtained approval first of the pay plan and then the draft extension.

Lone Opponent

Only Senator Revercomb (R-W. Va) asked to be recorded against the draft agreement. He noted that he had urged release of fathers and he now thought calling men from 30 to 45 years would be a mistake.

"These older men do not make such good soldiers," Revercomb said and cast the only audible "no" vote.

Disclosure that the Army will make no Selective Service calls during July and August came from Rep. Thomason (D-Tex) during the one hour of debate.

The Texan, member of the Military committee, read a letter from Secretary of War Patterson saying Patterson and Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower prefer a volunteer army and wish to avoid drafting men if possible.

"It is my conviction," Thomason said, that "not a single man will be drafted after September 1," either.

Expects Enough Volunteers

He added that pay increases and an intensified enlistment campaign should provide the necessary men without resort to the draft. But he cautioned that the law should be kept on the books as "insurance" against possible failure of recruiting.

Patterson's letter did not commit the Navy, but that service has not drafted any men for months and it appeared unlikely that it would resume.

Meanwhile, a House-approved bill to provide terminal leave pay for millions of discharged enlisted men hit a snag in the Senate Military committee. John L. Sullivan, acting Navy secretary, wrote the committee that the plan is "not in accord with the program of the President" and asked a delay until naval officers could testify in opposition.

Acting Chairman Johnson (D-Colo), estimating the cost at about $3,500,000,000, told reporters after a closed session that War and Navy department officials will be asked to testify in hope of completing action before Congress adjourns.

Under the draft legislation, the Selective Service law is extended until next March 31. The House originally had voted an extension until February 15; the Senate until May 15.

Teen-Age Ban Rejected

Before passing the bill by a roll-call vote of 259 to 110, the House defeated by a standing vote of 182 to 74 a move by Rep. Short (R-Mo) to ban induction of any teen-agers.

It was a difference over the minimum ages of induction that had thrown the legislation into controversy on Capitol hill. The House had insisted all along that no teen-agers be taken, while the Senate had voted to permit them to be drafted.

In the give-and-take of compromise, the legislation emerged with permission for the armed services to induct 19-year-olds and to take non-fathers up to 44. The House had put the maximum age at 20 in its original bill.

Also eliminated from the compromise was a House ban on any inductions before October 15.

There was no disagreement between the two branches on the 18-month service limitation and the ban against drafting fathers.

Neither did they disagree over ceiling strength of the armed forces—1,070,000 for the Army, 558,000 for the Navy and 108,000 for the Marine corps—by July 1, 1947, with a requirement that the Army limit its personnel to 1,550,000 by July 1 of this year.

Short Leads Fight

Short led the fight against the entire legislation, claiming it is not necessary.

Democratic Leader McCormack of Massachusetts told the House that it must think not only of the teen-agers not already in service but of men drafted in the past and now serving in far-flung areas awaiting their discharge when replacements are available.

"Apparently they have no voting power," he commented.

The compromise bill won the support of 150 Democrats and 109 Republicans. Opposing it were 39 Democrats, 69 Republicans, 1 Progressive and 1 American-Laborite.

A ringing voice vote sent the pay-raise compromise bill to the Senate.

The House originally had dealt with raises in separate legislation, but the Senate added the boosts to the draft bill. In conference it emerged as a separate bill.

There was little difference between the two branches over the amounts of the raises needed to spur enlistments.

The new and the old rates:

Buck privates, $50 to $75 monthly; first class privates, $54 to $80; corporals, $66 to $90; sergeants, $78 to $100; staff sergeants $96 to $115; technical sergeants, $114 to $135; first and master sergeants, $138 to $165; chief petty officers, $126 to $150.

For officers, the raises amount to 20 per cent annually for first and second lieutenants, 15 per cent for captains, and 10 per cent for all ranks above captain.

The increases apply also to the Navy, the Marine corps and the Coast Guard, the percentage boost being in proportion to rank.

BILL EXTENDING DRAFT PASSED BY THE HOUSE

Compromise Measure Wins Approval by Vote of 259 to 110.

JUN 26 1946

18-YEAR-OLDS ARE EXEMPTED

Chamber Also Sends to Senate Measure Raising Pay for Service Personnel.

Washington, June 25 (A. P.).—Compromise legislation extending the draft law until March 31 next, but prohibiting the induction of 18-year-olds, was passed today by the House and sent to the Senate.

The roll-call vote was 259 to 110. It came after a War Department announcement that the Army plans to draft no one in July and August.

DAY

The bill permits the induction of non-fathers between the ages of 19 and 44, both inclusive; limits the length of service of drafted men to 18 months; puts ceilings on the size of the Armed Forces, prohibits the induction of fathers, and allows fathers now in service to obtain their discharge upon request after August 1, 1946.

What Was Eliminated.

Eliminated in the give-and-take of compromise between the Senate and the House was a House provision prohibiting any inductions before next October 15 and barring the drafting of 19-year-olds as well as 18's. The Senate had voted to draft 18 and 19-year-olds.

The present draft law expires on June 30. The Senate originally had voted for an extension until next May 15 and the House until February 15.

Before approving the compromise, the House unanimously passed and sent to the Senate a compromise bill raising the pay of all service personnel.

In the course of debate, Representative Thomason (D.-Tex.) read to the House a letter in which Secretary of War Patterson said that the Army plans no draft calls for July and August.

How Members Voted.

Voting for the compromise were 150 Democrats and 109 Republicans. Against it were 39 Democrats, 69 Republicans, 1 Progressive and 1 American-Laborite.

Just before the final vote, the House rejected by a 182 to 74 standing count a motion by Representative Short (R.-Mo.) to insist on a ban against the draft of 19-year-old youths.

Secretary Patterson said he is hopeful that, with increases in pay, the armed forces would be able to obtain enough men through voluntary enlistments to meet their needs for the next few months.

Both he and Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, the Chief of Staff, prefer an all-volunteer army if one can be obtained and do not "desire to have a single man drafted" if it can be avoided, Patterson wrote.

Each man inducted prior to Oct. 1, 1946, under the provisions of subsection (a) who shall have completed a period of training and service under this Act of eighteen months or more (excluding time served while pursuing a course of instruction in a university, college or other similar institution of learning) shall, upon his request, on and after such date, be relieved from his period of training and service under this Act. Notwithstanding the foregoing provisions, whenever, after Jan. 1, 1946, the Congress declares that the national interest is imperiled, such periods of training and service may be extended by the President to such time as may be necessary in the interest of national defense."

Sect. 4. Section 3 (e) of such Act as amended, is hereby repealed.

Sect. 5 (a) Section 5 (e) (1) of such Act as amended, is hereby amended by inserting after the first sentence thereof the following new sentence: "No person shall be deferred for employment in industry except upon the basis of his then status in an industry essential to the national health, safety, or interest."

(b) Section 5 (e) (3) of such Act, as amended, is hereby amended to read as follows:

As used in this paragraph, the term 'child' includes a child legally adopted, a step-child, a foster child, and a person who is supported in good faith by the individual in a relationship similar to that of a parent and child but such term does not include any person eighteen years of age or over unless such person is physically or mentally handicapped."

(c) Section 5 (e) of such Act, as amended, is hereby amended by adding at the end thereof the following new paragraphs:

"(4) Any man inducted under the provisions of Section 3 (a) of this Act who has a child or children, as hereinabove defined, dependent upon him for support, or with whom he maintains a bona fide family relationship in his home, shall, upon his request after August 1, 1946, be relieved from his period of training and service under this Act.

Allowance for Service Time

"(5) No individual shall be inducted without his consent for training and service under this Act, if he has served on active duty in the land or naval forces of the United States outside the continental limits of the United States or in Alaska; or if he has served on active duty in the land or naval forces of the United States for a period of at least six months after September 16, 1940 (excluding the time that any such individual so served while pursuing a course of instruction in a university, college, or other similar institution of learning). The provisions of this paragraph shall cease to be effective during any period after January 1, 1946, when the Congress or the President shall declare that the national interest is imperilled.

Section 6. Section 5 (M) of such Act, as amended, is amended to read as follows:

"(M) No individuals shall be called for induction, ordered to report to induction stations, or be inducted because of their occupations, or by occupational groups, or by groups in any plant or institutions, except pursuant to a requisition by the land or naval forces for persons in needed medical, professional and specialists' categories."

Section 7. Section 16 (b) of such Act, as amended, is amended to read as follows:

"(b) The provisions of the third sentence of Section 3(a) of this Act shall become inoperative and cease to apply at 12 o'clock post meridian on July 1, 1947. All of the other provisions of this Act, except the provisions of Sections 3(b), 3(c), 3(d), 8 and 16(b), and the fourth and fifth provisos of the second sentence of Section 3(a), shall become inoperative and cease to apply at 12 o'clock post meridian on March 31, 1947, or on such earlier date as may be specified in a concurrent resolution of the two Houses of Congress for that purpose, except as to offenses committed prior to such date.

One day prior to the date of the termination of the Selective Training and Service Act of 1940, as amended, as herein or hereafter specified, all remaining functions and responsibilities of the Personnel Division established under the authority of Section 8(g) of such Act, and all records and balances of appropriations which have been utilized or are available for use in the administration of such functions of the Personnel Division of the Selective Service System shall be transferred to such agency of the Federal Government as the Congress may designate, or, if none is so designated, to such agency of the Federal Government as the President may designate."

G. I. REGULATIONS REVISED BY ARMY

Saluting Off Posts Abolished, Association of Officers, Men Allowed.

WASHINGTON, June 25—(AP)—Secretary of War Patterson tonight ordered that enlisted men get accumulated leave credits looking toward terminal leave pay like officers, that saluting be curbed and that other recommendations of the Doolittle "gripe board" be adopted.

Two of the board's 14 recommendations, however, were disapproved. These were: 1. That the terms "officers" and "enlisted men" be abolished; and 2. That inspector general's reports be sent direct to the War department, bypassing field commanders.

Favores Terminal Leave

Patterson approved the board's recommendation that enlisted men and Wacs be given terminal leave pay like officers and to this end he directed that they be permitted to accumulate credit for unused furlough time starting July 1.

Before actual payment for this time could be made, however, the approval of Congress is necessary. The House already has passed the necessary bill. It provides, however, that terminal leave payments also be made for unused furlough time prior to July 1, including that of men already discharged. Because of this feature the Senate Military committee today held up consideration of the measure at the request of the Navy, which indicated that the Administration opposes it.

Saluting will be abolished except on military posts, in overseas occupied areas, and on ceremonial occasions. Patterson said instructions for this purpose are now being issued.

Patterson also announced he has stricken from Army regulations an order that "officers are required to wear distinctive uniforms, to live apart from their men in garrison and to confine their social contacts to other officers."

At the same time, he said he is "certain that the basic concept of authority and command in the Army is sound. No changes can be introduced that would impair the efficiency of the Army or would destroy discipline. An Army without discipline is worthless."

Patterson announced his action in a statement following a month's study by the War department of the findings of the board, headed by former Lt. Gen. James H. Doolittle, which heard complaints of former soldiers on relations between officers and men.

Accepts 12 Recommendations

He accepted 12 recommendations, mostly with qualifications and with statements of remedial action already taken.

"Nothing in the report or in this statement should be taken as a refelction on the officer corps that has served the country in the war," Patterson wrote. "The vast majority of them did their duty as soldiers with courage, ability and fidelity and it should not be forgotten that their casualties were proportionately heavier than with other ranks."

30. 24-3535

Taking up the board's recommendations in order, Patterson thus reported his action.

1. On improvement in leadership, new regular Army officers are being carefully selected on a "basis of relative merit." Personnel management courses are being added to training. The War department plans to seek legislation soon to overhaul the system of promotions. Legislation already is pending to make it easier to get rid of poor officers and to equalize retirement privileges.

To Equalize Allowances

2. Approval "in principle" was given a recommendation of measures to provide greater security and responsibility and equalize allowances and chances for advancement. Allowances for food, quarters and travel are being restudied. Officers and men will wear the same uniform, effective in mid-1948.

3. On terminal leave pay, officers and men will be paid on the same basis for unused leave or furlough time after July 1.

4. The board made two recommendations that military personnel when off duty be permitted to "pursue normal social patterns comparable to our democratic way of life" and proposed wiping out rules or customs prohibiting association between officers and men. While ordering deletion of an existing prohibition in the Army's field manual on military courtesy and discipline, Patterson said officers clubs will not be eliminated but efforts will be made to improve social facilities of enlisted men.

5. Regulations making discriminatory references as between officers and enlisted men and their families "if there are any," will be wiped out.

6. The War department always has insisted on equal justice and the Doolittle board recommendations will be called to the attention of a special board of the American Bar association which is studying a possible revision of Army justice.

7. The hand salute "will not be required outside of Army installations except in occupied territories, but will be employed in all official greetings in the line of duty and will continue to be used at ceremonial occasions and when the National Anthem is played or the Colors pass by."

Comments on Awards

8. Patterson acknowledged the system of awarding decorations is "not perfect in practice" but noted "practical difficulties" in making changes. He said that the "vast majority" of awards for valor in World War Two went to enlisted men and added that "by their very nature" awards for accomplishment in positions of responsibility would continue to go largely to commissioned and non-commissioned officers.

9. Patterson said in rejecting the recommendation that inspector general's reports by-pass field commanders that the system for registering complaints already has been revised in line with the Doolittle board's recommendations. He added that bypassing commanders might give inspectors a "tinge of 'gestapo' or undercover status."

10. Measures will be taken to put into effect a recommendation that regulation and instructions prohibit or minimize possible abuses of authority and prestige by officers.

11. Turning down the proposed abolition of the terms "enlisted men" and "officers," Patterson said there is a dignity to both terms "which can well be retained without in any way impairing the objective of a wholesome relationship."

13. The Army will give continuedone to encourage "close contact and association with civilians."

13. The Army will give continuing attention to further study of relations between officers and men.

Russia Rejects News Protest

JUN 26 1946

Denies Strong U. S. Plea for Press Freedom in Romania—Expels Correspondent.

Washington, June 25 (A. P.).—Acting Secretary of State Acheson said today that Russia has flatly rejected a strong United States protest against suppression of news freedom in Romania, and has forced Reuben Markham of the Christian Science Monitor to leave that country.

Acheson told a news conference that the United States had registered its objections to the treatment of Markham in both Moscow and Bucharest a month ago and that it had been turned down in both places.

Word had just been received from the Soviet Ministry of Foreign Affairs, he said, contending that the American argument furnished no foundation for rescinding the Soviet action against the American newsman. The Kremlin takes this view, Acheson said, despite the fact that the American Government considers suppression of news freedom in Romania a violation of the Potsdam agreement made a year ago by Premier Stalin, President Truman and Prime Minister Attlee.

Acheson said the Christian Science Monitor has advised the State Department that Markham left Romania June 22 and is now in Athens. Col. Gen Susaikov, ranking Soviet military authority at Bucharest, had ordered him out at the latest by today. Markham had written stories on conditions in Russian-occupied Communist-dominated Romania to which the Russians objected.

Acheson related that on May 21 the Russians ordered Markham out of the country by May 26. Thereupon the American embassy in Moscow tried to persuade the Russian Government to rescind the order. The United States also made strong protests, Acheson said, to the Soviet military authorities at Bucharest on May 25. Subsequently, however, the State Department was informed that Susaikov had refused to consider the protests.

Furthermore, Acheson said, the Soviet Ministry of Foreign Affairs has sent word that there is no foundation for rescinding the order. It evidently was in connection with this latest decision of the Kremlin that Susaikov finally ordered Markham out of the country.

U. S. FOR[illegible]ES IN TRUST[illegible]IPS

Washington, June [illegible]o (A. P.).—Acting Secretary of State Dean Acheson disclosed today that the United States had suggested a number of changes in a British plan for trusteeships in Africa.

Acheson told a news conference that two American representatives now in London had made a number of the suggestions in conversations with the British on what he called a technical level. In answer to a question on why the United States was helping Great Britain draw up a plan for British trusteeships, Acheson said the United States has an interest in trusteeships and was expressing its views.

Former Prisoners May File Claims For Enemy Abuses

JUN 26 1946

Washington, June 25—(AP)—Former prisoners of war who want personal reparations from the Japanese or German governments were told by the Navy today to get in line. But when and how they might be paid is admittedly hazy.

All Navy or former Navy personnel or relatives of dead prisoners desiring to file claims against enemy governments for "personal injuries or death due to mistreatment or other violation" of the Geneva Convention were instructed to send detailed affidavits to the claims section (POW claims), Office of the Judge Advocate General, Navy Department, Washington, D. C.

There is no law at present under which claims could be presented or paid, but the State Department is studying the legal angles, the Navy added.

QUITS TOKYO WAR COURT

Higgins Pleads Urgent Duties on Massachusetts Bench

WASHINGTON, June 25 (AP) — Chief Justice John P. Higgins of the Massachusetts Superior Court has resigned from the war-crimes tribunal in Japan, the War Department said today.

He gave as his reason the "imperative" need to return to his duties in Massachusetts, asserting that the military trials promised to last longer than originally expected. War Department officials said that the resignation had been accepted by Sir William Webb, president of the tribunal, and a replacement would be sought without delay by Attorney General Tom Clark in consultation with the department.

2d Marines Coming Home

WASHINGTON, June 25 (AP).—The 2d Marine Division, which fought at Guadalcanal, Tinian, Saipan and Okinawa and suffered nearly 3,000 casualties at Tarawa, is returning from occupation duty in Japan, Marine Corps headquarters said today. Most of its combat veterans previously have returned, but approximately 2,500 officers and men are eligible for discharge. The division is returning in six ships scheduled to arrive at Norfolk, Va., during July and August.

ENDS MISSION HERE

Washington, June 25 (A. P.).—Gen. Carlos von der Becke, former Chief of Staff of the Argentine Army, left unexpectedly today to return to Buenos Aires after a round of conferences here with United States and Argentine officials.

The Argentine general, who arrived in Washington on June 3, boarded an Eastern Airlines plane at the Washington National Airport for Miami. He is expected to leave Miami late tomorrow.

The general conferred here with General of the Army Dwight D. Eisenhower, Acting Secretary of State Acheson and others. The results of his mission to the United States remained a matter of speculation.

NAVY TO RELEASE GROTON AIRFIELD

WASHINGTON, June 25. — (AP) The Senate Naval committee today cleared the way for disposal of 64 Navy airfields.

It voted a blanket authorization to the Navy department to turn them over to the War Assets administration for disposal.

The House Naval committee had approved the surplus declaration of the same installations on June 19.

Navy officers said the disposals will be conditioned by a clause enabling the government to regain control in the event of an emergency. All the fields are excess to the Navy's peacetime needs.

Facilities on the list included: Connecticut: Groton.

TERMINAL PAY BILL OPPOSED BY NAVY

Washington, June 25 (A. P.).—House-approved plans for terminal pay to several million war veterans ran into naval opposition today in the Senate Military Committee.

A letter to the committee from John L. Sullivan, acting Secretary of the Navy, said that the pay plan was "not in accord with the program of the President." He asked for a delay until Navy officials could appear in opposition.

Senator Edwin C. Johnson D.-Col.), acting chairman of the Military Committee, told reporters after a closed session that both Navy and War Department officials would be asked to testify in hopes of completing action before Congress adjourns.

The legislation, passed 379 to 0 by the House, would grant enlisted personnel of the armed services the same terminal leave pay allowed to commissioned officers. They would get cash for accrued leave they were not able to take while in service.

Johnson said that a Senate Military Affairs sub-committee had recommended Senate approval of the House bill with one important change, to end cash payment for all unused terminal leave for both men and officers after September 1.

"Cutting off the payments would still allow everybody to continue to take leave that was earned," he explained. "It would not be paid for."

TO END NEWSPRINT LIMIT

CPA Says It Will Lift by End of Week the Inventory Curbs

WASHINGTON, June 25 (AP)—John D. Small, Civilian Production Administrator, said today that limitations on the supplies of newsprint which newspapers may hold will be lifted by June 30.

Newspapers will be limited, however, to "a normal working inventory," the same restriction which the CPA imposes throughout industry on the accumulation of scarce materials.

Newspapers now are limited to a fifty-days' supply of newsprint in the South and West, a thirty-days' supply elsewhere.

The Newspaper Industry Advisory Committee, at a meeting April 22, recommended that the controls be dropped on April 30. Mr. Small demurred at that time in view of the coal and steel strikes. The industry group then asked that controls be dropped as soon as possible and, under any circumstances, "not later than June 30."

Services to See Gliding Meet

WASHINGTON, June 25 (AP).—Heads of the Army and Navy air forces today assured Representative W. Sterling Cole, Republican, of New York, that official observers will note with "great interest" developments at the fifteenth annual national soaring contest at Elmira, N. Y., Aug. 5-18. The meet, first to be held since 1941, when war conditions necessitated cancellation, takes on "new sigifincance" this year, Representative Cole told a reporter "because of the importance glider transportation of troops assumed during the recent conflict."

WALLACE REPORTS MERGER TREND

JUN 26 1946

Washington, June 25 (A. P.).—Secretary of Commerce Henry A. Wallace reported last night a sharp increase in business mergers, with larger companies absorbing small ones in a "trend closely resembling corporate concentration that occurred following world war I."

Noting that mergers and acquisitions during the final three months of last year reached the highest level since 1931, with preliminary indications that the high rate is continuing this year, Wallace declared:

"If it continues for a number of years it will have important repercussions on the nation's economic system, primarily because competition will be further reduced and opportunities of small business further limited."

Mergers and acquisitions during the first three months of this year were reported one-third higher than in the corresponding period of last year, but below that for the last three months of 1945.

The recent turn to corporate mergers has been most pronounced, Wallace said, among alcoholic beverage companies, drug and pharmaceutical companies, dairy concerns, paper mills, textile mills and metal and fabricating plants.

NEW SCRAP DRIVE IS PLANNED BY CPA TO HELP INDUSTRY

JUN 26 1946

WASHINGTON, June 25. — (AP) A scrap drive of wartime scale and intensity is planned by the Civilian Production administration to remedy an iron and steel shortage which threatens the vital steel industry.

CPA is counting on an increase in scrap price ceilings—which OPA has not yet granted—to help bring out the idle metal and restore a normal flow to steel furnaces, a CPA spokesman said.

The production agency itself will undertake simultaneously to scour government stocks in the hands of the armed forces and the War Assets corporation.

The country is down to about three million tons supply of scrap, the spokesman estimated, with little prospect that the battlefield salvage once counted upon will arrive in quantities sufficient to improve the situation materially.

The American Scrap Institute estimates that dealers are down to about 525,000 tons or about one-half normal supplies. Steel companies which hold the rest are down to one-half or one-third of normal.

An appeal to citizens, dealers and small manufacturers to "scour their premises" was issued three months ago by CPA, but that drive was an admitted flop. Officials give two reasons:

First, the steel industry was lukewarm, fearing that a heavy demand on dealers would increase the prices they must pay for scrap.

Second, the scrap dealers themselves were lukewarm, holding that present ceilings do not cover the cost of extra efforts and outlays required in rounding up metal from unaccustomed sources of supply.

By now, a CPA official said, the need is so great that steel companies probably would stand for a price boost, and indications are that OPA will grant one. OPA has not confirmed this judgment.

Householders, farmers and small plants, are counted upon as the major potential sources of supply in the new drive, CPA officials said.

3 WAA PLANTS TO GO TO U. S. STEEL UNIT

JUN 26 1946

Mills in Pennsylvania Are Sold to Carnegie-Illinois by the Government for $65,013,000

WASHINGTON, June 25 (AP)—The War Assets Administration sold today the Government-owned steel-plant facilities at Duquesne, Homestead and Braddock, Pa., to the Carnegie-Illinois Steel Corporation in the biggest single cash sale of surplus in the agency's history. Carnegie-Illinois, a subsidiary of the United States Steel Corporation, will pay $65,013,000, it was announced.

The sum is 100 per cent of the so-called fair value of the steel-mill properties as fixed by the disposal agency. The plant was built under wartime emergency conditions at a cost of $120,000,000. In the last three years it has brought the Treasury $23,267,854 in rentals.

The transaction is effective as of next Sunday, subject, however, to a ruling by the Department of Justice on whether the sale is in violation of the anti-trust laws. The Department has approved transfer of the Geneva (Utah) steel properties to United States Steel for $47,500,000.

The Duquesne, Homestead and Braddock plants are classed as "scrambled facilities"; in other words, they are deemed not capable of independent operation since they are adjacent to plants of Carnegie-Illinois and are dependent on the latter for integrated functioning.

The facilities were installed in 1941 and 1942 at the request of the late Secretary of the Navy Frank Knox as part of the speed-up program of fleet expansion.

In the speed-up drive the Government blast furnaces at Braddock turned out 2,167,794 tons of pig iron, the electric-furnace plant at Duquesne produced 278,981 tons of alloy-steel ingots and the open-hearth plant at Homestead produced 3,349,980 tons of carbon-steel ingots.

Spy Jury Chosen to Hear Soviet Navy Man's Case

7 Men and 5 Women Seated in U. S. Court in Seattle

SEATTLE, June 25 (AP).—A jury of seven men and five women was selected today to decide the fate of Lieutenant Nicholai G. Redin, Russian Navy lieutenant, in the espionage case brought against him by the United States government.

The jury was seated shortly before evening adjournment after the bench had advised jurors not to allow their prejudices or personal political beliefs to influence their judgment in the case against the man accused of inducing and seeking to induce a shipyard employee to supply plans on a destroyer tender and its equipment.

The thirty-year-old Russian, who was assigned to Seattle with the Soviet Purchasing Commission during the war, has denied his guilt and expressed confidence of his acquittal.

Prospective jurors were asked by Allan Pomeroy, assistant United States Attorney, whether they had any "conscientious objection" to returning a verdict of guilty in a case involving the death penalty. One count of the indictment against Redin—the conspiracy count—carried a possible death penalty.

Questions by Irvin Good, [illegible] of two defense attorneys, dealt with Redin's status as a citizen of the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics, with Russia's type of government, and with recent articles on Russia.

PROBE OF COURT REQUESTED BY BAR

JUN 26 1946

NEWARK, N. J., June 25—(AP) A congressional investigation of all facts pertaining to Supreme Court Justice Robert Jackson's recent public criticism of Justice Hugo L. Black was asked today by the Federal Bar association of New York, New Jersey and Connecticut.

The association at its annual meeting here approved petitioning the House of Representatives to appoint a committee to look into all the facts and "to recommend whatever changes in the laws of our country may be required to enable the public authorities to properly deal with a situation such as that presented here."

The association approved also a proposed constitutional amendment drawn by Edward A. Alexander of New York, chairman of a special association committee which drafted the petition.

The proposed amendment would change Section 1, Article III, relating to the judiciary and its holding of office during "good behavior."

Alexander's proposal called for congressional authority to define "good behavior" and to permit Congress to set from time to time penalties imposed upon judges who commit "any act defined by Congress not to be good behavior."

The petition asking the investigation asserted there was a need for change in the present constitutional sections relating to the judiciary saying "Our Constitution does not contain the necessary legal machinery to enable us to deal properly or adequately with this subject."

The petition said the constitution provided no definition of "good behavior" and apparently establishes only one penalty for a judge found guilty of not maintaining "good behavior" and that was removal from office.

Moscow, June 25-(AP)-Marshall Macduffie, head of the Unrra mission in the Ukraine, said today that support of the United States, Argentina, Great Britain, Norway and India assured that the relief agency [redacted] deliver its $189,000,000 of goods to the Russian republic this year.

He said Great Britain will supply $30,000,000 worth of machinery in the next six months. Argentina already has shipped 10,000 tons of linseed oil, India has sent jute and Norway has dispatched fish.

Macduffie said Ukrainian food rations provided 3,000 calories daily to heavy laborers and scaled down to 1,300 calories for dependants in families.

JUN 26 1946

Speaking of the Unrra program in the region which Germany overran, Macduffie said:

"We are confident now we will be able to ship the full programmed value of goods before the end of the year, although probably we will be short of some tractors and waterpipes we are trying to order in the United States."

He said England was shipping electric power plants, construction and road machinery--goods manufactured under British lend lease war orders.

He asserted that the wheat and grain crop in the Ukraine, one of the world's most fertile regions, was not good despite recent rains that broke droughts in wide sections.

1ST LEAD CHINESE (310)

BY HAROLD K.MILKS DAY

NANKING, JUNE 25-(AP)-COMMUNIST LEADER MAO TSE-TUNG'S ACCUSATION THAT THE UNITED STATES WAS MENACING PEACE IN CHINA CAUSED GRAVE CONCERN TODAY AT THE OFFICIAL RESIDENCE OF GENERAL MARSHALL.

THE SPECIAL U.S.ENVOY, WHO HAD BEEN REPORTED MAKING SOME PROGRESS TOWARD A GOVERNMENT-COMMUNIST AGREEMENT, WAS NON-COMMITTAL BUT OTHER AMERICAN SOURCES TERMED MAO'S STATEMENT "OUTRIGHT PROPAGANDA."

CONTRARY TO PREVIOUS PLANS, CHINA'S PEACE COMMITTEE HELD NO SESSIONS TODAY. IT HAD BEEN EXPECTED TO EXCHANGE VIEWS ON UNIFYING CHINA'S ARMIES AFTER REPORTEDLY AGREEING ON THE ONLY OTHER TWO ISSUES STILL BEFORE IT -- ENDING HOSTILITIES AND RESTORING COMMUNICATIONS.

ONE AMERICAN SOURCE WHO DECLINED TO BE QUOTED BY NAME CHARGED THAT MAO, WHO LOOSED HIS CRITICISM OF U.S. TROOPS IN CHINA AT HIS YENAN HEADQUARTERS YESTERDAY, WAS "TRYING TO INFLUENCE AMERICAN PUBLIC OPINION IN FAVOR OF THE COMMUNISTS AT A TIME WHEN NEGOTIATIONS ARE IN THE MOST CRUCIAL STAGE."

AMERICAN SOURCES DECLARED THAT THE UNITED STATES PROGRAM OF AIDING CHINA, WHICH MAO ATTACKED, LARGELY WAS DRAFTED AFTER MARSHALL HAD ENGINEERED AGREEMENTS EARLY THIS YEAR THAT APPARENTLY HAD STARTED THE GOVERNMENT AND THE COMMUNISTS ON THE ROAD TO NATIONAL UNITY.

THE MILITARY AID BILL, A PARTICULAR TARGET FOR THE CHINESE COMMUNIST LEADER, WAS DRAFTED WITH A VIEW OF HELPING BOTH SIDES, ONE INFORMANT SAID.

AS A MATTER OF FACT, HE ADDED, NEARLY 100 UNITED STATES OFFICERS HAVE BEEN HERE FOR TWO MONTHS WAITING A CESSATION OF HOSTILITIES SO THEY COULD OPEN A COMMUNIST MILITARY TRAINING SCHOOL AT KALGAN.

"WHEN THE COMMITMENT WAS MADE TO CHINA, LARGELY THROUGH MARSHALL'S INTEREST, FOR HELPING CHINA RECOVER FROM EIGHT YEARS OF WAR," THE SOURCE ADDED, "THERE WAS NOTHING TO INDICATE THE COMMUNISTS AS WELL AS THE GOVERNMENT INTENDED TO ABROGATE SIGNED AGREEMENTS AND VIOLATE THE CEASE-FIRE PACTS."

MAO DECLARED THAT THE UNITED STATES SHOULD CUT OFF ALL AID TO THE GOVERNMENT, SINCE SUCH HELP "IN FACT ONLY INTERFERES WITH CHINESE INTERNAL AFFAIRS" AND SAID THE DEPARTURE OF U.S. FORCES FROM CHINA WAS "LONG OVERDUE."

AN INFORMED CHINESE SOURCE SAID THAT GENERAL MARSHALL, GEN. HSU YUNG-CHANG AND GEN. CHOU EN-LAI--THE U.S., THE CHINESE GOVERNMENT AND THE COMMUNIST NEGOTIATORS--HAD REACHED AGREEMENT ON MEANS OF ENDING HOSTILITIES AND RESTORING SHATTERED COMMUNICATIONS.

STILL UNSETTLED WAS THE ARMY REORGANIZATION QUESTION, TOUGHEST OF THE LOT, AND THE COMMITTEE WAS EXPECTED TO EXCHANGE VIEWS ON THE MATTE TODAY BEFORE RESUMING FORMAL DISCUSSIONS TOMORROW.

THE CHINESE SOURCE SAID THE COMMUNISTS WERE READY TO SIGN PAPERS NOW FOR ENDING HOSTILITIES AND RESTORING COMMUNICATIONS BUT THE GOVERNMENT WANTED EVERYTHING WRAPPED UP IN A SINGLE PACT.

THE CURRENT TRUCE ENDS JUNE 30.

NIGHT LEAD WAR CRIMES

JUN 26 1946

BY MORRIE LANDSBERG

TOKYO, WEDNESDAY, JUNE 26-(AP)-A JAPANESE WITNESS TOLD THE ALLIED WAR CRIMES TRIBUNAL TODAY THAT THE WAR-PROVOKING MANCHURIAN INCIDENT OF 1931 GREW OUT OF AN ABORTIVE, WILD PLOT BY JAPANESE MILITARISTS TO MARCH INTO THE DIET AND SEIZE GOVERNMENTAL POWER IN JAPAN.

KONOSUKE SHIMIZU, WHOSE OWN POSITION WAS NOT MADE CLEAR, SAID HE HAD CONTRIBUTED 2,000 YEN TO DR.SHUMEI OKAWA--ONE OF THE 28 DEFENDANTS IN THE CURRENT TRIALS, NOW CONFINED IN A PSYCHOPATHIC WARD. OKAWA, HE SAID, WAS TO HAVE LED A MOB INTO THE DIET TO TAKE OVER THE GOVERNMENT.

OKAWA HAD TOLD HIM, SHIMIZU TESTIFIED, THAT THE REVOLUTION WAS PLANNED BY ARMY OFFICERS, INCLUDING COL. KINGORO HASHIMOTO--ALSO A DEFENDANT NOW. HASHIMOTO WAS TO OBTAIN BOMBS FROM THE ARMY, SHIMIZU SAID IN HIS WITNESS' AFFIDAVIT, AND SOME 300 BOMBS ACTUALLY WERE BROUGHT TO SHIMIZU'S HOME TO BE HIDDEN.

SHIMIZU SAID OKAWA LATER ADVISED HIM THAT THE PLAN HAD FAILED BECAUSE THE MILITARY HAD BACKED OUT.

GEN. KUNIAKI KOISO, ALSO A DEFENDANT, WHO WAS THEN CHIEF OF THE WAR MINISTRY'S MILITARY AFFAIRS BUREAU, TOLD OKAWA THAT "IT IS A DIRECT ORDER FROM THE ARMY THAT THIS PLOT BE ABANDONED," SHIMIZU CONTINUED.

SHIMIZU SAW OKAWA OCCASIONALLY AFTER THAT, AND ON ONE OCCASION IN AUGUST (1931) OKAWA "TOLD ME THAT HE AND A CERTAIN COL.DAISAKU KOMOTO, COL.AMAKASU OF THE KEMPEI TAI, AND COL.ITAGAKI, VICE CHIEF OF STAFF OF THE KWANTUNG ARMY, WOULD BRING ABOUT AN INCI MUKDEN...

OF STAFF OF THE KWANTUNG ARMY, WOULD BRING ABOUT AN INCIDENT IN MUKDEN...."

A127KX

OKAWA APPROACHED HIM AGAIN IN MARCH, 1932, TO DISCUSS A POSSIBLE PLOT AGAINST THE "WEAK" JAPANESE GOVERNMENT, SHIMIZU ADDED, BUT HE DECLINED TO PARTICIPATE IN ANY FURTHER CONSPIRACIES.

BARON KIJURO SHIDEHARA, WHO WAS FOREIGN MINISTER IN 1931, SAID IN CROSS EXAMINATION TODAY THAT THE GOVERNMENT DID NOT DISCIPLINE OR RECALL ANY OF THE OFFICERS WHO BROUGHT ABOUT THE MANCHURIAN INCIDENT--AND THAT NEITHER HE NOR WAR MINISTER JIRO MINAMI KNEW OF THE INCIDENT IMMEDIATELY.

MINAMI IS ONE OF THE 28 DEFENDANTS INDICTED AS WAR CRIMINALS.

"THE CABINET WAS NOT IN A POSITION TO DISCIPLINE THE ARMY IN MANCHURIA OR ANYWHERE ELSE," SHIDEHARA REPLIED TO QUESTIONING BY ASSISTANT PROSECUTOR HUGH B.HELM, (1415 RICHMOND ROAD) LEXINGTON, KY.

NIGHT LEAD ALLIED COUNCIL

JUN 26 1946

BY TOM LAMBEY

T (400)

TOKYO, WEDNESDAY, JUNE 26-(AP)-GEORGE C. ATCHESON, JR., CHAIRMAN OF THE ALLIED COUNCIL FOR JAPAN, TOLD RUSSIA'S DELEGATION TODAY THAT THE POTSDAM DECLARATION REQUIRED PERMITTING DISARMED JAPANESE ABROAD TO RETURN TO THEIR HOMELAND--BUT THAT NONE HAD BEEN REPATRIATED FROM SOVIET-CONTROLLED MANCHURIA.

HE ADDED THAT HE SHOULD NOT WISH TO SEE ANY SURRENDER TERMS "UNILATERALLY ABROGATED OR DISREGARDED."

RUSSIA'S COUNCIL MEMBER, LT. GEN. KUZMA DEREVYANKO, ASKED BY ATCHESON FOR "ANY COMMENT HE MIGHT CARE TO MAKE," ANSWERED ONLY THAT:

"THE QUESTION ON THE COUNCIL AGENDA IS NOT REPATRIATION IN GENERAL, BUT INTEGRATION OF REPATRIATES (INTO JAPANESE NATIONAL LIFE)-- NOT REPATRIATION FROM SOVIET TERRITORY."

AS PROPOSED BY THE ALLIED COMMAND, THE OFFICIAL AGENDA ENTRY READ: "INTEGRATION OF REPATRIATES INTO THE NATIONAL LIFE OF JAPAN."

FURTHER DISCUSSION WAS POSTPONED UNTIL THE NEXT MEETING, JULY 12.

ATCHESON, INTRODUCING THE TOPIC, QUOTED THE POTSDAM RE-PATRIATION CLAUSE AS SPECIFYING "JAPANESE MILITARY FORCES... SHALL BE PERMITTED TO RETURN TO THEIR HOMES." AMERICAN CONTROLLED AREAS, HE ADDED, HAD REPATRIATED 93 PERCENT OF THEIR DISARMED

30.24-3545

JAPANESE; BRITISH AREAS, 78 PERCENT; CHINESE, EXCLUSIVE OF MANCHURIA, 94 PERCENT; SOVIET AREAS, ZERO. FIGURES WERE FOR THE PERIOD OF OCTOBER, 1945, TO JUNE, 1946, HE SAID, ADDING:

"I SUBMIT THE OPINION THAT APPLICABLE TERMS OF THE SURRENDER SHOULD BE CARRIED OUT VOLUNTARILY BY ALL ALLIED AUTHORITIES AS PROMPTLY AS PRACTICABLE. FROM THE POINT OF VIEW OF ALLIED UNITY ALONE I SHOULD NOT WISH TO SEE ANY TERMS OF THE SURRENDER UNILATERALLY ABROGATED OR DISREGARDED.

"IT IS OBVIOUS THAT IF THE SAME FULL MEASURE OF COOPERATION IS NOT RECEIVED FROM ALL ALLIED AUTHORITIES IN THIS MATTER, THERE WILL ARISE THE POSSIBILITY OF MISUNDERSTANDING AMONG US, AS WELL AS CONTINUED WIDESPREAD APPREHENSION AMONG THE JAPANESE PEOPLE."

A141KX

JUN 26 1946

DEREVYANKO, ALTHOUGH AVOIDING COMMENT ON REPATRIATION FROM RUSSIAN AREAS, AGREED THAT HE THOUGHT JAPAN SHOULD HAVE A PLAN TO INTEGRATE RETURNEES INTO THE NATIONAL LIFE. THE CHINESE DELEGATE, LT. GEN. CHU SHIH-MING ALSO CONCURRED, BUT BRITISH COMMONWEALTH MEMBER W. MCMAHON BALL ASKED FURTHER INFORMATION.

DEREVYANKO TOLD THE COUNCIL EARLIER THAT RUSSIA OPPOSES ENLARGEMENT OF JAPANESE FISHING AREAS--RECENTLY GRANTED TEMPORARILY WITH THE COUNCIL'S UNANIMOUS CONSENT. SUCH EXTENSION, HE SAID, WOULD BE "DIRECTLY CONCERNED WITH THE CREATION OF A LARGE, OCEAN-GOING FISHING FLEET."

ATCHESON SAID THE FOOD CRISIS WAS URGENT, AND THAT HE SAW NO CONNECTION BETWEEN THE TEMPORARY, EMERGENCY EXTENSION AND THE ULTIMATE SIZE OF JAPAN'S POSTWAR FISHING FLEET.

OTHER AGENDA TOPICS INCLUDE ANOTHER POSTPONED HEADQUARTERS' ENTRY ASKING FOR DISCUSSION ON DISPOSITION OF JAPANESE GOVERNMENT PROPERTY, AND A RUSSIAN QUERY ON JAPANESE FOREIGN TRADE PLANS.

AMERICAN COUNCIL CHAIRMAN GEORGE ATCHESON,JR., BROUGHT UP THE QUESTION OF JAPAN'S MISSING KWANTUNG ARMY, WHICH WAS OVERWHELMED BY THE RUSSIANS IN MANCHURIA, AT A COUNCIL MEETING JUNE 12.

DEREVYANKO REMAINED SILENT.

ASKED BY REPORTERS IF HE THOUGHT BIKINI AND OTHER ISLANDS IN THE MARSHALLS BELONGED TO THE UNITED STATES, THE ADMIRAL REPLIED THAT HE CONSIDERED THEY DID, "AT LEAST AT THE PRESENT TIME."

COMPLETE INFORMATION ON THE SUCCESS OF MONDAY'S REHEARSAL OF THE BOMB-DROP AND ON THE COMPLEX MACHINERY FOR GETTING MEN AND SUPPORT SHIPS OUT OF THE LAGOON SHOULD BE AVAILABLE WEDNESDAY, THE ADMIRAL SAID.

EXPLAINING THAT ALL CONDITIONS MUST BE REASONABLY SATISFACTORY IF THE TEST IS TO COME OFF AS SCHEDULED, BLANDY POINTED OUT THAT MONDAY'S CLEAR SKY MADE THE PRACTICE DROP POSSIBLE BUT THAT HE DOUBTED WHETHER THE REAL BOMB COULD HAVE BEEN EXPLODED THEN.

ABOARD THE U.S.S. MOUNT MCKINLEY, JUNE 25-(AP)-ANOTHER THING ABOUT THE ATOMIC BOMB IS ITS INVISIBILITY.

THAT WAS DEMONSTRATED YESTERDAY WHEN THE TASK FORCE DROPPED A COPY OF THE BOMB--WITHOUT THE NUCLEAR FISSION MATERIAL--ON THE TARGET FLEET AND 40,000 MEN OF THE FORCE SAW PRECISELY NOTHING.

THE SWIFT BALL BOMB FELL TOO FAST FOR THE HUMAN EYE TO FOLLOW. THE GREAT BOMBER THAT LET IT GO WAS AT A SUPER HEIGHT, BEYOND SIGHT AND SOUND.

THE UTTER AND AWFUL SURPRISE OF THE JAPANESE IN HIROSHIMA AND NAGASAKI NOW IS UNDERSTANDABLE TO ALL HANDS OF THE TASK FORCE.

THERE WAS NO WARNING FOR THE TASK FORCE OBSERVERS. THE FIRST EVIDENCE OF THE BOMB'S ARRIVAL WAS THE FLASH AND AN ORANGE-RED FLOWER OF FIRE AT WHAT APPEARED TO BE A LITTLE MORE THAN 1,000 FEET ABOVE THE SHIPS.

WATCHERS ABOARD THIS FLAGSHIP, 10 MILES FROM THE BOMB, WERE UNABLE TO HEAR ANY SOUND OF THE EXPLOSION.

VICE ADM. WILLIAM H. P. BLANDY, COMMANDER OF THE TASK FORCE, ANNOUNCED THAT COMPLETE INFORMATION ON THE SUCCESS OF THE PRACTICE BOMBING AND THE COMPLEX MACHINERY FOR GETTING MEN AND SUPPORT SHIPS OUT OF THE LAGOON SHOULD BE AVAILABLE TOMORROW.

AT THAT TIME THE ENTIRE STAFF WILL HOLD A CRITIQUE. BETWEEN NOW AND JULY 1 THE FORCE WILL BE OCCUPIED WITH CHECKING THOUSANDS OF INSTRUMENTS AND FINAL BRIEFINGS FOR THE REAL THING.

WHETHER THE TEST COMES OFF ON SCHEDULE NOW IS UP TO THE WEATHER, WHICH INCLUDES SUCH SEEMINGLY REMOTE FACTORS AS AIR MOVEMENTS 40,000 FEET UP AND BAROMETRIC PRESSURES 4,000 MILES AWAY.

IN EXPLAINING ALL CONDITIONS MUST BE REASONABLY SATISFACTORY, BLANDY SAID YESTERDAY'S CLEAR SKY MADE THE PRACTICE DROP POSSIBLE BUT HE DOUBTED IF THE REAL BOMB COULD HAVE BEEN EXPLODED THEN.

ABOARD THE U.S.S. APPALACHIAN, JUNE 25-(AP)-A PREVIEW OF ATOMIC BOMB TYPE WAVES SHOWN ON BOARD THIS SHIP IN A MOTION PICTURE OF THE "LITTLE BIKINI" TESTS SUGGESTS GREAT WATER DAMARE AND POSSIBLE CATASTROPHE IF A-BOMBS EVER EXPLODE OVER OR IN U.S. HARBORS.

NEW YORK'S WALL STREET DISTRICT UP TO THE TREASURY BUILDING STEPS MIGHT BE FLOODED. A DELUGE MIGHT POUR INTO THE STOCK EXCHANGE.

SAN FRANCISCO'S MARKET STREET AREA MIGHT SUFFER EXTENSIVELY. THE WIDE, LOW, FLAT AREA OF THE NAVY'S BREMERTON BASE IN WASHINGTON MIGHT HAVE TO BE PROTECTED WITH SPECIAL SEA WALLS.

"LITTLE BIKINI" IS THE OFFICIAL NAME OF THE TAYLOR MODEL BASIN HEAR WASHINGTON, D.C., WHERE FOR MONTHS THE NAVY HAS BEEN EXPLODING T.N.T. CHARGES IN THE AIR, FROM A HALF-MILE DISTANT TO CLOSE DOWN, ON THE SURFACE AND UNDER WATER, SIMULATING A-BOMB EFFECTS ON A SMALL SCALE.

MODEL SHIPS FLOAT IN LITTLE BIKINI TO GIVE THE EFFECTS ON DIFFERENT TYPES AND DIFFERING DEGREES OF STURDINESS.

THERE ARE NO MODEL CITIES ALONG THE SHORES OF LITTLE BIKINI BUT THE HEIGHT OF THE WAVES IS APPARENT IN THE MOTION PICTURES. THEY ARE MUCH HIGHER THAN THE MODEL BOATS, WHICH CARRY NO SUPERSTRUCTURES.

THE WAVES SEEM IN THE PICTURES TO CONFIRM THE WAVE-HEIGHTS PREDICTED FOR BIKINI BY SCIENTISTS AND SEMI-OFFICIALLY IN INTERVIEWS. THESE PREDICTED HEIGHTS ARE FROM 50 TO 100 FEET.

THE LOWER FIGURE, OR EVEN CONSIDERABLY LESS, WOULD WASH NEW YORK'S SHORES WITH DANGEROUS WAVES.

IN THE OVER-WATER T.N.T. BLASTS AT LITTLE BIKINI, THE WATER WAS PUSHED DOWN INTO A BOWL SHAPE AFTER WHICH TWO HIGH CONCENTRIC WAVES ROLLED AWAY. THE SECOND WAVE WAS LITTLE LOWER THAN THE FIRST.

THEY ARE HIGH, LIKE GREAT STORM WAVES, AND BREAK AS THEY REACH SHALLOW WATER. THEY ARE COMPARATIVELY NARROW FROM FRONT TO BACK, UNLIKE TIDAL WAVES.

THIS MEANS THEY DO NOT PROPEL SUFFICIENT WATER TO SPREAD FAR INLAND. THEY MIGHT WRECK NEW YORK BATTERY FRONT BUILDINGS AND PIERS AND BUILDINGS ON THE HUDSON AND EAST RIVER WATER FRONTS.

THERE MIGHT BE SUFFICIENT WATER LEFT, AFTER SPILLING OVER THE WATER FRONT, TO CONCENTRATE AND DRIVE UP A CANYON-SHAPED STREET TO A DEPTH OF SEVERAL FEET.

IN NEW YORK HARBOR IT IS A GOOD GUESS THAT WAVES OF AN ATOMIC BOMB WOULD NOT ROLL 100 FEET HIGH OR ANYWHERE NEAR THAT FIGURE. THE DEPTH OF THE INNER HARBOR IS LESS THAN 90 FEET. MUCH IF STILL SHALLOWER. EVEN ATOMIC WAVES SHOULD BREAK AND SPEND THEIR FORCE.

HOWEVER, AT THE BATTERY THE ELEVATION IS ONLY SIX FEET ABOVE SEA LEVEL. THE CUSTOMS HOUSE, AT THE FOOT OF BROADWAY, IS ONLY 14 FEET.

IN PLACES SAN FRANCISCO HARBOR IS 150 FEET DEEP. IT IS THE ONLY U.S. HARBOR THAT COMPARES IN DIMENSIONS WITH THE BIKINI LAGOON.

IN LITTLE BIKINI TESTS, AIR EXPLOSIONS DEFORMED SOME SHIPS. ONE WAS TORN APART. SURPRISINGLY, ONE HAD HOLES BROKEN THROUGH ITS BOTTOM.

ABOARD U.S.S.APPALACHIAN, JUNE 24-(DELAYED)-(AP)-THE JOINT ARMY-NAVY TASK FORCE DISCLOSED TODAY FOR THE FIRST TIME THE FULL COMPLEXITY OF ITS TIME CHART FOR THE SUSPENSE-PACKED ATOM BOMB DAY AT BIKINI JULY 1.

DESPITE CAREFUL CALCULATION OF ALL RISKS AND INDEFINITE PRECAUTIONS TO PROTECT THE 40,000 PERSONNEL INVOLVED, THE IMPONDERABLES OF ATOMIC ENERGY WILL MAKE IT A DAY OF BREATHLESS SUSPENSE AND DRAMA.

THE COMPLEX MACHINERY WILL BEGIN TO ROLL AT VICE ADM.W.H.P.BLANDY'S SIGNAL THE MORNING BEFORE TEST DAY--IF WEATHER FORECASTS ARE FAVORABLE.

AT THAT TIME (10 A.M. JUNE 30 AT BIKINI, 3 P.M. JUNE 29, E.S.T.), 34,000 ARMY AND NAVY PERSONNEL WILL BEGIN MOVING OUT OF THE LAGOON AND 140 SHIPS NOT PART OF THE ANCHORED TARGET FLEET WILL STEAM TO RENDEZVOUS POINTS OUTSIDE THE DANGER AREA.

JUN 26 1946

LATE THAT NIGHT, ONLY 29[illegible] MEN WILL BE LEFT IN THE LAGOON MAKING LAST-MINUTE ADJUSTMENTS TO INSTRUMENTS CAMERAS AND RECORDING EQUIPMENT. PATROL VESSELS WILL POLICE THE ANCHORAGE AND SHORES TO MAKE SUR THAT ALL OF THESE MEN ARE REMOVED.

ALL SHIPS EXCEPT THE TARGET FLEET MUST BE CLEAR OF THE LAGOON BY TW HOURS BEFORE THE HOUR OF THE BOMB BLAST--NOW SET TENTATIVELY AT [illegible]:30 A.M. BIKINI TIME (5:30 P.M. JUNE 30 E.S.T.).

NO HUMAN BEING WILL BE LEFT IN BIKINI ATOLL--ONLY TEST ANIMALS ON TARGET SHIPS IN THE LAGOON, A FEW BIRDS ASHORE AND THE FISH IN THE SEA.

THE SENIOR MEMBER OF EACH LAST-MINUTE CREW IS CHARGED WITH THE SAFETY OF HIS COMPANIONS. AS ALL LEAVE THE TARGET SHIP ON WHICH THEY HAVE BEEN AT WORK, HE WILL HOIST A RED AND YELLOW STRIPED PENNANT--THE ALL-CLEAR SIGNAL.

IF ANY MAN IS MISSING, THE ALL-CLEAR WILL BE HAULED DOWN AND EVERY FLAG ABOARD THE SHIP RUN UP SIMULTANEOUSLY--A VERITABLE CHRISTMAS TREE OF BUNTING--TO HALT THE TEST UNTIL HE IS FOUND.

THE WORKING FLEET WILL STEAM UPWIND FROM BIKINI, TO POSITIONS BEYON THE REACH OF RADIOACTIVATED WATERS AND CLOUD.

JUN 26 1946

NEAREST TO THE BLAST WILL BE ADMIRAL BLANDY'S FLAGSHIP, THE MOUNT MCKINLEY, AND AN ESCORTING DESTROYER, APPROXIMATELY 3 1/2 MILES FROM THE LAGOON. THE APPALACHIAN, PRESS SHIP FOR THE TEST, WILL BE ABOUT 18 MILES EAST OF THE LAGOON.

AS THE SHIPS STEAM TOWARD SAFETY, ARMY AND NAVY AIR UNITS WILL SWING INTO ACTION FROM KWAJALEIN, ENIWETOK AND ROI, IN A GREAT AERIAL SHOW.

CREWS WILL HAVE WARMED UP DESIGNATED PLANES FOR PHOTOGRAPHIC AND INSTRUMENT MISSIONS, AND PATROL PLANES AND THE BOMB-CARRYING SUPER-FORTRESS WILL BE GETTING LAST-MINUTE CHECKS AT KWAJALEIN. AT ENIWETOK, THE ARMY'S B-17 DRONES (PILOTLESS) WILL BE READY; AND ON THE CARRIER SHANGRI-LA, THE NAVY'S DRONES WILL BE STANDING BY TO TAKE OFF.

SHORTLY AFTER DAYLIGHT ON JULY 1 (EARLY AFTERNOON JUNE 30, E.S.T.), THE ATOMIC-BOMBING B-29 OF MAJ.WOODROW P.SWANCUTT WILL LEAD THE SKY-TRAIN FROM KWAJALEIN TO BIKINI, 215 MILES TO THE NORTHEAST, AND THERE THE VARIOUS GROUPS OF PLANES WILL RENDEZVOUS AT THEIR ASSIGNED POINTS.

AS THE BOMBER, BLANDY'S OBSERVATION PLANE, THE PRESS-RADIO OBSERVATION PLANE AND A PHOTOGRAPHIC PLANE SWING INTO POSITION, AN ARMY PHOTOGRAPHIC FORMATION WILL ASSEMBLE SOUTHWEST OF THE ATOLL AT 26,000 FEET. AIR-SEA RESCUE UNITS WILL BE ALERTED MEANWHILE TO AID ANY AIRCRAFT IN DISTRESS.

THE RADIO-CONTROLLED DRONES WILL HOVER OUTSIDE THE LAGOON, AWAITING THE BLAST THEIR INSTRUMENTS WILL HELP TO RECORD.

THERE WILL BE 73 PLANES IN THE AIR SIMULTANEOUSLY, KEEPING AN INTRICATE SCHEDULE OF TIME AND PLACE. TRAFFIC WILL REACH A PEAK 30 MINUTES BEFORE THE BOMB DROP, WHEN A RADIO VOICE WILL WARN:

"THIRTY MINUTES BEFORE BOMB DETONATION; THIRTY MINUTES BEFORE BOMB DETONATION; STAND BY. MARK!"

DRONES WILL MANEUVER UP TO 30,000 FEET; RECONNAISSANCE-PLANE CREWS WILL PREPARE TO TAKE UP THEIR PURSUIT OF THE VAST RADIOACTIVE CLOUD; AND THE BOMBER WILL MAKE THREE TEST RUNS BEFORE THE ACTUAL DROP.

IF FOR ANY REASON THE BOMB CANNOT BE DROPPED ON THE FOURTH RUN THERE WILL BE ONE MORE TRIP ACROSS THE TARGET ZONE. IF THE BOMB IS NOT DROPPED ON THE FIFTH RUN, OFFICERS EXPECT THE OPERATION WILL BE POSTPONED UNTIL A LATER DAY. NO MORE THAN FIVE RUNS ARE SCHEDULED.

ONCE THE BOMB LEAVES THE SIX-MILES-HIGH PLANE, A MOTHER SHIP WILL DIRECT THE ARMY'S DRONES THROUGH AND AROUND THE CLOUD MASS OF THE BURST AT HEIGHTS OF 13,000, 18,000, 24,000 AND 30,000 FEET, AND THEN RETURN THEM TO ENIWETOK--IF THEY'RE STILL FLYABLE.

AT THE ENIWETOK FIELD, NO ONE WILL BE PERMITTED TO APPROACH THESE LANDED DRONES UNTIL IT IS CERTAIN THEY ARE NO LONGER DANGEROUSLY RADIOACTIVE.

THE NAVY'S DRONES WILL BE SENT INTO THE CLOUD BY ONE MOTHER SHIP, THEN TAKEN OVER BY OTHER SHIPS AND LED--BY RADIO CONTROL, OF COURSE--TO A LANDING FIELD AT ROI.

OBSERVERS WILL RE-ENTER BIKINI LAGOON IN SEVEN WAVES--BEGINNING, PROBABLY, A MINIMUM OF 24 HOURS AFTER THE EXPLOSION. THE FIRST WAVE WILL CONSIST OF SIX GUNBOATS CARRYING MONITORS AND A RADIOLOGICAL SAFETY PARTY.

IN THE SECOND WAVE WILL BE 20 LANDING CRAFT CARRYING MONITORS AND CREWS WHICH WILL BOARD THE TARGET SHIPS LATER. THEY WILL AWAIT A THIRD WAVE--THE FIRE-FIGHTING AND INITIAL BOARDING INSPECTION PARTIES.

LATER WAVES WILL INCLUDE SALVAGE UNITS, TECHNICIANS, NEWSMEN AND OBSERVERS AND ADDITIONAL CREWMEN RETURNING TO THE TARGET SHIPS AFTER THE AREA HAS BEEN DECLARED SAFE.

LORD INVERCHAPEL, BRITISH AMBASSADOR, IN A LETTER TO THE SENATORS, SAID BEVIN BELIEVED HE COULD BEST ANSWER THEIR TELEGRAM "BY SENDING YOU THE FULL TEXT OF HIS REMARKS, WHICH I NOW DO ON HIS BEHALF."

INVERCHAPEL MADE THREE MAIN POINTS WHICH HE SAID BEVIN BELIEVED "DESERVE ATTENTION AND ARE WORTH STUDYING IN THEIR CONTEXT." THEY WERE:

1. BEVIN DID NOT SAY HE WOULD NOT AGREE TO ADMIT 100,000 JEWS TO PALESTINE. HE HAD SAID THAT IF THEY WERE SENT IN "TOMORROW" HE WOULD HAVE TO SEND ANOTHER BRITISH DIVISION THERE AND "HE WAS NOT PREPARED TO DO IT.

2. HE HAD, HOWEVER, PROMISED TO STRIVE FOR A "PALESTINIAN STATE, FROM WHICH THE VOICE OF THE JEWS IN PALESTINE COULD BE HEARD IN THE CHANCELLORIES OF THE WORLD," WHILE OPPOSING STRICTLY A JEWISH STATE, IN LINE WITH THE ANGLO-AMERICAN COMMITTEE'S RECOMMENDATION.

3. BEVIN MADE CLEAR HE WAS "DETERMINED THAT THE JEWS SHOULD BE GIVEN FAIR TREATMENT; AND THAT HE WOULD NOT AGREE TO THEIR BEING EXCLUDED FROM ANY COUNTRY; AND THAT HE CHAMPIONED EQUAL RIGHTS FOR THEM IN WHATEVER COUNTRY THEY WERE SETTLED."

Soviet Veto Blocks Security Council Move On Spain

Stormy, Confused Session of Security Council Ends in Deadlock.

JUN 27 1946

Australian Delegate Asserts Franco Regime Remains on Agenda.

By J. Haskelson

NEW YORK, June 26 — (AP) Soviet Russia invoked the veto three times tonight during a stormy and confused session of the United Nations Security council which ended in a complete deadlock on the future status of the Spanish question.

After almost six hours of the bitterest debate ever heard at the council table, the weary delegates gave up their efforts to find a formula defining the terms under which the case would b kept on the agenda.

Ac... Subject to Call

NIGHT

The council adjourned subject to call of the President after the veto of Soviet Delegate Andrei A. Gromyko had blocked action on proposals offered by Australian Delegate Herbert V. Evatt and the delegates had rejected subsequent suggestions of Gromyko.

This left the exact status unclear in the case based on Poland's charges that the Franco regime threatens world peace. Evatt said, however, that the issue was still on the agenda and that the "moral condemnation" of the Franco government still stands.

French Delegate Alexander Parodi, expressing regret over the marled session, said "it seems to me that those who are fighting for the freedom of Spain have less grounds to congratulate themselves than Franco and his regime."

Third Veto Blocks Action

The council gave up its efforts, for the present at least, after Gromyko used the veto for the third time to block a motion by Evatt providing that the case be kept on the agenda "without prejudice to the rights" of the General assembly to take up the case later.

This proposal had been on the provisions of a more comprehensive resolution offered by Evatt and defeated by Russian veto against the council majority.

Evatt's statement that the case remains on the agenda and that the council condemns the Franco regime was based on the fact that all delegates accepted without a vote some individual sentences contained in both the British-Australian resolution and a Polish resolution.

No complete resolution on the question was adopted, however, since the delegates could not agree with all provisions of either plan.

Gromyko used the veto first when the council voted on a proposal offered by Evatt to keep the Spanish case before the council "without prejudice to the rights of the General Assembly" to take the case up later.

Then after Francisco Castillo Najera, president of the council, ruled that this was a question of procedure and, therefore, not subject to the veto, Gromyko invoked the veto to defeat a majority vote upholding the President's ruling.

Although some of the delegates contended that Russia had no right to use the veto even on the second question, Castillo Najera ruled that this was a question of "substance" and that the majority opinion was rejected.

The council's vote for the British-Australian proposal was 9 to 2, with Russia and Poland in the negative. The President first announced that it was adopted, but Gromyko promptly raised the veto issue.

He contended that the proposal was defeated because of his vote against it. The President disagreed, but after a sharp exchange of words he agreed to let the council decide whether the proposal was a question of procedure or of substance.

Vote Is 8 to 2

The vote on this question was 8 to 2 with Poland abstaining. Russia and France voted in the negative.

Gromyko then asked:

"What conclusion do you draw from this vote, Mr. President?"

"The conclusion I draw," Castillo Najera said, "is that in accordance with the rules, when it is to be decided if it is a question of procedure or substance, it is necessary to accept one or the other alternative by seven votes, but the five permanent members must concur."

He said that one of the permanent members had decided "against the others that it is a question of substance." He did not mention that France, another of the permanent members, also had voted against the ruling.

One the sharpest exchanges during the long and stormy session was between Gromyko and Castillo Najera, the Mexican foreign minister who is serving as president of the council.

At one point the President told Gromyko that one of his remarks had "nothing to do with the discussion" and later Gromyko took Castillo Najera to task.

"Mr. President," Gromyko said, "I respect your rights as president of the Security council, but I would ask you in your turn to respect the rights of members of the council."

Clashes with Gromyko

Evatt and Gromyko also clashed on several occasions.

Declaring that he would not support a suggestion made by the Russian delegate, Evatt said:

"Mr. Gromyko will have to understand that his 'no' cannot be exercised on proposal after proposal until there is none left but his own."

After the British-Australian measure was blocked, Gromyko offered several proposals which would in effect have virtually reinstated the resolution offered by the Polish delegate last Monday.

British Delegate Sir Alexander Cadogan and others already had said they could not accept the Polish proposals, but the council decided to vote on Russia's suggested amendments.

The entire debate was marked by angry clashes, most of which involved the Soviet delegate. He called the Evatt proposals "weak" and said some of the provisions were "foolish."

Evatt retorted:

"I am sure Mr. Gromyko, having exercised his right to say no, will not object to others using that right."

The delegates even became snarled over the question of whether Evatt's proposal was an amendment to the Polish resolution and whether it should be voted on first.

Gromyko appealed to Assistant Secretary-General Arkady Sobolev, also a Russian, to rule on the question. Sobolev cited a rule that such disagreements had to be settled by a vote of the council. The council then voted 9 to 2 to consider the Evatt proposal first. Russia and Poland voted in the negative.

The proposals offered by Evatt, and supported by Sir Alexander, were submitted at the opening of the session after Evatt reported that a three-man drafting committee, which he headed, had been unable to work out a compromise formula.

The committee — composed of Australia, Britain and Poland— had been working since Monday on Poland's resolution and suggested amendments trying to find a formula which would be approved unanimously. (moo)

Poland Backs Russia

Only Poland gave unqualified endorsement to the Russian plan, but it was generally agreed that the two proposals might be welded into a single strategic program to end the terrible threat of atomic warfare.

With the members of the commission expressing optimism over the possibilities of meshing the proposals into one integrated program, the commission chairman, Foreign Minister Herbert V. Evatt of Australia, set up an atomic working committee to begin at once the task of trying to draft an international control plan.

The committee represents all the 12 nations on the commission and will hold its first meeting at 10:30 A. M. (D. S. T.) Friday.

The Security Council will assemble at 3 P. M. (D. S. T.) today to dispose of the Spanish issue on a resolution prepared by a committee composed of Evatt, Britain's Sir Alexander Cadogan and Polish delegate Oscar Lange.

They were appointed Monday, after the defeat of Poland's motion for an abrupt U. N. diplomatic break with the Franco regime, to compose the differences arising from Poland's effort to keep the Spanish issue on the Council's agenda for action by September 1 and a proposed British amendment which would retain the issue until the General Assembly meets September 3. The British proposal would have the effect of passing the case along to the General Assembly without action by the Council — a move assailed principally by Soviet delegate Andrei A. Gromyko.

Members of the atomic commission's working committee made clear they intend to sidetrack the veto issue and let it reach a showdown only after all the other differences between the Russian and United States plans have been reconciled. The prime requirement of the American plan laid down by Bernard M. Baruch calls for renunciation of the veto on atomic matters; Russia is opposed to any veto surrender.

All Express Views

Five atomic commissioners wound up the statement of individual nation views yesterday: Poland unqualifiedly supported the Russian plan as a means toward removing any "motives for an atomic armament race"; Egypt agreed with the American plan; Australia came out for a single supreme authority over atomics as proposed by Baruch; France said the two plans are "not irreconcilable" and the Netherlands said they "provide us with the necessary starting point."

The Polish delegation had stated for several days that it would present a "startlingly simple" plan of its own. However Polish delegate Oscar Lange told the commission:

"Without prejudice to long range plans like that proposed by the United States, the representative of Poland wants to urge this commission to adopt immediately measures leading to the outlawing of atomic warfare. The proposal of such a measure has been laid before us by the representative of the Soviet Union."

Lange said the first step should include the destruction of the means of such warfare—the atomic bombs of the United States—and thereafter the commission should undertake the development of international controls and "inspection which will secure the exclusive use of atomic energy for . . . peaceful purposes."

"At this (second) stage," Lange said, "we may also consider the problem of international sanctions which should gradually supplement the internal (national) control and sanctions proposed by the representative of the Soviet Union."

Under the Baruch plan, the United States would not dispose of her bomb store under treaty terms until all the controls have been established.

Evatt declared for what he has described outside the commission chamber as a single master committee which would integrate all scientific and political phases concerning atomic energy under one supreme authority. This would develop into "an international authority control of all rights in raw materials, processes, plants and the products of plants for the exploitation of all forms of atomic energy, leaving however, as much freedom as possible to national and private research and other activity where this is not dangerous to international security."

JUN 27 1946

New York, June 26—(AP)—The United Nations atomic conference met the veto issue deadlocked between the opposite views of the United States and Russia today and headed for an amicable start on a plan aimed at ultimate world control and development of atomic energy.

When the last members of the U. N. Atomic Energy Commission had been polled yesterday for their views on separate control programs advanced by the United States and Russia, all but those two great powers were agreed there were broad measures of merit in both plans.

The United States has offered no comment in the commission sessions since the initial presentation of her program and Russia made no reference to the American ideas in offering her counter-proposals.

U. N. HEAD FEARS BIG FIVE FAILURE TO REMAIN UNITED

SAN FRANCISCO, June 26— (AP) Trygve Lie, secretary-general of the United Nations, declared tonight that failure of the big powers to settle their differences would result in "catastrophic consequences for the United Nations."

In an address prepared for delivery on the first anniversary of the signing of the U. N. Charter, Lie said that willingness of the five permanent members of the Security council "to agree among themselves is the foundation on which our charter was built."

Addresses Civic Groups

Lie spoke in the War Memorial Opera house to an audience composed of various civic groups actively supporting the United Nations.

"Every statesman and every private individual who believes in the United Nations must therefore devote himself to the proposition that agreement among the powers not only is desirable but is absolutely and utterly necessary," he said.

"A willingness to compromise—in certain situations—is demanded of everyone. A refusal to compromise on the part of any one power or any number o powers will only have catastrophic consequences for the United Nations and in the end for us all."

Rejects Pessimism

The secretary-general said there had been much criticism of the way the United Nations has worked so far and that there had been much pessimism, but he added he did not share these views.

"I am not being overcome by the optimistic atmosphere of California when I say that I believe agreements or, certainly, compromises are bound to come," he asserted.

"The statesmen who gathered here in San Francisco one year ago were united in their conviction that the world could not and would not stand another war. There has been no reason for any one of them, or any government, to alter that conviction."

He said that much of the criticism and pessimism was based on a "misunderstanding of the Charter and the purposes and functions of the United Nations" and on "a lack of historical perspective."

This "misunderstanding," he said, arises largely from failure to comprehend the role of the big powers in the U. N. and their right to exercise the veto in the Security council.

Big Five Must Agree

He said the five permanent members of the council were given the right to veto because it was agreed that the U. N. "could not be successful in maintaining the peace unless the Big Five were, themselves, determined to seek peaceful solutions of their differences."

The veto, he said, was "the price —if you wish to call it that—which the United Nations paid for big power collaboration."

"In return, the nations of the world expected and demanded one thing from the Big Five," he continued. "They required that the Big Five should seek and find agreement among themselves.

"Thus, it is not correct to accuse the Security council or the United Nations of weakness or indecision simply because strenuous action has not been taken against any power. It is correct, however, for people to expect the big powers to seek agreement among themselves."

Lie did not attempt to minimize the problems facing the world, but he said talk about war is not justified. He conceded the existence of "tensions and misunderstandings," which "require serious attention," but added:

"Nothing but great harm is done by talking about war as carelessly and incessantly as so many people talk about it today. By talking about it, they may come to believe in it. If they believe in it, they may one day allow themselves to indulge in it."

Soviet Scientist Wins Prize For Atom Work

London, June 26 (AP)—The Moscow radio said tonight that Alexander Pavlovich Zhdanov, director of the laboratory of the Radium Institute, Academy of Sciences of the U.S.S.R., had been awarded the Stalin Prize of 200,000 rubles (about $16,000) for discovery of "new forms of disintegration of atomic nuclei caused by cosmic rays as described in a paper published in 1945."

Romania Reports Terrorist Group

London, June 26 (A. P.).—A Bucharest broadcast recorded in London by Reuters said today that a terrorist organization in Romania had been discovered. It was planned to oppose the Soviet Union in the event of war between the British-American Powers and Russia, the broadcast said.

Western Powers Reject Russian Plan For Trieste

JUN 27 1946

Byrnes Rejects Red Proposal to Settle Adriatic Issue.

J. Lyman

PARIS, Thursday, June 27—(AP) The foreign ministers conference has rejected a Russian proposal to place disputed Trieste either under dual sovereignty or under Yugoslav sovereignty as an autonomous district, authoritative circles said today.

NIGHT

The proposal was advanced by Soviet Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov at a special night meeting of the four-power conference called in an attempt to find a solution to the key question of the disposition of Trieste — the Adriatic city claimed by both Italy and Yugoslavia.

Should Go to Conference

Before the three-hour meeting broke up shortly after midnight U. S. Secretary of State James F. Byrnes said that if the foreign ministers could not settle the Trieste issue it should be referred to the 21-nation peace conference. Molotov answered it would be a mistake to disrupt the peace conference with this question.

In submitting his proposal, Molotov said Russia opposed internationalization of Trieste as proposed by Georges Bidault, French president and foreign minister.

The night meeting, the first since the ministers' first sessions last April, was summoned by Molotov and held in Byrnes' office at Luxembourg palace.

Molotov Disappointed

Molotov obviously was disappointed at the reception his proposals received. He presented them, both British and American sources said, as great concessions which he hoped would be given ready assent.

Members of the British delegation were visibly impressed by Molotov's proposals, and some said they saw in it a path to an agreement after another two or three days of private conversations.

The proposal showed, the Britons said, Molotov's apparent desire to reach some sort of a compromise on this issue — the major question blocking agreement on the Italian peace treaty.

Molotov first suggested that Trieste be made an autonomous district under Yugoslav sovereignty but administered under a status approved by the United States, Britain, Russia and France.

The autonomous district would have a house of representatives elected by universal suffrage and a governor appointed by the Yugoslavs. While the region would be supervised by the four powers, responsibility for current administration would lie with Yugoslavia. The western frontier of the district would be along a Soviet-described boundary with minor corrections in favor of the Italians.

Offers Alternative Plan

Without waiting for a decision on his first suggestion, Molotov offered his alternative which he described as an "extreme concession."

Under this plan Trieste would be an autonomous district under the joint sovereignty of Yugoslavia and Italy, with a house of representatives and two governors, one of whom would be an Italian and the other a Yugoslav.

Molotov was quoted as saying that the two governors would "work in concert." Then he added: "I hope."

Previous to Molotov's proposal last night, Russia had declared that Trieste must be ceded to Yugoslavia. Britain and the United States, on the other hand, have continued to maintain that the important port city should remain Italian.

Byrnes Explains Opposition

In answer to Molotov's proposal, Byrnes recalled that ethnic lines were accepted as a measuring stick at the ministers' conference in London last September.

The American secretary said the first Russian alternative would not work because of the predominantly Italian population in Trieste and the second would be unsuccessful because a high feeling of uncertainty would develop in the district as to who actually was in charge.

Byrnes declared the United States would accept any decision on this question made by the 21-nation peace conference. He also said that no matter what disposition of Trieste was made by the 21-nation conference, Italy and Yugoslavia would accept the decision with better grace than if it was handed down by the four-power foreign ministers.

Earlier, vigorous American opposition balked an attempt by Molotov to write a special commercial status for Russia into the peace treaties for the Balkan nations.

Debate Romanian Treaty

American sources said Molotov had sought unsuccessfully to include in the Romanian treaty a provision which would have exempted neighboring states, including Russia, from clauses requiring Romania to give all the Allies equal commercial status.

Agreement was reached by the conference on provisions requiring Romania to make restitution of looted Allied property but permitting her to negotiate directly and individually with interested nations. Informants said this clause was sent to the deputy ministers for redrafting.

The question of restoring industrial patents, literary and other rights in connection with the Romanian treaty was shelved to permit an economic sub-committee to finish studies on the subject.

The ministers also shelved a three-point proposal by British Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin on Danube navigation when Molotov asked for time to study it.

Molotov urged the deputies to wind up their work on the Finnish treaty for final approval by the conference. There is virtual agreement on this treaty.

Molotov Reported Waiting Moscow Call Which Might Bring Unexpected Developments in Key Question to Italian Peace

JUN 27 1946

Paris, June 26—(AP)—French newspapers printed unconfirmed reports today that Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov was expecting a telephone call from Moscow which might bring a surprise development in the Trieste issue, key to Italian peace negotiations.

Secretary of State Byrnes was represented by American informants as encouraged by a series of private talks with Molotov, who has been adamant in demanding that Trieste be transferred from Italy to Yugoslavia.

There was no known basis for the Paris newspaper assertions. The frequent conversations between Byrnes and his Russian counterpart at the Council of Foreign Ministers have given rise to conjecture in diplomatic circles that a compromise on the Adriatic port might be shaping up.

A special commission set up by the Foreign Ministers Council to break the deadlock on the question of Italy's colonies, meanwhile held its first meeting today. The members declined to give any hint of what was discussed.

Yugoslavs Adamant

Agreement has been reached to defer final disposition of the colonies, but details have to be worked out.

Although the foreign ministers may have been more optimistic concerning working out an agreement on Trieste, a Yugoslav spokesman took an uncompromising attitude in an interview today.

The spokesman for Marshal Tito stated flatly that a French compromise for a 10-year internationalization of Trieste was not acceptable and that Tito's government would never sign a peace treaty with Italy which does not provide for a Yugoslav "solution" on Trieste.

The Yugoslav "solution" is for the creation of a "Seventh Yugoslav Republic" embracing the city.

Strategic City

"Trieste is a bridgehead into the Balkans," the spokesman declared, "and history has proved that any Italian excursion into the Balkans is doomed to failure. In their own interest, then, the Italians should not oppose our proposals."

Byrnes and Molotov talked for more than an hour yesterday afternoon in their third private meeting in less than a week. The Secretary of State later conferred separately with British Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin and Georges Bidault, French President and Foreign Minister, apparently to advise them of the progress of his talks with Molotov.

Although nothing was disclosed concerning the nature of the discussions between Byrnes and Molotov, American quarters were said to be slightly more optimistic over the possibility that the four-power Foreign Ministers Council would be able to reach agreement on the major issues of the Italian peace treaty.

A word of caution was interposed, however, by one high American source, who declared:

Still in Woods

"We're not out of the woods yet."

Developments at the formal sessions of the Council yesterday were limited to discussions of minor economic phases of the Italian treaty, and belief was expressed in some quarters that Molotov would not consent to any important decisions until he obtains a verdict on the Trieste issue.

One well-informed conference source, who declined to be identified even by nationality, said that Molotov had told Bidault several days ago that he would not consent to a settlement on the French-Italian frontier question until the future of Trieste is decided. Russia has maintained steadfastly that the city should go to Yugoslavia while the other three powers hold it should go to Italy.

Commenting on the situation, the Paris newspaper Le Monde—which often reflects the opinions of the French Foreign Ministry—said last night:

"Mr. Molotov is playing a very close game. His maneuvers, at times difficult to understand at first sight, are easily explained when one realizes they are inspired by Soviet interest without ever taking into account other considerations."

Another Objection

At yesterday's Council session, Byrnes — who presided — again sought a decision on the French-Italian frontier and on the future of the Dodecanese Islands, but Molotov objected to consideration of either and attempted to raise the Danube River issue, informants said.

Burnes ruled, however, that the Council should work on the Italian treaty first. After some discussion, marked by an exchange of compliments between Byrnes and Molotov, the Council disposed of two minor questions by agreeing to delete from the treaty clauses providing for compensation for property expropriated by the Italian Government and for Italian liability for Allied nationals injured during the war.

Byrnes observed that the first clause was really necessary, but said that in view of Molotov's insistence on its deletion he was willing to do so. With respect to the second clause he observed that since Russia had agreed to drop a similar section in the Romanian treaty she should do likewise in the Italian draft—to which Molotov agreed.

Disagreement on the Italian treaty has now been narrowed down to seven fundamental questions:

1—The Dodecanese Islands; 2—Trieste and the Italian-Yugoslav frontier; 3—reparations; 4—colonies, which have been referred to a special committee set up by the ministers; 5—the French-Italian frontier; 6—distribution of Italian naval units; 7—compensation for damaged Allied property in Italy.

The deputy foreign ministers were instructed to meet at 11 A. M. (6 A. M., DST) to draw up a list of points of disagreement on Balkan questions for presentation to the ministers when they meet at 4 P. M. (11 A. M. D.S.T.).

Yugoslavs Insist on Trieste

JUN 27 1946

PARIS, June 26 (AP)—A Yugoslav spokesman said at an interview today that Yugoslavia would never sign a peace treaty with Italy which did not provide for a Yugoslav "solution" on Trieste.

The Yugoslav "solution" is for the creation of a "seventh Yugoslav republic" embracing the city.

"Trieste is a bridgehead into the Balkans," the spokesman declared, "and history has proved that any Italian excursion into the Balkans is doomed to failure. In their own interest, then, the Italians should not oppose our proposals."

Tass Blames Western Powers.

London, June 26 (A. P.).—The Moscow Radio quoted a Tass dispatch from Paris today as saying that discord in the four-Power Foreign Ministers Council apparently was due to British-American "stubbornness" on the Trieste question.

"Political correspondents," said Tass, "wonder why it is that the progress of the Paris negotiations is going at a pretty slow pace. The opinion is held that this is evidently caused by the stubbornness of the Americans and British in the Trieste question, which many newspapers regard as the key problem not only of the peace treaty with Italy but of the entire present session of the Council of Foreign Ministers.

"It is noted that one might expect on the part of the American and British delegations a certain willingness to reckon with the legitimate interests of Allied Yugoslavia.

"The unsatisfactory character of the solutions proposed thus far—which leave hundreds of thousands of Slavs of the Julian March outside the frontiers of the Yugoslav state—is particularly striking.

"It is evident that a satisfactory solution of the Trieste problem can be found only along a course which takes heed both of the interests of Allied Yugoslavia . . . and Italy."

Russians May Spring Surprise On Trieste

JUN 27 1946

FRENCH CABINET THREATENED BY WAGE RISE DEMAND

JUN 27 1946

Paris, June 26—(AP)—A possible threat to the stability of President Georges Bidault's new cabinet emerged today as the Confederation Generale De Travail—France's foremost trade group—threw its weight behind a campaign for a general 25 per cent wage increase.

Representatives of the CGT, which claims to represent 5,000,000 workers, decided last night to press demands for the wage boost despite lack of formal support from the Communists.

The Communists had previously supported the trade union demand for a 25 per cent increase, but in agreeing to participate in the coalition government they accepted Bidault's ceiling of a 15 per cent increase.

While the CGT's decision to uphold its original demands was not interpreted as an immediate strike threat, political observers believed that it would offer a difficult problem for the new government, which Bidault succeeded in forming only after considerable jockeying.

6th Camp Guard Is Convicted at Lichfield Trial

JUN 27 1946

$100 Fine Imposed; Kilian Witness Asserts He Saw 2 Soldiers After Beating

D. DOANE

BAD NAUHEIM, Germany, June 26 (AP).—An American court martial today convicted another former guard at the Lichfield, England, guardhouse on charges of cruelty and fined him $100, while the trials of the camp commandant and [illegible] proceeded before two other courts.

Private First Class Thomas E. Warren, twenty-three, of Plainview, Tex., a combat veteran who was wounded at Omaha Beach on D-Day, was fined for striking an American prisoner at the detention camp with his fist. He was the sixth former guard to be convicted.

In the trial of Colonel James A. Kilian, former camp commandant, a witness testified that prisoners in the guardhouse were called out to view the bloody faces of two soldiers who had been beaten, and were warned by guards: "That's what will happen to you if you get smart."

The witness, Private First Class Henry Petras, of Irvington, N. J., said he saw the incident while being held for thirty-seven days in the guardhouse awaiting trial for being five minutes late in reporting for shipment to the front lines. "I got there before my truck pulled out, but they wouldn't let me on it because my name had already been called out," Petras said.

In another trial today, Lieutenant Leonard W. Ennis, of Peekskill, N. Y., won acquittal on about half the cruelty charges against him, but a motion for a directed acquittal on several other charges of aiding and authorizing cruel punishments was denied. The court eliminated the names of twenty-one of thirty-eight soldiers originally alleged to have been mistreated under Ennis's direction, and eliminated five of the fifteen forms of mistreatment alleged against him. It dismissed one charge of assaulting a prisoner with a club and another of striking a man with his fists.

Opening the defense, Ennis's attorney said he would show that Ennis actually was on duty around the guardhouse only fourteen days, and that he "never authorized, performed or permitted any unlawful acts."

'Treated Like a Dog,' Lichfield GI Declares

JUN 27 1946

By the Associated Press

BAD NAUHEIM, Germany, June 26.—A wounded veteran of the Normandy invasion today told the military court trying Col. James A. Kilian, former commandant of the United States Army's Lichfield detention camp that he was thrown into the camp guardhouse for seven weeks without trial and "treated like a dog" for coming back five hours late from a 24-hour leave.

The witness, Sergt. James B. Gallardy of Summerhill, Pa., scornfully refused to wear into the courtroom numerous decorations, including the Bronze Star, which he won during seven months of combat in France and Germany.

Gallardy gave a detailed description of Lichfield prisoners being beaten by guards with clubs and fists, forced to stand hours with their noses and toes pressed against a wall and to hold their arms rigidly outstretched for 20 minutes at a time. He said the prisoners also were given rigorous calisthenics seven hours daily and allotted five minutes for meals which they had to eat in absolute silence.

Kilian, 54-year-old cavalry officer from Highland Park, Ill., is accused of aiding and authorizing "cruel and unusual" punishment while commandant at the camp in England.

SAYS HE RISKED LIQUIDATION

Von Neurath Testifies He Always Expected It.

Nuernberg, June 26 (A. P.).—Baron Constantin von Neurath told the International Military Tribunal today that he had always expected to be liquidated by Adolf Hitler for opposing some of Der Fuehrer's policies and could not explain why it never happened. The defendant pictured himself, despite his high positions under Hitler, as of a different cast of political thought.

DAY

The Russian prosecutor asked: "You knew how Hitler made short work of political opposition?"

"Yes," Von Neurath replied.

"Then, in spite of the fact that you considered yourself to be a member of the opposition, nothing happened to you?"

"No, but I always expected it."

Says He Didn't Know.

Von Neurath concluded his defense with the declaration that he was unaware of police brutalities under his administration as Governor of Czecho-Slovakia until after they had happened. He said he never got reports on them beforehand, nor had he ever been consulted about them.

"You knew what Himmler was before you went to the Protectorate?" He was asked from the bench. Von Neurath conceded that he did. The presiding Justice, Sir Geoffrey Lawrence, then referred to a document in which Von Neurath had recommended "special treatment" for certain groups of Czechs, including the intelligentsia, and asked: "What did you understand special treatment to be?"

JUN 27 1946

Pleads Heart Condition.

The defendant said that he had had nothing specific in mind—and certainly "not special treatment as we have come to learn about it during this trial." Special treatment has been mentioned in many documents as an expression used by the Gestapo and the SS, usually implying torture or death.

Dr. Otto von Leudinhause, counsel for Von Neurath, told the court that the defendant had been "unable to do justice" in some of his answers under cross-examination when some damaging admissions were extracted yesterday by the British Prosecutor, Sir Maxwell David Fyfe. Leudinhause said the defendant "is after all in his seventy-fourth year and suffering from serious heart disease."

ASK FREE POLICY ON GERMAN TRADE

JUN 27 1946

Berlin, June 26 (A. P.).—Six American business executives here as guests of the Military Government urged yesterday that controls over entrance into the German market be relaxed and that other measures be taken "to get German economy moving and to develop foreign trade."

"We were much impressed with the negative job that has been done here on denazification, decartelization and demilitarization," said Randolf Burgess, vice-chairman of the National City Bank of New York. "What now is needed is positive action to get things going with trade, to get exports to pay for Germany's food and other necessary imports."

DAY

Philip Reed, chairman of General Electric Company, observed that "controls over entrance into Germany are hardly worth the struggle, but if we could get the American importer and German exporter where they could meet, we could do business."

All six agreed that the United States market would accept goods that Germany could produce.

The business men urged early establishment of central administrative agencies for Germany, easing of zonal restrictions and freer movement of people and goods.

Haggott Beckhart, economist for the Chase National Bank of New York, said that "economic integration of Germany is needed also to help the recovery of western and central Europe and to contribute to continental stability. There is such a shortage of goods in the American market that what Germany would provide would be welcome."

Nazi Teachings Barred From German Schools

JUN 27 1946

Berlin, June 26 (AP)—The Allied Control Authority today ordered dismissal of any German teacher and expulsion of any student who spreads "militaristic, Nazi or anti-democratic doctrines."

The directive contained no definition of "anti-democratic" or "militaristic" and an American spokesman said these definitions would be left to the zone commanders.

EXPECTS U. S. ZONE TO GET MORE JEWS

JUN 27 1946

Frankfurt, June 26 (A. P.).—Rabbi Philip S. Bernstein, adviser on Jewish affairs to Gen. Joseph T. McNarney, told correspondents today that he had urged the European commander to prepare for an influx of 40,000 Jews from Eastern Europe by October 1.

Bernstein estimated that 150,000 Jews—there are nearly 80,000 now in the zone—might seek to infiltrate into the United States zone in a year or two as a result of "anti-Semitism" in Poland.

Bernstein took issue with an informal statement of an Army officer to American editors last week end that "up to three million" Jews might enter the zone. He said it was "fantastic." He denied a report that he had made proposals for limiting or halting the infiltration of Jews.

Officer Cleared in Death

FRANKFURT ON THE MAIN, Germany, June 26 (AP)—Army authorities announced today that Miss Gertrude Knapp, 38 years old, of 62 Treadwell Avenue, Port Richmond, Staten Island, had met her death in an accidental fall May 29 from a window in the Frankfort apartment of Capt. John D. Becher, 28, of Darby, Pa. The formal statement said Captain Becher had been absolved of any possible responsibility in connection with the woman's death but that he was still subject to possible disciplinary action "for his conduct concerning the visit of Miss Knapp."

German Accuses Americans

DACHAU, Germany, June 26 (AP)—A German Elite Guard veteran charged today that he had been beaten three times during questioning by Americans before he went on trial with seventy-three other troopers for battlefield atrocities. He was warned that he would be "hanged within a few minutes," he asserted, if he did not sign a statement that his co-defendant, Lieut. Heinz Tomhardt, had ordered him not to take American prisoners alive during the Ardennes counter-offensive in December, 1944.

RUSSIA CHASTISES TWO SOVIET AREAS FOR WAR TREASON

JUN 27 1946

Republics Lose Autonomy as Punishment for Dealing with Nazis.

INHABITANTS SHIFTED

Misuse of Funds in Russian State Enterprises Also Disclosed.

R. JAMES

MOSCOW, June 26 — (AP) Two formerly autonomous Soviet republics have been deprived of their autonomy and many of their inhabitants resettled in other parts of Russia as punishment for treachery during the most critical period of German invasion, it was disclosed officially today.

NIGHT

The Crimean and Chechen-Ingush autonomous Soviet socialist republics, units of the Russian Soviet Federal Socialist republic (RSFSR), were abolished by decree and reduced to the status of provinces of the RSFSR.

Accused of Aiding Nazis

The decree accused many Chechens and Crimean Tartars of fighting alongside the Germans against Red army units.

Almost simultaneously, the Ministry of State Control announced that more than a score of factory, mill and mine executives had been punished for misappropriation or misusing funds in various kinds of plants and enterprises throughout Russia.

The evacuation of an undisclosed number of inhabitants of the two states and loss of autonomy were disclosed with the adoption by the Supreme Soviet of the RSFSR of decrees issued sometime previously by the presidium.

First Official Disclosure

(This was the first official disclosure of wartime treachery affecting territorial units of the Soviet Union. However, Moscow accuses General Andrei A. Vlassov, who was captured by the Germans in 1941 and later fought against the Red army with some thousands of his followers of treason.

(The highest ranking units of the Soviet Union are 16 constituent republics. Of these the largest and most important are the Russian Soviet Federal Soviet Republic—known as RSFRS—the Ukraine and White Russia.

(The RSFRS is itself a huge federation, embracing 92.7 per cent of the area of the Soviet Union. Its capital, like that of the Soviet Union, is Moscow. It includes autonomous republics, of which there were 16 in 1945, territories and regions or provinces.

(Under the federation, the "autonomous Soviet socialist republics" enjoy a higher degree of local government than the regions, or provinces, which are governed directly by the RSFSR.

(These autonomous republics each elect a vice president to the Supreme council of the U.S.S.R. They each also have a separate government with a prime minister, foreign minister and other ministerial posts. Their policies, however, are linked with those of the Kremlin.

(The Statesman's Yearbook shows that before the Crimean and Chechen-Ingush units lost their autonomy the RSFSR included, in addition to the 16 autonomous republics, 30 regions, or provinces, such as Moscow, Stalingrad, Leningrad, Rostov and Omsk.)

Secretary Announces Decree

P. V. Baksturov, secretary of the presidium of the Supreme Soviet of the RSFSR read the decree of punishment before a session of the federation's Supreme Soviet.

"During the great patriotic war when the peoples of the Soviet Union heroically defended the honor and independence of the native land against the German fascist invaders," it said, "many Chechens and Crimean Tartars, upon the instigation of German agents and in detachments organized by the Germans, voluntarily and together with the German army waged an armed struggle against units of the Red army."

It added that under German orders, inhabitants of the two states also "formed diversion bands for a struggle with Soviet power in the rear."

"Whereupon the main mass of the population of Chechen-Ingush and the Crimean autonomous socialist Soviet republics did not give opposition to these traitors in the native land," the decree continued.

Moved to Other Districts

"In connection with this, the Chechens and Crimean Tartars were resettled in other districts of the Soviet Union."

The Chechen-Ingush republic, in the north Caucasus, bordered Generalissimo Stalin's home republic of Georgia. It included the Grozny and Mosdok oil fields, which the Germans reached at the high tide of their invasion before the reversal at Stalingrad. The republic's population was placed at 500,000.

The Soviet Encyclopedia gives the Crimean state population in 1939 as nearly 1,000,000. Russians, Ukrainians and others whose loyalty was not questioned were not removed from the area, it was disclosed.

One of the decrees said those who were resettled were "given new land and assistance" in starting life over again.

The State Control ministry's announcement that many industrial and other executives had been punished for misusing funds underscored official insistence on honesty in all departments of the Soviet government's farflung enterprises.

The Ministry of State Control said a favorite practice was the falsification of production reports by directors and sub-executives in order to increase money rewards to themselves and to their friends.

A woman and 25 men were listed in the newspapers Pravda and Izvestia as offenders in coal mining, aviation, diesel engine and other enterprises.

Izvestia said the case of the Svhchekinugol mining trust was typical. Fake production reports were discovered there.

The mine chief, G. N. Kamchatov, and a chief bookkeeper, S. G. Lyakhov, were discharged and "called to the court of responsibility." The trust manager, H. G. Pronin, and chief engineer, F. L. Solodky, who received illegal prizes, were reprimanded and fined 7,500 rubles (approximately $1,415.25) each.

REPUBLICS ARE LIQUIDATED

Official Decrees Also Reveal Punishment to Executives for Misuse of Funds.

R. JAMES

Moscow, June 26 (A. P.).—Two formerly autonomous Soviet republics in South Russia have been deprived of their autonomy and many of their inhabitants have been resettled in other parts of Russia as penalties for wartime treachery, it was disclosed officially today.

DAY

The Crimean and Chechen-Ingush autonomous Soviet Socialist republics, units of the Russian Soviet Federal Socialist Republic, were abolished as such and reduced to the status of provinces of the federation.

Total populations of the areas last were listed as 1,500,000 but a large proportion of Russians and Ukrainians, who live in the republics and whose loyalty was unquestioned, were not removed.

Residents Banished.

The banished residents included those who lived around the Grozny and Mosdok oil fields in the northern Caucasus, near the high tide of the German invasion. Tht action was revealed in published decrees of the Russian Soviet Federal Socialist Republic. Precisely how many were uprooted and where they were moved were not announced.

[The revelations were the first official Russian announcements of treachery affecting territorial units of the Soviet Union during the recent war.]

A decree said "many Chechens and Crimean Tartars . . . voluntarily and together with the Germany Army waged an armed struggle against units of the Red Army. Under German orders, they also formed diversion bands for a struggle with Soviet power in the rear."

The decree also stated that "the main mass of the population of Chechen-Ingush and the Crimean autonomous Socialist Soviet republics did not give opposition to these traiters" and accordingly the Chechens and Crimean Tartars were resettled.

The Chechen-Ingush republic in the northern Caucasus bordered Generalissimo Stalin's home republic of Georgia and included the Grozny and Mosdok oil fields, which the Germans reached at the high tide of their invasion before the reverse at Stalingrad. The republic's population was placed at 500,000. The Crimean State's population was given as nearly 1,000,000 in 1939 in the Soviet encyclopedia.

Executives Punished.

The Ministry of State Control disclosed also that more than a score of factory, mill and mine executives had been punished for misappropriation or misusing funds in various kinds of plants and enterprises throughout Russia.

The mass evacuations of the two states and the liquidation of the two republics was disclosed with the adoption by the Supreme Soviet of the Soviet Federation of decrees issued some time previously by the Presidium. The date of the issuance of the decrees was not given.

Decree Made Public.

P. V. Bakshturov, Secretary of the Supreme Soviet of the Russian Federation, read the decree before a session of the Federation's Supreme Soviet. It said:

"During the great patriotic war when the peoples of the Soviet Union heroically defended the honor and independence of the native land against the German Fascist invaders, many Chechens and Crimean Tartars upon the institgation of German agents, and in detachments organized by the Germans, voluntarily and together with the German Army waged an armed struggle against units of the Red Army.

"Under German orders, they also formed diversion bands for a struggle with Soviet power in the rear.

"Whereupon, the main mass of the population of Chechen-Ingush and the Crimean autonomous Socialist Soviet Republics did not give opposition to these traitors in the native land.

"In connection with this, the Chenchens and Crimean Tartars were resettled in other districts of the Soviet Union."

The Ministry of State Control, telling of the punishment of factory executives, said a favorite practice was the falsification of production reports by directors and sub-executives in order to increase the prize money which was paid as reward to themselves and their friends.

A woman and twenty-five men were listed in the newspaper Izvestia and Prayda as offenders in coal mining, aviation, diesel engine and other enterprizes.

Izvestia said the case of the Schekinugol mining trust was typical. Fake production reports were discovered there. A mine chief, G. N. Kamchatov, and a chief bookkeeper. S. G. Lyakhov, were discharged and "called to the Court of Responsibility." The trust manager, H. G. Pronin, and the chief engineer, F. L. Solodky, who received illegal prizes, were reprimanded and fined 7,500 rubles each.

A farm machinery plant bookkeeper, M. O. Zavialov, and others were held for court action on charges of getting money on false pretenses during a trip to Central Asia to stock dried fruit for a plant.

U. S. S. R. Is Complicated.

In the complicated composition of the Soviet Union, the Russian Soviet Federal Socialist Republic, whose capital is Moscow, is one of sixteen constituent republics. The federation takes in 92.7 per cent of the total area of the U. S. S. R., and included as of last year sixteen so-called autonomous Soviet socialist republics, of which the Crimea and Chechen-Ingush were two.

The Statesman's Yearbook shows that the Russian Soviet Federal Socialist Republic also included thirty regions, or provinces, such as Moscow, Stalingrad, Leningrad, Rostov and Omsk. Thus this change apparently reduces the number of autonomous Soviet socialist republics in the federation to fourteen and increases the regions, or provinces, to thirty-two.

Under the federation, the autonomus Soviet socialist republics obtained a higher degree of local government than the regions, or provinces, which are governed directly by the federation.

Available references fail to show any considerable Germanic elements on the two demoted areas.

Nazi General Says Reds Foiled Attack on Sweden

Avers Soviet Victories in '43 Changed German Plans

MOSCOW, June 26 (AP).—The Army newspaper "Red Star" published today a statement attributed to German Lieutenant General Rudolf Bamler, a prisoner of war, that victories of the Red Army in the summer of 1943 saved Sweden from a carefully prepared German invasion.

At least fifteen German divisions were poised in Norway, Finland and Latvia, with large forces in reserve, he said.

"Red Star" quoted Bamler as saying the Germans were counting on the help or influence of General Tornell, commander-in-chief of Swedish armed forces, with whom the German military attache in Stockholm was described as having "close ties."

Bamler said, however, that the Soviet victores at Orel and Kursk in 1943 caused the Germans to drop their plan for invading Sweden and, "rescued the Swedish people—who suspected nothing—... the catastrophic consequences of war and occupation."

Ukraine Grain Outlook Is Declared Not Good

By the Associated Press

MOSCOW, June 26.—Despite recent rains which broke a prolonged drought in many sections, the wheat and grain outlook in the Ukraine is not good, says Marshal MacDuffie, head of the UNRRA mission in the Ukraine.

"The Ukraine's winter wheat crop won't be 50 per cent of the normal prewar yield," Mr. MacDuffie estimated. "During a recent visit to Odessa and other parts far south, I saw some very dry country. On one farm near Odessa they had lost half their winter wheat and almost all the barley and oats."

Slaughter of 3 Towns Charged to Chetniks

By the Associated Press

BELGRADE, June 26.—A group of Serb peasants took the witness stand today at the trial of Gen. Draja Mihailovich and told with gruesome detail how men they identified as Chetniks slaughtered the inhabitants of three villages near Belgrade in 1943 and 1944.

Four Serbs from Bolech testified that Chetniks raided the village one winter's night in 1943, plundered the residents and carried out mass slaughters. They said the raiders announced they were "fighting for King and country against the Communists."

One gray-haired peasant, Ilija Ilich, exhibited in the courtroom a red-stained cradle in which he said he had seen a 4-month-old baby lying with its throat slit the day after Christmas. Six men in the household—all friends of his—were slain, Ilich testified.

"It was terrible," he declared.

"How do you know the Chetniks did it?" the witness was asked by the president of the court.

"Because I saw them," Ilich replied. "While I was burying them the Chetniks were roasting a cow in a nearby field."

The prosecution indictment charges that a total of 72 residents of Bolech were killed by the raiders.

Gen. Mihailovich, directed by the court to confront the Bolech witnesses, denied that the men were acting under his orders. When the baby's cradle was exhibited in the courtroom, the Chetnik leader was told to look at it and was asked:

"Is this the execution of your order to purge the Communists?"

"No, never," replied Gen. Mihailovich.

Greeks Authorize Vote On Monarchy

Athens, June 26 (AP)—King George II of Greece, who has spent much of his life in exile, won a new chance today to return to the throne.

The Chamber of Deputies, after a stormy all-night session, passed without amendments a bill authorizing a plebiscite on restoration of the Greek monarchy or continuation as a republic.

The measure provides for two ballots—one marked King George and the other blank, on which the voter presumably can indicate his desire for a republic.

Greek Deputies Pass Plebiscite Bill

Athens, June 26 (A. P.).—The Chamber of Deputies, after a stormy all-night session, passed without amendment today a bill authorizing a plebiscite on the restoration of the Greek Monarchy or the continuation of the Republic. The action seemed certain to spur a storm of protest from left wingers, who abstained from the elections of March 31. The measure provides for two ballots—one marked for King George and the other blank, on which the voter presumably can indicate his desire for a republic.

Premier Constantine Tsaldaris will leave on Saturday for Paris and London for meetings with British Foreign Secretary Bevin and Premier Attlee, after which he may proceed to the United States.

Red Army Paper Gives Markham Ouster Reason

Bucharest, June 26 (AP)—The newspaper Graiulnou said today that Reuben Markham, Christian Science Monitor correspondent, was expelled from Romania for "repeated violations of the usages of foreign correspondents, such as misrepresenting the situation in Romania and spreading provocative rumors prejudicial to the cause of unity among the great powers."

This Romanian language Red Army newspaper itself has been the chief vehicle here during the past three months for a series of newspaper attacks on the United States, accusing America of "expansionist and reactionary" tendencies.

Special United States protests have been made to the Allied Control Commission that Graiulnou's editorials, which were followed u closely by the Communist press, were spreading mistrust between the Allies before the public of a defeated power. The answer given to these protests was that Graiulnou was a Red Army organ and therefore cannot be controlled by the commission.

100-trillion Note Buys Cup of Coffee

Budapest, June 26 (A. P.).—A 100-trillion pengo banknote went into circulation today in this inflation-ridden country. The note, which would have had a pre-war exchange value of twenty trillion American dollars, now is worth twenty cents—the price of a cup of coffee and a small piece of cake in a Budapest cafe.

Meanwhile financial experts expressed doubt over Government claims that a new issue of currency effective August 1 would bring financial stability, asserting that within two months the new florin, the unit of currency to replace the pengo, will depreciate in value as rapidly as the pengo.

Switzerland Builds Children's Village

TROGEN, Switzerland — (AP) Foundations of a village to shelter 350 orphans from various devastated European countries were laid recently on an eleven acre tract near Trogen, in the mountainous eastern part of Switzerland.

The first 15 dwellings will be built in Swiss farm style, surrounded by orchards and pastures. Three to five houses will be grouped to form a community where the children will be instructed by Swiss and foreign teachers.

The children's village was named Pestalozzi, after the famous Swiss educator who died in 1827.

Henry Johansen Dies in Norway; Was Kirsten Flagstad's Husband

He Was Awaiting Trial on Charge of Collaborating With Nazis During War

OSLO, Norway, June 26 (AP).—The Chief of Criminal Police announced today the death Tuesday in a state hospital of Henry Johansen, husband of Kirsten Flagstad, Norwegian soprano.

Johansen, who presumably succumbed to pulmonary cancer, was awaiting trial on charges of economic collaboration with the Nazis. He denied at a hearing last year an accusation that he had made $1,500,000 from building barracks for the Nazis during the war.

The death left open the question of whether Miss Flagstad, who has been living in strict privacy in southern Norway, would leave the country.

L'Abbee Lund, the police chief, when asked if the singer would be allowed to depart, replied that she never had been charged with anything under Norwegian law.

"But Johansen's case is very complicated and involves problems of great financial interest," he added. "Johansen and his wife had joint interests, and it is obvious that cases of financial infiltration may have taken place. Legal action against Johansen's estate will not be dropped."

Johansen was taken ill some weeks ago while at an internment camp near Oslo and was removed to the hospital at that time.

Wanted to Return in 1945

Miss Flagstad was reported on May 14, 1945, as saying in Oslo that she was anxious to return to the United States as soon as possible "to see my daughter, if not to sing." Two months later she was reported planning a return to this country as soon as she could obtain a visa. Whether her husband's illness caused her to abandon her proposed trip was not disclosed.

The Associated Press reported from Oslo last week that the passport office there asserted it would only grant Miss Flagstad a passport if it was approved by the Norwegian Ministry of Justice.

Edward Johnson, general manager of the Metropolitan Opera Company, has refused to consider the question of a re-engagement for the Wagnerian soprano until the question of her re-entry is cleared by the State Department in Washington.

Miss Flagstad left New York for Norway in April, 1941, and lived with her husband in their country home near the sea at Kristiansand throughout the German occupation. The forty-eight-year-old singer has denied singing before Nazi audiences, admitting only two appearances in Switzerland and one in Sweden during the war.

BARE PLOT TO KILL AZERBAIJAN CHIEF

Tehran, June 26 (A. P.).—A diplomat said today that dissatisfied Communist extremists last week made an attempt by poisoning on the life of Jafar Pishevari, who heads the former autonomous regime in Azerbaijan. Thirty underlings in the plot were jailed but the most important figures, some of whom were reported to have played leading roles in Azerbaijan since the province proclaimed its autonomy during the Soviet occupation, were not arrested, the informant said.

The British Consul-General at Tabriz was fired on last Sunday by Communist extremists attempting to free from jail the thirty who were arrested, he added, and the situation in the Azerbaijan capital was described as tense.

31 in Palestine Jews Guilty

Jerusalem, June 26 (AP)—Diamonds valued at between $120,000 and $160,000 were stolen today by a band of about 40 Jews from a diamond factory near Tel Aviv, it was announced officially tonight.

Jerusalem, June 26 (AP)—Thirty-one shouting and defiant Jews of the militant underground Irgun Zvai Leumi organization were convicted today by the Palestine military court of carrying firearms and explosives.

"The Jewish national state now is in a state of war with Great Britain," said Benjamin Kaplan, one of the defendants, who was convicted also of shooting a British prisoner.

The captives had been surrounded and seized in a desert in South Palestine and contended they were "prisoners of war" and not subject to rules and jurisdiction of the court.

Sentences will be pronounced tomorrow. Before the court president announced the decision, the courtroom was tossed into an uproar when Haim Luster, 26, refused an order to sit down with the other accused.

His 30 associates instead leaped from their chairs shouting, and their relatives in the room joined the babble in Hebrew. One comment was distinguished above the uproar, coming from Menahem Binder, 19, one of the defendants, who asserted that the outlawed Jewish underground army was fighting "a righteous war for the independence and liberation of a slave nation against an oppressor nation" and "if Jewish blood is outlawed, British blood will be outlawed."

Police and troops were summoned to restore order.

As the trial climax was passed, a British destroyer was escorting to port the Panamanian steamer Beauharnais, renamed the Josiah Wedgwood, which was intercepted with nearly 1,300 illegal Jewish refugees aboard. She had sailed from Vado in the Gulf of Genoa a week ago in defiance of Italian orders to stay. A British RAF plane spotted the ship yesterday and signaled the destroyer.

Verdicts Confirmed

In another action, the general officer commanding in Palestine confirmed a seven-year sentence passed by the Jerusalem military court on Geulah Cohen, 20, former announcer of the illegal radio station, "fighters for the freedom of Israel," an outlet of the outlawed Stern Extremists.

The verdicts on three other Stern Adherents, sentenced to from three to six years, and a Jewish sailor, Peter Martosh, found guilty of possession of explosives aboard a British destroyer, also were confirmed. Martosh got six years.

Even after their convictions were announced, the Irgun Svai Leumi members attempted to speak. The court president interrupted them declaring political speeches were inadmissible and irrelevant.

Troops Quell Court Uproar During Trial of 31 Jews

By the Associated Press

JERUSALEM, June 26.—Troops and police were called on today to quell an uproarious scene in the military courtroom when the 31 Jewish defendants on trial for alleged possession of arms and explosives leaped to their feet and began shouting.

The defendants, all alleged members of the illegal resistance organization, Irgun Zvai Leumi, who have contended the court has no jurisdiction to try them and have refused heretofore to take part in the proceedings.

The noisy scene developed when one of the accused, Haim Luster, 26-year-old spokesman for the group, refused to obey an order to take his seat.

As guards moved to enforce the court's order the remaining defendants leaped to their feet, shouting. Relatives in the back of the room joined the chorus.

MARSHALL SCANS SOVIET PROPOSALS

NANKING, June 26—(AP) In an atmosphere made uneasy by bristling arms, U. S. General Marshall studied today a Chinese Communist proposal for reorganization of the nation's military establishment —last and most critical point blocking completion of a pact to end China's civil strife.

Guards equipped with tommy-guns and rifles protected all Communist-occupied buildings in the capital. A heavy cordon of soldiers and police was thrown about Communist headquarters. These precautions followed reports that anti-Communist elements were planning demonstrations.

The reorganization proposal, as described by the right wing newspaper Ta Kang Pao, was said to differ widely from Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek's demands, which include a requirement that Red forces evacuate certain areas in North China.

Ta Kang Pao said the Communist proposal stressed four points:

1. Army reorganization should be limited to Manchuria.

2. All areas liberated by the Communists to remain in Communist hands.

3. The Communists to retain their hold on North China strongholds in Jehol and Chahar provinces, and the seaports of Chefoo and Weihaiwei in the disputed east coast province of Shantung.

4. The ratio of Nationalist and Communist forces in Manchuria to be set at five to three, instead of the five to one divisions provided in the agreement of Feb. 25, last.

The government, on the other hand, was said to be insisting that the Communists withdraw from all main Manchurian railways and evacuate the north Manchurian cities of Harbin and Tsitsihar.

CHINESE REDS OFFER PLAN TO REVAMP ARMY

Proposal Handed Marshall May Adjust Dispute, Lead to Peace

Nanking, June 26 (AP)—General Marshall has been handed a Chinese Communist proposal for the reorganization of China's Army, last and most crucial unsettled point standing in the way of peace, a dependable source said today.

The same source asserted the peace committee of three, composed of Marshall and a government and a Communist representative, had agreed on the two other outstanding points—cessation of hostilities and restoration of communications.

The new Communist proposal was understood to be a long way from Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek's demands, which include a requirement that the Communists give up certain strategic areas in North China.

Four Points Named

Ta Kang Pao, newspaper of the extreme Kuomintang (Chiang's National party) right wing, claimed the Communist plan made these four points:

1. Army reorganization should be limited to Manchuria.

2. All areas liberated by the Communists to remain in Communist hands.

3. The Communists to retain their hold on North China strongholds in Jehol and Chahar Provinces and the seaports of Chefoo and Weihaiwei, in the disputed East Coast province of Shantung.

4. The ratio of Nationalist and Communist forces in Manchuria to be set at five to three, instead of the five to one divisions provided by the pact of February 25.

The newspaper said the government on the other hand insists that the Communists in Manchuria evacuate the northern provincial capitals of Harbin, Tsitsihar and all main railways and limit their occupation along the line of the Hsiaokhingan Mountains in extreme Northern Manchuria.

Heavy Guards

Chiang's representatives also insist that the reorganization of Chinese military forces must include all China and not just Manchuria and that the Communists must evacuate all seaports in Shantung province as well as the principal cities in Jehol and Chahar provinces.

The newspaper said that the government was willing to "dicker" on these proposals, offering the Communists a greater military strength in Manchuria in exchange for elimination of the Communists in the North China areas.

Peace talks here were continuing in an uneasy atmosphere. A heavy police military guard has been thrown around Communist headquarters after a report that anti-Communist refugees planned demonstrations.

Guards armed with tommy-guns were placed at all entrances to Communist occupied buildings.

5 Jap War Prisoners Hanged At Singapore

Singapore, June 26—(AP)—Mitsubashi Mataichi, former chief administrator at Port Blair, and five other Japanese war criminals were hanged today at Changi Jail.

All six had been convicted of torturing Indians and other civilians suspected of spying for the Allies on the Andaman Islands.

Korean Cholera Wave Takes Lives of 650

SEOUL, June 26.—Death toll in the Korean cholera epidemic has reached 650, Lt. Gen. John R. Hodge announced today. No American troops have contracted the disease. About 30 new cases are reported daily.

SHANGHAI, June 26 (AP).—A cholera epidemic raged on unabated in Shanghai today. The latest official count placed the number of deaths at 48 out of 520 cases reported.

India Will Get Interim Regime Pending Voting

Viceroy to Pick Caretaker Government to Rule Till First Assembly Is Chosen

NEW DELHI, June 26 (AP).—The British Cabinet Mission announced today that a caretaker government of officials will be set up to rule India while elections are held for a Constituent Assembly, and that negotiations on establishing an interim government will be resumed later.

A formal statement said the Viceroy, Viscount Wavell, intends to form a caretaker regime composed of Indian government officials and department secretaries. The Constituent Assembly is to write a constitution for an independent India.

The All-India Congress (Nationalist party) rejected a previous proposal for an interim government, objecting to details in representation. It was the only phase of the autonomy plan rejected by Congress leaders. The rival Moslem League accepted the plan.

The Cabinet Mission statement proposed that negotiations on an interim government be adjourned during the short interval of assembly elections, and said it hoped an agreement on an interim regime could be reached speedily when those talks were resumed.

Making known its last word at the end of three months of negotiations, the Cabinet Mission's statement said it was "glad that the constitution-making can now proceed with the consent of the two major parties and of the states."

The three-man mission said it will leave India Saturday to report to the British Cabinet and Parliament.

Although the Congress party rejected the mission's proposal for an interim government, it accepted the long-term proposal for a constituent assembly.

"The kind of independence," a party resolution said, "which the Congress has aimed at is the establishment of a united democratic Indian federation with a central authority which would command respect from nations of the world, maximum provincial autonomy and equal rights for all men and women in the country."

The Congress party's working committee said it felt that "taking the proposals as a whole there was sufficient scope for enlarging and strengthening the central authority, and for fully insuring the right of a province to its choice in grouping and to give protection to such minorities as might otherwise be placed at a disadvantge."

Looks To Full Freedom

Referring to proposals for an interim government, contained in the Viceroy's statement of June 16, the resolution said:

"The provisional government must have power and authority and responsibility and should function in fact, if not in law, as a de facto independent government leading to the full independence to come."

Additionally, it said, members of such a government "can only hold themselves responsible to the people and not to any external authority."

Meanwhile, in the eight provinces controled by the Congress Party, prime ministers were reported proceeding with the selection of candidates for the assembly which will write the new Indian constitution.

The candidates, it was understood, will be selected on merit and not merely on a party basis. Of 385 members of the assembly, the Congress party expects to name about 250.

British India Mission To Give Independence Outline in Statement

By the Associated Press

NEW DELHI, June 26.—The British cabinet mission announced today that it would issue a statement "within 24 hours and possibly tonight" which, in all likelihood, would outline the interim framework for Indian independence.

A mission attache said it would be "the final and conclusive statement of the mission."

Reports current here indicated that the statement would be based on one of several alternatives:

1. Co-operation with the Moslem League, which already has accepted the mission's proposal for a 14-man interim government, and with representatives of other communities. The all-India Congress party's Working Committee yesterday rejected the interim rule plan.

2. Formation of a party government with the Congress party as the dominant member.

3. A plan formed on a territorial basis and cutting across communal lines.

4. A plan by which nominees for the new government would be drawn from the present central legislative assembly.

5. An official caretaker administration with the help of department secretaries. This appeared to be the most favored plan in political discussions today.

One of the principal topics of comment today was the statement by Mohandas K. Gandhi last night in which he said that for the last four or five days his mind had been "filled with a vague misgiving" about the British proposals for Indian independence.

He said he could not explain his fear, but had simply placed his "misgiving" before the Congress Party's Working Committee and told the members they would have to come to a decision independent of him.

Meanwhile, in the eight provinces controled by the Congress Party, prime ministers were reported proceeding with the selection of candidates for the assembly which will write the new Indian constitution.

SIAM'S KING SLAIN, PROBERS REPORT AFTER FULL STUDY

BANGKOK, June 26. — (AP) A board of 18 physicians was reliably reported today prepared to submit a report [illegible] that youthful King Ananda Mahidol of Siam was the victim of an assassin.

The report, it was learned further, will be turned over to a special commission of inquiry investigating the strange circumstances of the monarch's death.

The 20-year-old King was found dead in his apartment June 9. The official report to a Parliament the next day said he accidentally shot himself and that the bullet went through his forehead.

There were numerous rumors, however, that the King either had committed suicide because of a thwarted love affair while he was a student in Switzerland or because of dissatisfaction with his role as monarch, or that he had been killed by reactionary royalists who disliked his democratic tendencies.

As a result of the rumors, an official commission was appointed to make an investigation. It immediately ordered the body taken from its great golden urn in Dusit hall for examination. X-rays were made to determine the course of the bullet.

The board of physicians, including one American, was called in to aid in the investigation.

It was learned that medical evidence secretly studied by the board supported to a considerable extent the theory that Mahidol was the victim of an assassin.

Although exact details of the medical inquiry will be withheld until the commission reports, it was learned that the sensational findings came in the course of a two-day investigation by doctors who examined the body minutely.

Gunfire tests were made on corpses, and X-rays and photographs taken of the body at the death scene were examined.

The medical board's findings included a deduction as to the range and direction from which the gun was fired.

Meanwhile, the special commission continued taking testimony. Questioning of members of the royal family at the Grand Palace also will continue.

Siam Inquiry Supports Theory King Was Victim of Assassin

JUN 27 1946

By the Associated Press

BANGKOK, Siam, June 26.—A reliable report today said medical evidence secretly studied by a board of 18 physicians supports to a considerable extent the theory that youthful King Ananda Mahidol was the victim of an assassin.

The 20-year-old monarch was found dead in his apartment June 9. The official report to Parliament the next day said he accidentally shot himself and that the bullet went through the forehead.

There were numerous rumors, however, that the King either had committed suicide because of a thwarted love affair while he was a student in Switzerland or because of dissatisfaction with his role as monarch, or that he had been killed by reactionary royalists who disliked his democratic tendencies.

As a result of the rumors the commission was appointed to make an investigation. The commission ordered the body taken from its great golden urn in Dusit Hall for examination, and X-rays were made to determine the course of the bullet.

The medical board, which included one American, will return its report suggesting assassination to the special inquiry commission investigating the circumstances of the monarch's death, it was learned.

The exact details of the medical inquiry will be withheld until the commission reports. It was learned, however, that the sensational medical finding came in the course of a two-day investigation by doctors who examined the body minutely. Gun-fire tests were made on corpses. X-rays and photographs of the body at the scene of death were examined.

The findings included a deduction as to the range and direction from which the gun was fired and other undisclosed details.

The Bangkok medical examiners included beside the American a Briton, an Indian and 15 Siamese physicians. The American's name was withheld.

Premier Nai Pridi Phanomyong announced he had ordered a memorandum prepared, covering complete details of the King's activities in Siam since his arrival last December from Switzerland, where he had been educated.

The government allotted $370,000 for elaborate Buddhist rites for the King. The budget included about $150,000 for cremation and about $37,00 to buy new robes for priests.

Tokyo Trial Witness Tells of '31 Plot by Army to 'Bomb' Diet

JUN 27 1946

By the Associated Press

TOKYO, June 26.—A witness in the war crimes trial of 28 fallen Japanese leaders testified today that militarists in 1931 plotted to bomb the Diet and seize power, but said under cross-examination the bombs actually were "firecrackers" designed only to scare the lawmakers.

The prosecuting witness, Konosuke Shimizu, in whose home the "bombs" were hidden, told the International War Crimes Tribunal they would "make a loud noise and not hurt any one."

Another witness, Marquis Yoshichika Tokugawa, a pacifist, said he helped avert the incident by persuading Dr. Shumei Okawa, a plotting leader now on trial, to give up the conspiracy.

Tokugawa declared he then induced Shimizu to return the "bombs" to the army because it was "too early" to seize the government.

Mukden Incident Sustituted.

In direct testimony, Shimizu asserted the plot was designed as a forerunner for the Japanese Army's grab in Manchuria, but it was abandoned and the infamous Mukden incident was substituted.

Shimizu's testimony, read from an affidavit that did not make his own background clear, gave this version of the alleged plot:

Okawa was to have led a mob into the Diet. Okawa, with Col. Kingoro Hashimoto, also a defendant, and other army leaders had planned the coupe.

Okawa later told Shimizu that the plot had failed because the military had backed out—and that Gen. Kuniaki Kioso, another of the defendants) reported "It is a direct order from the army that this plot be abandoned."

Later, in August, 1931, Okawa told Shimizu that Okawa and three army colonels—including Seishiro Itagaki, vice chief of staff of the Kwantung army (now a defendant)—would "bring about an incident in Mukden."

Could Not Discipline Army.

It came in September, 1931. Okawa subsequently promoted ultranationalist movements, "with the ultimate purpose of expelling the white race from Asia * * *"

Baron Kijuro Shidehara, then Foreign Minister, told the court today that neither he nor War Minister Jiro Minami, now on trial, were informed immediately of the Manchurian incident, and "the cabinet was not in a position to discipline the army, in Manchuria or anywhere else."

The Japanese Army in Korea sent reinforcements into Manchuria not only without informing the cabinet, but also without the sanction of the Emperor, Shidehara testified. (AP)

Duties in U. S. Forced Higgins Resignation

By the Associated Press

TOKYO, June 26.—Duties in Massachusetts make it necessary that Justice John Higgins resign from the International War Crimes Tribunal and return to his home State, he said today.

He denied flatly that dissension in the court was responsible for his action.

He issued a prepared statement, saying:

"The death since my departure of my successor, Acting Chief Justice Brown, and the illness of his successor, successorship being determined by law, makes it imperative that I return to my duties as chief justice (of Massachusetts) at the earliest possible date. When I took this assignment I was assured that the trial would be completed by September.

"The best opinion is that it can not finish before early 1947 and I could not when I accepted the appointment, or much less now, justify being away so long a period from my duties as chief justice of the Supreme Court of the State of Massachusetts.

"I have complete confidence in my colleagues, all of them are sincere and competent men."

Asked how all the evidence he has heard would be conveyed to his successor, Justice Higgins said: "There have been only seven trial days. He can read the transcript. This trial will last at least a year."

Atcheson Implies Reds Violate Potsdam Pact On Japs in Manchuria

TOKYO, June 26.—Chairman George C. Atcheson, jr., told the Allied Council for Japan today, in effect, that Russia was violating the Potsdam surrender terms by failing to repatriate Japanese captured in Manchuria.

The Russian member said the council wasn't supposed to talk about that; it wasn't on the agenda.

The American chairman made his point this way:

He quoted the Potsdam declaration, to which Russia was a party, as providing that "Japanese military forces, after being completely disarmed, shall be permitted to return to their homes."

Offers Percentage Figures.

He followed with figures on the percentage of Japanese repatriated from various areas—including Soviet areas, zero per cent.

(American news correspondents who entered Manchuria last February drew from the Red Army commandant at Mukden, Maj. Gen. [illegible] Kovtoun-Stankevitch, the statement that disarmed Japanese troops in his area had been sent by train to work projects in Siberia.)

Mr. Atcheson concluded: "I submit the opinion that applicable terms of the surrender should be carried out voluntarily by all Allied authorities as promptly as practicable. From the point of view of Allied unity alone, I should not wish to see any terms of the surrender unilaterally abrogated or disregarded.

"It is obvious that if the same measure of full co-operation is not received from all Allied authorities in this matter, there will arise the possibility of misunderstanding among us—as well as continued widespread apprehension among the Japanese people.

"I should like to ask the Soviet member for any comment which he might care to make in regard to this particular question."

Discussion Postponed.

The Russian delegate, Lt. Gen. Kuzma Derevyanko, replied "The question on the agenda is . . . integration of repartriates—not repatriation from Soviet territory."

The agenda entry itself, proposed by Gen. MacArthur's headquarters, read: "Integration of repatriates into the national life of Japan."

Council members postponed further discussion until their next meeting July 12.

The topic already had been postponed twice. Mr. Atcheson first brought up on June 12 the question of Japan's vanished Kwantung army, beaten by Russia in Manchuria, and suggested that "perhaps the Soviet member" can provide information. Gen. Derevyanko made no response.

Mr. Atcheson said today that 98 per cent of disarmed Japanese had been repatriated from United States-controlled areas, 68 per cent from British areas and 94 per cent from Chinese areas, excluding Manchuri[illegible]

YOSUKE MATSUOKA DIES IN TOKYO AT 66

Former Foreign Minister of Japan Was One of 28 Now on Trial as War Criminals

SIGNED PACT WITH HITLER

Educated in America, He Was Considered Leader in Move to Attack This Nation

JUN 27 1946

TOKYO, Thursday, June 27 (AP)—The death of Yosuke Matsuoka, former Japanese Foreign Minister, was announced today by the international tribunal before which he was on trial with twenty-seven other accused war criminals. He died in the isolation ward of Tokyo Imperial University Hospital, where he had been suffering from tuberculosis, arthritis and other ailments. His age was 66.

The tribunal president, Sir William Webb, said that Matsuoka's name would be stricken from the indictment as a result of his death and all charges removed. At the request of defense counsel Franklin D. Warren, the court ordered the body turned over to the family.

Aggressive Foreign Policy

As an early apostle of aggressive foreign policy and Oriental expansion for Japan, the enigmatic Matsuoka advocated "strong" measures that eventually led to his own and his country's downfall.

Born of Samurai stock in Yamaguchi prefecture, western Japan, on March 3, 1880, he was 52 when he first won world recognition. A small-town country boy, he took a relative's advice and migrated at 13 to Portland, Ore., in search of an education and of work to pay for it.

Returning to Japan, he took a diplomatic examination and passed with flying colors, and at 24 was serving the Emperor as junior consul at Shanghai. He served as secretary in the Foreign Office in Tokyo, later was promoted to the post of consul-general at Canton and then at Hankow. After seventeen years in diplomatic service he resigned, joined the Seiyukai party and got himself elected to the Diet.

But if diplomacy had been spiritually unsatisfying, politics was worse. In June, 1929, he joined the South Manchurian Railway, which held the key to the Manchurian situation and controlled Japan's destinies in the Asiatic Continent, and from 1935 to 1939 was its president.

As an industrialist, he maintained his country's diplomatic aims, for he described Manchuria as "an absolute necessity to the economic life of Japan." He so ably defended his country's Manchurian policy that when Japan wanted an advocate at the League of Nations he was chosen.

Walked Out of League

As head of the Japanese delegation at League sessions through the winter of 1932-33 he conducted a dramatic rear-guard oratorical campaign. The climax came Feb. 24, 1933, when he defended his country's course before the full assembly. He walked out after the League's Council voted almost unanimously condemning Japan for the Manchurian incident.

Matsuoka's statesmanship won recognition from the Premier, Prince Fumimaro Konoye, who in the summer of 1940 named him Foreign Minister. The former almost immediately proclaimed that if Japan and the United States "keep our heads cool" and "mind our own business," there would be no serious clash between them. However, the new regime let it be known that Japan intended to spread her domination over "Greater East Asia."

Within two months the new Foreign Minister dealt his first major stroke. Japan signed at Berlin on Sept. 27, 1940, the Tripartite Pact with Germany and Italy. An advocate of closer relations with the Axis powers, Matsuoka journeyed in March, 1941, back to Europe, where he received a royal welcome from Hitler, Goering, von Ribbentrop and Mussolini. He conferred also with Pope Pius XII and was the most publicized figure of the times.

He had forged for Japan an imperialistic armor that was liked by his militaristic associates. Gen. Douglas MacArthur ordered his arrest on Nov. 19, 1945. On April 29 last he was indicted along with Premier Hideki Tojo and twenty-six other members of a "criminal militaristic clique" on charges of conspiracy to rule the world. Too ill to be present, he was confined to a hospital.

Blocked Pre-War Talks

The late Prince Konoye, who committed suicide to avoid trial as a war criminal, wrote in his memoirs that Matsuoka "in a bad mood" blocked crucial pre-war negotiations between Japan and the United States.

He had assured Hitler in Berlin that Japan would go to war with the United States, according to the late Count Ciano's captured war diary. At the same time he attempted to mislead the United States, and on his trip back to Japan through Russia gave what purported to be a long and complete report on his talks with the Fuehrer in Germany to Laurence A. Steinhardt, then our Ambassador in Moscow. He said these talks were a failure. He asked Mr. Steinhardt to cable these reports to President Roosevelt and requested that the American President confer with him as quickly as possible.

Whether Mr. Roosevelt was suspicious, or for some other reason, he did not reply and Matsuoka subsequently left the Government. Captured German documents and confidential files in November, 1945, showed that a secret discussion between Matsuoka and Hitler proved conclusively that a preliminary pact had been concluded between them in February of 1941 by which the Japanese were to attack the United States as soon as Matsuoka could complete the plans.

30 More Suspects Enter Jap Prison

JUN 27 1946

Tokyo, June 26 (A. P.).—Vice-Admiral Naomasa Sakonju and twenty-nine other suspected war criminals entered Sugamo prison today. Their arrest had been ordered by Allied Headquarters. Sakonju, as commander of a Japanese squadron, was charged with ordering the execution of sixty-seven British, Indian and Chinese survivors of the British ship Bear, sunk in the Indian Ocean in March, 1944.

To Ask More Food For Japs in July

Tokyo, June 26 (A. P.).—The Minister of Agriculture, Hiro Wada, told the House of Representatives today he intends to ask Allied Headquarters for the release of 155,000 tons of imported foodstuffs during July. He said that 72,000 tons had been distributed or would be distributed shortly, and that he intended to ask for the increased July supply for such metropolitan areas at Tokyo, Yokohama, Osaka, Kobe and Kyoto.

PERON POLICY 'ONE OF PEACE'

International Promises To Be Kept, He Tells Congress

Buenos Aires, June 26 (AP)—President Juan D. Perón told the Argentine Congress today that his foreign policy would be "one of peace and fulfillment of international promises" and said the nations expanded army would be reduced to the size necessary for national and continental defense.

Although the new Argentine President made no specific recommendations concerning the United Nations Charter or the Act of Chapultepec, which provides for hemisphere co-operation on a broad basis, he did indicate that he expected congressional ratification at least of the United Nation document.

Domestic Problems Emphasized

Perón declared that "national and international commitments arisin gfrom support of the United Nations Charter" would affect Argentina's naval planning.

International treaties which Argentina has signed will be submitted to Congress, he said, for a decision on "whether they are constitutional" and in the best interest of the country. More than two thirds of the members of Congress are politically aligned with the President.

Devoting the major portion of his 9,000-word address to domestic problems, Perón said that compulsory arbitration of labor disputes was advisable. He said that when the Government is on labor's side "violence or rebellion do no good because problems can be solved better and quicker by legal means." Existing labor courts, he declared, should be made a part of the regular judicial system.

Borrows From U.S. Example

Borrowing heavily from the example of the United States, Perón outlined an agrarian program calling for rural electrification, soil conservation and maintenance of farm prices.

Argentine tradition, he said, favored private enterprise but a growing economy is unable always to wait for private capital to enter necessary fields. Therefore, Perón added, the Government felt free to enter those fields either alone or in co-operation with private capital.

Declaring Argentina was ready for "loyal co-operation with foreign capital and technicians," Perón said the country was unwilling to see its industry enslaved and barred to its own technicians and capital. He added that the country soon would pay off its entire foreign debt with out raising taxes, thereby freeing itself from outside influence.

Brazil Boosting Its Wheat Production

SAO PAULO, Brazil—(AP) The Agricultural Department of the state of Sao Paulo is distributing 100,000 kilograms of selected wheat seed to farmers this year and will distribute 500,000 kilograms in 1947 as part of its campaign to increase wheat production. Brazil has always imported large quantities of wheat and is suffering a bread shortage this year.

Ex-Commando Fugitive Eludes 300 Paratroopers

He Flits About 147-Sq.-Mile Isle of Wight

SANDOWN, Isle of Wight, June 26 (AP).—Three hundred British parachute troopers ransacked the wooded chalk hills of the Isle of Wight today for an armed former commando who has used all his war-time raiding skill to elude searchers since he fled Parkhurst prison eleven days ago.

Low-flying planes, bloodhounds, police and troops have all tried in vain to trap the former commando, George Jackson, driving him from one corner to another of the 147-square-mile island that guards the entrance to Southampton harbor.

The island's 88,000 residents have been terrified by a dozen robberies, a hatchet attack on one man and the theft of two automobiles.

U. S. OPPOSITION BALKS EMPIRE WHEAT ACCORD

Britain and Canada Fail to Reach Long-Term Agreement

Ottawa, Ont., June 26—(AP)—A proposed long-term wheat agreement between Canada and Britain has foundered on the rocks of United States opposition in what may be regarded as an important test case of the postwar international trade structure, it was learned today.

British Food Minister John Strachey is returning to London without an agreement after talks in Washington and Ottawa He had hoped to take a pact back with him.

The British and Canadians, it is understood, were about to enter a 10 year agreement under which Britain would buy Canadian wheat at $1.25 Canadian per bushel, or $1.13 U. S. The current Canadian price is $1.55, and the American and world price is approximately $2 Canadian, or around $1.80 U. S. Hence the proposed contract would have been at a little more than half the American price.

Perhaps more important than American opposition to this particular deal, however, is the firm American stand favoring multi-lateral trade agreements for the postwar world, enunciated by the U. S. Government in its white paper of last Winter which laid a framework for the oft-postponed but still projected world trade conference.

Canada, as so often in the past, found herself caught between Britain and the United States in their conflicting views. Britain, with Russia, has shown a frequent preference for bi-lateral trade pacts, and in the wheat case certainly preferred it.

Canada's announced policy has been all-out for the multi-lateral plan, her economic well-being depending on a strong general world trade, but in the case of wheat, one of her top exports and a chief money-maker, she was strongly tempted to assure herself of a long-range market to cushion her against sharp reverses such as she has suffered in the past.

Food Minister Strachey, in a press conference in Ottawa yesterday, admitted he had failed to reach an agreement, but said he hoped one would be signed later "because it would be suicide for us both if we didn't."

Even more revealing was a brief but pungent report made later in the day to Parliament by Trade Minister James A. MacKinnon. Although stating that "substantial progress" had been made in 10 days of negotiations with the British, he took cognizance of "the difficulties involved in placing the sale of a large volume of wheat on a contract basis for an extended period." He added significantly:

"A number of important considerations have now arison which must become a matter of reference to the Canadian Government and the United Kingdom Government. As soon as these matters have been dealt with by the respective governments, negotiations will be resumed in respect of the terms of the proposed contract."

There seems to be no reason to doubt that some sort of an agreement eventually will be reached, but it propably will be on terms far more favorable from the American point of view, than those which almost were agreed to.

The American pressure is understood to have been applied both directly on the British in Washington and on the Canadian government in Ottawa.

Because of the size of the proposed contract—Britain is ready to take over 200,000,000 bushels of wheat a year from Canada—and because of its timing at this juncture in the formation of a postwar trade structure, the projected deal is regarded on all sides as an important test case in the conflicting philosophies.

The United States appears to have scored a sharp victory up to the present point at least, and may have gained important ground in the over-all skirmish to get the postwar trade system erected in the manner which Washington believes best.

Strachey Predicts Pact.

London, June 26 (A. P.).—Food Minister John Strachey said on his return from America today that there were "good prospects" of signing a long-term wheat contract with Canada.

The British Cabinet is expected to decide tomorrow whether and when to start rationing bread and flour.

"America is now making very great efforts to ship wheat abroad and it would be very unfair for us not to recognize that," Strachey told reporters. "There is no likelihood of bread rationing in the United States but there are bread queues in America" because of dislocated distribution.

Strachey asserted the American people "are accepting this inconvenience as a real alternative to rationing," and added:

"I would not claim that all Americans realize the position with regard to supplies either here or in Europe. It is necessary to bring it home to them."

That, he said, was the reason he exhibited the new food ration book in Washington. The book includes blank coupons which can be used for bread rationing.

Canadians Hang German

LETHBRIDGE, Alta., June 26 (AP)—Sgt. Werner Schwalb, 31-year-old German war prisoner, was hanged in Lethbridge jail today for the murder of a fellow-prisoner in the Medicine Hat internment camp on July 22, 1943. Schwalb, a former member of the famed Africa Corps, was the first prisoner of war to be hanged in Canada.

U. S. Stand Explained

WASHINGTON, June 25 (AP)—Government officials said today the United States opposed a wheat agreement between Canada and Britain because it was regarded as "inconsistent" with the multilateral trade policies advocated by this nation.

Thtse officials, requesting anonymity, noted in this connection that the proposed Anglo-American loan agreement provides for review and revision of Britain's empire trade agreements.

However, the British food minister, John Strachey, who has been in Canada trying to work out the wheat agreement, said in London today there are "good prospects" that a contract will be signed.

Killed in Bikini Test

Captain Struck by Propeller at Kwapalien Is Identified

NORFOLK, Va., June 26 (AP).—The Army Air Force captain who was killed Monday on Kwajalien when he walked into the propeller of the test-run Superfortress Dave's Dream, was disclosed today to have been Captain James E. Bishop, husband of Mrs. Doris Margaret Leighton Bishop, of Norfolk.

Captain Bishop, Air Force officer in charge of installing the atomic bomb for the Bikini tests Sunday, was forty-six and a native of Kalamazoo, Mich. A Regular Army officer for nineteen years, he was killed shortly before the plane, commanded by Major Woodrow P. Swancutt, was to take off on the test run. The crw placed the body in an ambulance and left one minute late for the run.

PRESS DISPATCHES PILE UP AT BIKINI

Aboard the U. S. S. Appalachin, June 26 (A. P.).—The United States Navy's elaborate communications system, set up to handle one of the greatest stories of the year—the atomic bomb blast at Bikini—has so far flunked the test of ability to deliver stories to the United States [illegible] floating radio station with six radio teleprinter [illegible] en route to Bikini, communications have had the correspondents in an uproar.

Stories are reaching the United States as much as nine hours after they are filed, and one wire service reporter said that the first take of one of his stories turned up in the office of the New York Herald Tribune.

Yesterday, when the Crossroads press chiefs released for the first time a detailed story of the atomic bomb operation, circuits went out and the ship had no contact with the mainland. Wordage piled up by the tens of thousands before the circuits became operative again six or eight hours behind schedule.

Commander Don Thompson, communications officer, said that atmospheric conditions in this region are bad during the middle of the day but he hoped the situation would improve.

Senate Action On OPA Faces Filibuster Peril

O'Daniel Threatens to Prevent Passage Before Sunday Deadline.

RECESS ORDERED

Chamber Will Resume Debate at 11 A.M. Today.

WASHINGTON, June 26. — (AP) Senator O'Daniel (D-Tex) threatened a filibuster today to prevent passage of the OPA extension bill before the present act dies Sunday midnight.

"I think it would be swell," he told a reporter, "if the American people could wake up Monday morning under the American form of government [illegible] been out from under so long."

Ready for Lengthy Speech

O'Daniel's desk was piled high with papers—apparently material for a long, long speech—and he said that "more will be arriving if it's needed. I hope to get help if it's necessary."

Failure to enact the OPA bill before the deadline would cause all price and rent controls to lapse. They could be reinstated again when the measure finally is passed.

But O'Daniel's filibuster would thwart a strategy urged upon President Truman by labor leaders and others. This is to veto the OPA bill, with its limitations on the agency's powers, in the hope that Congress would then approve—before Sunday—an emergency measure continuing the OPA as is.

O'Daniel was delayed in gaining the floor by speeches of other senators, including a discussion of UNRRA by Senator Bridges (R-NH).

The Senate then recessed, without a vote, until 11 a. m. tomorrow.

An earlier move by Senator Wherry (R-Neb) to restore to the OPA bill the provision removing price controls on meat, poultry and dairy products fizzled out, at least for the present.

Rules Against Action

President pro tempore McKellar (D-Tenn) ruled that the move would be in order only if the Senate rejects the compromise bill which the House passed yesterday.

Democratic Leader Barkley (Ky) recommended the measure as "the best bill possible under the circumstances." It contains some provisions which Stabilization Director Chester Bowles called "booby traps" for price control. But it omits others which would have ended certain controls outright.

Bowles conferred with the President for half an hour during the afternoon but refused to say whether he had recommended a veto Pressed for comment on the bill, he told reporters:

"My own feeling is what it has been. It would make things very difficult—they couldn't be harder."

Debate Becomes Heated

Tempers heated and faces flushed as the Senate debated the controversial bill. The discussion brought these expressions:

Wherry—Another year of price control will bring "actual violence in this country."

Bridges—"We've reached a pretty low level when you have to violate a law in order to buy a loaf of bread."

Senator Moore (R-Okla)—"What good does it do to have a price control law which just builds up bureaucracy and regimentation in this country? I think price control is all wrong—none of it can be enforced."

Wherry called Senator Guffey (D-Pa) "a rubber stamp" when the latter protested that Wherry constantly opposes Administration measures.

JUN 27

Wherry sought to send the bill back to conference with instructions to restore the Senate meat-dairy-poultry decontrol provision. After McKellar's ruling Wherry pleaded that his colleagues reject the conference recommendations. He declared the bill as it stands "condones" black market operations in livestock and meat.

Senator Millikin (R-Colo), whom Wherry originally had counted as an ally, refused to go along.

"The House vote was so overwhelming on this subject," he said, "that it seems to me it would be a futile thing, resulting only in an impasse, to go over the same ground again. The responsibility then would be on us for the death of price control."

He said he did not want to take that responsibility, as he feared "cataclysmic effects" would follow if all controls were wiped away overnight.

which worked out differences between the two branches.

In its present form, the bill would extend the life of OPA until July 1 of next year, strip the agency of many of its wartime controls over rising prices, but keep the ceiling on meat, poultry and dairy products.

Ruling by McKellar.

A parliamentary ruling made it unlikely that Senator Wherry (R.-Neb.) would even be able to make his motion to return the whole bill to the joint committee for further revision.

The ruling was made by Senator McKellar (D.-Tenn.), president pro tem of the Senate. As he explained the situation to the Senate, the conference committee's recommendations first must be voted up or down—although full debate is permissible before that vote.

If the committee report is approved, the bill goes on to the White House. Only if the report were voted down could any member have the right to move to ask the House for a new conference, and instruct Senate conferees to insist on inclusion of any particular amendment.

Even before this ruling, a drive by Republican senators to send the bill back to conference with the House showed signs of folding up.

Senators who earlier had expressed interest in the idea told reporters privately that the big margin by which the House rejected a similar move made defeat almost certain.

The House vote was 221 to 150 against returning the already-limited compromise legislation to committee for elimination of meat ceilings. The House later approved the bill, 265 to 105.

There was no indication that any filibustering tactics would be employed against the bill.

OPA expires next Sunday at midnight unless the extension measure is enacted.

Barkley Defends OPA Bill

JUN 27 1946

He Urges Senate to Follow House in Passing Compromise Despite Imperfections.

Washington, June 26 (A. P.).—Democratic Leader Barkley told the Senate flatly today that the compromise OPA extension measure is "the best bill possible under the circumstances."

He asserted that it contained "imperfections." At the same time he called on his colleagues to follow the lead of the House and accept the legislation as put together by a joint committee

FUNDS FOR UNRRA MAY FORCE FIGHT ON SOVIET POLICY

JUN 27 1946

WASHINGTON, June 26 — (AP) The House Appropriations committee set the stage today for a fight over further war relief aid to Russia by recommending an additional $465,000,000 grant to UNRRA.

House "world free press" advocates promptly served notice they will seek to block use of any of the money in two Soviet republics because of Moscow's refusal to permit American correspondents to report on UNRRA's Russian operations without censorship.

Debate Opens Today

They will make their move tomorrow when the House debates the bill—part of a $726,571,909 deficiency appropriation measure—under a rule permitting wide latitude in the consideration of amendments.

Rep. Clarence Brown (R.-Ohio), who sought unsuccessfully in the past to deny UNRRA aid to countries refusing free access to American correspondents, indicated he would offer the "none-for-Russia" amendment.

"I'm thinking about it," Brown told reporters.

"Someone will offer an amendment of that nature," said Rep. Rankin (D.-Miss.), adding that he will "support any amendment prohibiting the spending of money in countries which won't let us find out what it's being spent for."

Ban Once Voted

The House once approved a ban against expenditure of any UNRRA funds in countries exercising censorship against American correspondents. The Senate, however, refused to go along and the two branches finally compromised on a requirement that the President do what he could to have the censorship bans lifted in the case of correspondents reporting on UNRRA activities.

The President reported to Congress Monday that all nations receiving UNRRA aid, except the Soviet republics of the Ukraine and Byelorussia, have agreed to give visiting reporters access to UNRRA news.

The new UNRRA fund, if approved, would complete appropriation of the United States' current commitment of $2,700,000,000 to the world relief agency. America has provided 70 per cent of UNRRA's funds.

The UNRRA allotment was the largest proposed cash outlay in the bill, which carries also $106,650,000 additional for the Office of Price Administration, $27,750,000 for the Selective Service system, $660,000 for the new office of the United States representative to the United Nations Atomic Energy commission, and authorization for the War Assets administration to use $435,000,000 from its operating revenues for administrative expenses.

UNRRA OUTLAY OF $465,000,000 URGED ON HOUSE

Appropriations Committee Includes New Fund in Deficiency Bill.

FIGHT ON SOVIET AID LOOMS

Measure Carries Money for OPA and Selective Service—Cuts Back More War Items.

JUN 27 1946

Washington, June 26 (A. P.).—A new $465,000,000 cash allotment for the United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration was recommended today by the House Appropriations Committee.

DAY

The UNRRA item was the most controversial and largest of a group of miscellaneous appropriations in a $726,571,909 deficiency supply bill sent to the House floor for debate starting tomorrow. It is expected to touch off a bitter wrangle over whether any of the new money should be spent in Russian republics which do not allow American news and radio correspondents free access to news of UNRRA operations. Representative Brown (R.-Ohio) already has said he would fight against letting any UNRRA funds go to nations putting restrictions on United States newsmen.

President Truman notified Congress last Monday that all foreign nations receiving UNRRA aid, except the two Soviet republics of Byelorussia and the Ukraine, have made arrangements to allow American correspondents to report without censorship on UNRRA activities. Mr. Truman added that accredited UNRRA representatives are making "extensive and detailed reports."

$106,650,000 for the OPA.

In addition to the new UNRRA funds, the bill carries $106,650,000 for the Office of Price Administration and $27,750,000 for the Selective Service system. Generally, the money is intended to tide over the agencies during the current fiscal year and to meet expected shortages in the next year.

The bill also cancels $3,065,486,427 in appropriations previously granted for war activities, mainly for the Army and the Navy. The new cancellations bring to $64,328,626,487 the amount of war-time appropriations actually rescinded or recommended for cancellation since the war ended.

The total cash in the bill is $184,314,078 below the President's budget estimates for the score of agencies receiving the supplemental funds.

In granting the full budget request for UNRRA to complete actual appropriation of the $2,700,000,000 pledge to that organization by the United States, the committee referred to the relief organization's activities as "a noble work" that will be "a lasting tribute to the readiness and willingness and determination of America to give succor to the distressed peoples of other lands."

SFA Seeks Continuation.

During the commitee's hearings on the bill it was brought out that the Solid Fuels Administration for War, which was to have gone out of business for good by next Sunday, wants a $3,000,000 shot-in-the-arm to keep it alive another year. Officials of the agency told the committee, in testimony made public today, that the tonnage loss during the bituminous coal strike last spring has caused such a shortage that the agency is as much needed now as it was during the war.

Otherwise, they said, coal that is "urgently needed here" will be shipped abroad, other coal will be snapped up by consumers in "panic buying," and the coal industry will have to shoulder an "impossible burden" and face numerous law suits in trying to divide suplies equitably.

In other testimony before the committee Lieut.-Gen. Edmund B. Gregory said that the War Assets Administration, of which he is administrator, expects to sell $15,400,000,000 worth of surplus property during the next twelve months for $2,900,000,000 or about one-fifth the wartime cost. He provided this outline of what is expected in the way of surpjlus sales during the fiscal year beginning July 1 the anticipated peak period in surplus property disposal:

Property on hand at start of the period: $15,800,000,000.

Exected to be acquired for disposal during the year: $11,100,000,000, making a total of $26,900,000,000.

Of this, $1,500,000,000 is property under lease, leaving $25,400,000,000 available for disposal.

Of this amount the WAA expects to seel $15,400,000,000 and to lease $2,600,000,000.

On June 30, 1947, the WAA expects to have $11,500,000,000 of property on hand, of which $4,100,000,000 will be under lease leaving $7,400,000,000 to be disposed of in the 1948 fiscal year or later.

Stiffer Attitude Toward Russia And Italy Urged

JUN 27 1946

Washington, June 26 (AP)—A controversial report urging a stiffer attitude toward Russia and Italy was approved for official release today by the House Foreign Affairs Committee.

The report was drafted by a subcommittee of four after a European trip and portions of it had been made public before its consideration by the full committee. This led to disputes among committee members.

Chairman Bloom (D., N.Y.) said the full committee approved its publication as a subcommittee document without considering whether the views expressed should be approved.

A major portion dealt with Soviet-American relations. One suggestion was that Premier Stalin and President Truman meet as soon as possible.

Other Recommendations

Other recommendations about Russia included:

1. "Immediate abandonment of any semblance of appeasement in our own negotiations and relations with Russia."

2. "That the over-all objective of complete reciprocity with Russia be kept in mind in all our dealings with that country."

3. "As an integral part of our foreign policy, a definite and unequivocal determination should be made as to the attitude and policy of the Russian Government toward the countries now either absorbed by or under control of the U.S.S.R."

4. "Both the United States and Russia should encourage the increased exchange of people, products and publicity between their two countries."

Policy Toward Italy

The report declared our policy toward Italy has been "altogether too vapid, soft and indecisive."

It asserted that this has alienated the friendship of Greece, Yugoslavia and Hungary and that these nations are being driven toward Russia.

The report was drafted by Representatives Bolton (R., Ohio), Gordon (D., Ill.), Mundt (R., S.D.) and Ryter (D., Conn.), based on a trip they made last fall. Ryter and Gordon did not sign the section on Italy, because they left for home before that country was visited.

Russia Report Wins Approval For Publication

House Foreign Affairs Unit Will Release It Without Taking Stand on Merits

WASHINGTON, June 26 (AP).—A controversial report urging a stiffer attitude toward Russia and Italy was approved for official release today by the House Foreign Affairs Committee.

The report was drafted by a subcommittee of four after a European trip, and portions of it had been made public before its consideration by the full committee. This led to disputes among committee members.

50 MILLION CREDIT GIVEN TO POLAND

JUN 27 1946

U. S. Will Get Information on Warsaw Trade Pacts with Soviet.

WASHINGTON, June 26 — (AP) A $50,000,000 United States credit to Poland, suspended since May, was finally granted today after Poland promised to lift the veil of secrecy on her economic pacts with Russia and other nations.

The State department announced that three complaints of Poland's failure to live up to the commitments under which the credit was originally authorized on April 24 had been met. Therefore "this government has acceded to the request of the Polish provisional government and has authorized" restoration of the credit together with the resumption of the delivery of surplus property to finance which the credit was granted.

Bank Loan Expected

In addition, officials expected there would now be an early signing of a Polish contract with the Export-Import bank for a $40,000,000 American loan. No action had been taken on the contract while the surplus property credit was in suspension.

The $40,000,000 is for the purchase of American locomotives and coal cars for the Polish state railways. The $50,000,000 is a credit for the purchase of trucks, bulldozers and other equipment from surplus U. S. Army stocks in Europe.

Three reasons had been given for the suspension of the credit, all involving in one way or another the problem of secrecy in Poland.

First, the United States declared that contrary to the credit agreement, the text of the agreement committing the Polish government to a course of full political freedom and unfettered elections this year had not been published at the time of the suspension on May 10. Today's statement said that now the text had been published.

Censorships Clarified

Second, the United States had said it appeared that American press dispatches from Poland were being subjected to censorship. Today's announcement said that "the question of censorship has been satisfactorily clarified," presumably by Polish declarations that the government is not actually censoring such dispatches.

Third, the United States had contended the text of Poland's economic agreements with other countries had not been made available as promised to the United States. Today the State department said that assurances have been given to Ambassador Arthur Bliss Lane at Warsaw "indicating that the texts of Poland's economic agreements will be furnished."

Lane received these assurances about a week ago. About the same time Polish Ambassador Oscar Lange called on acting Secretary of State Acheson and informed him that Poland had obtained a substantial credit from Russia. To the press, Lange subsequently said that he was not concerned about the American credits to Poland.

However, the State department today emphasized that in restoring the $50,000,000 it had acted at the request of the Polish government.

FORRESTAL RESERVED ON MERGER PLAN

Says Navy Will Help Attain 'Objectives' In Cagily Worded Letter

JUN 27 1946

Washington, June 26 (AP)—Secretary of the Navy James V. Forrestal, in a cagily worded letter, said today he would help attain the "objectives" of President Truman's Army-Navy merger plan, but Capitol Hill looked for plenty of controversy about the spefific details.

Forrestal's letter to the President, dated Monday and released by the White House today, was more reserved than the June 18 letter of Robert P. Patterson, Secretary of War, who pledged "wholehearted support."

Conferred Further

The Forrestal communication revealed that the Secretary of the Navy had conferred further with Mr. Truman on the merger plan June 19—one day after Patterson's letter was made public and four days after the President had sent to Congress his final recommendations on the subject.

Forrestal's letter merely referred the President to that conversation without disclosing publicly what was said. Senators reported, however, that the Navy had appealed to the Chief Executive for modification of his proposal turning over virtually all of its land-based aviation to a separate air force.

Forrestal gave this matter special treatment in his letter.

Principal Objectives

First he outlined his "understanding" that the President has two "principal objectives":

1. Creation of a single defense department "under a civilian head, with broad powers of overall supervision and control while leaving full administration of their respective services to the Secretaries for War, Navy and Air."

2. Preservation of the Navy's "integrity and autonomy."

"I consider the foregoing objectives attainable," the letter continued, "and the recognized difficulties in drafting legislation which will insure their success surmountable."

NIGHT

Then Forrestal turned to the question of land-based aviation.

Manned By Air Force

The President had proposed to Congress:

"Land-based planes for naval reconnaissance, anti-submarine warfare and protection of shipping can and should be manned by air force personnel. If the three services are to work as a team there must be close co-operation, with interchange of personnel and special training for specific duties."

Forrestal's comment on this was merely:

"I am glad to note that the Navy is to have a continuing part of the future development of these operations, so the full advantage may be taken of its experience in this field and of the lessons learned in the late war. Admiral (Chester W.) Nimitz joins me in this expression."

Thanks Him For Patience

Then the letter concluded with this paragraph:

"I wish to thank you for the patience with which you have listened to the Navy's views on the reorganization of our national defense and for the time which you have devoted to the subject. You may be assured of my desire and that of Admiral Nimitz to co-operate with you fully in the effort to achieve the objectives of your program."

With chances slight that Congress will act on the matter at this session, Francis E. Turin, of Norfolk, Va., announced plans to form a nation-wide committee of citizens to oppose the merger.

Turin said in Norfolk that he and others met yesterday with Chairman Walsh (D., Mass.) of the Senate Naval Committee and quoted Walsh as saying that the merger plan "offers a serious menace to the American form of government."

Turin reported that his committee already has 40 organizations on its rolls and plans to enlist other groups.

Forrestal Pledges Merger Aid

Truman Bares Carefully Worded Letter—Citizens Form Group to Fight Plan.

Washington, June 26 (A. P.).—Secretary of the Navy Forrestal has notified President Truman of his desire to co-operate "fully" to achieve the goals of the President's Army-Navy merger program.

Forrestal's attitude toward the merger proposal was expressed in a letter to Mr. Truman, which has been released by the White House.

The Navy chief said he considered the objectives recently outlined by the President as "attainable." He added that he believed it possible to overcome difficulties in drafting the necessary legislation.

"I wish to thank you for the patience with which you have listened to the Navy's views on the reorganization of our national defense and for the time which you have devoted to the subject," Forrestal wrote. "You may be assured of my desire and that of Admiral Nimitz to co-operate with you fully in the effort to achieve the objectives in your program."

More Carefully Worded.

Secretary of War Patterson recently wrote the President expressing wholehearted approval and pledging support of Mr. Truman's recommendations on unification.

While Forrestal's language was more carefully worded, he referred to the subject of land-based planes for naval reconnaisance, anti-submarine warfare and shipping protection and added:

"I am glad to note that the Navy is to have a continuing part of the future development of these operations so that full advantage may be taken of its experience in this field and of the lessons learned in the late war.

ARMY NARROWS DISTINCTIONS BASED ON RANK

JUN 27 1946

Patterson Approves Most of Recommendations by 'Gripe' Board

Washington, June 26 — (AP) — The Army launched a military "new order" experiment today by narrowing social and other distinctions between officers and enlisted men without wiping them out.

It also decided it can get along with less saluting, except where a snappy salute counts.

Secretary of War Patterson put the new formula into Army life when he gave carefully qualified approval last night to all but two of the 14 recommendations submitted by the Doolittle "gripe" board which investigated postwar GI complaints of too much caste in the service.

New Orders Listed

Patterson announced that the War Department is ordering:

1. Abolition of saluting except on military posts, in overseas occupied areas and on ceremonial occasions.

2. Elimination of an existing requirement that officers wear distinctive uniforms, live apart from their men in garrison, and confine their social contacts to other officers.

3. Granting enlisted men the same privilege as officers, effective July 1, in accumulating unused leave time, currently 30 days a year.

4. Studies looking to a possible upward revision of pay schedules along with allowances for food, quarters and travel.

5. Measures to train officers better for leadership, assign them "in the best interests of the service," and to overhaul the present system of promotions.

6. Rewriting of regulations to define "essential" privileges of officers and to prohibit or minimize "possible abuses of authority and prestige."

7. Efforts to improve the social facilities available to enlisted men.

Announcing the War Department's action on recommendations made by the Doolittle board a month ago, Patterson rejected outright a proposal that the terms "officers" and "enlisted men" be eliminated entirely, and stressed there must be no weakening of discipline in the Army.

Restraint Expected

There is no official intention of abolishing all off-duty restraint upon social association, which Patterson said "might lead to more dangerous abuses than those which this proposal intends to correct." As a matter of "common sense," he said officers clubs will not be closed and "gambling among personnel of different ranks should not be tolerated."

Patterson rejected also a proposal that reports of inspectors general to the War Department should bypass field commanders. His reason was that no change should be made that would give the inspectors "any tinge of 'gestapo' or under-cover status."

Voicing appreciation of the work of the inquiry board, which was headed by Lt. Gen. James H. Doolittle, the War Secretary said the Army's personnel policies, habits and customs must be subjected to continual and searching review "if we are to have a modern Army in all respects" and attract the highest type of volunteers.

As a fundamental consideration, however, he said that an Army's ultimate objective must be to keep in readiness and to win victory on the battlefield.

"There can be no democracy in the platoon advancing under fire to take a tactical objective," he said. "Only discipline of the highest order can then win the fight and at the least cost in lives."

EYES ARE ON WHITE HOUSE

Draft Extension Measure Is Likely to Become Law With Increase in Wages.

Washington, June 26 (A. P.).—With more than $50,000,000 at stake, the nation's men in uniform riveted their attention on the White House today to learn when the draft extension compromise and its companion pay increase measure become law.

The twin bills cleared final congressional hurdles yesterday in double-quick time after months of argument.

Public interest centered on the nine-month extension of the wartime draft beyond June 30 with non-fathers between 19 and 45 probably most concerned as possible draftees. Neither service, however, has indicated any desire to draft any one over 26. Other prime provisions of the measure include:

1. An eighteen-month limit on compulsory service.

2. No further inductions of fathers.

3. A clause that fathers now in service may apply for release after August 1.

Interested in Pay Boost.

But the men of the Army, Navy, Marines and other armed services—from gold-braided officers down to privates and apprentice seamen—were more interested in the time of the pay boost signing.

The increases—ranging from $25 a month for the privates up to $166.67 for the upper bracket generals and admirals—will become effective on the first day of the month following the presidential signature.

Because the present stopgap draft act dies at the end of this month, Mr. Truman was expected to sign the compromise extension before July 1. But he was not under the same pressure to sign the broad pay increase plan. Hence if he delays this until after July 1, all men on duty with the armed service would have to wait until August 1 before collecting the extra money.

Depends on Truman.

In all, congressional committees estimated the pay increases will total something over $632,000,000 for the next year. One month would amount to more than $50,000,000 on an average, so whether the men in uniform collect it in July depends on Mr. Truman's pen.

Although the House required several hours and some argument before it approved the two compromises, the Senate agreed to both in less than ten minutes without record votes. The House accepted the draft extension—which reversed in part its previous position against inducting either 18 or 19-year-olds—by a 259 to 118 vote.

Before the vote, it learned the War Department plans no inductions during July and August so that a pool of some 52,000 men between 19 and 30 will be available for the draft at the end of that period.

About 13,000 are expected to be called in September, and an average of 7,000 each month thereafter unless voluntary enlistments fill all needs.

While the compromise legislation bars induction of any one under 19, youths still will have to register for the draft when they become 18. This registration clause in the present selective service law was not altered. Service of any men inducted under the extender bill will be limited to eighteen months, excluding time spent in schools, while in uniform, and all fathers now inducted may be released upon request, starting August 1.

All men who have served eighteen consecutive months or longer, with school time not counted, also may apply for release starting October 1.

The only voice raised against the draft compromise in the Senate was that of Senator Revercomb (R.-W. Va.). He said that he still was certain that volunteers could supply all vacancies, and he added that older men from 30 to 45, do not make the best soldiers.

Senator Hill (D.-Ala.) today predicted early Senate passage of the Rogers-Sikes bill to provide terminal leave pay for enlisted military personnel. The measure, which provides enlisted personnel are to be paid for furlough time which they did not use during world war II, already has passed the House. Only officers now are entitled for pay for unused leave upon separation.

ARMY LISTS 308,978 DEAD AND MISSING

First Consolidated Post-war Casualty Roll Is Released

Washington, June 26 (AP)—The first consolidated postwar casualty roll released today by the War Department lists 308,978 dead and missing among more than 10,000,000 men and women mobilized into the United States Army for service in World War II—a fatality rate of 2.98 per cent.

The list was compiled in booklets, one for each state, one for the District of Columbia and one for the territories and possessions of the United States. The record dates from the presidential declaration of a national emergency on May 27, 1941, through January 31, 1946.

1,424 Still Missing

During that time 307,554 were killed in action, died of other causes or were declared dead after having been missing a year. In addition, 1,424 persons were still carried as missing on January 31, 1946.

The War Department is extremely reluctant to hold out hope to next of kin that any persons carried as "missing" at this late date will be found alive. Investigations to trace them still are going on, but it is expected that the cases will be closed with a finding of death in accord with congressional law.

Of the total, 176,432, or 57.1 per cent, were listed as killed in action. A total of 25,493, or 8.25 per cent, died of wounds suffered in combat and 929, or 0.3 per cent died of injuries, such as a broken neck in a fall, during combat.

Accident And Disease Victims

A total of 85,219, or 27.6 per cent, died other than in battle. They were the victims of accidents or disease, for example. Then, 19,481, or 6.3 per cent, were administratively determined to have died. This included men lost at sea or who crashed in a burning plane. The figure, 1,424, still carried as missing represents 0.45 per cent of the total.

The death rate in the various states followed closely the proportions of their contributions to army strength, although some dislocations were noted, especially in the case of New Mexico, which early in the war suffered heavy casualties in a National Guard unit in the Philippines.

District Of Columbia Highest

New Mexico, with four tenths of one per cent of the nation's population, contributed .43 of one per cent of the Army's strength, and suffered .66 of one per cent of the Army's total deaths. The State's death rate in the Army was 4.77 per cent, as compared to the national average of 2.98 per cent.

The highest death rate was 5.05 per cent for the District of Columbia but this figure included numerous regular army personnel who gave their home address as the Adjutant General, Washington, although they did not actually live in the nation's Capital.

Other high death rates were noted in Montana, with 4.53 per cent; North Dakota, 4.14 per cent, and Arizona with 4.01 per cent. The lowest death rate was in the case of the territories, which lost only 1.18 per cent of their strength.

Among the states, Maryland, with 2.23 per cent, had the lowest rate. Other states with low death ratios were Mississippi, 2.32 per cent; Louisiana, 2.36 per cent; Alabama, 2.54 per cent, and Florida, 2.63 per cent.

New York, with the largest population and the largest contribution to the Army's strength, lost 31,215 persons, the greatest number of any state. Other high death totals were found in the more populous states: Pennsylvania, 26,554; Illinois, 18,601; California, 17,022; Ohio, 16,827, and Texas, 15,764.

The least populous states generally had the smallest number of deaths.

Nevada, 349; Delaware, 579; Wyoming, 652, and Vermont, 874.

3 Counties Miss Casualties

The War Department said the operation of the Selective Service System, which drew proportionately from all walks of life and all sections of the country, was noticeable throughout the report. An evidence of the democratic working of the draft, it said, was the fact that only three of the smallest of the nation's three thousand counties failed to suffer a casualty. These counties were King, in Texas; Esmeralda, in Nevada, and Yellowstone National Park, in Wyoming.

The greatest losses among counties were in the most thickly populated areas: Cook (Chicago), Illinois, 9,723; Los Angeles, California, 6,674; Kings (Brooklyn), New York, 5,841. New York city had 16,112 deaths.

Other city totals were not available except in such cases of San Francisco, 1,365; Philadelphia, 4,393; Baltimore, 2,031, and St. Louis, 1,636.

RUSSIAN 'SPY' TRIAL OPENS

Redin Defense Attorney Calls Charges 'Ridiculous'

Seattle, June 26 (AP)—The defense contended there is "not a scintilla of truth" in espionage charges against 30-year-old Nicolai Redin as the first day of the Soviet naval officer's trial ended with Federal Judge Lloyd Black denying motions for dismissal of the case.

The Government's key witness, Herbert Kennedy, a shipyard engineer, took the stand just as the day's session ended—too late for testimony the prosecution contends will prove Redin conspired to obtain secret information from Kennedy about the United States destroyer tender Yellowstone.

"Redin never asked Kennedy for any information and had no reason to obtain any on this particular ship," defense attorney Tracy Griffin told the jury in an opening statement, "nor did he even pay him even 5 cents."

No "Scintilla Of Truth"

"Redin's testimony will be that there isn't a word—not a scintilla of truth—in the claims made by Kennedy."

The Government previously announced it would seek to prove Redin paid Kennedy for information which the latter—with FBI approval—provided the Russian officer.

Griffin said Redin "didn't know Kennedy was in the employ of the British Secret Service or in contact with the FBI, nor that he (Redin) was under surveillance." It was the first reference to the British Secret Service, and was not explained further.

The defense attorney, referring to Government statements that Redin frequently sought to contact Kennedy, said the reverse was true—that Kennedy "kept after Redin," and twice asked the latter for aid in entering Russia for a visit.

No Diplomatic Status

Stephen Quigley, administrative assistant in the protocol division of the State Department, was the only witness to testify today. He said Redin's papers as a foreign agent and naval officer were in regular form, and that he had no diplomatic status.

Judge Black denied, without comment, defense motions for dismissal of the indictment, and for a directed verdict of acquittal.

Griffin asserted the Government charges were "ridiculous."

U. S. Opens Spy Case Against Red Officer Before Seattle Jury

By the Associated Press

SEATTLE, June 26.—The United States opens its espionage case today against Russian Naval Lt. Nicolai G. Redin, Soviet Purchasing Commission representative.

A Federal Court jury of seven men and five women must decide the 30 year-old officer's fate on charges of inducing and attempting to induce a shipyard engineer to give him plans of the new destroyer tender Yellowstone and its equipment. One of the questions asked by the Government attorney yesterday was whether prospective jurors had scruples against "finding a person guilty of a crime punishable by death."

Allan Pomeroy, assistant district attorney, refused to comment on whether the Government would ask for the death penalty under a conspiracy charge in the indictment.

Jurors Locked Up Overnight.

The jurors were locked up for their first night and United States District Judge Lloyd L. Black will decide today whether accommodations are adequate to keep them together until the trial's end, as asked by the Government attorney.

Judge Black admonished the jurors that "these indictments against Mr. Redin are merely charges and are not proof of anything. In an American court every person charged with an offense is presumed to be innocent. * * * The jury is not to allow sympathy or prejudice to affect its decision."

Redin's attorneys questioned the jurors closely during the selection procedure as to whether they had read anti-Soviet books of recent years or magazine articles.

One Juror Dismissed.

The books they mentioned specifically were "Out of the Night," by Jan Valtin; "Report on the Russians," by William L. White; "One Who Survived," by Alexander Barmine, and "I Choose Freedom," by Victor Kravchenko. Most of the jurors disclaimed having read the books.

One member of the jury panel was dismissed when he declared:

"I'd be prejudiced against the United States Government because of my feelings now that there should be a better understanding between Russia and the United States. I am satisfied I could not vote Mr. Redin guilty."

Senate-House Group Finishes Two Phases of Pearl Harbor Report

WASHINGTON, June 26 (AP).—Senator Scott W. Lucas, Democrat, of Illinois, chairman, said today a Senate-House subcommittee has completed two phases of its proposed report on the Pearl Harbor investigation and is studying the question of fixing responsibility for American unpreparedness when the Japanese attacked.

The three Democratic members of the subcommittee have agreed on findings concerning the diplomatic background and the attack itself, but have reached no conclusions on the responsibility, Senator Lucas said. He said the two Republican members of the subcommittee, Senatotr Homer Ferguson, Republican, of Michigan, and Representative Frank B. Keefe, have attended few meetings of the group.

The committee has instructions to report its findings by July 10.

Action Approved Against Lamont

JUN 27 1946

Washington, June 26 (AP)—The House voted 240 to 85 today to support its Committee on Un-American Activities in contempt proceedings against Corliss Lamont, chairman of the National Council of American-Soviet Friendship, Inc., of New York.

The committee, in asking the action, contended Lamont refused to supply requested information and records. The case now will be turned over to the Federal Attorney for the District of Columbia for further action.

The committee also has asked similar House action against Richard Morford, the organization's director, and George Marshall, chairman of the National Federation for Constitutional Liberties of New York.

This occurred, Holdridge said, after Rankin was informed the league opposed a bill to amend the National Service Life Insurance act.

Holdridge alleged Rankin had said the league "is regarded as a Communist front organization by legitimate veterans groups." Holdridge declared the statement is "false."

Bill Extending Second War Powers Act O.K.'d

JUN 27 1946

Washington, June 26 (AP)—House-Senate conferees today approved a bill extending the second War Powers Act—giving the Government authority for rationing and for establishing priorities on scarce materials.

Most provisions were extended nine months from June 30, 1946, but one relating to building materials was continued for a full year.

The conferees accepted an amendment inserted by Senator Moore (R., Okla.), which says that nothing in the act shall be taken as authority to control rents. The amendment was agreeable to the Administration, since the rent control power is contained in the OPA law.

The Senate, then the House, will consider the conference committee's recommendations.

U.S. Trying To Prevent Resale Of Cars Overseas

JUN 27 1946

Washington, June 26 (AP)—The Government moved today to break up what it described as a practice of shipping automobiles abroad as "personal baggage" and selling them there at exorbitant prices.

To halt it, the Department of Commerce's Office of International Trade forbade export of cars as personal baggage unless the traveler proves he has lived in the United States continuously for a year and has owned the car for six months.

An "undue" increase in number of autos shipped by individuals as baggage in the last two months was cited by officials.

Reports from Mexico and Cuba, they said, indicate that great numbers of tourists have taken out cars ostensibly for use in their travels and then sold them at "fabulous" prices.

Some autos were being reshipped to European countries for an even greater profit, officials said these reports showed.

Import Curbs On Hides, Skins, Leather Revoked

JUN 27 1946

Washington, June 26 (AP)—The Government tonight revoked all import controls on hides, skins and leather and relaxed price ceilings to permit free competition for world supplies.

Both actions resulted from a decision of the Combined Hides, Skins and Leather Committee—on which this country and thirteen other nations are represented—to dissolve. The decision was made tonight simultaneously with the scrapping of all previous rulings of the committee.

The OPA announced American importers now may figure their ceilings by adding a markup margin of five per cent to the cost of skins as landed.

have all the wheat they can handle until the rail bottleneck is broken. In some instances grain was piled on the ground both at elevators and on farms because of the railroad car shortage.

But there was hope that the transportation problem might soon be solved. An appeal by Gov. Schoeppel of Kansas that his State is facing critical spoilage of the new crop brought a promise of more railroad cars to move grain to larger terminals which still have plenty of storage room. W. C. Kernall, executive secretary of the American Association of Railroads, assured the Kansas Governor of at least 920 cars daily for the balance of the harvest season.

The harvest swung into full scale this week after rains in the wheat country had forced a brief interruption. Glowing reports of bumper yields continued to pour in from all three States.

Rain Helps Crop.

Heavy rains and cool weather in early June added more than 12,000,000 bushels to the estimated Kansas crop. H. L. Collins, Federal-State agricultural statistician, now figures the State's yield at 199,168,000.

Oklahoma, where the harvest is 85 per cent completed, expects a record wheat crop. The last Federal forecast was 87,000,000 bushels. The boxcar shortage in the northwest part of the State is acute, but in other sections wheat continued to dribble into the larger terminals. By Monday nearly 10,000 cars of grain had arrived at Enid, one of Oklahoma's chief wheat centers.

Yields ranged up to 60 bushels an acre but the average, of course, was much lower. In Kan-

Combine Situation Tough.

Outside of the box-car shortage, the harvest moved steadily toward its climax. There still was plenty of labor; still plenty of trucks, but the combine situation was a bit tougher.

Just how much of the wheat farmers would hold in their own bins in protest against the Government's price policy—if they take it to market they must sell at least one-half of it—still was not clear. But most points reported receiving more grain than had been expected at the start of the harvest.

At country elevators farmers were getting an average of $1.70 a bushel, with many points reporting that most of the grain was "No. 1 grade." Much of it has been accepted as top grade without inspection, so anxious have grain dealers been to get the new crop.

Relief Grain Short 48,000,000 Bushels

Washington, June 26 (A. P.).—The Department of Agriculture reported today that shipments of grain and flour for relief feeding abroad reached 368,947,000 bushels on June 20, or about 48,000,000 short of the 417,000,000 bushel goal for the year ending June 30.

Department officials said that even though the deadline will not be met, shipments of 1945-crop grain will be continued until the objective is obtained. Such shipments would be in addition to 250,000,000 bushels pledged from the 1946 crop for export by June 30, 1947. A record high of 18,440,000 bushels were exported during the ten days, June 10 to 20, the Department reported.

Receipts of hogs at twelve leading western markets totaled 19,300 today, compared with 26,452 a week ago and 46,842 a year ago. Total livestock receipts, which last week ran about 35 per cent below the preceding year, have fallen another ten per cent this week.

A survey of the nation's cities brought from everywhere the same report: "Little or no fresh meat." In some cities, even cold cuts were hard to find in normal channels. Poultry and fish, however, were relatively plentiful.

Many Butcher Shops Closed

The National Association of Retail Meat Dealers reported half the nation's butcher shops had closed their doors. Those operating in conjunction with groceries were open but had little or no meat, the association said.

The National Restaurant Association said "reports from all over the country" showed the fresh-meat problem growing worse.

"The meat shortage has thrown a great additional burden on the restaurants, with persons dining out when they can't find meat in their butcher shops," an association spokesman said.

"The restaurants are trying their best to offer something besides poultry, fish and eggs, but this is becoming increasingly more difficult."

Some restaurants which have meat stored in lockers have fared better than others, he added.

Improvement Expected

In New York, even the illegal market had no fresh meat to offer.

Most industry spokesmen expected some improvement in the situation next week, after the question of price controls on meat and dairy products is finally decided. Some producers have been withholding livestock from market until the price question is settled.

A spokesman for the packers who declined to permit use of his name said a continuation of OPA controls would result in a "much bigger black market."

E. A. Meyer, assistant administrator of the production and marketing administration of the Department of Agriculture, told the National Cheese Institute here that civilians in this country would have from 135 to 140 pounds of meat per capita, against 145 to 150 pounds last year and a prewar rate of 126 pounds.

Government today sued 40 Far Western lumber companies seeking a total of $9,043,530 in treble shortages" and "exorbitant charges damages for alleged OPA violations resulting in "artificial lumber shortages" and "exorbitant charges to contractors and builders all over the country.

The OPA said it was the first mass legal action to bring into the open some of the practices it said were hindering the efforts of business men and homeseekers, including veterans, who have been bargaining desperately to obtain building materials.

Suits Filed In Four States

Involved are some 65,649,123 board feet of lumber.

The suits were filed simultaneously in United States district courts in San Francisco, Los Angeles and Sacramento, in California; Phoenix, Arizona; Seattle, Spokane and Tacoma, in Washington, and in five Oregon courts.

The largest single suit was filed at Tacoma, Wash., against the Twin Harbors Lumber Company, of Aberdeen, Wash. There, the OPA sought unspecified damages which it estimated would run to $525,000.

The OPA said the firm made sales of fractional sizes of lumber, charging improper retail prices through its retail outlet in Boston, Mass. The OPA contended that the company's alleged violations, involving some 10,000,000 board feet of lumber, were widespread throughout the Eastern United States.

The actions against the Twin Harbors Lumber Company and two other firms were described by the OPA as "open-end suits," in which final damages may be determined by the court in case the OPA submits additional documentary proof of violations.

Other major suits seek $370,000 treble damages against R. G. Robbins Lumber Company, of Portland, Ore., and $303,000 against the Olympic Hardwood Company, of Raymond, Wash.

The OPA said the suits were the climax to a long-standing attempt by Congress to get to the bottom of a lumber bottleneck that has been delaying the nation's postwar rebuilding program.

Over 2,900,000 Vets Apply For Training

JUN 27 1946

Washington, June 26—(AP)—Well over 2,900,000 veterans of the recent war have applied for educational benefits or other training, the Veterans Administration reported today.

As of June 1, the number stood at 2,928,551, an increase of approximately 400,000 over a month earlier.

Baldwin Urges Reds Keep Out Of Internal Affairs of U. S.

JUN 27 1946

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., June 26—(AP) Gov. Raymond E. Baldwin of Connecticut said today the United States has no right to insist upon shaping the internal policies of any other country.

In an address at a company meeting of the Connecticut Mutual Life Insurance company, of Hartford, of which he is a vice president, Governor Baldwin said that on the other hand it is the right and duty of the United States "to preserve the integrity of our internal affairs."

"We talk about a misunderstanding with Russia—that we must understand the Russians—and some people say that the Russians should try to understand us," the Governor asserted. "The word misunderstanding does not define our relationship or lack of relationship with Russia.

"Between Russians and Americans there is a fundamental difference. They believe that a communistic system offers them the best hope for the future. We must be fair enough to admit that they are sincere in their thinking. On the other hand, we should be just as sincere and just as purposeful in our American system.

"If we are firm and strong in our own convictions, if we make this American system of ours work, if we are willing to give up the old idea that disarmament is the road to peace, and maintain an adequate military, air and naval force, not only for our own protection but to guarantee the inviolability of peace and to rally the support of the smaller nations to our side, we will have a reasonable degree of world security in the future. Such a policy constitutes a threat to nobody, but it does command respect. It is insurance for peace. We can and we will get along with the Russians or any other nations if we have their respect."

Urges Labor Strife End

Speaking on labor-management strife, Governor Baldwin said it was "high time that we recognize human relationship as the most important of human arts and sciences."

"It's high time," he added, "that we settle our differences temporarily as best we can and went back to work, making up the great deficits in food, clothing, shelter and services that the American people and the world so sorely need, and set our best brains to work in developing the best profit-distribution system possible. The era of obdurate, entrenched management and battling violent labor leadership should be brought to an end."

Governor Baldwin urged that people "not shudder or be afraid" of the future and the multiple problems to be resolved, and he particularly urged those in the insurance field to keep "keenly alive to the needs of the time, prepare to provide that type of security tailored to the individual requirements of those whom we seek to serve, be certain that the funds entrusted to our care are wisely and soundly invested, and be ready at all times to fulfill to the last letter our obligation in building national and personal security, American style."

Only a Free World Can Escape Hunger, Convention Is Told

JUN 27 1946

By the Associated Press

HOT SPRINGS, Va., June 26.—Wheeler McMillen of Philadelphia, editor of the Farm Journal, told the American Plant Food Council Convention yesterday that "only a free America will be an abundant America" and that "only a world of free people will ever be free from hunger."

He praised what he termed "conscientious leadership of our agricultural and business research men," pointing out that "all our civilization lies in the future of that thin layer of the top soil that covers the earth, and what we put into the soil."

Earlier, Dr. R. M. Salter, chief of the Agriculture Department's Bureau of Plant Industry and Soils, told the convention that the increased capacity of American farmers to produce food and fiber during World War II "was due in large part to the accomplishments of scientific research of many groups, including the technological advances of the fertilizer industry."

The convention, "recognizing the role of agriculture in 'writing the peace,'" adopted a resolution pledging its "full energies and resources to the production of plant food to meet agricultural needs just as rapidly as existing regulations are lifted and materials and labor are available to expand factilities." The resolution pledged "full co-operation in encouraging farmers to conserve their soil and adopt improved land-use practices so that the maximum amount of foods will be produced and the future welfare of the nation protected."

In another resolution the Council urged farmers "to purchase their supplies (of fertilizer) as they become available so that all facilities may be fully utilized throughout the year and maximum production assured." It asked that farmers "be patient where supplies cannot be made available until their immediate use is necessary."

Browder Back, Silent On His Visit To Russia

New York, June 26 (AP)—Earl Browder, former head of the Communist party in the United States, arrived by airplane today from Russia, where he was entertained by Soviet officials, and was booed by some persons in a crowd which gathered around him as he was leaving LaGuardia Field.

Pushing his way through the shouting people after his baggage had passed a customs inspection, Browder said to newspapermen:

"I am happy to see you boys again. There is no place like New York, and only New York could put on such a show as this."

Browder refused to comment on the reception given him in Russia by Soviet officials, including Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov and declared that he had no message for American Communists.

THE UNITED NATIONS, HE SAID, "NEED TO LEARN THE ART OF DISAGREEMENT WHERE NECESSARY WITHOUT BECOMING DISAGREEABLE; AND BEYOND THAT, WE NEED TO CONSOLIDATE POINTS OF AGREEMENT AND BUILD ON THEM, RATHER THAN TO WIDEN DIFFERENCES."

1. THE POLISH RESOLUTION SAID THE FRANCO REGIME WAS A "DANGER TO WORLD PEACE, WHILE THE AUSTRALIAN-BRITISH DRAFT SAID IT WAS "LIKELY TO ENDANGER" PEACE.

2. LANGE PROPOSED THAT THE COUNCIL REOPEN DISCUSSIONS ON THE SPANISH CASE NOT LATER THAN SEPT. 1. IN THE EVATT RESOLUTION THERE WAS NO DATE FOR THE RESUMPTION OF DISCUSSIONS.

RUSSIA AND POLAND, AS LEADING PROPONENTS OF THE POLISH MOVE FOR A WORLDWIDE DIPLOMATIC BREAK WITH THE FRANCO REGIME, ARGUED THAT THE SPANISH QUESTION WAS MUCH "TOO SERIOUS" TO BE DEALT WITH AS PROPOSED BY EVATT.

EVATT SAID THAT UNDER THE POLISH RESOLUTION THE GENERAL ASSEMBLY COULD NOT MAKE RECOMMENDATIONS ON THE CASE WITHOUT A REQUEST FROM THE COUNCIL. HE CITED PROVISIONS IN THE CHARTER PROHIBITING ASSEMBLY RECOMMENDATIONS ON QUESTIONS WHICH WERE BEFORE THE COUNCIL.

THE OTHER CHANGES WERE MADE, EVATT SAID, TO CONFORM TO THE FINDINGS OF THE COUNCIL'S SUB-COMMITTEE ON SPAIN.

THE MINISTERS AGREED THAT ROMANIA COULD MAKE EXCEPTIONS IN CASES WHERE HER PRE-WAR COMMERCIAL TREATIES WERE INVOLVED. MOLOTOV THEN PROPOSED THAT EXCEPTIONS ALSO BE MADE FOR TREATIES ROMANIA HAD WITH NEIGHBORING STATES. RUSSIA, ONE OF THE NEIGHBORING STATES, DID NOT HAVE A COMMERCIAL TREATY WITH ROMANIA BEFORE THE WAR.

BYRNES, ACCORDING TO AMERICAN SOURCES, OPPOSED MOLOTOV'S PROPOSAL ON THE GROUND THAT IT WOULD NULLIFY EQUALITY OF COMMERCIAL OPPORTUNITY WHICH THE UNITED STATES WANTS WRITTEN INTO THE BALKAN TREATIES.

MOLOTOV RETORTED THAT THE UNITED STATES ENJOYED CERTAIN SPECIAL TREATIES WITH CUBA AND THE PHILIPPINES AND SHOULD PERMIT RUSSIA TO HAVE SIMILAR ARRANGEMENTS WITH HER NEIGHBORS. 1--A FOUR-POWER DECLARATION OF INTENTION THAT THE PRINCIPLE OF FREEDOM OF COMMERCE AND FREEDOM OF NAVIGATION ON THE DANUBE AND ITS TRIBUTARIES BE OBSERVED.

2--THIS PRINCIPLE WOULD BE MAINTAINED BY NAVIGATIONAL INSTRUCTIONS ISSUED BY THE COMMANDING OFFICER OF EACH ZONE AS LONG AS ALLIED TROOPS REMAIN IN ZONES OF OCCUPATION. THE PURPOSE OF THIS POINT WOULD BE TO PROTECT LINES OF COMMUNICATION TO AUSTRIA ON THE DANUBE.

3--THE MINISTERS OF BRITAIN, THE UNITED STATES, FRANCE AND RUSSIA WOULD ACT TO OBTAIN ADHERENCE OF STATES BORDERING ON THE RIVER TO THE FREEDOM PRINCIPLE.

ACCORDING TO AMERICAN SOURCES, BYRNES SAID HE WOULD AGREE TO THE PROPOSAL IF IT WERE ACCEPTED GENERALLY. IF NOT, THE UNITED STATES WOULD REVERT TO ITS ORIGINAL CONTENTION THAT SUCH PROVISIONS WOULD BE INCLUDED IN THE VARIOUS PEACE TREATIES WITH THE DANUBE NATIONS, BYRNES DECLARED.

MOLOTOV SAID THAT AT FIRST GLANCE HE DOUBTED IF BEVIN'S PROPOSAL WOULD BE ACCEPTED BY THE SOVIET UNION. THE QUESTION PRIMARILY WAS ONE FOR THE DANUBIAN STATES THEMSELVES TO DETERMINE, HE WAS QUOTED AS SAYING.

Berlin, June 26--(ap)--People who fear a quick resurgence of Germany into a threat to world peace should come here and see the tremendous war damage to get a balanced picture, W. E. Christenson, editor of the Omaha World-Herald, said tonight.

JUN 27 1946

Christenson and 11 other American editors and newspaper executives are touring American-occupied Germany as guests of the War Department. They were dinner guests tonight of the Berlin American Press Club along with Gen. Joseph T. McNarney, U. S. commander in the European theater; Lt. Gen. Lucius D. The editors, who concluded the second day of talks with military government officials in a three-day visit here, heard of the difficulties imposed upon the American zone by the failure to achieve a four-power agreement on administering Germany as an economic unit.

"The damage as we have seen it here and in Frankfurt and from the air at points in between is simply tremendous," Christenson said. "We had seen pictures and read accounts, but it has to be seen to be believed.

THE OFFICER CONVICTED HERE WAS FINED $250, AND THE THREE OTHER ENLISTED GUARDS FINED $60 OR $80 EACH.

WARREN WAS CONVICTED OF HITTING ONLY ONE PRISONER AND ACQUITTED OF 14 OTHER CHARGES, ALTHOUGH HE ADMITTED ON THE WITNESS STAND THAT HE STRUCK TWO PRISONERS WITH HIS FISTS AND "POKED" ANOTHER WITH HIS BILLY CLUB.

HIS DEFENSE WAS THAT LICHFIELD OFFICERS ORDERED GUARDS TO STRIKE PRISONERS.

"WE WERE ORDERED THAT ANY PRISONER WHO GAVE US ANY TROUBLE OR BACKTALK WAS TO BE BEATEN TO THE FLOOR," HE SAID.

"THEY TOLD US TO BE AS ROUGH AS POSSIBLE AND BEAT REPEATERS TO GET THEM OUT OF THE GUARDHOUSE AND INTO THE FRONT LINES WHERE THEY

THE GAUNT, 46-YEAR-OLD FRITSCHE WAS THE LAST OF THE 21 TOP-RANKING NAZI DEFENDANTS TO TAKE THE STAND. Night Lead Wheat

Ottawa, June 26-(ap)-Because of United States opposition, a prope long-term wheat agreement between Britain and Canada has been side-tracked, it was learned today.

It was understood that britain and canada had considered entering a 10-year agreement under which britain would buy wheat at $1.25 Cana ($1.13 u.s.) a bushel. The current canadian price is $1.55, and the American and world price is approximately $2.00 Canadian ($1.80 U.S.

The United States has taken a firm stand favoring multilateral tra agreements, as part of the world postwar economy. Britain has shown a frequent preference for bilateral trade pacts.

Although Canada's announced policy has favored the multilateral plan, she was under considerable pressure to sign the wheat agreement to assure herself a long range market to cushion against sharp reverses.

John Strachey, British food minister, said in a press conference here yesterday that although he was returning to london without a pact, he hoped one would be signed later because "it would be suicide for us both if we didn't."

(Strachey arrived in england today, and told reporters who met his plane there that "America is now making very great efforts to ship wheat aborad, and it would be very unfair for us not to recognize that."

He added that crop prosepcts in Canada and the United States were "distinctly better" and that the United States was "sure of a big harvest.")

Underlying the hold up of the proposed [illegible] is a basic conflict in british and american trade philosophies as they have been shaping up since the end of the war. In some high quarters, at least, it is regarded as a strategic test case for the [illegible] developing system of post-war trade.

The american objections, reportedly made emphatically both here and in washington, are on the grounds not only that such a sweeping pact would tend to be restrictive and have an adverse [redacted] price effect on the united states producers, but also--and more importantly--on the grounds that it would be opposed to the american policy favoring multi-lateral trade agreements for the post-war world.

JUN 27 1946

In broad terms, the issue also involves a conflict between the american desire for free enterprise and the british leaning toward state trading.

A british-canadian agreement on wheat is expected to be signed ultimately, but probably on terms more favorable to the united states than those originally proposed.

An agreement more favorable to the united states could include one or all of the following points:

A shorter term, a higher price, an "escape clause" providing for conforming to an international agreement when and if reached, or some sort of flexible price arrangement.

JUN 27 1946

American objections to the proposed what deal are reported to be

-fold:

1. That it would not help to accomplish the desired world goal, since it would leave the united states and argentina on one side without free access to markets, would provide no insurance for consumers other than britain, and that it would not help stabilize the market.

2. That it would establish a multi-lateral price system.

3. That it encourages state trading, as opposed to the american principle of free enterprise. It is held that the multi-lateral system would permit exercise of both systems as desired.

Aside from whatever effect the american pressure may have had on the proposed deal, the canadian/ambassador is understood to have split over the issue. Some members favor the american view and some the british.

ABOARD U.S.S. PANAMINT, ENROUTE TO BIKINI, JUNE 26-(AP)-NIGHT AND DAY A LONELY FIGURE PACES THE DECKS OF THE PANAMINT.

WHEN SPOKEN TO, HE NODS GRAVELY AND CONTINUES TO PACE. WHEN APPROACHED UNEXPECTEDLY FROM BEHIND, HE LEAPS LIKE A STARTLED DEER.

HE IS DR.MICHAEL MESCHERYAKOV, DOCTOR OF PHYSICS AT THE STATE RADIUM INSTITUTE IN LENINGRAD, AND ONE OF TWO RUSSIAN OBSERVERS BOUND TO BIKINI.

THE YOUTHFUL, STOCKY RUSSIAN, BEARING AN ANKLE SCAR WHICH MIGHT INDICATE A WAR-TIME WOUND, IS THE STRANGEST PERSONALITY AMONG THE HETEROGENOUS GROUP OF SCIENTISTS AND FOREIGNERS.

ONCE HE WAS DRAWN INTO A SHUFFLEBOARD GAME BY FRANK BESWICK, BRITISH LABORITE MEMBER OF PARLIAMENT, AND GAVE ONE OF HIS RARE SMILES WHEN HE SCORED HIGH. BUT HE SOON DESISTED AND RETURNED TO PACING THE DECK. HE HAS PLAYED CHESS OCCASIONALLY WITH LT.COL.EDWIN F.BLACK, BETHESDA,MD. BLACK BEAT HIM HANDILY, AND CHESS-MINDED SCIENTISTS WHO KIBITZED SAID THE RUSSIAN'S GAME WAS NOT UP TO THE STANDARD THEY EXPECTED OF VAUNTED SOVIET CHESSERS.

JUN 27 1946

TO CONSTANT ATTEMPTS TO GET ACQUAINTED, THE RUSSIAN RESPONDS WITH A PRECISE, SLOW SENTENCE, "I DO NOT SPEAK ENGLISH," AND RESUMES HIS PACING OR BURIES HIS NOSE IN A RUSSIAN TOME.

HIS COLLEAGUE, PROF.SEMYON P.ALEXANDROV, ELDERLY ENGLISH-SPEAKING METALLURGIST, CHATS AFFABLY ABOUT ABSTRACT SUBJECTS BUT NEVER INITIATES A CONVERSATION OR VOLUNTEERS INFORMATION.

THE TWO ARE RARELY SEEN TOGETHER.

AS FOR YOUNG MESCHERYAKOV, ONE SCIENTIST--AFTER A SERIES OF POLITE REBUFFS--SUMMED UP THE SHIP'S OPINION WITH:

"I FEEL SORRY FOR THAT CHAP. HE'S PROBABLY A NICE FELLOW AND AN INTERESTING PERSONALITY, BUT DAMMIT! HE WON'T LET YOU FIND OUT."

MEANWHILE THE RUSSIAN PLODS THE DECK IN SILENCE.

ABOARD THE U.S.S. MOUNT MCKINLEY, JUNE 26-(AP)-THREE FAMOUS U.S. FIGHTING SHIPS HAVE BEEN PLACED IN THE COMPARATIVELY SAFE OUTSKIRTS OF THE FIRST ATOMIC BOMB BLAST--AND FOR REASONS OTHER THAN SENTIMENT.

THE OLD CARRIER SARATOGA AND TWO HONORABLY DISCHARGED VETERANS OF TWO WORLD WARS, THE BATTLESHIPS PENNSYLVANIA AND THE NEW YORK, ARE ANCHORED WELL BEYOND THE ZONE WHERE EITHER SINKING OR EXTENSIVE DAMAGE IS EXPECTED FROM MONDAY'S MID-AIR DETONATION.

TASK FORCE OFFICIALS SAY WHEN THE TARGET ARRAY WAS AGREED UPON, TWO FACTORS GOVERNED. THESE WERE:

1-TO ATTAIN GRADED DAMAGE IN A CROSS SECTION OF BOTH COMBAT AND SUPPORT SHIPS IN THE TARGET FLEET.

2-TO PRESERVE SOME TARGET SHIPS FOR THE SECOND AND PERHAPS THE THIRD ATOMIC BOMB TEST.

THE SECOND TRIAL, WHERE A BOMB WILL BE EXPLODED UNDER THE WATER OF BIKINI'S LAGOON, IS EXPECTED TO BE A SEVERE TEST OF A SHIP'S HULL TO WITHSTAND TREMENDOUS PRESSURE.

OFFICIALS ARE MAKING NO SPECIFIC PLANS FOR THE USE OF ANY PRESENT TARGET SHIPS IN THE THIRD DEEP WATER EXPERIMENT TENTATIVELY SET FOR NEXT WINTER.

ALSO IN THE PERIPHERY OF THE TARGET ARRAY IS THE GERMAN CRUISER PRINZ EUGEN, WHICH IS BEING SAVED FOR THE SAME UNSENTIMENTAL REASONS.

THE ZONE OF PROBABLE MINOR DAMAGE ALSO INCLUDES FIVE SUBMARINES, EIGHT OR NINE DESTROYERS, A DOZEN TRANSPORTS, AND 12 LANDING CRAFT.

UNDER OR NEAR THE HEART OF THE ATOMIC BLAST ARE THREE BATTLESHIPS, THREE CRUISERS AND A CARRIER. THE BULLSEYE BATTLESHIP NEVADA AND THE CARRIER INDEPENDENCE ALREADY HAVE BEEN SHAKEN BY THE WELL-AIMED PRAC-TICE BOMB, WHICH EXPLODED ALMOST EXACTLY OVER THE TARGET CENTER.

THE INNER ZONE ALSO EMBRACES SUCH SHIPS AS THE BATTLESHIP ARKANSAS, THE JAPANESE BATTLESHIP NAGATO AND THE JAPANESE CRUISER SAKAWA.
IN THE SAME DANGER ZONE ARE THE CRUISERS PENSACOLA AND SALT LAKE CITY, TWO DESTROYERS, THREE SUBMARINES AND A SPRINKLING OF TRANSPORTS AND LANDING CRAFT.
EXPERTS ARE NOT PREDICTING THAT ALL THESE SHIPS WILL BE SUNK, BUT THE NEVADA, THE INDEPENDENCE AND THE TWO JAPANESE WARSHIPS WILL BE IN A HOT SPOT IF ARMY AIRMEN DUPLICATE THE EXCELLENT AIMING OF MONDAY'S DRESS REHEARSAL.

IF TIME PERMITS, OBSERVERS MAY BE TAKEN ABOARD SOME TARGET SHIPS BEFORE THE FIRST TEST, AND THEN SHOWN OTHER VESSELS IN THE LAGOON AFTER THE BLAST--A SECURITY MOVE DESIGNED TO PREVENT PRECISE STUDY OF BOMB EFFECTS ON ANY INDIVIDUAL SHIP.
BIKINI'S NATIVE KING JUDA WILL NOT BE AMONG THE FOREIGN OBSERVERS.

ABOARD THE U.S.S.APPALACHIAN,JUNE 26-(AP)-THE TARGET SHIPS IN BIKINI LAGOON AND SOME OF THE ISLANDS NEARBY WILL BEGIN TICKING AFTER THE ATOMIC BOMB EXPLODES ABOVE THEM ABOUT JULY 1.
EVEN THE WATERS OF THE LAGOON WILL BEGIN TICKING, AND TICKS WILL EMANATE FROM THE HUGE ATOMIC CLOUD WHICH AT ITS TOP IS EXPECTED TO MUSH ROOM TO 16 MILES IN DIAMETER.
THE TICKING WILL COME FROM RADIOACTIVE WAVES OF THREE KINDS--ALL DANGEROUS--THAT WILL BE EMITTED BY GROUND, AIR, WATER AND SHIPS AFTER THEY HAVE BEEN HIT BY THE GREAT FLASH OF THE BOMB.
THE TICKS ARE NOT ORDINARILY AUDIBLE. THE SOUNDS WILL COME FROM THE GEIGER-MUELLER COUNTERS, THAT DETECT THESE RAYS AND TRANSLATE THEM INTO SOUND.
RADIO MIKES WILL PICK UP THE TICKING AREAS AND TRANSMIT THE SOUND TO THIS SHIP, BUT ESPECIALLY TO THE SAFETY OFFICERS OF THE CROSSROADS FLEET.
IF THE SOUNDS ARE LIKE POURING RAIN, SAFETY OFFICERS WILL KNOW THAT THE LAGOON IS STILL TO DANGEROUS EVEN FOR THE FEW HARDY SCIENTISTS WHO WILL ENTER FIRST FOR A LOOK AROUND.
IF THE TICKS SOUND LIKE A GENTLE SHOWER THAT WILL MEAN THE LAGOON IS FAIRLY SAFE.
THE OFFICIAL PREDICTION IS THAT THE TICKING WILL DIE OUT SUFFICIENTLY FOR A RE-ENTRY IN NOT MORE THAN 24 HOURS AFTER THE BOMB GOES OFF THE TIME MAY BE MUCH SHORTER.
BIKINI PROBABLY WILL CONTINUE TO TICK A LITTLE FOR YEARS. IT WAS ANNOUNCED ON THE APPALACHIAN THAT THE ATOMIC CRATER IN NEW MEXICO, WHERE THE FIRST BOMB WAS EXPLODED LAST JULY, IS STILL TICKING.
THE TICKING OF THE ATOMIC CLOUD WILL OE PICKED UP BY SHIPS FOLLOWING IT AND BY PLANES. THE SOUND WILL BE HEARD LONG BEFORE CREWS ARE NEAR ENOUGH TO SUFFER ANY HARM.
THIS TICKING C[illegible] ALWAYS BE HEARD WITH THE COUNTERS EVERYWHERE ON EARTH. MAN ALWAYS LIVES IN A SMALL AMOUNT OF THESE RAYS, AND YEARS OF MEDICAL STUDY SHOW HE CAN TAKE A SMALL INCREASE, SUCH AS THE WARNING ZONES AT BIKINI WILL GIVE, WITHOUT RISK.
OCEANOGRAPHERS' STUDIES MADE AVAILABLE HERE SHOW THAT THE RADIOACTIVE WATERS IN THE LAGOON WILL GO ROUND AND ROUND INSIDE BIKINI'S RING OF ISLANDS, CARRIED BY NATURAL CURRENTS.

A78FX
ONLY 2 PERCENT OF THE LAGOON'S WATERS SPILL OUT THROUGH THE ESTUARIES INTO THE OCEAN EACH DAY. BY THE TIME MUCH OF THE LAGOON WATER GETS OUT IT WILL HAVE LOST MOST OF THE DANGEROUS RAYS.
IN FACT, SCIENTISTS ARE ALMOST ENTHUSIASTIC ABOUT THE TICKING WATER, BECAUSE IT WILL GIVE THEM FOR THE FIRST TIME AN ACCURATE METHOD OF MEASURING SEA CURRENTS.
ONE RADIOACTIVE HAZARD WILL BE FALLING PARTICLES FROM THE BOMB CLOUD. IF RAIN COMES, THIS RADIOACTIVE SHOWER WILL BECOME MORE INTENSE AND DANGEROUS.
BUT ALL SHIPS OF THE CROSSROADS OPERATION WILL BE STATIONED MILES BEYOND THE OUTER-MOST EDGES OF THIS DEW OF DEATH.

BUT, PONDERED A SYMPATHETIC CONGRESS, WHAT TO DO ABOUT THE FIANCEE WHOSE COUNTRY HAD A FULL QUOTA AND A WAITING LIST? IT MIGHT TAKE YEARS.

AUSTRALIA AND NEW ZEALAND, FOR INSTANCE, HAVE ANNUAL QUOTAS OF 100 EACH. SUCH A STATE OF AFFAIRS WAS, CONGRESS THOUGHT, UNFAIR TO WARTIME ROMANCE.

THE "SWEETHEART BILL" OPENS THE DOORS TO FIANCEES IF:

(1) THEY HAVE BONA FIDE INTENTIONS OF MARRIAGE.

(2) THEY SET A DATE AND STICK TO IT.

THE BILL THINKS OF EVERYTHING. IF NO MARRIAGE OCCURS, IT SAYS STERNLY, BACK GOES THE FIANCEE.

ASKED FOR ADVICE, THE STATE DEPARTMENT HAD ONLY ONE SUGGESTION. THE BILL, IT POINTED OUT, CALLED FOR ADMISSION OF "FINANCEES OR FINANCES" OF MEMBERS OF THE ARMED FORCES.

ACTING SECRETARY DEAN ACHESON WROTE CONGRESS--DIPLOMATICALLY--THAT MAYBE IT HAD MADE A TYPOGRAPHICAL ERROR. SURELY IT MEANT TO ADMIT "FIANCEES AND FIANCES."

Najera Assails Reds On 'Abuse' of U. N. Veto

LARRY HAUCK

NEW YORK, June 27 (AP)—Dr. Francisco Castillo Najera, President of the United Nations Security Council and Foreign Minister of Mexico, tonight described Russia's repeated negative votes on the Spanish question as "abuse of the veto."

Castillo Najera, who exchanged sharp words with Soviet delegate Andrei A. Gromyko at last night's stormy council session, told reporters that the Spanish case "did not really merit" Gromyko's constant use of the veto.

VOTED WITH RUSSIA

"I have always opposed the veto power in essence," he said, "but I am particularly opposed to the abuse of the veto."

Castillo Najera, who voted with Russia, France and Poland for a worldwide diplomatic break with the regime of Generalissimo Francisco Franco, declared that the ultimate results of last night's debate are such that "it would not be strange if Franco, the man who stands accused, would interpret them in his favor."

Meanwhile, a final showdown on the veto question loomed as the aftermath of Russia's triple use of the veto in a single session.

EVATT [illegible] VETO

Dr. Herbert V. Evatt, of Australia, long a staunch foe of the veto, was reported ready to ask a full airing on the whole issue at the September meeting of the General Assembly and perhaps to make an outright demand that it be killed.

A source close to Evatt said that since Australia and several other members of the Council consider the question of the veto-on-the-veto of such vital importance, it can be presumed with certainty that Australia will raise the whole issue in the Assembly.

ISSUE DORMANT FOR MONTH

Evatt was represented as being particularly opposed to the right of a big Power to use the veto on the veto—in other words deciding that any question was substantive and thus subject to the weapon. The Charter sets forth that the veto applies to all substantive questions, but not to ones of procedure.

It was expected that the Spanish question would now lie dormant for at least a month. A spokesman for one of the delegations said it was apparent that efforts would be made in August to remove it from the Council agenda to clear the way for Assembly action.

LOOK AHEAD TO RECESS

As the weary delegates looked to a breathing spell in the summer weeks, only the matters of passing on new members and the possibility of Siam officially requesting action on the Siam-French Indo-China border question loomed ahead.

Dr. Oscar Lange, the Polish delegate, left today for a two-month visit to his homeland to report to the government. His alternate, Jerzy Michalowski, will sit on the Council. Lange declined comment on the veto question, declaring "it is a matter for the Big Powers—not us."

Veto Tops U.N. Issues After Clashes

E. Grunich

JUN 28 1946

New York, June 27 (AP)—Delegates to the United Nations Security Council were agreed today, after a confused and acrimonious debate, that the Spanish issue remains on the agenda and that the veto has become an overpowering weapon in their deliberations.

Soviet Delegate Andrei A. Gromyko demonstrated that any question brought before the Council can be knocked out by the single vote of any one of the "Big Five" permanent members. He wielded the veto three times last night on British-Australian proposals concerning the Spanish question.

Bitterest Session

After the Council's longest and bitterest session adjourned at 9 P.M., Australian Foreign Minister Herbert V. Evatt, who served as chairman of the Council subcommittee which investigated Spain, summed up the situation produced out of the confusion by saying:

1. The Spanish issue, by unrecorded agreement, remain unsettled before the Council for revival at the command of any member at any time, and

2. The Council remains committed to "moral condemnation" of the Franco regime.

Evatt challenged the validity of the method by which the veto was exercised in unprecedented fashion by Gromyko and declared the debate lasting five hours and 49 minutes constituted a "scandal."

Veto Power Criticized

British Delegate Sir Alexander Cadogan, in a United Nations "Charter Day" speech broadcast to the Empire last night, criticized the veto power and said it would force the United Nations into an "all or nothing policy." His speech was prepared well in advance of last night's Council session.

Throughout the protracted argument, in which Gromyko raised the question of parliamentary courtesy in a clash with Council President Francisco Castillo Najera, of Mexico, the details of the Spanish issue were almost complete overshadowed.

The Soviet delegate engaged in running arguments chiefly with Evatt and Castillo Najera and used the vote to kill a resolution and a separate amendment on which he had been out-voted by the majority.

Used Twice Before (INSERT)

Russia had used the veto only twice before, in London last winter on the Levantine question and here last week to defeat a twice-watered-down subcommittee proposal to pass the Spanish case along to the General Assembly.

Evatt clashed with Gromyko frequently in the final sweltering rounds of debate when the session turned into a grim game of slapping amendments onto rival amendments. (INSERT)

Russia last night exercised the veto on these majority-approved questions:

1. The British-Australian proposal to keep the Spanish case on the agenda without specifying a date for its revival and including provisions calling attention to the rights of the General Assembly to act.

President's Ruling

2. The Council president's ruling that the previous issue was procedural and not subject to veto.

3. A provision calling attention to the rights of the General Assembly to act.

French Delegate Alexandre Parodi declared that as the result of the Security Council session "it seems to me that those who are fighting for the freedom of Spain have less grounds to congratulate themselves than Franco and his regime."

Franco Held Gainer

A spokesman for the exiled Spanish Republican leadership said the clash between Gromyko and President Castillo Najera was "highly regrettable" and that the Council had engaged in "fruitless debate on matters of procedure or substance, the only result of which is to strengthen materially the Franco regime."

Castillo Najera's country, Mexico, recognizes the Spanish Republican leadership as the Government of Spain, and Russia has never given diplomatic recognition to Franco.

U. N. SITE GROUP TO GET STATE AID

JUN 28 1946

Committee Named by Baldwin Will Assist in County Survey.

NEW YORK, June 27 (AP)—Representatives of the Advisory committee on a United Nations home site set up in Connecticut by Governor Baldwin met at Hunter College today with members of the U. N. Headquarters commission who are seeking a permanent location in the Fairfield-Westchester area of Connecticut and New York.

After a general discussion of legal questions, it was decided that another session would be held "at some convenient place between New Haven and Greenwich" in about two weeks.

To Provide Help

The Connecticut group agreed to provide appropriate technical aides to help the commission with its inspections of the area and to gather information from residents to aid in making a selection.

The following from Connecticut attended the session:

Roger S. Baldwin of Greenwich; Hugh M. Alcorn, Sr., of Suffield; Manfred W. Ehrich of Stamford, Senator Leon Riscassi of Hartford; Speaker E. Lea Marsh, Jr., of Old Lyme, Henry H. Hunt of Glastonbury; Henry Kelley of New Canaan, Sumner McCall of Greenwich, George T. Barrett of Stamford, Wilbur Peck of Greenwich, Theodore Yudain, editor of Greenwich Time, Kingsley Gillespie, publisher of the Stamford Advocate, Mrs. Stanley Resor of Greenwich and Walter Frese of Stamford.

Dewey Also Acts

Meanwhile Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York appointed special representatives to work with the Headquarters commission.

The Governor, after meeting four members of the commission, said that Orrin D. Judd, of Brooklyn, former solicitor general and now special assistant in the attorney general's office, and State Senator Pliny Williamson, Scarsdale Republican, would represent the state in all U.N. matters.

Mr. Dewey met with Sir Angus Fletcher of Great Britain, Awni Khalidi of Iraq, Juan F. Yriart of Uruguay, and Jonkeer Jan de Ranitz of the Netherlands.

"I am deeply gratified by the assurances of Sir Angus and his associates that they earnestly desire within the limits of their mandate to find a location most agreeable to the people of the area and intend to consult with local officials and work out matters, including removal of property from the tax rolls to the satisfaction of all concerned insofar as humanly possible," Governor Dewey said.

BREAD RATIONING ORDERED IN BRITAIN

ED CB-096

LONDON, June 27 — (AP) Britain today rationed bread and flour effective July 21, cutting food to a point as low as at any time during the war [illegible] instant protest from [illegible]

The long-dreaded step, evaded throughout six years of hostilities, was announced to a glum House of Commons by Food Minister John Strachey, who said there would be a basic bread ration of nine ounces daily for adults, with less for children and more for manual workers. The bread ration will be about three ounces a week less than present average consumption.

First public reaction was one of disappointment tempered by the fact that most people had expected the decision.

Opposed by Housewives

But the British Housewives league, claiming thousands of members, immediately declared, "We are not going to take this lying down."

Former Prime Minister Winston Churchill told the House that "this is one of the gravest announcements ever heard made in the House in the time of peace."

In giving details of the decision, Strachey said "it would not be fair to say that the United States is making no efforts or sacrifices in this matter."

"The United States," he added, "is suffering very considerably in certain areas from difficulties of distribution."

Strachey explained that bread rationing would cut consumption by five to 10 per cent and declared it was absolutely necessary in order to avoid gambling with "the basic food supply of the British people."

Withholds Statistics

He declined to give the grain facts and figures behind the decision; however demanding vigorous prodding from Churchill.

Churchill, recalling that his wartime coalition cabinet never rationed bread "even in the darkest days of submarine warfare," declared that "if we have to have rationing of bread, we must, but we are entitled to have the facts and figures."

Strachey replied there are very great objections to mentioning our bread stocks." He said the introduction of rationing was the best proof to the world that "we are concealing no stocks of bread, flour and wheat as we have very often been accused of doing."

Strachey's announcement came less than 24 hours after his return from Ottawa where he failed to reach an agreement with the Canadian government on a British-Canadian wheat deal.

He gave no indication how long Britain's bread rationing might last — unoffical estimates range from a year to two years — but denied a suggestion by Churchill that a "far more stringent" ration was in prospect.

Restaurant Supply Cut

Later, at a news conference, the food minister said, restaurants would be cut five to 10 per cent in their bread supply. Already they are forbidden to serve bread except by request of the diner.

The government recently estimated that the average Briton ate 60 ounces of bread a week—three ounces less than the newly announced ration for the average adult. Strachey explained that the saving would come in flour and cakes.

Strachey also announced that the meat ration would be increased from one shilling two pence (approximately 24 cents) worth weekly per person to one shilling four pence (approximately 28 cents) worth. The increase is equivalent to about three small pork chops.

The remainder of the weekly ration is about the same as during the war—two ounces of butter, two ounces of lard, four ounces of margarine, three ounces of bacon, two ounces of cheese, eight ounces of sugar, three ounces of tea, two eggs and 2 1-2 pints of milk.

Small quantities of crackers, canned food and other rationed items also can be purchased. Fresh fruit and vegetables are not rationed but most kinds are expensive. Peaches recently dropped from two shillings six pence (fifty cents) to one and six (30 cents) each.

Weekly rations of most foods fluctuated during the war—cheese up or down, for example—with the average often higher than the present ration. (ADD)

BRITISH TO START BREAD AND FLOUR RATIONING JULY 21

JUN 28 1946

Act to Maintain Food Supply —Truman Says U. S. Meets Grain Goal.

London, June 27 (A. P.).—Great Britain will ration bread and flour next month, a measure avoided throughout the last two wars. John Strachey, Minister of Food, announced in the House of Commons today that the program alloting the British a basic nine ounces of bread daily would start July 21.

Meat rations were raised slightly, allowing Britons to buy meat worth 28 cents a week, rather than 24 cents.

Most adults will receive nine ounces of bread daily. Male manual workers will receive fifteen ounces and women laborers and expectant mothers will receive eleven.

DAY

Children under 1 year of age will be allowed two ounces daily; children 1 to 5 years old, four ounces; children 5 to 11 years, eight ounces; and those 11 to 18 years, twelve ounces.

Churchill Wants Debate.

Winston Churchill, wartime Prime Minister who now leads the Conservative opposition, immediately challenged Labor to a debate.

"The decision of the Government to introduce the rationing of bread on July 21 without furnishing any of the facts or figures on which the decision is based makes debate imperative," Churchill said.

"This is one of the gravest announcements I have ever heard in the House in the time of peace. What is the saving? Could he (Strachey) give us some figures about that?

"Are we to assume that, owing to some grave miscalculations or other untoward events we are to expect a far more stringent diminution in the bread available to this country than that maintained at 5 or 10 per cent—" The rest of his words were (drowned out in shouts from the Labor party benches).

Strachey replied: "Nothing I have said carries that implication in any respect."

"I need scarcely emphasize that the Government has reached this decision because they are convinced that to fail to ration bread and flour at the present time would be to take an unjustifiable risk with the basic food supply of the British people," the Food Minister of the Labor Government said.

Ration books good for a year from July 21 now are being distributed.

Strachey estimated the rationing levels would reduce bread consumption 5 to 10 per cent.

The rationing will be measured in bread units. The one-pound and 12-ounce loaf of bread will require four bread units; one pound of bread flour, three units, and one pound of confectionery flour, two units.

Heavy bread eaters will be able to convert other food rationing points into bread units, and persons who eat little bread may convert their points into rations for other foods.

U. S. Aids Hungry, Heinz Tells Br

LONDON, June 27 (AP).—The Times of London published today a letter signed by H. J. Heinz, of the H. J. Heinz Co., Pittsburgh, declaring that the American tradition of common decency and human kindness "demands that we help feed the hungry."

Heinz wrote that he was "deeply disturbed by the fact that so many Englishmen do not believe the United States is bearing its full share of the responsibility in feeding the hungry peoples of Europe."

"The people of the United States have taken voluntary steps which have greatly aided in making vast quantities of food available," he said. "In my home town of Pittsburgh about 1,000,000 pounds of food were collected in the first week of the drive to get canned goods for dispatch to Europe."

Vienna Death Rate Up Sharply in 1945

London, June 27 (A. P.).—The mortality rate in Vienna in 1945 was treble that of 1930, and twice as many people died last year as in the war year 1944, European headquarters of the United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration reported today.

The report said the suicide rate had "increased dangerously." Compared with 670 in 1943 and 408 in 1919, there were 1,723 suicides reported in 1945. Infant mortality has increased fourfold since the beginning of the war.

PEERS CRITICIZE CUTS IN LIVESTOCK FEED

LONDON, June 27—(AP) The Labor government suffered its third defeat in the House of Lords tonight when Conservative peers carried, 43 to 12, a motion criticizing recent government-ordered cuts in livestock feed allocations.

Some parliamentary observers said the action brought the House of Lords a step nearer a showdown with the government, whose leaders have announced they will not tolerate "upper" house interference.

DODECANESE ISLES TO GO TO GREECE, MINISTERS DECIDE

JUN 28 1946

Italy Will Lose Strategic Chain in Eastern Mediterranean.

FRANCE GETS LAND

Tenda, Briga Regions on Frontier to Be Taken from Rome.

PARIS, June 27—(AP) The "Big Four" foreign ministers agreed today to give the strategic Italian-owned Dodecanese islands to Greece, and the Tenda and Briga regions on the Franco-Italian border to France, an American informant said tonight.

U. S. Secretary of State James F. Byrnes was so pleased over the progress made in the fruitful three-hour session that he said "I'll need a couple of minutes to catch my breath and recover from the shock," a British source reported.

Conference Date Uncertain

Despite the elation of the delegates leaving the council hall, a British authority said he did not believe it would be possible to hold a European peace conference in July, as sought by the Americans, but "perhaps later in the summer."

In today's session Soviet Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov also accepted a United States proposal concerning Romanian assets in Allied countries and agreed with the other ministers to limit the Bulgarian navy to 7,250 tons.

No agreement was reported in the key issue of Trieste, freedom of navigation of the Danube, or other major issues at stake as the conference's self-imposed Friday deadline for work on the Italian and Balkan peace treaties neared.

The decision to give the Dodecanese islands to Greece carried the provision that they be demilitarized, the American informant said. The agreement to give the Tenda and Briga regions to France carried the stipulation that Italy would continue to receive electricity from hydro-electric plants in the valleys.

Danube Question Deadlocked

No progress was made on the question of freedom of navigation on the Danube when Byrnes and British Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin refused to accept Soviet amendments to a British-proposed statement offered yesterday on that matter.

The British and American objections came on a Russian demand for deletion of a phrase stating that navigation should be on a basis of complete equality.

Byrnes said that as a result of the disagreement he would revert to his original demand that a clause on Danubian navigation be inserted in the Romanian treaty.

Agreement was reached, however, on a clause obliging Romania to restore United Nations property rights seized during the War.

The ministers did not agree on clauses concerning non-discrimination against foreign airlines, but toward the end of the three-hour meeting they decided, almost without discussion, to limit the future size of the Bulgarian navy to 7,250 tons with a personnel of 3,100 men, an American source said.

Agrees to French Demands

Then Molotov announced that the Soviet government had agreed to the French demands for the Tenda and Briga regions, providing Italian rights to receive electricity were guaranteed.

The other three ministers jumped at Molotov's offer and the issue was settled in record time. French Foreign Minister Georges Bidault thanked the ministers for recognizing the French position.

Byrnes was quoted by British sources as saying then that since the ministers had "such good luck today" they should take up the Dodecanese problem which in the past Molotov had said he was not ready to discuss.

Molotov replied that he was willing and his government accepted the American proposal, presented in London last September, that the islands go to Greece, and be demilitarized.

There was no qualification of the Soviet acceptance, the American informant said.

The other three ministers quickly accepted the American proposal and an audible gasp was heard at the conference table, one source said.

Byrnes jokingly suggested that the ministers tackle the Italian colonial problem, but the ministers by that time were ready to adjourn.

Continue Work Today

They will meet again tomorrow to continue with the Bulgarian, Hungarian and Finnish treaties. The deputies were instructed to meet tomorrow morning to complete drafting of skeleton treaties for presentation to the council.

The special commission for the Italian colonial question was also directed to meet tomorrow morning.

The Dodecanese islands previously belonged to Italy. Byrnes announced last fall that Italy was willing to cede them to Greece, which had made strong demands for them.

Situated in the eastern Mediterranean, the 13 small islands, of which Rhodes is the largest, were occupied by Italy in 1911 during the war between Turkey and Italy. They are inhabited principally by Greek sponge fishermen, with a population of approximately 140,000.

During the war the Germans placed a number of garrisons on the islands and the British made unsuccessful attempts to capture them.

Russia at one time during the foreign ministers' negotiations was reported demanding the right to establish naval or marine bases in the islands.

Yugoslavs Reject Plan

The Yugoslavs put the cap today on the western powers' refusal last night of two Soviet compromise offerings on the key Trieste issue. Vice-Premier Edward Kardelj told a news conference here that his country could not agree to a Soviet plan for joint Italian-Yugoslav sovereignty over the Adriatic port, but insisted on full control of the disputed city.

The Russians had also suggested that Trieste be made an autonomous district under Yugoslav sovereignty. Kardelj did not comment on this, but he rejected the French proposal for internationalizing the city for 10 years before holding a plebiscite to determine its own sovereignty.

Another disagreement was said to have arisen today over the Italian colonial problem. This was believed to have been settled by a decision to shelve the issue for a year and give it to a special commission for study, with the present occupying power administering each colony under authority of the four powers.

A French source said that Soviet Delegate Andrei Vishinsky held that four-power council should be sent to govern each colony until the commission reached a decision or sent the matter to the United Nations trusteeship council. British Delegate Baldwyn Jebb objected strenuously, this source added.

The ministers were still in disagreement over the reparations from Italy, the distribution of surplus Italian naval units, and compensation for damaged allied property in Italy. (ADD)

Parley Clings To Hope Of Trieste Settlement

1946

JUN 28 1946

Paris, June 27 (AP)—The Western Allies rejected last night two Russion counter proposals for the disposition of disputed Trieste, leaving the Foreign Ministers Council still deadlocked today on the most difficult phase of the Italian peace treaty.

DAY

The Russian suggestions, offered by Soviet Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov, as a compromise following his rejection of a French plan to internationalize the Adriatic port, proposed (1) that Trieste be made an autonomous district under Yugoslav sovereignty, or (2) that the city be placed under the joint sovereignty of Italy and Yugoslavia.

Both plans were turned down by the United States, British and French Foreign Ministers on the grounds that they were unworkable, that they ignored the fact that Trieste is ethnologically Italian and that the ethnic principle was accepted as a yardstick by the Ministers in London last September.

Hope Pinned On Private Talks

While the outcome apparently left the Council as far from agreement as ever, some British circles indicated they were heartened by Molotov's maneuver, which they interpreted as a sign of Russia's willingness to bargain. These quarters predicted that two or three days more of private conversations might bring agreement.

Molotov's proposals were presented at a special night session which was called at the request of the Soviet Foreign Minister and which continued until past midnight.

The session—first night meeting of the ministers since they first assembled in April—was held in an atmosphere of expectancy, heightened by French press reports that Molotov was looking for arrival of an important message from Moscow which might contain a surprise, but that his Government would never agree to any settlement which was incompatible with Yugoslavia's desire for sovereignty over Trieste.

He brushed aside the previous French proposal for internationalization of Trieste with the assertion that Russia would not consider anything "vogue."

Molotov first proposed that Trieste be made an autonomous district under Yugoslav sovereignty but administered under a status approved by the four big powers.

As an alternative, Molotov suggested that Trieste be made an autonomous district under the joint sovereignty of Yugoslavia and Italy, with a house of representatives and two governors, one of whom would be an Italian and the other a Yugoslav. This plan he decribed as "an extreme concession."

United States Secretary of State James F. Byrnes, who was the first to reply, declared the first Russian plan would not work because the population of Trieste was predominantly Italian and that the second would be equally unworkable because it would leave a feeling of uncertainty in the district as to who actually was in charge.

Trieste Proposals Hit By Slav

JUN 28 19

Paris, June 27 (AP)—Edward Kardelj, Yugoslav deputy premier, said today that Yugoslavia cannot agree to a Russian proposal for joint Italian-Yugoslav sovereignty over Trieste.

DAY

He also rejected the French proposal to internationalize the city for ten years, with a plebiscite eventually determining its final disposition.

Further, Kardelj said that Yugoslavia would not accept at settlement by a 21-nation peace conference or the United Nations Assembly. The question should be settled by the four Foreign Ministers, he declared.

Kardelj asserted that Yugoslavia would refuse to grant any economic or transport facilities through its territory to Trieste if the city is not placed under Yugoslav sovereignty. Saying that the proposal of Russian Foreign Minister Molotov for joint sovereignty over Trieste was a surprise to him, Kardelj reiterated that the only solution his country would accept was to give the city to Yugoslavia.

All Italy Bitter Over Outlook On Trieste

J. McKnight

JUN 28 1946

Rome, June 27 (AP)—Italian reaction to the peace which apparently is shaping up at Paris is one of bitter disillusionment mixed with growing defiance.

Casting off the caution usually displayed by the vanquished, the public leaders of all parties, from Communist to Monarchist, are declaring their sharp disappointment at the trend of the Foreign Ministers' meetings.

Tension Increases

The Italian argument is that Italy has repented of her Fascist sins, voted out the Savoy monarchy and now deserves better of the Allies than to be deprived of Trieste and Istria, the colonies that were Italian before the days of fascism, and of most of her fleet, while suffering reparations payments.

The sore spot over the unsettled question of Trieste, with dispatches from the Adriatic port reporting tension on the increase as a result of the trend toward compromise at Paris.

DAY

Says No Regime Could Sign

Premier Alcide de Gasperi reiterated this week that neither his nor any other Italian Government would sign a peace treaty that gives away Trieste. He said Italy would "resist with all our strength," adding "we are weak and unarmed but we will not suffer outrage to our rights."

Even more eloquently, 86-year-old Vittorio Orlando, who, as a member of the first "Big Four" helped write the First World War peace at Versailles, declared "no material force and no immoral barter" could detach Trieste and Istria from Italy.

Charges Brutal Surgery

The Italian press pictures the foreign ministers at Paris as about to tear Trieste from Italy.

A bitterly-phrased editorial in the independent Il Momento today described Italy as "stretched out on a table" ready to be "cut up, regardless of right and of the reactions of the victim, for the sole purpose of preventing the surgeons from coming to blows and cutting up each other."

LAST NAZI ON TRIAL OPENS HIS DEFENSE

I. Reed

NUERNBERG, June 27—(AP) Propagandist Hans Fritzsche, last of 21 top Nazis to present his defense against war crimes charges, said today that even limited democratic control in Germany would have made such a catastrophe as the Second World War impossible.

Fritzsche left the stand at the noon recess, and the International Military Tribunal held a closed session this afternoon. The tribunal still has to hear the defense of Martin Bormann, missing deputy fuehrer who is being tried in absentia, and the rest of the prosecution's case against Nazi organizations.

NIGHT

Fritzsche said the dictatorship form of government contributed directly to the magnitude of the war tragedy, and declared he had tried in vain to loosen the tight control under which Joseph Goebbels held the press and radio. Fritzsche said Goebbels was in some ways more dictatorial than Hitler.

Gen. Kurt Dittmar, official radio commentator for the German High command, in a statement introduced by the defense said he believed Fritzsche was a "secret opponent of the regime." Dittmar said he was able to keep a critical attitude in his broadcasts "due to the approval and protection of Fritzsche."

During the war, Fritzsche tried to divide the Allies by radio propaganda. He said today that he hoped the Allies would stay united because "Germany would be the first victim of any conflict."

The former editor, contradicting testimony of other defendants, said that Germany had prepared the offensive against Russia for a long time. He said he saw the extended preparations for the invasion during service as a soldier on the eastern front.

War Blamed On 'Dictator'

I. Reed

Nuernberg, June 27 (AP)—Hans Fritzsche, Nazi editor and propagandist, told the International Military Tribunal today that the "catastrophe" of the second World War "would have been impossible if there had been some kind of democratic control in Germany."

Fritzsche said he was convinced that the dictatorship form of government contributed directly to the magnitude of the horror that hit Europe.

DAY

"Democratic control, even limited, would have made such a catastrophe impossible," he said.

Hopes Allies Stay United

The man who sought to split the Allies by radio propaganda during the war declared he now hopes they remain united, because "Germany would be the first victim of any conflict."

Fritzsche said he forbade the German radio and press from referring to the fanatical master-race theory. He asserted that intelligent Germans never believed in "such nonsense," but SS men were trained from youth to think there was something to it.

Paul Josef Goebbels created the press and radio setup and kept an iron control, Fritzsche testified. He tried to "loosen the bonds," but was frustrated by the Propaganda Minister, who in some ways was more dictatorial than Hitler, he said.

Long Preparing Against Russia

Fritzsche said he learned during a brief tour as a soldier on the Eastern front that Germany had prepared her offensive against Russia for a long time.

"I saw that extended preparations had been made for the occupation and administration of territories reaching as far as the Crimea," he testified.

Kearney denied, however, that there was any intent to give the witnesses preferential treatment, and said that prosecutors at the London trial had complained, on the contrary, that witnesses were being discriminated against. Several prosecution witnesses have complained of discrimination since the trials were transferred here from London.

Kearney said the five demands granted to striking prisoner witnesses were: Transfer from the London guardhouse; assurances that they would not be discriminated against because of their testimony; freedom from handcuffs; transfer of the trials from London, and hearings before a clemency board.

The sentence of one prisoner was remitted, he added.

Chayes was attacking the credibility of witnesses who have testified against Ennis, one of six officers and 10 enlisted men charged with cruelties at Lichfield. Most of the witnesses against Ennis were once imprisoned at Lichfield, and several still are guardhouse prisoners serving court martial sentences.

GI WITNESSES GOT SPECIAL BENEFITS, COUNSEL CHARGES

D. Dozier

JUN 28 1946

BAD NAUHEIM, Germany, June 27—(AP) A defense lawyer charged today that prosecution witnesses were given special privileges to induce them to testify against defendants in the Lichfield prison camp trials—a charge immediately denied by a judge advocate staff officer.

NIGHT

Another court martial, meanwhile, convicted an eighth defendant, Pfc. Adolf T. Zortz of Milwaukee, of striking an American soldier-prisoner at the detention camp in England, but merely reprimanded him without imposing a fine or imprisonment.

Col. Edward Chayes of Chicago, attorney for Lt. Leonard W. Ennis of Peekskill, N. Y., made the charge of special privileges for prosecution witnesses, and declared "because of these benefits, their testimony is likely to be colored and biased."

He said prisoner witnesses were granted five demands by high army officers after "going on strike" and refusing to testify at one of the Lichfield trials held in London.

He called as a witness Maj. Richard D. Kearney of Cincinnati, formerly of the staff of the judge advocate in London, who admitted that five demands had been granted.

GI At Lichfield Guilty, Gets Reprimand

JUN 2

Bad Nauheim, Germany, June 27 (AP)—Pfc. Adolf T. Zortz, of Milwaukee, was convicted but only "reprimanded" by a United States military court today for striking an American soldier at the Lichfield guardhouse.

He was the first of eight soldiers convicted in the lengthy trials to escape either fine or imprisonment. Zortz, 27, became a jailer at the guardhouse in England after being wounded in France. He was found guilty of striking a prisoner "on the head and body with his fists."

DAY

Admits Striking Prisoners

He admitted on the witness stand that he hit Private F. C. Moore, of New Haven, Conn., and other prisoners whose names he did not recall. He insisted it was the custom to beat prisoners, on orders from officers to "treat the men rough."

Col. James A. Kilian, Highland Park, Ill., is currently on trial before another court-martial for his conduct while commandant at Lichfield.

Zortz testified in his trial, which lasted barely three hours, that "the officers told us we had the backing of the whole post."

"Treated Like Dogs"

Testifying against Kilian, Private Louis L. Kardon, of Philadelphia, a former Lichfield prisoner, said the guardhouse was "just like a German concentration camp" and "they treated us like a bunch of dogs."

Kardon said when he returned to Lichfield on charges of being a.w.o.l. he was beaten and kicked by a guard.

Penalty For "Gloves"

Pfc. Robert W. Schwerdtfeger, of South Nashville, Tenn., asserted that because he refused to remove a pair of socks he was wearing as substitutes for gloves he was slapped in the face by one guard, hit with a club, double-timed for 45 minutes, forced to stand nose and toes to a wall for three hours, given special night work and placed in solitary confinement for five days in a dark cell on a bread-and-water diet.

The young combat veteran, who was wounded in France, said he waited more than three weeks in Lichfield trial, for going a.w.o.l. after his release from the hospital.

GERMANS PROTEST EVICTION DECREE

JUN 28 1946

4,000 Stage Mass Demonstration in Hamburg City Square.

HAMBURG, Germany, June 27—(AP) In the first mass German demonstration against the Allied occupation, 4,000 Hamburg citizens stormed angrily into the city square today protesting an order for the evacuation of persons from their homes to make room for British headquarters.

Under the order approximately 30,000 persons will be required to give up their homes to make room for the families of British military personnel.

NIGHT

No Reported

British military and German civilian police made a number of arrests, but no official figure was announced.

Twice the crowd sang "Deutschland Ueber Alles," the historic German national anthem, and knocked the hats off of civilian men who had remained with their heads covered during the singing.

Except for the shouting and singing, the demonstration was fairly orderly. No injuries were reported.

"First phosphorous bombs, now removal," the crowd chanted, referring to Allied air raids during the war which destroyed great sections of the city and the present order for thousands to quit their overcrowded living quarters.

Two Hour Demonstration

The demonstration lasted about two hours.

Appearing on a city hall balcony, Burgermeister Petersen appealed to the demonstrators to disperse, but without effect.

"Down with Petersen!" the crowd shouted. "Resign for the good of your people!"

Allied observers here were unable to recall any demonstration so large in any of the four Allied zones of occupation during the past year. Last spring several hundred indignant housewives in Stuttgart protested to American military authorities over their prospective eviction to make room for arriving American dependents. But there has been nothing like the defiant attitude of today's demonstration manifested publicly elsewhere.

British authorities recently announced a long-term project to concentrate British army and military government headquarters in Hamburg. It was stated that hundreds of homes would be built during the next year to house British families. At present British headquarters are scattered over wide distances.

Hamburg Citizens In Angry Protest

Hamburg, Germany, June 27 (A. P.).—In the first mass German demonstration against the Allied occupation 4,000 Hamburg citizens stormed angrily into the city square today protesting an order for the evacuation of persons from their homes to make room for British headquarters.

NAZI TAKES LIFE AFTER HIS SEIZURE

DACHAU, June 27—(AP) Stripped of his clothing but using a single blanket as a noose, the former Nazi commander of the Flossenburg concentration camp hanged himself in a Nuernberg jail less than 24 hours after his capture, U. S. Army authorities said today.

He was [illegible] Max Koegel, wanted in connection with the slaying of 40,000 inmates at the concentration camp, for which 52 of his subordinates are on trial before a military tribunal here.

Koegel was arrested yesterday by American agents who discovered him disguised as a bearded farmer in a Bavarian village and was brought to the Nuernberg jail last night. Authorities removed all his clothing and gave him one blanket. Two guards stood at his door during the night, but when military police entered his cell for the morning checkup they found him unconscious, his neck encircled by a noose attached to a door handle. Adrenalin was administered, but he died three hours later.

Koegel admitted his identity as former commander of the camp near the Czech frontier and submitted quietly to his captors. Papers on his person showed he had been arrested previously by American authorities, but had been released.

FLOSSENBERG SS CHIEF A SUICIDE

Dachau, June 27 (A. P.).—Captured by American agents, the former Nazi commander of the Flossenberg concentration camp committed suicide in Nuernberg Jail today as fifty-two of his subordinates continued on trial for their lives before the Allied Military Tribunal.

Lieut. Col. Max Koegel, long-missing camp commandant wanted in connection with the murder of 46,000 inmates, hanged himself with a blanket less than twenty-four hours after his arrest, the Army authorities announced. Two guards found him unconscious, his neck encircled by a noose attached to a door handle. He was given adrenalin but died three hours later. He was an SS officer.

He had been found in a Bavarian village, working as a farmhand.

WORD OF WARNING TO GERMAN SCHOOLS

Berlin, June 27 (A. P.).—Any German teacher or student who spreads militaristic, Nazi or anti-democratic doctrines will henceforth be dismissed by order of the Allied Control Authority, it was announced last night.

The interpretation of anti-democratic and militaristic will be left to the zone commanders, an American spokesman said.

BOBBY PIN CRISIS RUFFLES MRS. YANK

Berlin, June 27 (A. P.).—American housewives in Germany, better off in most ways than their sisters at home, are facing a bobby pin crisis.

"We just can't find them anywhere," the ladies wail.

Bobby pins are one of several small shortages that have developed in recent weeks, since Army wives arrived to undertake the adventure of housekeeping in a foreign land.

"I have a thousand dollar rug on my floor and a $600 set of china in my cupboard," said one wife, "but I'd give my eyeteeth for some waxed paper and a good old-fashioned American mop."

LAUDS G. I.'S IN REICH

Berlin, June 27 (A. P.).—The Rev. Dr. Daniel A. Poling of Philadelphia, president of the World's Christian Endeavor Union, today described the American Army of Occupation as a "fair cross-section of American life which has been misrepresented by some regrettable incidents of misconduct" in Germany.

Dr. Polling, who has been studying soldier morals and morale, praised the efforts of the United States Army and Military Government authorities to safeguard and correct the soldiers' morale, and cautioned the American home-front not to lose interest in the troops over here. I think the Army and Military Government are doing a vigorous and good job of trying to help the fellow who wants to stay decent remain so," he added.

Three G. I.'s in Reich Get Life for Rape

Heidelberg, Germany, June 27 (A. P.).—The United States Third Army announced today that three 19-year-old American soldiers have been sentenced to life imprisonment and dishonorable discharge for raping a German girl. Their names were withheld until the sentence is reviewed by the War Department.

Nicola Likely To Be President Of Italy

Rome, June 27 (AP)—Enrico de Nicola, 68-year-old former senator of pre-Fascist days, appeared today to be the likeliest choice for provisional president of Italy when the constituent assembly convenes tomorrow to name a man for the interim post.

The session was originally called for today, but was postponed when the various parties found difficulty in getting together on a candidate.

MASS EXECUTIONS REVEALED AT TRIAL

BELGRADE, June 27—(AP) Two Belgrade grave diggers, the brothers Bozidar and Vladimir Milutinovic, told a Yugoslav military tribunal today they witnessed the mass executions and burials of almost 20,000 Yugoslav concentration camp prisoners during the Nazi occupation.

In addition, the president of the court trying Gen. Draja Mihailovic and 23 others on charges of treason and collaboration, read a statement from an absent prosecution witness saying the Germans had burned 70,000 corpses at the Yaynitzi concentration camp near Belgrade.

The brothers testified in the case of Dragi Yovanovic, who was accused in the indictment drawn by the Tito government of being responsible through collaboration with the Germans of mass shootings and gas chamber deaths at internment camps near Belgrade.

Bozidar testified he saw between 6,000 and 7,000 persons, including small children, shot to death at Yaynitzi.

Vladimir asserted he handled 7,000 to 8,000 corpses, not counting 12,000 victims of the gas chamber.

Jews were slaughtered at the rate of 200 daily for 60 consecutive days, the witnesses declared. A third grave digger, Vidoje Nikitovic, said nearly 100 trenches were dug for Jewish victims, with 150 thrown into each one.

20,000 Slavs' Deaths Told

Belgrade, June 27 (AP)—Two Belgrade grave diggers, appearing as prosecution witnesses at the trial of Gen. Draja Mihailovic, testified today that during the two and one-half years of the German occupation they witnessed the execution and burial of almost 20,000 Yugoslav citizens.

One of the witnesses, Bozidar Milutintvic, told the court he saw 6,000 or 7,000 people, including many children, shot to death at the Yayintzi concentration camp near Belgrade.

Handled 7,000 Corpses

His brother, Vladimir, testified that he personally had handled 7,000 to 8,000 corpses and estimated that he had seen 12,000 more removed from gas chambers.

Their testimony was presented by the prosecution to support its case against Dragi Yovanovic, one of Mihailovic's codefendants, who is accused of collaborating with the Germans in connection with mass shooting and gas-chamber executions in the Belgrade area.

Reds Support Ouster.

Bucharest, June 27 (A. P.).—The newspaper Graiulnou said yesterday that Reuben Markham, Christian Science Monitor correspondent, was expelled from Romania for "repeated violations of the usages of foreign correspondents such as misrepresenting the situation in Romania and spreading provocative rumors prejudicial to the cause of unity among the great Powers."

This Romanian language Red Army newspaper itself has been the chief vehicle here during the past three months for a series of attacks on the United States, accusing America of "expansionist and reactionary" tendencies.

Official United States protests have been made to the Allied Control Commission that Graiulnou's editorials, which were followed up closely by the Communist press, were spreading mistrust among the Allies before the public of a defeated Power. The answer was that Graiulnou was a Red Army organ and therefore cannot be controlled by the mission.

Red Honored as Atom Splitter

But Soviet Scientist Gets Only $8333, While Others Get $16,666 Prizes.

Moscow, June 27 (A. P.).—Alexander P. Zhdanov, physicist and cosmic ray researcher who is credited with discovering a new way to split the atom, today received a Stalin award of 100,000 rubles ($8,333 at the diplomatic exchange rate). Four other scientists got twice as much for work in organic chemistry and physiology.

Zhdanov is head of the laboratory of the Radium Institute of the Academy of Science. His citation said he was rewarded for his discovery of methods of disintegrating an atomic nucleus by cosmic rays. The Soviet Government newspaper Pravda commented as follows on the awards, totalling 4,100,000 rubles ($341,653) to 330 Russian scientists, writers, artists and intellectuals: "Without fear, our scientists penetrate into the depth of the unlearned world, investigating new sources of energy. Soviet scientific intellectuals do not know that painful division felt in capitalistic countries by many scientists, who are conscious that their discoveries may be placed in the service of aggression and imperialistic war.

Some Other Awards.

"Their science becomes the science of the destruction of the world's culture and civilization. Soviet scientific technic is permeated with the noble spirit of Soviet humanism by which all our socialistic culture breathes. Soviet science serves its country and all humanity."

The Council of Ministers of the Soviet Union published a decree listing the awards. Sergei Prokofiev, composer, was awarded the same amount as Zhdanov for his "Cinderella Ballet." Olga Lepeshinskaya and Galina Sergeyevna, ballet dancers, each received 12,000 rubles ($980) for intepreting the "Cinderella Ballet." Eugene Tarle, historian, received 40,000 rubles ($3,333) for diplomatic writing; Georgi F. Alexandrov, chief of the propaganda section of the Communist Party Central Committee, won 100,000 rubles ($8,333) for his "History of Western European Philosophy" published last year. Alexei Shchusev, designer of Lenin's red marble tomb, and four others divided 50,000 rubles ($4,166) for interior decoration of the tomb.

Markham Says Repression of Freedom Is Equal to That by Any Tyrant in History.

L. L. Emmkales

Athens, June 27 (A. P.).—Reuben H. Markham, for twenty years Balkan correspondent for the Christian Science Monitor, said today that history's worst repressions of freedom were "being matched by the Communist-dominated governments in Bulgaria and Romania."

Markham arrived in Athens Monday from Bucharest after his expulsion from Romania despite vigorous protests by the United States Government. Acting Secretary of State Dean Acheson announced the expulsion and failure of the Government's efforts on Markham's behalf Tuesday.

Markham said in an interview that "the worst that any tyrant ever did in the way of violence, personal humiliation, the breaking up of meetings, censoring the press and preventing the expression of public opinion is now being matched by the Communist-dominated governments in Bulgaria and Romania as I personally saw it."

DAY

Under Constant Attack.

The correspondent, whose most recent Balkan assignment started last August, said he had been under constant attack by the Communist-controlled press because of his dispatches.

Markham said his dispatches reported "Russian-imposed dictatorial methods of Communist-dominated governments," including "concentration camps and executions in the form of legal massacres, the victims of which are placed in unmarked graves" in Bulgaria. Bulgarian courts, he said, are "a travesty of justice and people are killed by the thousands."

Markham said he talked to hundreds of peasants and delegations in both countries and witnessed a number of terroristic acts.

Around the end of March, Markham said, he was covering a series of opposition party meetings when he was invited to spend the night with the local leader of the Peasant party in Bucovina, Romania, after the meeting had been broken up by a "band of ruffians." Later the "band of ruffians" wearing masks came into the house at midnight and killed the political leader with bursts of machine-gun fire, Markham said.

Tells of Another Attack.

On another occasion he was having dinner in Bacau, Romania, with Ion Mihalache, vice-president of the Peasant party and one of the three strongest opposition leaders in Romania, when Mihalache was attacked by a band of armed Communists. He and the Romanian fled across the roof tops, where they were besieged but finally managed to slip through the cordon.

Markham said a car "bearing the number of the Prime Minister's office, carrying a group of Romanians, kidnaped a young Romanian working for United States military authorities; he has not been released yet."

One meeting, Markham said, was acttually broken up by Red Army soldiers.

In the latter part of March, Markham said, a particularly vicious attack was made upon him by a Communist paper "speaking in the name of the Red Army and only with the approval of Moscow," and he subsequently was called to appear before Russian Gen. Vinogradov, the second most important official in Romania.

JUN 28 1946

Five Days to Leave.

Markham said Vinogradov gave him five days in which to leave the country without consulting Brig.-Gen. Courtland Schuyler, American member of the Allied Control Commission. Schuyler and Burton Berry, chief of the United States political mission, filed protests and the State Department followed with a vigorous note to Moscow and Bucharest.

The Russian Gen. Susaikov, who Markham said "runs Romania," advised the United States officials only a few hours before Markham was ready to board a vessel at Constanta for Istanbul that "suspension had been temporarily lifted" until it was considered on a higher level.

For three weeks Markham was forbidden to file any dispatches. At 7 P. M. June 22 he was advised by Susaikov that he must leave Bucharest by June 25. He departed the following morning in the United States Military attache's plane for Athens.

Markham said "in view of the coming election in Romania, the Communist-dominated government is determined to eliminate or restrict to the narrowest possible limits the work of American reporters and as a part of that action expelled me."

Markham said that only one American correspondent was now left in Bucharest, Frank O'Brien, of the Associated Press.

Swedish Treason Tale Denied

STOCKHOLM, June 27 (AP).—General Olof Gerhard Thoernell, former commander in chief of the Swedish army, characterized today as "absurd" a Russian newspaper story quoting a captive German general as saying the Germans had counted on his help to facilitate an invasion of Sweden in 1943.

VIENNA, June 27 (AP).—The Austrian Ministry of Education has asked the Allied Council to approve a law which would force Austrian publisners to devote the next three months to the publication of school textbooks to replace Nazi books. The law is necessary Austrian officials said, because most of the large publishing houses in Austria are under contract to the Soviet government to publish Soviet historical books.

Iraq Minister Asks U. S. To Take Europe's Jews

Says It Shouldn't Seek a Plan Harming a Small Nation

BAGHDAD, June 26 (Delayed) (AP).—Dr. Fadhel Jamaly, Iraq's Minister of Foreign Affairs, today called upon the United States to open her doors to Europe's homeless Jews as a means of solving the displaced-person and refugee problem.

In an interview in which he commented on the British-American inquiry committee's recommendation that 100,000 Jews be permitted to enter Palestine, the Foreign Minister declared:

"America always has been known for her sympathy for the persecuted people of Europe. We hope she will preserve her sympathetic attitude and open her doors, and not merely shed tears while seeking a solution of the problem at the expense of small nations."

CHALLENGE JURISDICTION

They had refused to take any part in the proceedings, contending they were "prisoners of war" and not subject to the jurisdiction of the court.

The sentences are subject to confirmation by General Sir Evelyn Baker, British commander-in-chief in Palestine. They were convicted yesterday after a three-day trial.

After the sentences were pronounced, the 31 defendants stood at attention on the command of a leader. He ordered them to sing the first stanza of Hatikvah, the Zionist national song. Relatives of the defendants who jammed the courtroom joined in the singing.

GIRL LEADS SINGING

Devorah Bath Moshe Kalfus, 21, then intoned a second Hebrew patriotic song. She was escorted separately to prison.

The court president and two military judges had left the room before the singing began.

After the songs, the leader of the group, 20-year-old red-bearded Haim Lust, ordered his fellow defendants to "stand at ease." He was obeyed with military precision.

As the prisoners were being herded off to their cells, several of them tried to leave the dock to say goodbye to their families in the courtroom. Police and soldiers tried to intervene, but several succeeded in kissing and embracing their parents or girl friends.

1300 IMMIGRANTS ARRIVE

Meanwhile, nearly 1300 illegal Jewish immigrants arrived at Haifa. A British destroyer hovered near their ship, the Josiah Wedgwood. The immigrants displayed a large banner with the Hebrew inscription "Nothing shall prevent us from reaching our homeland."

They were transferred to the Athlit clearance camp after disembarking. Twenty had attempted to escape by boat last night but were arrested as suspected crewmen of the Wedgwood. (AP)

30 Jews Get 15 Years, Another Given Life

JUN 28 1946

Jerusalem, June 27 (AP)—A military court today sentenced 30 members of the militant Jewish underground organization Irgun Zvai Leumi to 15 years imprisonment for carrying firearms and explosives.

Another member of the organization, Benjamin Kaplan, was sentenced to prison for life for shooting at a British soldier.

After the sentences were pronounced the 31 defendants stood at attention on the command of a leader and sang loud voices the first stanza of "Hatikvah," the Zionist national song. Relatives of the defendants, who jammed the courtroom participated in the singing.

DAY

Troops Intervene

The court president and the two military judges had previously left the room.

After the singing, the leader of the group, 20-year-old Haim Lust, ordered his fellow defendants to "stand at ease" and was obeyed with military precision.

An exciting scene followed when several of the prisoners tried to leave the dock to say good-by to their families in the courtroom. Police and soldiers tried to intervene, but several succeeded in kissing and embracing their parents or girl friends.

One Girl In Group

Many shouts in Hebrew of "long live Irgun Zvai" and "our struggle continues" rang out. The lone girl among the defendants, 21-year-old Devorah Bathe Moshe Kalfus, started up a second patriotic song which was taken up.

The sentences still are subject to confirmation by General Sir Evelyn Barker, British commander in chief in Palestine.

The defendants were convicted yesterday after a three-day trial during which they refused to take any part in the proceedings. Captured in a desert in South Palestine, they contended they were "prisoners of war" and not subject to the jurisdiction of the court.

Held "Righteous War"

The trial was climaxed by a wild scene yesterday when the defendants and their relatives joined in a noisy demonstration, shouting that the outlawed Jewish underground army was fighting "a righteous war for the independence and liberation of a slave nation." Police and troops were summoned to restore order.

Throughout the trial, the defendants had maintained an air of indifference and utilized recesses in the proceedings to join in singing Zionist songs.

NEARLY 1300 JEWS LAND IN PALESTINE

Haifa, Palestine, June 27 (A. P.).—Nearly 1,300 illegal Jewish immigrants arrived today with a British destroyer hovering near their ship, the Josiah Wedgwood. They displayed a large banner with the Hebrew inscription: "Nothing shall prevent us from reaching our homeland."

On debarking they were transferred to the Athlit clearance camp. Twenty tried to escape by boat last night and were arrested as suspected members of the Wedgwood's crew.

DAY

Many of the Jews said they were former inmates of German concentration camps. Their ship, formerly the Beauharnais, of Panama, slipped out of the Gulf of Genoa last week in defiance of Italian orders. As she neared Palestine a Royal Air Force plane spotted her and signaled the destroyer.

Most of the Jews were from Eastern Europe. They appeared exhausted after eight days' sailing during which their water ration was one pint a day. They intoned Hebrew songs as they left the ship.

Their release from the clearance camp is expected within a short time. Immigration certificates for them will be deducted from the allocated schedule of 1,500 a month.

Blamey said Australia was the only country in the Pacific which would be menaced if Manus were out of her control, and added cryptically that "history shows that nations with great power have great difficulty in restraining themselves from using it."

SIAM NAMES ARMY CHIEF

Underground 'Strong Man' Is Chosen as Commander

BANGKOK, Siam, June 27 (AP)—Gen. Abul Dejarat, "strong man" of Siam's wartime underground forces, was named commander of the Siamese Army today as Premier Pride Panymyong Panomyong ier Pride Panymyong Pridi moved to quell the growing unrest stirred by the mysterious fatal shooting of young King Ananda Mahidol in a palace bedroom.

The tension that mounted, following a medical board's statement that the King might have been assassinated, was climaxed by circulation of unsigned leaflets charging that the King had been murdered. The leaflets charged that the Premier and his Government clique had plotted to slay the young monarch.

Gen. Dejarat's appointment was interpreted in many quarters as a precautionary measure against revolt. Public hearings by a commission of inquiry entered the fourth day.

never will be told in full. war crimes charged against him were officially withdrawn after his death.

Stricken In 1941

Tuberculosis, which brought his death at 66 in unkempt, odorous Tokyo Imperial University Hospital, first afflicted him in 1941 upon his return from Europe with a Soviet neutrality pact. German Gestapo Chief Alfred Meisinger said Matsuoka obtained the treaty by revealing to Stalin Nazi plans for attacking Russia.

It was the high point of his career for Matsuoka, who loved the limelight and worshiped power. He was removed from office as Foreign Minister in 1941, and sank quickly into obscurity, his health broken during the strenuous months in power.

Home Wrecked

When Americans moved into Japan last fall, he was living in a tiny mountain lodge—his luxurious, foreign-style home in Tokyo completely gutted by firebombs.

He wrote no will, but left his family a classic Japanese poem, translated roughly as:

"With no regret, no hate, down the dark road do I go."

Witness Describes Plea To Hirohito

Tokyo, June 27 (AP)—Japan's Premier in 1931 tried in vain to get Emperor Hirohito to withdraw his troops from Manchuria, a prosecution witness told the International War Crimes Tribunal today.

"My father recommended withdrawal of the Japanese Army from Manchuria by Imperial rescript, but the proposal was not successful," said Ken Inukai, son of Premier Inukai, who was assassinated in 1932.

As the Emperor's name was drawn for the first time into the trial of former Premier Hideki Tojo and 26 other wartime leaders, a defense attorney questioned Inukai closely.

Calls Emperor Peaceful

Counsel for one defendant, Marquis Kido, former intimate adviser to the Emperor, said the statement by Inukai could mean the Japanese ruler was to blame for the action of the army in Manchuria.

"His Majesty," Inukai replied, "was a strong advocate of peace and a strong advocate of peaceful settlement of the Manchurian incident. That's what I meant to say."

The major reason for the failure of his father's attempt to recall the troops, Inukai continued, was the opposition of the army.

Neither his statement nor his testimony under crossexamination brought out definitely what the Emperor's reaction was to Premier Inukai's proposal.

Assassinated Following Speech

The elder Inukai was assassinated in his official residence a week after he delivered a speech in Yokohama criticizing the arrogant militarists.

The list of war-crime defendants was cut from 28 to 27 by the death from tuberculosis of 66-year-old Yosuke Matsuoka, former Foreign Minister.

Inefficiency Is Charged In War Trials in Tokyo

Lack of Leadership Assailed by Official Who Resigned

SAN FRANCISCO, June 27 (AP).—"The Allied prosecution of Japan's accused war-makers has "fallen victim to maladministration, neglect and inefficiency which, in view of the issues at stake is tragic," a former member of the prosecution staff asserted today. It was the first public criticism by any officer connected with the trials.

Naval Reserve Commander Bentley M. McMullin, returning to Denver to resume a private law practice, declared in a written statement that chief prosecutor Joseph B. Keenan and aids had been "rushed precipitously to Japan . . . personnel were selected on the run . . . there was little else than a series of spasmodic and frenzied efforts, first in one direction and then in another."

"In spite of this," he added, "much has been accomplished. The United States supplied Mr. Keenan with some good assistants, and the Allied Nations sent some of their best men.

"But the trials will not have accomplished their purpose unless they are the means by which the East, and Japan in particularly, may learn exactly what the Japanese leaders did. The facts must be brought out so clearly that subjects of the emperor cannot escape a consciousness of guilt. It might also be hoped that there might emerge new and progressive principles of international law. . . .

"These tasks require leadership of the highest order . . . Such leadership has unfortunately not been provided."

In Washington, Keenan told inquirers that McMullin resigned from the prosecution staff "after he had requested and failed to receive a promotion on the staff." Keenan said "McMullin was disappointed and resigned. His resignation was promptly accepted."

Matsuoka Dies; Forged Japan's Pact With Axis

Tokyo, June 27 (AP)—Yosuke Matsuoka, the one-time foreign minister who formally linked Japan with the Axis, died early today with "great regrets" that he could not defend himself in the international war-crimes court.

The disease-wasted University of Oregon graduate realized for days that death was near, and frequently told his eldest son, Kenichiro, that he had many things to say to the court—a defense that probably

Jap Tells Futile Appeals For Soviet Repatriation

Tokyo, June 27 (AP)—Japan has appealed to the Allied powers through the Vatican and the International Red Cross "more than a dozen times" for a speedup of Japanese repatriation from Russian-controlled territory, a Diet committee was told today.

Tokuzo Yamanaka, Foreign Office representative on the lower house budget committee, said the Government was sorry to admit that little had been accomplished.

"Regrettable" Delays Reported

Repatriation from Sakhalin and the Kuriles, Soviet-held islands north of Japan, and from northern Korea and Manchuria has been "regrettably" delayed, he said, in contrast to the remarkable speed in returning Japanese from areas under the United States, Britain and the Chinese Government.

"The Japanese Government," Yamanaka added, "intends to continue to appeal to the quarters concerned to bring back the estimated 1,500,000 Japanese from Russian-controlled areas at the earliest possible date."

Some "Evacuate Themselves"

He estimated that 100,000 Japanese were in the Russian zone of North Korea, although some there had managed "to evacuate themselves."

Yamanaka also reported the Japanese Government was appealing to Allied authorities to extend relief to destitute Japanese awaiting repatriation in Manchuria and Soviet-held areas.

A few Japanese were recently brought home from Manchuria. These came from parts held by the Chinese Government. Chinese Communists holding the great part of Manchuria, as well as Russians in the Manchurian port of Dairen, have refused so far to comply with United States repatriation requests.

MACARTHUR WILL VISIT PHILIPPINES ON JULY 4

TOKYO, Friday, June 28 (AP)—General MacArthur, his wife, son, and members of his staff will fly to Manila to attend the Philippines independence inaugural July 4, Col. Larry Bunker, the General's aide, announced today.

The length of their stay in Manila "depends upon circumstances in Tokyo," he added.

It will be the first time MacArthur has left Japan since he landed last Aug. 30 with the first airborne occupation units.

MacArthur To Visit Manila For Fourth

Manila, June 27 (AP)—President Manuel A. Roxas announced today that General MacArthur would come here from Tokyo to attend Philippine Independence Day ceremonies July 4.

Roxas said he had received a personal message from MacArthur late yesterday saying he would be accompanied by Mrs. MacArthur, his son, and members of his staff.

It will be MacArthur's first trip away from Japan since he landed there in last August.

Lost Overboard, Sailor Finally Returns

Yokosuka, Japan, June 27 (AP)—Ange LaCroix, 21, of Rennes, France, seaman who fell overboard from the French destroyer Fantasque, near Okinawa, has rejoined his ship at Yokosuka.

LaCroix fell overboard around midnight but was not missed by his shipmates until the next day.

LaCroix said his life jacket kept him afloat in rough water until late afternoon the next day when he managed to crawl on a tiny volcanic rock. He subsisted there for two days until he managed to attract a Japanese fishing boat which took him to Ie Shima near Okinawa. There American troops fed him and notified his ship of his safety.

His mates jubilantly collected a $1,000 reward which they sent to the fishing boat that rescued LaCroix.

EXPECTS 'A' BOMBS TO TAKE ON WINGS

Kwajalein, June 27 (A. P.).—Col. Harvey T. Alness, commander of the B-17 Drones which will fly into the atom bomb mushroom to collect cloud masses for examination by scientists, doubts that planes ever again will be called upon to carry atomic bombs.

"I'd like to see them take a B-29 Drone loaded with an atom bomb, direct it over the target and punch a button," he said. "All they need to do is put wings on the atom bomb."

Alness of Bayport, Minn., is commander of Elgin Field, Fla., the Army Air Forces' guided missile experimental and training field. He calls the Drone "a guided missile."

Alness said that Drone planes consistently have been directed from forty miles away and he believes they could be directed from as far as 100 miles away. Control range is limited only by equipment—primarily the power generator and television. New, more powerful generators and longer ranged television sets and complete plane rewiring are needed.

SEAPLANE AIDS STORK IN A-BOMB TEST AREA

KWAJALEIN, Friday, June 28—(AP) Commodore Ben H. Wyatt, military governor of the Marshall islands, today ordered a seaplane to help out the stork as an atom-blast precaution.

He dispatched a two-engined seaplane to Rongelap, 200 miles northeast of Kwajalein, to pick up two expectant Marshallese women as a precaution against premature birth due to worry over the atomic bomb. The women will be brought to the Navy hospital here.

'ATOM BOMB' RACKET REVEALED IN MONTREAL

MONTREAL, June 27 — (AP) An "atom bomb" share selling racket involving more than $500,000, in which several persons were swindled of large sums of money on promises of rich dividends, was revealed today by provincial police.

Few details were given, but Deputy Director Hilaire Beauregard of the provincial force said two persons had been arrested within the past 24 hours and capture of the ringleader was imminent.

Development of a "new atomic bomb" promised rich dividends, prospective shareholders were told, and one Montreal physician was reported to have handed over $20,000 in belief the new scientific wonder would pay off a fortune.

Navy Sets Up Many Ingenious Devices To Record Effects of Atomic Bomb Blast

ABOARD U.S.S. APPALACHIAN, June 27—(AP) Like catching the photo-finish of a close race, a device will measure the speed of the shock wave set up when the atomic bomb explodes. It is one of a number of ingenious devices for recording effects of the blast.

The explosion is scheduled for Monday, July 1, Bikini time (Sunday, June 30, Eastern Standard Time), but it was learned today that unfavorable weather, if it continued into mid-August, might cause postponement of the first test until next year.

Wave Shows Rapidly

The shock wave, a wall of compressed air, starts out from the bomb at a speed estimated at possibly 1,500 miles an hour. It slows down rapidly, but in the first mile it twists steel and flattens all kinds of structures.

Scientists want to know about this speed at all possible distances, but the shock wave is invisible except from the air, where it looks like a gigantic expanding soap bubble.

To clock the blast in photo finish style, strings of explosives are set up, triggered so that the shock itself will explode them. These explosions take place inside tubes filled with argon gas, which quickly quenches the flash so that despite the speed of the shock wave each flash is separate and distinct to the eye of the photo finish cameras.

The effect is like exploding a string of firecrackers. Motion picture film records the flashes and times them.

Scores of other instruments will try to beat the atomic punch by leaving a permanent record before they are destroyed. And many others not destroyed will remain in place to tell what happened to the target ships. Ships that may remain intact will have on their plates, decks, rooms and holds records of every strain they took and of every vibration felt.

Precise orientation of the ships will be recorded by pin-hole "cameras" whose film is pine planking. Through the pin-holes, the intense atomic heat will enter to burn a spot on the wood.

Will Record Blast Pressure

Five-gallon gasoline tins, empty, will tell how much pressure the blast forced through ships' opening into the interior. These comparatively mild pressures will deform the tins, and technicians, filling the tins with water and measuring how much less than five gallons each holds, will compute the pressure.

If some parts of the ship shake like a man with ague, alternately in one direction and then in another, devices called pallographs will record both movements.

Another instrument, the Jacklin accelerator, will record how much an entire ship moves under the big atomic push. Strips of lead will show how far machinery moves on its base in the engine room.

Rolling and pitching, likely to be invisible in clouds of steam, will be recorded by gyroscopes.

Special paint and panels of metal, glass, cloth, paper and fur will record flash burns. There are no thermometers to record the 100,000,000 degree heat close to the bomb, but spectroscopic devices that measure light will furnish accurate calculations for heat.

Aboard the U. S. S. Mount McKinley, June 27 (A. P.).—A multitude of tiny fragments from the test bomb, pitting the deck of the bullseye battleship Nevada, testified today to the accuracy of the atom bombardiers.

Reporters visiting the Nevada after Monday's practice test found the fragments driven into the deck from an almost verticle angle, confirming the opinion of distant watchers that the burst was fairly close overhead.

Blandy is expected to order the second test, an underwater explosion in Bikini Lagoon. In that case the underwater A-bomb test will be the only one this summer.

Will the atom bomb start a typhoon here, where the majority of the Pacific typhoons originate?

Weather Men Doubt It

No reliable weather man thinks that it will, but meteorologists cannot say definitely that the bomb will not.

Correspondents were given the available facts today. Most important is that the typhoons that start here never move toward the American coast. They invariably move toward the Philippines and then northward, where they dissipate in the Aleutians.

At the start they are not the murderous winds that make these storms to be feared. So, if the atom bomb were to start a typhoon, it would in no way endanger the 200 ships and thousands of men involved in the atomic test.

Suit Against Bikini Test Fails

WASHINGTON, June 27 (AP)—Judge Jennings Bailey of the United States District Court dismissed today a suit to halt use of American vessels as targets in the atomic bomb test at Bikini Atoll. The suit was entered by James J. Regnan Jr., Philadelphia attorney, who said he acted as a taxpayer. He asked an injunction to prevent destruction of the ships. Judge Bailey gave no reason for his decision.

JUN 28 1946

Long Bomb-Test Delay Possible

Aboard U.S.S. Appalachian, June 27 (AP)—If the weather delays the first atomic-bomb test until about the third week of August, then no tests will be held this year.

Favorable test weather requires winds of about the same direction up to 60,000 feet. There are only a few days remaining in which this perfect condition is expected. The typhoon season is approaching.

One "Out" Discovered

But meteorologists have discovered a way out, raising the possibility of good enough weather to thirteen days in July alone. This out is slow stratosphere winds. If the atomic cloud moves slowly through the stratosphere, it will have lost its dangers before it can pass over populated islands.

The first test, set for July 1, requires better weather than the second. If the first should be long delayed, Vice Admiral W. H. P. Blandy is expected to order the second test, an underwater explosion in Bikini Lagoon. In that case the underwater A-bomb test will be the only one this summer.

SPECIAL POSTMARK FOR 'A' BOMB DAY

Aboard the U. S. S. Mt. McKinley, June 27 (A. P.).—A special cancellation stamp for mail sent from Bikini on A Day has been authorized by the commanders of naval operations. The postmark that day will bear the words, "Atom Bomb Test, Bikini."

Lieut. Paul A. Hunt of Fort Collins, Col., in charge of Bikini's fleet post office, expects about 200,000 letters to be mailed. It is likely that the entire day's output will become collectors' items.

O'Daniel Filibuster Against OPA Bill Goes Into 9th Hour

JUN 28 1946

SENATE IN SESSION PAST MIDNIGHT AS TEXAN BARS VOTE

Barkley Files Petition Seeking to Force Limit on Debate.

GETS 24 SIGNERS

Action on Plea for Gag Is Scheduled Saturday Afternoon.

(BULLETIN)

WASHINGTON, June 28—(Friday)—(AP) The Senate agreed at 1:10 a. m. (Eastern Daylight Time) this morning to limit further debate on a bill to extend price controls to one hour to each senator, abruptly ending a one man filibuster by Senator O'Daniel (D.-Tex.).

Immediately, on Majority Leader Barkley's motion, the Senate recessed until noon (E.D.T.) today.

NIGHT

WASHINGTON, June 28—(Friday)—(AP) With OPA scheduled to expire in 72 hours, weary Senator W. Lee O'Daniel (D.-Tex.) hoarsely carried into the morning hours today a one-man Senate filibuster against extension of price controls.

He faced a Senate vote at 1 p.m. E.S.T. Saturday on a petition to shut him off if he is still going then.

Galleries Crowded

With standees lining the walls of crowded galleries, the big Texan pounded away at the New Deal in general and the OPA in particular in what he conceded would be a futile effort—unless he gets help thus far not forthcoming—to talk price controls to death.

At 11:52 p.m., Eastern Standard Time, last night, O'Daniel had completed, between swigs from two glasses of milk, eight full hours of talking. At midnight he still was going strong, seemingly warming to his work despite a cracking voice from oviously tired vocal cords.

Warily Democratic Leader Barkley (Ky.), who was keeping the Senate in continuous session, watched for any signs of faltering on the part of the former Texas flour salesman who rode to the governorship of Texas and a senatorship on his supporters' chant of "Pass the biscuits, Pappy."

Refuses to Permit Vote

Barkley had tried twice without success to get O'Daniel to agree to vote at a specific time. Then the Democratic leader circulated a debate-limiting petition, got 24 signers, and filed it. But the Senate couldn't vote on any gag motion of this kind until Saturday.

May Get Help

Meanwhile, O'Daniel said he heard rumors that Senator Langer (R-ND), no slouch in a filibuster, was winging his way here to join the fight.

The rumor was passed on to him by Senator Bridges (R-NH), who asked if he had received a telegram from Senator Langer (R-ND) saying he was flying to Washington to help talk the price control extension bill to death. It has been O'Daniels idea to keep the talk going until OPA expires at Sunday midnight.

"No," O'Daniel replied, "except I just heard that rumor floating by. I'd sure welcome any help.

"You don't know how much this senator would appreciate just a little teensy-weensy bit of encouragement."

The Texas iron-man showed no immediate sign of giving up despite the filing of a cloture petition by Majority Leader Barkley in an effort to limit debate.

The "gag" petition, on which Barkley quickly got more than the necessary 16 signatures, would limit debate to an hour for each senator. But it would take two-thirds of the Senate to pass it, and the Senate traditionally is reluctant to put a limit on talk. Also, under the rules, it must lie over a day so that it could not come up until Saturday.

Questions by Bridges

O'Daniel had been pleading for help in his talkathon but the biggest help he got was in lengthy questions from Senator Bridges. By the time he neared the end of seven hours he was talking hoarsely about the inability of one man to carry the load he had picked up.

That was before Barkley started around with his petition.

A parliamentary expert said Barkley's cloture petition would come to vote at 1 p.m. (EST) Saturday regardless of how long O'Daniel spoke.

Before he started passing the talk limiting petition around, Barkley had proposed also that O'Daniel agree to limit debate to an hour for each senator, beginning at midnight.

The Texan, who had been pleading with some of his colleagues to join him in the attempt to talk until existing law expired at midnight Sunday, said he might be able to work something out with Barkley if he could have a few minutes to talk things over.

Blocked By Lucas

The Democratic leader then asked unanimous agreement that O'Daniel have priority on the floor after a scheduled short speech by Senator Thomas (D-Okla.), who also opposes OPA. Senator Lucas (D-Ill.), who had asked O'Daniel previously if the Texan was filibustering, squelched that move with an objection.

Resignedly, O'Daniel resumed talking in a hoarse voice, remarking: "Well, here we go again."

Then Barkley started around with his petition.

Among those signing the petition was Senator McMahon (D-Conn.).

The individual filibuster record of 15 hours 35 minutes was set by the late Senator Huey Long (D-La) in a fight against the NRA bill in 1935. Senator Robert LaFollette the elder held the floor for more than 18 hours on the Aldrich-Vreeland currency bill in 1908, but he was relieved by numerous quorum calls and by yielding for questions.

Reading from a stack of telegrams frequently replenished by his office force, O'Daniel showed few signs of tiring except for the huskiness of his voice.

O'Daniel chided the Administration, and Congress, too, for not formerly proclaiming an end of World War II, saying the "only reason it hadn't been done is because the New Deal wants to hang on to its wartime powers."

"If we're going to have another war later," he said, "then that's all right. But let's have a breathing spell. There's no use making the last one continuous.

He said the only reason the OPA was set up was to "overthrow the American form of government."

He asserted that if Chester Bowles resigned, he would be given another job in the Administration "for the New Deal boys like him and, besides, who else would they get to do their dirty work."

O'Daniel began by reading a sheaf of telegrams supporting his anti-OPA stand.

Previously Senator Moore (R-Okla.), in a three hour speech, assailed the extension bill as part of a plot to foster economic chaos and create a Soviet-type government in America. Senator Wilson (R-Iowa) blamed OPA for "flourishing black markets."

The printed text of Moore's speech ran 13,000 words, but he was not confined by the written pages and tossed in plenty of off-the-cuff remarks, none of them complimentary to OPA or Stabilization Director Chester Bowles.

Moore said OPA's postwar operations have impaired the nation's economy, weakened the people's morale, destroyed respect for government, and created unnecessary shortages.

He contended the C.I.O. and the Political Action committee are "conducting a scare campaign" and that they advocate continued price control with the purpose of destroying the capitalistic system and free enterprise.

Taft Favors Bill

Senator Taft (R.-Ohio) arose to call for a favorable vote on the pending bill, a compromise which takes away much of OPA's powers.

He said "one of the best by-products" of the measure would be the "resignation of Mr. Bowles." He referred to Chester W. Bowles, economic stabilizer who is reported to be inclined to quit if Congress passes the bill.

Taft's call for a favorable vote surprised some colleagues.

He said that he and Senator Millikin (R.-Colo.) had refused to sign the measure worked out by a Senate-House conference committee because it failed to direct a decontrol policy.

Even so, he said he now urged support of the compromise because otherwise Congress would be guilty of killing all price and rent controls July 1 with possible distressing inflation.

If President Truman wants to veto the resulting bill, Taft said that was "his responsibility."

BARKLEY PLANS LONG SESSION

He Says He Will Attempt to Hold Senators Until Bill Is Disposed Of.

JUN 28 1946

Washington, June 27 (A. P.).—Senator Barkley, the majority leader, told the Senate this afternoon that he would attempt to hold it in continuous session until the OPA extension bill is disposed of.

He served the notice after Senator Moore (R.-Okla.), had spoken more than three hours against the bill, and in the face of a threat by Senator O'Daniel (D.-Tex.), to talk until Monday if necessary to kill the measure.

The price control law expires at midnight on Sunday unless the extension legislation goes through. The House already has approved it.

Moore's 13,000-word speech had been followed by a brief address by Senator Wilson (R.-Iowa). Senator Taft (R.-Ohio), had just taken the floor to deliver another talk when Barkley interrupted to make the announcement.

O'Daniel told reporters that, although he had appealed to other Senators for help, none had promised him aid in his plan to talk until Monday.

Moore lashed out at the C. I. O. and the Political Action Committee as championing price control to force economic collapse and the "overthrow of constitutional government."

Truman Urges Bowles to Stay.

Downtown, President Truman told a news conference that he is trying to persuade Chester Bowles to remain at his post of Economic Stabilizer.

The retirement of Bowles as a result of restrictions on OPA powers contemplated in pending extension legislation has long been predicted.

The President said that Bowles had been trying to quit ever since he took office and that he, Mr. Truman, had been successful so far in keeping him on the job. Bowles conferred with the President yesterday, but refused to discuss the meeting with reporters.

Mr. Truman declined to discuss the watered-down price extension bill now before the Senate, other than to say that it was unfortunate that it has been debated so long.

He said that he would decide after the measure reached him whether to make a radio address outlining his position on it. This was his reply when he was asked whether he would speak to the people in connection with signing or vetoing of the bill.

Criticizes C. I. O.

Moore told the Senate that "the deep underlying purpose of the C. I. O. leadership . . . is a campaign to destroy our capitalistic system and with it the free enterprise of this country.

"With deadly deliberation, the plan is designed to cause economic collapse, overthrow of the constitutional Government, and the establishment of a centralized government in complete harmony with the ideals of Soviet Russia under which complete regimentation may be effectuated," he continued.

He said that strong suspicion exists that Bowles is "using public fund to further personal political arbitions" and said that he would not be surprised if Bowles were supported by the C. I. O. for a place on the Democratic national ticket in 1948.

Truman Urging Bowles Not To Quit

JUN 28 1946

Washington, June 27 (AP)—President Truman told his news conference today that he is trying to persuade Chester Bowles to remain at his post as economic stabilizer.

Bowles's retirement as a result of restrictions on OPA powers contemplated in pending extension legislation has long been hinted.

The President said Bowles has been trying to quit ever since he took office and that he, Mr. Truman, had been successful so far in keeping him on the job. Bowles conferred with the President yesterday but refused to discuss the meeting with reporters.

Hits Long Debate

Mr. Truman declined to discuss the watered-down price-extension bill now before the Senate, other than to say it was unfortunate that it has been debated so long.

He said he would decide after the measure reaches him whether to make a radio address outlining his position on it.

This was his reply when asked whether he would speak to the people in connection with signing or vetoing of the bill.

On Capitol Hill, Senator O'Daniel (D., Texas) sought to get and hold the Senate floor for a chance to talk the OPA to death.

Could Succeed In Theory

If he could talk steadily until Sunday midnight, or call up vocal reinforcements, he could succeed—in theory at least. The present OPA law expires June 30.

However, there is no present indication that any colleague will team up with O'Daniel in his projected talkathon.

And the leadership is determined to keep the Senate in long-hour session, if necessary, to bring the compromise price-control-extension bill to a final vote.

Majority Favor Measure

As a matter of practical legislation, even a now-till-Sunday nonstop speech would cause no more than a brief lapse in price-control regulations.

A majority of the Senate obviously is in a mood to approve the measure worked out by a joint conference committee. And the extension bill would be effective if passed a few hours or even a few days past the deadline.

COAST LUMBER MEN LASH BACK AT OPA CHIEFS

One Pacific Leader Calls $9,043,530 U. S. Suits Political Move.

JUN 28 1946

ARTIFICIAL SHORTAGE DENIED

Government Charges Product Was Shipped to Dummy Addresses to Be Held for Bargaining.

San Francisco, June 27 (A. P.). Pacific Coast lumbermen lashed back today at office of Price Administration officials who pressed forward a move to smash what they called increasing rackets that have caused artificial lumber shortages all over the country.

The OPA yesterday filed suit against forty lumber companies in Federal Courts of California, Oregan, Washington, and Arizona, seeking to collect a total of $9,043,530 in treble damages. The alleged violations involved some 65,649,123 board feet of lumber.

At Aberdeen, Wash., Henry W. Anderson, president of the Twin Harbors Lumber Co., called the suits a political move.

"I think it a crime that OPA should pick on the Northwest operator while Southern operators are running rampant on the black market," he declared. The Twin Harbors Lumber was named defendant in suit seeking an estimated $525,000 in damages.

"These suits are based on differences of opinion in interpreting OPA ceilings," R. G. Robbins, president of the R. G. Robbins Lumber Company of Portland, said. He declared that in his opinion it was "a shame" that the OPA should bring suit against the Northwest lumber industries that have produced lumber so admirably under handicaps.

Donald D. Baldwin, secretary-treasurer of the Mauk Seattle Lumber Company, said that the suits were unfair and without legal basis.

"We have been selling fractional lumber," he said, "but we contend the buyer had the choice of whether to buy it or not. There certainly was no violation of the OPA regulations prohibiting 'making the buyer take something he does not want to get something he does want'."

Expecting that the OPA would be accused of "interfering with recognized business practices," Lumber Enforcement Chief Ralph Golub, as the suits were filed, listed as violations the following:

Diversion of lumber, consisting of the shipment of lumber to the shipper himself at dummy addresses, to be held for bargaining.

Resawing of lumber without regrading.

Refusing to produce standard size lumber such as 2x4s and turning out exclusively 2x4⅛s, which must then be remilled at the cost of the building contractor.

Upgrading of materials.

Charging customers for more lumber than was actually received.

Marking retail sales without having licenses.

Flagrant overceiling sales.

Cutting short lengths.

HOUSE VOTES CURB ON AID FOR RUSSIA

JUN 28 1946

Ban Is Voted, 154 to 53, Where UNRRA News Is Censored.

WASHINGTON, June 27—(AP)—The House voted today to bar American relief through UNRRA to any nation censoring press accounts of its dirstribution—meaning Russia.

"The time has come to quit appeasing," declared Rep. Dirksen (R-Ill.) who sponsored the provision.

Chairman Cannon (D-Mo.) of the Appropriations committee asserted on the other hand that "the blood of a million boys" might be shed "if we proceed to gratuitously insult a friendly nation."

Adopted by House, 154 to 53

Despite Administration opposition, the House adopted the amendment by a standing (non-record) vote. It is subject to a record vote tomorrow when the House acts finally on the bill to which it was attached. The Senate has yet to consider the bill.

The measure carries $465,000,000 for UNRRA, along with $261,571,909 for various other purposes. There was no indication how much of this amount might be slated for UNRRA relief in Russia. Latest reports show UNRRA budget commitments of $189,000,000 to the Ukraine and $61,000,000 to Byelorussia, while actual aid given to those countries through April 30 was $58,000,000 and $24,000,000, respectively. Dirkson said 72 cents of every UNRRA dollar is furnished by the United States.

Dirksen's amendment would prevent the money from being spent for relief in any country "which fails or refuses to permit the properly accredited representatives of the American press to enter, observe and report without censorship on the distribution and utilization of relief and rehabilitation supplies and services furnished to such country."

Balked by Senate

A similar provision was voted by the House in an UNRRA appropriation last November but the Senate refused to go along. A compromise then was adopted which called upon the President to use his best efforts to get other countries to permit American reporters to cover UNRRA activities freely.

President Truman reported Tuesday that satisfactory arrangements for such coverage "without censorship" were in effect with all countries except Russia. He forwarded to Congress a message from the Soviet government which said it did not "contemplate" relaxing the censorship which it applies to news correspondents and suggesting that reports would be available from UNRRA officials.

In this connection an Associated Press dispatch from Berlin today reported that Marshall MacDuffie, head of the UNRRA mission in the Ukraine, said President Truman was incorrect when he notified Congress that American correspondents could not report UNRRA activities in Russia. MacDuffie said eight correspondents, including three Americans, visited Kiev and Minsk with UNRRA personnel a month ago.

JUN 28 1946

JUN 28 1946

Dirksen said there have been frequent reports that American food sent abroad for relief purposes has been used for political purposes instead. Only by impartial reporting, he added, can the American people know the true situation.

Opposes Appeasement

"I'm opposed to any further appeasement," declared Rep. Barden (D-N.C.), "I'll not duck my head and shy around every time Mr. Stalin or Mr. Tito says 'Watch out or you might step on my toes.'"

"If you believe the purpose of UNRRA is to feed hungry people rather than to promote Communism in Europe," asserted Representative Clare Boothe Luce (R-Conn.), "support this amendment."

Leading the fight against it, Cannon denied that there has been censorship of newspapermen's reports on UNRRA activities in any country. The State Department, Cannon said, has informed him "there has never been any censorship" on reporting of UNRRA operations.

Two other changes were made in the measure before further consideration was laid aside until tomorrow.

One struck out an Appropriations committee recommendation that the new fund be available for expenditure until June 30, 1947, despite an earlier law ordering the program liquidated in Europe on December 31, 1946, and in the Far East on March 31, 1947.

The other cut $2,000,000 from a recommended $20,000,000 fund for the Civilian Production administration. Rep. Taber (R-N.Y.) offered the CPA amendment, which Cannon opposed as a threat to the veteran's housing program. The House adopted it by a standing vote of 109 to 85.

House Mustering Support To Cut Aid To Soviet

JUN 28 1946

Washington, June 27 (AP)—A "no news-no cash" policy that would hit Russia mustered powerful House support today as an amendment to the proposed $465,000,000 UNRRA appropriation.

Ostensibly directed at any nation imposing censorship on news dealing with the relief agency's activities, the amendment is aimed primarily at the existing situation in the Soviet Union, according to its supporters.

Sentiment Increases

Sentiment behind the proposal gained strength after President Truman reported to Congress Tuesday that Moscow had refused to permit uncensored reports from American correspondents on UNRRA operations in the Soviet republics of Ukraine and Byelorussia (White Russia).

Representative Dirksen (R., Ill.) said in advance of debate on the relief fund that he would offer the amendment to restrict the money to nations giving free access to visiting reporters seeking information on UNRRA activities.

If accepted, it would block UNRRA aid not only for the Ukrainian and Byelorussian republics, Dirksen said, but also for Romania and possibly northern Korea because of the difficulties that have been raised to unhampered American press coverage of the latter two areas.

Cites President's Report

"In view of the President's report that other European nations except the two Soviet republics have made arrangements for reporting UNRRA operations," Dirksen said, "I think it is only right that Congress refuse to provide any more funds for use in those republics."

While Romania was not mentioned in the President's report, Dirksen said an American reporter recently was ejected from that country.

Latest committee figures indicated that up to last April 30 about $82,000,000 UNRRA aid had been given the two Soviet republics, both of which were heavy sufferers throughout the war.

Dirksen and Representative Taber of New York, top Republican on the appropriations committee, predicted that the "no news-no cash" amendment would be adopted easily by the House.

Last November, in another UNRRA Bill, the House approved a similar amendment by a roll-call vote of 188 to 168, but backed down after the Senate refused to go along.

"Since then," Dirksen said, "we have had the President's report, which leaves no doubt as to what is going on. I believe we can make the amendment stick this time."

The UNRRA fund was the major controversial item in a $726,571,909 deficiency appropriation bill sent to the House floor yesterday.

SHIPMENT OF PORK TO RUSSIA HINTED

WASHINGTON, June 27—(AP) Rep. August H. Anderson (R-Minn.) told the House today during debate on the UNRRA bill that he had learned from the Agriculture department that 100,000,000 pounds of pork has been set aside for shipment to Russia if the measure is enacted.

Officials at the Agriculture department, asked for comment, said the department has no information at present on how much meat it has set side for UNRRA. They explained that the data will be available Monday in connection with the monthly inventory.

Anderson told a reporter that the pork represents "choice cuts of the hog" and has been prepared in cans according to a recipe provided by the Russian government.

He said he received the information confidentially from an Agriculture department official and therefore did not wish to disclose the official's name.

Anderson, a member of the House Agriculture committee, said the pork "now is being packed" under Agriculture department orders and that all that is holding up shipment is passage of the pending appropriation bill "so that the packers can be paid."

He estimated the pork cost "at least 40 cents a pound."

"This is one additional reason—along with the black market—why the American people can't get meat," he said.

"My position is that this meat and other supplies should not be shipped to Russia until she shows a willingness to cooperate in perfecting an organization—the United Nations—to insure a peaceful world."

Deal With Poles Helps U.S. Pierce Soviet 'Curtain'

Washington, June 27 (AP)—The United States registered important progress today in its persistent efforts to learn what sort of international economic deals are being made behind the "iron curtain" of Soviet-dominated eastern Europe.

The stepping stone was the reinstatement of a $90,000,000 American credit program for Poland.

Under terms of the loan agreement, the Warsaw Government is to supply the United States with the texts of Poland's economic pacts both with Russia and other countries.

First Official Data

American officials hope, as a result, that they may soon obtain their first official information as to the kind of arrangements which have been worked out by Poland with Russia, Hungary and Romania, as well as with Sweden, Denmark and Norway, and other governments.

Among these is a new agreement by which Russia grants substantial credits to Poland presumably for trading with the Soviet Union.

As a result of Poland's reaffirmation of her intention to furnish the text, the United States has lifted a stop order from a $50,000,000 credit conditionally given the Poles in April for the purchase of American surplus property in Europe.

Indications are that the American Government is also ready to go ahead promptly with the signing of an Export-Import Bank contract for an additional $40,000,000 loan to Poland for the purchase of locomotives and railway coal cars in the United States.

Called Important

State Department officials attached considerable importance to obtaining the economic pact information from Warsaw.

They are concerned chiefly with the finding out the extent to which Russia may be obtaining exclusive trading rights in Eastern Europe or dominating the internal economies of states.

POLAND BANK LOAN MEETS WITH DELAY

WASHINGTON, June 27—(AP)—The State department said today that a $40,000,000 export-import bank loan to Poland is being held up until Warsaw makes good on certain obligations.

Announcement was made yesterday that a $50,000,000 credit to permit Poland to buy trucks and other surplus army equipment, which had been held up similarly, is now being released. One condition which brought about this release was an assurance that Poland will make available the texts of its economic agreements with other nations, including Russia.

Today's announcement indicated that the bank loan is being held up until these agreements actually are delivered. The loan is to finance purchases of locomotives and coal cars.

At the export-import bank, however, an official declared the bank is unaware of any decision by the State department to delay the loan. He said the bank is now waiting to sign the final contract.

to resume private law practice in New York city.

Cruiser Captain Gets Post

President Truman disclosed the appointment at his news conference. Clifford now is his naval aide with the rank of captain. To succeed him in the naval post the President picked Capt. James H. Foskett of Strafford, Pa., skipper of the cruiser Augusta which carried Mr. Truman and his party to Europe for the "Big Three" meeting at Potsdam last summer.

Until he entered naval service in 1944, the 39-year-old Clifford had practiced law in St. Louis since his graduation from Washington university there, specializing in corporation and labor law. He has had an important hand in recent Presidential addresses, notably the ones calling for emergency labor legislation to prevent strikes against industries seized by the government.

Clifford's White House assignment grew out of a chance meeting with Mr. Truman, then a senator, at a dinner party in St. Louis back in 1938 or 1939. Their next meeting came early in 1944 when he had lunch with Mr. Truman, John W. Snyder of St. Louis, now Treasury secretary, and Federal Reserve Board Governor James K. Vardaman, whom he succeeds as naval aide.

Replaced Vardaman

Just before the President left for the Potsdam meeting, he asked Clifford to report to the White House to serve in the naval aide's office during the absence of Vardaman in Europe. Later he became assistant naval aide.

During the months that followed he worked on preparations for the recently-created national intelligence authority and on other executive assignments.

He also made a study of universal training which the President used in recommending universal service to Congress. His ideas and the President's click so well that he got more assignments, gradually taking over a large part of the work that Rosenman had continued to do on an unofficial weekend basis.

Clifford is fair-haired, 190-pounds, broad-shouldered and six feet one inch tall.

Life-Long Democrat

He likes to call himself a "liberal," and a life-long Democrat who is "perfectly devoted" to President Truman and his ideologies.

"I feel very strongly about the President," he told a reporter. "His earnestness and sincerity call for the best a man can do to serve him."

Foskett will report to the White House on July 2, at which time Clifford will be separated from the Navy.

Foskett, another tall, handsome figure, won President Truman's affetion during the trans-Atlantic crossing incident to the "Big Three" meeting.

Now 47, he won his way up in the Navy through hard work, beginning as a seaman in the first World war.

He has been serving as chief of staff to the commander of the inactive fleet, Pacific, with headquarters in San Francisco.

Clifford, a native of Fort Scott, Kas., has three daughters, age 14, 12 and six. Foskett, a native of Wollaston, Mass., has two daughters, age 14 and 12.

Truman Appoints His Young Naval Aide To Be Special Counsel in White House

WASHINGTON, June 27 — (AP) Clark M. Clifford, a tall young, lawyer-naval officer who looks like a matinee idol, moved today into the key administration post of "special counsel" to the President.

This is the $12,000-a-year speech-writing, advisory position which achieved prominence when it was held by Samuel I. Rosenman, one of the original "brain trust" of the Franklin D. Roosevelt administration. It has been vacant since Rosenman resigned early this year

Eisenhower Makes Appeal For Increase in Officers

JUN 28 1946

JUN 28 1946

30-4-3789

WASHINGTON, June 27—(AP) After a crisp appeal from General Dwight D. Eisenhower, a Senate Military sub-committee today quickly approved 25,000 additional regular army officers, doubling the present authorized strength.

The chief of staff said no one can accurately foretell now the exact requirements for the peacetime army but that it probably must be near one million men as long as our forces occupy Germany and Japan.

The 25,000 additional regular army officers will be needed "for the next 25 or 30 years, or until the UNO (United Nations) becomes a definitely effective force," he testified.

Appearing unannounced before the three-member sub-committee, General Ike discarded a carefully prepared statement in behalf of the officer increase and extemporaneously outlined the army needs.

Hart Supports Plea

Senators Hill (D-Ala), Downy (D-Calif) and Hart (R-Conn) asked a few questions and then quickly approved the authorization. Hill predicted similar quick approval by the Full military committee at its regular meeting Tuesday.

Some 20,000 of the additional 25,000 officers would go to the air forces, the general said. Even with this increase, he added, the army may be seriously short of officers July 1 of next year when it must reduce to a strength of 1,070,000.

A War department letter that preceded the general informed the committee that 127,500 officers and 942,500 enlisted men will comprise the authorized strength a year from now. The department hopes to retain enough reserve, national guard, and temporary wartime officers to meet all needs.

Recalling that Congress authorized an additional 9,500 regular army officers last December, Eisenhower said 108,000 temporary wartime officers had applied for these places and "had been combed over."

Many Failed to Qualify

Many "excellent officers" who did not qualify in this first selection now plan on quitting army careers, he continued, and unless chance for a permanent career is offered the War department will lose many experienced and well-trained officers.

"It would be a mistake," the General said, to try to train all regular officers at West Point even if this could be done.

Eisenhower said the army wants a "broader source" for its regular officers and they should also come from the national guard, reserve officers training corps, officer candidate schools, and wartime officers.

Hart, a retired admiral, expressed "total agreement" with the need for a strong officer corps.

"If you have an officer corps you can have an army in two or three years," Hart remarked. "If not, you can't have an army in a generation."

Eisenhower said that with 50,000 regular officers, the War department plans 27,500 for the air forces, 10,500 for the ground forces and 12,000 for service forces.

TRUMAN IS SILENT ON FOREIGN TOPICS

JUN 28 1946

Washington, June 27 (A. P.).—President Truman today declined comment on international affairs, referring all questions on such matters to the State Department. He gave a flat no comment at his news conference when queried on Soviet Russia's use of its veto power in the United Nations Security Council on the question of the Franco regime in Spain.

Mr. Truman would not talk, either, on the deadlock over the Trieste problem at the Paris meeting of Foreign Ministers.

Likewise he referred to the State Department questions as to whether the arrangements for UNRRA relief to Russia provided for free access to news on the distribution of the supplies.

Industry Setting Peacetime Peak

JUN 28 1946

WASHINGTON, June 27 (AP).—The Federal Reserve Board reported tonight that over-all industrial production appears headed for another peacetime record this month.

A Federal Reserve summary of business conditions pictured industry as rebounding swiftly after settlement of the coal strike and other wage disputes that contributed largely to down-turns during April and May.

NEW HIGH EXPECTED

The Federal Reserve's seasonally adjusted index of industrial production fell during May to 160 percent of the 1935-39 average as compared with 165 in April and 168 in March, the highest point yet recorded in peacetime.

"Since the resumption of bituminous coal mining and the settlement of various other wage disputes in the latter part of May, industrial production has expanded considerably and indications are that the board's index in June will surpass the March level," the report said.

STEEL OUTPUT RISING

Steel production, which dropped to 52 percent of capacity in May under effects of the coal mining shutdown, was reported back to 87 percent this week while coal production was reported almost to the pre-strike level.

Over-all output of non-durable goods continued to show a slight decline in May, due largely to further reductions in flour, cereal products and meat.

Cited as bettering the 1939-40 level and the volume produced for civilian use a year ago were manufactured foods, cigarettes, textiles, shoes, gasoline, chemicals, and rubber and paper products.

Residential building awards were at a new record level in May, up one-fourth from April. Awards for non-residential construction advanced in May after a drop in April.

Consumption Above U. S. Level

WASHINGTON, June 27 (AP).—Agriculture Department officials said the new British ration rules will put bread and cereal consumption in the United Kingdom on a level a little above that in the United States.

British consumption of grain products, as well as of vegetables and potatoes, increased sharply during the war, reflecting the reduced supply of meats, eggs, fish, fats and sugar.

Before the war, British grain consumption averaged about 210 pounds per capita annually, compared with about 199 in the United States.

By 1945 British consumption had increased to an average of about 250 pounds, compared with 205 in the United States. This country had larger supplies of livestock products, however, and consequently did not demand as much grain as did the British.

A government wheat conservation order limiting domestic distribution of flour to 85 per cent of the 1945 level will pull American consumption below the 200-pound average for the next twelve months, officials said. On the other hand, Americans are expected to have larger supplies of meats, dairy and poultry products and fats than the British.

FBI KEPT POSTED ON WORK OF SPY, WITNESS RELATES

JUN 28 1946

SEATTLE, June 27—(AP) Documents revealing purportedly secret data on the U. S. Navy's new destroyer tender Yellowstone were dictated to a Federal Bureau of Investigation stenographer before being sold to Russian naval Lt. Nicolai Gregorovich Redin, the government's star witness, Herbert Kennedy, Seattle shipyard trial engineer, testified in Redin's espionage-conspiracy trial today.

Received Cash Payments

Kennedy, Scottish-born British subject, said he received cash from the 30-year-old Soviet naval officer twice. The first time he said the Redins [illegible] expected evening call and when Kennedy shook hands with Redin he found five $10 bills in his palm.

On a later occasion, meeting in an uptown tavern at Redin's suggestion, the 50-year-old engineer asserted, Redin slipped him an envelope containing a $200 installment on a $400 payment. Kennedy said he signed a receipt for the $200 for "engineering services," at Redin's request.

After he had taken the first $50, Kennedy asserted, Redin's attitude toward him changed. He said Redin became "peremptory" instead of saying he "desired" additional confidential data on the tender, particularly its radar and fire control.

Confused On Date

The slow-spoken engineer admitted confusion on dates and details, as his direct testimony neared an end and he faced a grilling from Irvin Goodman, Portland, and Tracy Griffin, Seattle, counsel employed by the Soviet consul general on Redin's behalf.

Kennedy glanced at the Redins only once during his entire morning on the stand.

The Redins stared continuously at Kennedy during his long recital of the family friendship that grew up following a chance meeting.

Redin again was his jaunty self in court today, garbed in full dress black uniform with gold shoulder boards. His trimly tailored wife, Galina Galinova Redin, mother of his 2 1-2-year-old daughter, sat at his side throughout the session.

Sought Radar Data

Kennedy testified that Redin's first request early in 1945 was for information regarding radar or fire control, which he refused, and that when Redin later repeated practically the same request he told him, "no, Nicolai, I've got an American wife and four American children and I couldn't think of it."

Last October 12, Kennedy stated, Redin called at his home and asked him to write an article for the Russian navy manual on "the big one," which Kennedy inferred related to the new destroyer tender U.S.S. Yellowstone, then being outfitted at the shipyard. Redin told him that he could sell the article under his own name for $100 to $500, Kennedy testified.

"I then said—having made up my mind positively that I was going to submit the matter to the FBI—'The war's over Nicolai. Possibly something could be done about it'."

Key Prosecution Witness Ready In Spy Case

JUN 28 1946

Seattle, Wash., June 27 (AP)—The Government was ready with its key witness today in the first American trial involving allegations of espionage in behalf of Russia.

Herbert Kennedy, Scottish-born shipyard engineer, was expected to unfold a story in support of the Government attorney's opening statement that Russian Naval Lieutenant Nicolai G. Redin, 30, of the Soviet Purchasing Commission, paid Kennedy several hundred dollars for details [illegible] of a new type destroyer tender and offered as much as $1,000 more for specific additional information. The Government attorney said Kennedy was in touch with the FBI throughout.

Witness A British Subject

Kennedy, a British subject, was called as the next witness, but did not testify, just prior to adjournment last night.

Federal Judge Lloyd L. Black denied a motion for dismissal of the indictments. Attorneys Tracy Griffin and Irvin Goodman argued that the indictments were faulty.

Griffin asserted that while spectators—including Redin's young wife—listened intently:

"Lieutenant Redin will admit only one breach in neutrality. He took an American naval intelligence officer aboard every Russian ship arriving in Seattle before Russia was at war with Japan, and assisted in obtaining all possible information on the position of units of the Japanese Navy."

Prosecutors Reply

Against Griffin's argument that it was "ridiculous" to suppose a Russian officer would seek plans for a navy ship and equipment because the United States had given Russia most of the information and trained many of her seamen. Assistant United States Attorney Allan Pomeroy asserted:

"The reason this ship (the tender Yellowstone) was important was that it was a new type of naval auxiliary ship, important to national defense because of what it could do for destroyers in our fleet."

U. S. SHIP HOUR PLAN DEFEATED

Heated Debate in Maritime Conference Committee.

Seattle, June 27 (A. P.).—A heated debate between Representative Jackson (D.-Wash.), United States delegate, and George R. Strauss, Member of the British Parliament and United Kingdom delegate, at an all-night session of the World Maritime Conference wage and hour committee ended early today in defeat for an American proposal for a flat eight-hour day for seamen.

Charges that the American Government delegation was attempting to wreck the proposed international wage-hour convention by demanding an eight-hour day on all ships were hurled during the hot discussion on the issue by Strauss and Richard Snedden, British shipowners' delegate.

Replying to Strauss's statement that an eight-hour day could not be approved by European countries, Jackson heatedly declared: "I cannot understand the reasoning of any Labor Government which says it is not for an eight-hour day. I would say to the Government delegates that they adopt the eight-hour day here and take it home and see what their people will say about it. "You are not going to fool the people in your respective countries."

Strauss urged the delegates not to be "blinded by" slogans, such as the "eight-hour day" but to adopt clauses in the proposed convention which would be almost certain of ratification by the various governments.

Strauss, who is parliamentary secretary in the Ministry of Transport and one of the leaders of the British Labor party, added, "If you want to destroy the prestige of the International Labor Organization, the best way is to adopt conventions which cannot be ratified. He termed that American proposal "unrealistic and impractical."

The debate was on a proposal for an eight-hour day for near-trade or coastal ships. An eight-hour day had already been agreed upon for distant ships.

On a record vote, 74 disapproved the proposal and 32 voted for it. The workers' group divided on the issue, five in favor, five against and six abstaining.

Bauer Deportation Ordered

Ex-G. I. Acquitted of Espionage Charge Appeals Court Ruling

WASHINGTON, June 27 (AP).—The Justice Department said today Attorney General Tom Clark has signed an order for deportation of former United States Army Sergeant Frederick Emil Bauer, onetime German Army lieutenant.

A department spokesman said however, that Bauer's deportation will be delayed pending an appeal to the Circuit Court of Appeals at Chicago from a United States District Court ruling that he forfeited his American citizenship when he joined the German Army.

The Justice Department took Bauer into custody at Indianapolis last Dec. 10 after an officer board of the 5th Service Command had issued him a discharge without honor.

At that time, Mr. Clark termed Bauer "a German espionage agent who had joined the German Army, taken an oath of allegiance to Hitler and illegally smuggled himself into the United States where he enlisted in the American armed forces."

MARRIES BY PROXY

Kansas City, Kan., June 27 (A. P.).—In a proxy marriage ceremony, Gage Whinery Prewitt, 27 years old, of Curtis, Okla., yesterday took as his wife a 16-year-old English girl, June Margaret Pinnick of Southampton, England. The ceremony was performed by Judge Clark E. Tucker in the county probate court room.

Representing the bride was Mrs. Lela Finnigan, Kansas City, Thomas H. Finigan, Kansas City, Kan., lawyer. Judge Tucker first examined a document giving parental consent by the bride's fatheer and mother, Robert W. Pinnick and Bessie Pinnick, before conducting the service.

Judge Tucker said he was against marriage by proxy when one of the parties involved such a young girl, but added that he had no alternative under Kansas law but to perform the ceremony. Prewett met his bride while stationed in England with the Army.

Friendship Council Fights Contempt Case

New York, June 27 (AP)—Corliss G. Lamont, chairman of the National Council of American-Soviet Friendship, said today that the council would carry to the Supreme Court "if necessary" the contempt charges placed against his organization yesterday by the Committee on un-American Activities.

"This is a test civil-liberties case important to all individuals and organizations active in the field of education and public relations," Lamont declared.

The House committee acted, it said, because Lamont declined to produce council records for the committee.

Lamont, declaring "we are defending our liberties as guaranteed by the Bill of Rights," said "we are resisting to the utmost any imputation that working, writing, speaking or educating on behalf of understanding and co-operation between the United States and Soviet Russia is in any sense un-American or subversive."

RUSSIA HAD USED THE VETO ONLY TWICE BEFORE, IN LONDON LAST WINTER
ON THE LEVANTINE QUESTION AND HERE LAST WEEK TO DEFEAT A TWICE

EVATT, WHO CLASHED WITH GROMYKO FREQUENTLY IN THE FINAL SWELTERING
ROUNDS OF DEBATE WHEN THE SESSION TURNED INTO A GRIM GAME OF SLAPPING

OF THE VETO.
IT WAS POINTED OUT THAT UNDER AN AGREEMENT REACHED AMONG THE BIG POWERS AT SAN FRANCISCO LAST YEAR, ANY ONE OF THEM MAY OFFER A PROPOSAL AND, IF IT IS DEFEATED, MAY THEN REVIVE IT BY CALLING FOR A VOTE AS TO WHETHER IT IS SUBSTANTIVE OR PROCEDURAL. ON THE LATTER QUESTION A SINGLE BIG FIVE POWER MAY INVOKE THE VETO BY VOTING THE MATTER IS SUBSTANTIVE. THAT THE AUSTRALIAN-BRITISH RESOLUTION, WHICH GROMYKO CONTENDED THAT THE DECLARING IT IN THE SUBSTANTIVE CATEGORY,
HE VETOED BY A SINGLE VOTE MIXED BOTH SUBSTANTIVE AND PROCEDURAL QUESTIONS. FURTHER EFFORTS TO SEPARATE THESE PROLONGED THE DEBATE.
EVATT DISPUTED THE LEGALITY OF THE VAN KLEFFENS OF THE NETHERLANDS

POINTED OUT THAT WHEN THE COUNCIL VOTES ON WHETHER A QUESTION IS PROCEDURAL OR SUBSTANTIVE ALL THE BIG FIVE MUST BE UNANIMOUS. VAN KLEFFENS SAID SUCH A PROVISION WAS MADE IN A STATEMENT OF A BIG POWER DELEGATION AT SAN FRANCISCO ON JUNE 7, 1945, AND SUGGESTED THAT IT SHOULD BE REVISED IN THE LIGHT OF EXPERIENCE.
"WHAT TOOK PLACE IN A DOCUMENT AT SAN FRANCISCO," DR. EVATT

VAN KLEFFENS TOLD CASTILLO NAJERA HE WOULD FIND NO GROUNDS IN THE CHARTER FOR SUCH A USE OF THE VETO "BUT ONLY IN THAT MEMORANDUM OF THE FIVE POWERS HAVING PERMANENT SEATS ON THE COUNCIL" --- RUSSIA, ERITAIN, THE UNITED STATES, FRANCE AND CHINA.
DR. EVATT CONTENDED AT ANOTHER POINT THAT THE BIG FIVE AGREEMENT

IT DEVELOPED LIKE THIS:

THE DELEGATES OF AUSTRALIA, BRITAIN AND POLAND WERE NAMED AS A COMMITTEE ON MONDAY TO COMPOSE THE DIFFERENCES BETWEEN A POLISH RESOLUTION CALLING FOR COUNCIL ACTION ON SPAIN BY SEPT.1 AND A BRITISH AMENDMENT TO KEEP THE SPANISH QUESTION ON THE AGENDA UNTIL THE GENERAL ASSEMBLY MEETS SEPT.3 AND TO RECOGNIZE THE ASSEMBLY'S RIGHT TO ACT ON SPAIN. insert (New York (AAY-UN) after 9th GRAF x++ majority (Krumich)

THERE IS NO VETO POWER IN THE ASSEMBLY.

RUSSIA AND POLAND HAVE ATTACKED MAJORITY-APPROVED PROPOSALS ON SPAIN AS "TOO WEAK."

UNABLE TO AGREE WITH POLISH DELEGATE OSCAR LANGE ON A COMPROMISE RESOLUTION, EVATT AND CADOGAN YESTERDAY OFFERED THEIR OWN COMMITTEE MAJORITY PROPOSAL TO KEEP THE SPANISH ISSUE INDEFINITELY IN THE COUNCIL "WITHOUT PREJUDICE TO THE RIGHTS OF THE GENERAL ASSEMBLY."

THE BRITISH-AUSTRALIAN RESOLUTION WAS APPROVED BY A MAJORITY VOTE OF 9 TO 2, WITH RUSSIA AND POLAND AGAINST IT. PRESIDENT CASTILLO NAJERA DECLARED IT WAS ADOPTED.

THIS WAS PROMPTLY DISPUTED BY GROMYKO, WHO CONTENDED THAT THE RESOLUTION INVOLVED "SUBSTANTIVE" MATTERS WHICH WERE SUBJECT TO HIS VETO. NAJERA HELD THAT THE QUESTION WAS PROCEDURAL, AND THUS DID NOT REQUIRE THE SEVEN AFFIRMATIVE VOTES INCLUDING ALL THOSE OF THE BIG FIVE HOLDING THE VETO POWER, AND THEN ASKED THE COUNCIL TO VOTE ON HIS RULING.

RUSSIA AND FRANCE VOTED AGAINST IT, WITH POLAND ABSTAINING, AND NAJERA DECLARED THE VETO HAD BEEN INVOKED.

BRITISH FOREIGN SECRETARY ERNEST BEVIN AND G ORGES BIDAULT, FRENCH PRESIDENT AND FOREIGN MINISTER, SUPPORTED BYRNES.

BYRNES DECLARED THAT IF A SETTLEMENT OF THE TRIESTE ISSUE ON AN ETHNIC BASIS COULD NOT BE REACHED, THE WHOLE MATTER SHOULD BE REFERRED TO A 21-NATION PEACE CONFERENCE. MOLOTOV, WHO WAS DESCRIBED AS VISIBLY DISAPPOINTED OVER THE RECEPTION GIVEN HIS PROPOSALS, SAID THAT SUCH A STEP WOULD ONLY DISRUPT THE CONFERENCE.

THE THREE-HOUR SESSION ENDED INCONCLUSIVELY WHEN THE FOREIGN MINISTERS AGREED TO MEET THIS AFTERNOON TO CONSIDER THE ROMANIAN PEACE TREATY. THERE WAS NO INDICATION TODAY WHEN THE TRIESTE PROBLEM WOULD BE ATTACKED AGAIN.

JUN 28 1946

THE SETBACK ON TRIESTE WAS THE SECOND REBUFF RECEIVED BY RUSSIA DURING THE DAY. EARLIER SHE WAS OPPOSED BY BOTH THE UNITED STATES AND BRITAIN WHEN SHE SOUGHT TO HAVE WRITTEN INTO THE ROMANIAN TREATY A CLAUSE WHICH WOULD HAVE GIVEN NEIGHBORING STATES -- INCLUDING RUSSIA -- FAVORED NATION STATUS IN THEIR COMMERCIAL RELATIONS WITH ROMANIA.

IN THE FACE OF THE U.S.AND BRITISH OPPOSITION THIS ISSUE WAS SHELVED TEMPORARILY.

DURING THE AFTERNOON SESSION BEVIN OFFERED A DANUBE CHARTER PROGRAM STRESSING FREEDOM OF COMMERCE AND NAVIGATION ON THE RIVER AS A FOUR-POWER POLICY, WITH ALLOWANCES TO BE MADE DURING THE TIME THAT ALLIED TROOPS REMAINED IN OCCUPATION ZONES BECAUSE THE RIVER IS A LINE OF DEMARCATION.

BYRNES SAID THE PROGRAM SHOULD BE INCLUDED IN THE TREATIES, BUT THAT HE WOULD BE WILLING TO ACCEPT A GENERAL DECLARATION OF INTENTIONS IF THE POWERS JOINED IN SUCH A DECLARATION.

MOLOTOV REPLIED BY RE-STATING THE SOVIET PRINCIPLE THAT THE COUNTRIES ALONG THE DANUBE SHOULD DETERMINE THE ADMINISTRATION OF DANUBE NAVIGATION AND ASKED FOR TIME TO STUDY BEVIN'S PLAN, WHICH HE SAID HE DOUBTED HIS COUNTRY WOULD ACCEPT.

LONDON, JUNE 27-(AP)-A TASS BROADCAST FROM MOSCOW TODAY SAID THESTALEMATE IN THE FOREIGN MINISTERS MEETINGS IN PARIS WAS DUE TO "PRESSURES" TO FORCE CONCESSIONS BY THE SOVIET UNION.

DECLARING FRENCH REPORTING OF THE MEETINGS WAS DESIGNED TO CREATE THE IMPRESSION THAT SUCCESS OF THE CONFERENCE COULD BE ACHIEVED ONLY BY "UNILATERAL CONCESSIONS ON THE PART OF THE SOVIET DELEGATION," THE BROADCAST SAID "THIS IS NOTHING BUT THE TRIED METHOD OF BLACKMAIL WHICH, HOWEVER, OBVIOUSLY MISSED FIRE." (FoCo Paris)

DISPUTES OVER DANUBE NAVIGATION AND OTHER QUESTIONS ON THE ROMANIAN TREATY, SAID THE BROADCAST, WERE "ARTIFIALLY CREATED" FOR THE PURPOSE OF COMPELLING THE RUSSIANS TO MAKE CONCESSIONS ON OTHER ISSUES.

BERLIN, JUNE 27-(AP)-MARSHALL MACDUFFIE, HEAD OF THE UNRRA MISSION IN THE UKRAINE, SAID TODAY THAT PRESIDENT TRUMAN WAS INCORRECT WHEN HE NOTIFIED CONGRESS THAT AMERICAN CORRESPONDENTS COULD NOT REPORT UNRRA ACTIVITIES IN RUSSIA.

MACDUFFIE SAID THAT A MONTH AGO EIGHT CORRESPONDENTS, INCLUDING THREE AMERICANS AND TWO BRITONS, VISITED KIEV AND MINSK AND WITH UNRRA PERSONNEL INSPECTED RATION STORES, FREE MARKETS AND COLLECTIVE FARMS AND RECEIVED RATION FIGURES AND OTHER DATA.

THE PRESIDENT'S LETTER WAS MERELY A FACTUAL REPORT ON THE SITUATION. IT MADE NO RECOMMENDATIONS.

UNDER THE ORDER APPROXIMATELY 30,000 PERSONS WILL BE REQUIRED TO GIVE UP THEIR HOMES TO MAKE ROOM FOR THE FAMILIES OF BRITISH MILITARY PERSONNEL.

BRITISH MILITARY AND GERMAN CIVILIAN POLICE MADE A NUMBER OF ARRESTS, BUT NO OFFICIAL FIGURE WAS ANNOUNCED.

TWICE THE CROWD SANG "DEUTSCHLAND UEBER ALLES," THE HISTORIC GERMAN NATIONAL ANTHEM, AND KNOCKED THE HATS OFF OF CIVILIAN MEN WHO HAD REMAINED WITH THEIR HEADS COVERED DURING THE SINGING.

EXCEPT FOR THE SHOUTING AND SINGING, THE DEMONSTRATION WAS FAIRLY ORDERLY. NO INJURIES WERE REPORTED.

"FIRST PHOSPHOROUS BOMBS, NOW REMOVAL," THE CROWD CHANTED, REFERRING TO ALLIED AIR RAIDS DURING THE WAR WHICH DESTROYED GREAT SECTIONS OF THE CITY AND THE PRESENT ORDER FOR THOUSANDS TO QUIT THEIR OVERCROWDED LIVING QUARTERS.

THE DEMONSTRATION LASTED ABOUT TWO HOURS. JUN 28 1946

APPEARING ON A CITY HALL BALCONY, BURGERMEISTER PETERSEN APPEALED TO THE DEMONSTRATORS TO DISPERSE, BUT WITHOUT EFFECT.

"DOWN WITH PETERSEN!" THE CROWD SHOUTED. "RESIGN FOR THE GOOD OF YOUR PEOPLE!"

ALLIED OBSERVERS HERE WERE UNABLE TO RECALL ANY DEMONSTRATION SO LARGE IN ANY OF THE FOUR ALLIED ZONES OF OCCUPATION DURING THE PAST YEAR. LAST SPRING SEVERAL HUNDRED INDIGNANT HOUSEWIVES IN STUTTGART PROTESTED TO AMERICAN MILITARY AUTHORITIES OVER THEIR PROSPECTIVE EVICTION TO MAKE ROOM FOR ARRIVING AMERICAN DEPENDENTS, BUT THERE HAS BEEN NOTHING LIKE THE DEFIANT ATTITUDE OF TODAY'S DEMONSTRATION MANIFESTED PUBLICLY ELSEWHERE.

BRITISH AUTHORITIES RECENTLY ANNOUNCED A LONG-TERM PROJECT TO CONCENTRATE BRITISH ARMY AND MILITARY GOVERNMENT HEADQUARTERS IN HAMBURG. IT WAS STATED THAT HUNDREDS OF HOMES WOULD BE BUILT DURING THE NEXT YEAR TO HOUSE BRITISH FAMILIES. AT PRESENT BRITISH HEADQUARTERS ARE SCATTERED OVER WIDE DISTANCES.

UNOFFICIAL OBSERVERS WERE DIVIDED AS TO WHETHER COMMUNISTS PLAYED AN ACTIVE ROLE IN THE OUTBURST. WHILE SOME THOUGHT THEY DID, A COMMUNIST LEADER, SENATOR BETTMANN, ASSERTED THAT HIS PARTY HAD NO PART IN THE DEMONSTRATION. IF THE COMMUNISTS HAD WANTED TO DEMONSTRATE, BETTMANN SAID, "I COULD HAVE 200,000 PEOPLE IN THE PUBLIC SQUARE WITHIN HALF AN HOUR."

James B. Carey, secretary-treasurer of the C. I. O. and the American delegate, and Lord Citrine of Great Britain expressed the views that such action

BY LARRY ALLEN

WARSAW, JUNE 27--(AP)--POLISH VOTERS WILL HAVE THEIR FIRST CHANCE TO EXPRESS THEIR ATTITUDE ON THE POLICIES OF THE SOVIET-SUPPORTED PROVISIONAL GOVERNMENT IN A NATIONAL REFERENDUM CLIMAXING A PERIOD OF BITTER POLITICAL CAMPAIGNING AND VIOLENCE.

APPROXIMATELY 11,000,000 MEN AND WOMEN [illegible] WILL BE ELIGIBLE TO GO TO THE POLLS FOR THE FIRST TIME IN 11 YEARS AND ANSWER THESE THREE QUESTIONS:

1. DO YOU WANT A ONE-HOUSE PARLIAMENT? 2. DO YOU APPROVE OF THE ACTS OF THE PROVISIONAL REGIME NATIONALIZING BASIC INDUSTRIES

AND [redacted] AGRARIAN REFORM? 3. DO YOU APPROVE OF THE ESTABLISHMENT OF POLAND'S WESTERN FRONTIERS ON THE ODER AND NEISSE RIVERS?

CHIEF CONCERN OF THE OPPOSITION, [redacted] LED BY POLISH PEASANT PARTY PRESIDENT STANISLAW MIKOLAJCZYK, IS WHETHER THE BALLOTING WILL BE FREE AND UNFETTERED. THE PEASANTS WANT A TWO-HOUSE LEGISLATURE, BUT [redacted]

[redacted] HAS INSTRUCTED ITS MEMBERS TO VOTE AFFIRMATIVELY ON THE SECOND AND THIRD QUESTIONS.

JUN 28 1946

UNDER GOVERNMENT REGULATIONS ALL UNMARKED BALLOTS WILL BE CONSIDERED AFFIRMATIVE VOTES. SOME GOVERNMENT AND OPPONENTS DECLARE THIS LEAVES THE WAY OPEN FOR UNSCRUPULOUS POLLING CLERKS TO DROP MANY BLANK BALLOTS INTO THE BOXES, PARTICULARLY IF THE VOTERS ENTITLED TO RECEIVE BALLOTS FAIL TO APPEAR.

[redacted] SOCIALIST PREMIER EDWARD OSUBKA-MORAWSKI GIVES AN UNQUALIFIED "YES" TO [redacted] THE QUESTION OF FAIRNESS AT THE POLLS, BUT MIKOLAJCZYK, A VICE PREMIER IN THE REGIME AND SPOKESMAN FOR A PARTY CLAIMING MILLIONS OF POLISH PEASANTS, [redacted] IS NOT SO SURE.

THE RAPID [redacted] GROWTH OF THE ORMO--THE CITIZENS' VOLUNTEER RESERVE MILITIA ORGANIZATION--HAS BEEN A CAUSE OF ALARM FOR THE PEASANTS. ITS MEMBERS ARE MOSTLY YOUNG MEN 18 TO 28 TRAINED BY THE MILITIA AND SECRET POLICE UNDER THE DIRECTION OF STANISLAW RADKIEWICZ, MINISTER FOR PUBLIC SECURITY.

OSUBKA-MORAWSKI SAYS THE ORMO, WHICH HAD 30,000 MEMBERS ON JUNE 1, IS MERELY ANOTHER GUARANTEE FOR "LAW AND ORDER."

IN THE PAST 10 MONTHS NEARLY 8,000 SLAYINGS [redacted] OF A POLITICAL NATURE OCCURRED IN POLAND. OFFICIALS [redacted] HAVE [redacted] THE SOCIALISTS AND THE COMMUNIST-BAKED POLISH WORKERS' PARTY HAVE ACCUSED THE PEASANT PARTY OF BEING LINKED DIRECTLY WITH THE ANTI-GOVERNMENT, TERRORISTIC BANDS SUCH AS THE NSZ--NATIONAL ARMED FORCES--[redacted] WHICH HAVE SEEN A HEADACHE TO THE PROVISIONAL REGIME.

MIKOLAJCZYK HAS DENIED [redacted] SUCH ASSERTIONS, AND THE PARTY'S

INCLUDED IN THE GOVERNMENT WERE THE SO-CALLED "BLOC" PARTIES--
THE SOCIALISTS, POLISH WORKERS, DEMOCRATS AND THE "INDEPENDENT" PEASANT PARTY.

JUN 28 1946

IN ADDITION TO THE PEASANT PARTY THE LABOR PARTYHEADED BY KAROL POPIEL IS OPPOSING THE GOVERNMENT.
BOTH POPIEL AND MIKOLAJCZYK SAY THEY HAVE BEEN DENIED THE CAMPAIGN PRIVILEGES PROVIDED TO THE GOVERNMENT PARTIES, WHICH HAVE UTILIZED GOVERNMENT-CONTROLLED NEWSPAPERS, MOVIES, THE RADIO, BOOKLETS, AND SIGNS PLASTERED ON TROLLEY CARS TO URGE AN AFFIRMATIVE VOTE IN THE REFERENDUM.

THE LAST POLISH ELECTION WAS HELD IN 1935 WHEN IGNACE
MOSCICKI WAS CHOSEN PRESIDENT. HE SERVED UNTIL THE GERMANS
OVERRAN THE COUNTRY IN 1939.

NO DATE HAS BEEN SET FOR THE POLISH GENERAL ELECTIONS, WHICH THE GOVERNMENT HAS PROMISED WILL BE HELD "SOME TIME IN THE AUTUMN." THE PEASANT PARTY REFUSES TO JOIN A SINGLE BLOC FOR THE ELECTIONS, SOUGHT BY THE GOVERNMENT.

STOCKHOLM, JUNE 27--(AP)--GEN. OLOF GERHARD THOERNELL, FORMER COMMANDER-IN-CHIEF OF THE SWEDISH ARMY, CHARACTERIZED TODAY AS "ABSURD" A RUSSIAN NEWSPAPER STORY QUOTING A CAPTIVE GERMAN GENERAL AS SAYING THAT THE GERMANS HAD COUNTED ON HIS HELP TO FACILITATE AN INVASION OF SWEDEN IN 1943.

"THE QUESTION OF THE GERMANS RELYING ON SWEDISH HELP TO INVADE SWEDEN IS PURE NONSE," DECLARED THOERNELL, WHO RESIGNED HIS POST AS COMMANDER IN 1944 TO BECOME KING GUSTAF'S AIDE-DE-CAMP.

THE ARTICLE IN RED STAR QUOTED THE GERMAN PRISONER, LT. GEN. RUDOLF BAMLER, AS SAYING THAT THE NAZIS HAD HAD 15 DIVISIONS POISED IN NORWAY, FINLAND AND LATVIA READY FOR THE INVASION AND THAT ONLY THE VICTORIES OF THE RED ARMY IN THE EAST HAD SAVED SWEDEN.

DECLARING THAT "THE WHOLE STORY SEEMS ABSURD," THOERNELL SAID IT WAS "UNBELIEVABLE THAT THE GERMANS AT THAT TIME HAD SUCH NUMEROUS FORCES AVAILABLE--LEAST OF ALL IN FINLAND."

NEW DELHI, JUNE 27-(AP)-POLITICAL OBSERVERS LOOKED TOWARD VICEROY LORD WAVELL TODAY FOR A STATEMENT--POSSIBLY BY THE WEEKEND--CONCERNING THE FORMATION OF A CARETAKER GOVERNMENT TO RULE INDIA PENDING ELECTION OF A CONSTITUENT ASSEMBLY.

HOW LONG THE NEW GOVERNMENT WILL HOLD THE REINS WAS ANYONE'S GUESS, BUT ONE HIGHLY PLACED SOURCE POINTED OUT THAT THE RESULTS OF THE ASSEMBLY ELECTIONS PROBABLY WILL NOT BE KNOWN UNTIL THE END OF JULY.

A STATEMENT BY THE BRITISH CABINET MISSION YESTERDAY INDICATED THAT NEGOTIATIONS WITH INDIAN POLITICAL LEADERS FOR FORMATION OF AN INTERIM GOVERNMENT WILL NOT BE RESUMED UNTIL THE ELECTION RETURNS ARE IN.

IF THESE NEGOTIATIONS ARE SUCCESSFUL, THE INTERIM GOVERNMENT WILL TAKE OVER AND CONTINUE IN OFFICE UNTIL THE CONSTITUENT ASSEMBLY COMPLETES ITS WORK OF DRAFTING A CONSTITUTION FOR AN INDEPENDENT INDIA.

THERE WAS NO INDICATION OF THE DIRECTION THESE NEGOTIATIONS MIGHT TAKE. HOWEVER, A PLAN WHICH WOULD AT ONCE INCLUDE ALL PROVINCES AND GO FAR TOWARD MEETING COMMUNAL REPRESENTATION DEMANDS WAS REPORTED IN NEW DELHI CIRCLES TO INVOLVE SELECTION BY PARTY LEADERS OF ONE REPRESENTATIVE FROM EACH PROVINCE OF BENGAL AND THE PUNJAB AND THE ADDITIONAL OF ONE MOSLEM SEAT.

THE CABINET ALSO WOULD INCLUDE, UNDER THIS PLAN, ONE SIKH FROM THE PUNJAB, WITH REPRESENTATIVES FROM THE PARSEES AND THE DEPRESSED CLASSES BEING PROVIDED BY AN AGREEMENT OF PARTY LEADERS FROM THE HINDU MAJORITY PROVINCES.

UNDER THIS ARRANGEMENT THE CONGRESS PARTY MIGHT BE ABLE TO ACHIEVE ITS BITTERLY CONTESTED DEMAND THAT A NON-LEAGUE MOSLEM FROM ITS OWN RANKS BE ACCORDED A SEAT IN THE CABINET. THIS REPRESENTATIVE WOULD COME FROM THE PREDOMINANTLY NORTHWEST FRONTIER PROVINCE, WHERE A CONGRESS GOVERNMENT IS AT PRESENT IN OFFICE.

TOKYO, FRIDAY, JUNE 28--(AP)-A MINORITY GROUP OF THE ~~JUSTICE ALLIED WAR CRIMES COURT~~ INSISTED TODAY UPON FURTHER EXAMINATION OF THE CRUCIAL POSITION OF EMPEROR HIROHITO DURING THE BEGINNING OF JAPAN'S ASIATIC AGGRESSION.

CHIEF JUSTICE SIR WILLIAM WEBB ASKED KEN INUKAI, SON OF THE SLAIN PACIFIST PREMIER OF 19[illegible], TO ELABORATE UPON HIS TESTIMONY THAT HIROHITO, "A LOVER OF PEACE," HAD NEVERTHELESS "REFUSED" TO RECALL JAPANESE TROOPS FROM MANCHURIA.

WEBB YESTERDAY DECLINED TO HEAR FURTHER STATEMENTS ON THE EMPEROR'S POSITION. HE SAID TODAY THAT THE MAJORITY OF THE TRIBUNAL STILL WAS OF THAT SAME OPINION, BUT THAT "SOME MEMBERS" DESIRED ELABORATION.

INUKAI IN A LENGTHY STATEMENT MADE NO DIRECT ANSWER. HE SAID THAT HE WAS NOT SURE WHETHER HIS FATHER ACTUALLY ASKED HIROHITO PERSONALLY TO ISSUE A RESCRIPT RECALLING THE TROOPS, OR WHETHER THE PREMIER'S REQUEST WENT THROUGH THE LORD KEEPER OF THE PRIVY SEAL OR THE IMPERIAL HOUSEHOLD MINISTER.

EDITORS NOTE --RUSSELL BRINES, CHIEF OF THE ASSOCIATED PRESS BUREAU IN TOKYO KNEW YOSUKE MATSUOKA WHO DIED TODAY BEFORE JAPAN DECLARED WAR ON THE UNITED STATES. THE FOLLOWING STORY IS BASED ON A HITHERTO UNPUBLISHED INTERVIEW WITH THE AMERICAN EDUCATED DIPLOMAT PLUS SOME OF BRINES' OBSERVATIONS SINCE RETURNING TO JAPAN.)

BY RUSSELL BRINES

TOKYO JUNE 27-(AP)-IN 1940 YOSUKE MATSUOKA SAID IT WOULD TAKE A REVOLUTION IN JAPAN TO PREVENT WAR WITH THE UNITED STATES

HIS OBSERVATION WAS MADE IN STRICT CONFIDENCE AT HIS LUXURIOUS FOREIGN STYLE HOME IN TOKYO AFTER HE HAD RETIRED AS PRESIDENT OF THE MANCHURIAN RAILWAY

IT WILL TAKE A REAL REVOLUTION TO CURB THE MILITARISTS THE BOMBASTIC, BANTAM-WEIGHT DIPLOMAG

JUN 28 1946

"IT WILL TAKE A REAL REVOLUTION TO CURB THE MILITARISTS," THE BOMBASTIC, BANTAM-WEIGHT DIPLOMAT SAID AS HE REVIEWED MILITARIST GRABS IN JAPAN. HE PREDICTED THEN THAT WAR WITH THE UNITED STATES WAS INEVITABLE.

"THE ONLY METHOD OF DIVERTING WAR WOULD BE A REVOLUTION TO PLACE THE POWER IN THIS COUNTRY IN OTHER HANDS--A REVOLUTION REMOVING THE ADVISERS FROM AROUND THE THRONE BUT NOT CHALLENGING THE THRONE OR THE EMPEROR," MATSUOKA SAID.

MATSUOKA ALWAYS INSISTED THAT HE DID NOT WANT WAR WITH THE UNITED STATES. HE REITERATED THIS CLAIM IN A WRITTEN INTERVIEW AFTER AMERICAN TROOPS OCCUPIED JAPAN LAST YEAR.

IT WAS HIS CONTENTION THAT THE TRIPARTITE PACT WAS INTENDED TO PRESSURE THE UNITED STATES INTO PEACE BY MAKING THE ODDS TOO GREAT AGAINST WAR. HE OFTEN SAID HE WAS CONVINCED THAT THIS WAS THE ONLY WAY TO KEEP THE UNITED STATES OUT OF HOSTILITIES.

MATSUOKA ALWAYS INSISTED THAT HE HAD AN AFFECTION FOR THE UNITED STATES BECAUSE OF HIS LONG RESIDENCE AND SCHOOLING AT THE UNIVERSITY OF OREGON. EVEN AS LATE AS 1940 WHEN PRO-AMERICANISM WAS OUTMODED IN JAPAN, MATSUOKA KEPT BUSTS OF PRESIDENTS LINCOLN AND WASHINGTON AT HIS TOKYO HOME.

JUN 28 1946

A22FX

BUT MATSUOKA WORSHIPPED POWER AND WAS ARDENTLY PRO-JAPANESE. WHETHER HIS PROFESSED LOVE FOR AMERICA WAS A BLIND OR WHETHER HE HAD CONVINCED HIMSELF WITH TYPICAL JAPANESE DUALITY THAT HE COULD SERVE BOTH CAN NOT BE DETERMINED.

NEVERTHELESS HIS POWER STEMMED ALMOST ENTIRELY FROM MILITARIST SUPPORT, FOR HIS OWN ABILITIES WERE LIMITED.

MATSUOKA PROBABLY KNEW THE AMERICAN MIND BETTER THAN ANY OTHER LEADING FIGURE IN PRE-WAR JAPAN. YET, HE COMPLETELY MISCALCULATED ONEVERY MILITARIST-GAMBLE, INCLUDING THE PREVALENT THEORY THAT THE TRIPARTITE AGREEMENT WOULD INTIMIDATE THE UNITED STATES INTO PASSIVENESS.

MATSUOKA WAS AN ENTHUSIASTIC SUPPORTER OF THE 1940 MOVEMENT TO STREAMLINE JAPAN ALONG THE FOLLOWING YEAR THE CROWD-LOVING FOREIGN MINISTER VISITED EUROPEAN AND AXIS CAPITALS, RETURNING IN TRIUMPH WITH THE RUSSIAN NEUTRALITY PACT, WHICH PROTECTED JAPAN'S NORTHERN FLANK FOR THE THEN-BREWING PACIFIC WAR.

MATSUOKA'S NAME UNDOUBTEDLY WILL BE MENTIONED REPEATEDLY AS THE WAR TRIALS PROGRESS CLOSER TO THE PACIFIC WAR PERIOD. IT WILL BE AN EPITAPH FOR A LITTLE MAN WHO WANTED POWER ABOVE EVERYTHING ELSE.

BUENOS AIRES, JUNE 27-(AP)-A PEACEFUL FOREIGN POLICY, REDUCTION OF THE NATION'S ARMED FORCES AND AN AGRARIAN PROGRAM MODELLED AFTER THAT OF THE UNITED STATES WERE AMONG RECOMMENDATIONS OUTLINED BEFORE THE ARGENTINE CONGRESS YESTERDAY BY PRESIDENT JUAN D. PERON.

INDICATING THAT HE EXPECTED RATIFICATION OF THE UNITED NATIONS CHARTER BY THE CONGRESS--MORE THAN TWO THIRDS OF WHICH IS POLITICALLY ALIGNED WITH THE PRESIDENT--PERON SAID THAT "NATIONAL AND INTERNATIONAL COMMITMENTS ARISING FROM SUPPORT OF THE ...CHARTER" WOULD AFFECT ARGENTINA'S NAVAL PLANNING.

JUN 28 1946

THE PRESIDENT ADDED THAT INTERNATIONAL TREATIES WHICH ARGENTINA HAS SIGNED WILL BE SUBMITTED TO CONGRESS FOR A DECISION ON "WHETHER THEY ARE CONSTITUTIONAL" AND IN THE BEST INTEREST OF THE COUNTRY.

TURNING TO DOMESTIC MATTERS, PERON SAID THAT COMPULSORY ARBITRATION OF LABOR DISPUTES WAS ADVISABLE. WHEN THE GOVERNMENT IS ON LABOR'S SIDE, HE DECLARED, "VIOLENCE OR REBELLION DO NO GOOD BECAUSE PROBLEMS CAN BE SOLVED BETTER AND QUICKER BY LEGAL MEANS."

RECOMMENDING AN AGRARIAN PROGRAM CALLING FOR RURAL ELECTRIFICATION, SOIL CONSERVATION AND MAINTENANCE OF FARM PRICES, PERON SAID THAT ARGENTINE TRADITION FAVORED PRIVATE ENTERPRISE, BUT POINTED OUT THAT A GROWING ECONOMY IS NOT ALWAYS ABLE TO WAIT FOR PRIVATE CAPITAL TO ENTER NECESSARY FIELDS. THEY WERE TRANSMITTED FROM THE TASK FORCE FLAGSHIP, THE U.S.S. MOUNT MCKINLEY.)

MEANWHILE, AN ELABORATE RADIO PROGRAM HAS BEEN ARRANGED TO DESCRIBE THE EXPLOSION FROM THE AIR AND TO BROADCAST DEVELOPMENTS THROUGH THE APPALACHIAN'S VOICE CHANNELS.

~~WASHINGTON JUNE 2 -(AP)-~~PRESIDENT TRUMAN TODAY RELEASED A REPORT THAT WORLD FOOD NEEDS WILL STILL BE GREAT FOR MANY MONTHS TO COME AND URGED AMERICANS TO CONTINUE THE DETERMINED EFFORT TO SAVE BREAD AND FLOUR

THE REPORT SHOWED THAT AN ESTIMATED [redacted] LONG TONS OF FOOD GRAINS WILL HAVE BEEN SHIPPED TO HUNGRY AREAS BY THE END OF THIS MONTH AND MR.TRUMAN CALLED THIS AN "IMPRESSIVE RECORD." THE GOAL FOR THE FIRST HALF OF 1946 WAS 6,000,000 TONS, AND

TENS SHOULD BE KEPT FROM STARVING, AND THE PRESIDENT SAID THE LETTER SPEAKS FOR ITSELF.

MR.TRUMAN WAS ASKED WHETHER HE HAD CONSIDERED HIS LETTER TO TOBEY CONFIDENTIAL. HE USED TO CONSIDER PRESIDENTIAL LETTERS CONFIDENTIAL, HE ANSWERED, BUT HE DOES NOT ANY MORE.

MR.TRUMAN ANNOUNCED THAT CAPT. CLARK M.CLIFFORD, HIS NAVAL AIDE, A FORMER ST.LOUIS ATTORNEY, HAS BEEN APPOINTED SPECIAL COUNSEL TO THE PRESIDENT--THE POST FORMERLY FILLED BY JUSTICE SAMUEL I.ROSENMAN. CAPT.JAMES K.VARDAMAN, WHO COMMANDED THE CRUISER AUGUSTA ON WHICH MR. TRUMAN AND PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT TRAVELLED, BECOMES NAVAL AIDE.

THEME THE FOLLOWING WAS DEVELOPED FROM QUESTIONS:

1. MR.TRUMAN CONSIDERS IT UNFORTUNATE THAT CONGRESS HAS TAKEN SO LONG TO PASS THE OPA BILL. STABILIZATION DIRECTOR CHESTER BOWLES HAS WANTED TO RESIGN FOR SOME TIME BUT THE PRESIDENT HOPES HE WILL STAY.

2. THE WOODS BILL MAKING UNIONS SUBJECT TO THE ANTI-RACKETEERING ACT IS NOT NOW BEFORE THE PRESIDENT--IT IS GOING THE ROUNDS OF VARIOUS DEPARTMENTS FOR THEIR OPINIONS, AND AFTER THEY ARE IN THE DECISION WHETHER TO SIGN OR VETO IT WILL BE MADE.

3. THE QUESTION WHETHER TO SEIZE THE STRIKE-BOUND ALLIS-CHALMERS PLANTS STILL HAS NOT BEEN DECIDED. MR.TRUMAN THINKS THE STRIKE PROBABLY CAN BE SETTLED WITHOUT SEIZURE.

4. THE CHIEF EXECUTIVE STILL IS HAVING DIFFICULTY FINDING MEN TO SERVE IN GOVERNMENT POSTS, AND HAS NOT BEEN ABLE TO COMPLETE THE COUNCIL TO ADMINISTER THE EMPLOYMENT ACT. LOW GOVERNMENT SALARIES AS COMPARED WITH THOSE PAID IN PRIVATE INDUSTRY ARE THE CHIEF DIFFICULTY, AND SOME 20 OR 30 MEN HAVE TURNED DOWN APPOINTMENTS FOR THIS REASON. NOW THAT THE WAR IS OVER, THE FACTOR OF PATRIOTISM IS NOT SO STRONG.

TWO QUESTIONS DEALING WITH INTERNATIONAL AFFAIRS WERE BRUSHED ASIDE WITHOUT COMMENT--THE SENDING OF THE CRUISER PARGO TO TRIESTE, AND RUSSIA'S USE OF THE VETO YESTERDAY IN UNITED NATIONS DISCUSSIONS ON SPAIN.

WASHINGTON JUNE 27 (AP)- PRESIDENT TRUMAN TODAY SIGNED AN ORDER TERMINATING THE OFFICE OF DIRECTOR OF LIQUIDATION, EFFECTIVE JUNE 30, AND ACCEPTING THE RESIGNATION OF R.L.MCKEEVER AS ITS OPERATING HEAD.

THE OFFICE, SET UP IN THE OFFICE OF EMERGENCY MANAGEMENT, WAS ESTABLISHED LAST JANUARY.

IN A REPORT TO THE PRESIDENT, MCKEEVER SAID THAT PLANNING FOR CLOSING OUT WAR AGENCIES "HAS BEEN SUBSTANTIALLY COMPLETED" AND CAN BE FOLLOWED UP BY THE BUDGET BUREAU. HE SAID THAT IT WOULD NOT BE POSSIBLE TO COMPLETE THE JOB BY JULY 1 AS CONTEMPLATED IN A REPORT MADE SOME MONTHS AGO BY GEORGE E.ALLEN, NOW AN RFC DIRECTOR, BECAUSE OF "RAPIDLY CHANGING CONDITIONS."

MCKEEVER'S REPORT SAID THAT THE NUMBER OF EMERGENCY WAR AGENCIES HAD BEEN REDUCED FROM 22 ON JUNE 30, 1945, TO 12 APRIL 30, 1946, WHILE THE NUMBER OF EMPLOYES DROPPED FROM 16,993 TO 58,451.

THE PRESIDENT MADE PUBLIC A LETTER TO PAUL H.APPLEBY, ACTING BUDGET DIRECTOR, ASKING HIM TO TAKE OVER THE LIQUIDATION PROBLEM JUNE 30.

HE WROTE PRESIDENT HARRY B.MITCHELL OF THE CIVIL SERVICE COMMISSION THAT MANY THOUSANDS OF FEDERAL EMPLOYES WILL BE RELEASED AS THE PROGRAM PROCEEDS," AMONG THEM SOME OF THE MOST CAPABLE PEOPLE IN THE FEDERAL SERVICE."

Byrnes Calls for Decision Today on Peace Parley, Molotov Talks Against It

American Warns Molotov Decision, One Way or Other, Wanted.

HEATED EXCHANGE

Russian Insists Other Issues on Agenda Be Settled First

Joseph Dynan

PARIS, June 28—(AP) Secretary of State James F. Byrnes served notice tonight of a showdown tomorrow with Soviet Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov on calling a general European peace conference, following a heated exchange in today's Council of Ministers' session, American informants said.

At the end of a lengthy argument with the Russian official, Byrnes declared he would insist upon a decision at tomorrow's conference meeting on whether to call the 21-nation parley.

Byrnes looked squarely at Molotov and asserted he wanted a decision one way or another, American informants said. Molotov then conceded that any council member could speak on any topic at any time of the "day or night."

Issues Are Reviewed

The exchange rounded off a review of outstanding issues in the Italian and Romanian treaties which resulted in a shelving of the key issue of Trieste when French Foreign Minister Georges Bidault asked for additional time to study the entire question of the Italo-Yugoslav frontier.

The council was deadlocked also on the question of an interim administration on Italian colonies, provision for arbitration tribunals, and compensation for Allied nationals' property losses in former enemy states.

The Italian reparations issue and disposal of surplus units of the Italian navy also were shelved when it developed there had been no changes in the various conflicting positions.

The American informants gave this account of the Molotov-Byrnes exchange:

When Byrnes suggested bringing up the question of the European conference, Molotov first gave his approval, on the condition that the council first complete its discussion on remaining items of disagreement in the projected treaties.

Byrnes replied that he assumed Molotov referred to the Finnish treaty and the question of free navigation on the Danube. Molotov replied that he meant these questions and also those which had been postponed.

Too Many Issues

Byrnes retorted that there were too many of these, and that if the council continued to pass over disputed questions there might be no time tomorrow to discuss the calling of the peace conference.

Molotov then suggested that the council discuss the conference question at a special meeting on Sunday.

Byrnes, referring to one of his private conversations with Molotov, said that when they had talked the question over a few days ago Molotov had mentioned he might agree to discuss the conference issue Friday.

Molotov countered with the assertion that Byrnes violated the agreement by not raising the question in today's session and Byrnes said he was doing just that right now.

Byrnes added that the only reason he was willing to defer the discussion was that it was very late and therefore he was serving notice that he would insist upon bringing the question up tomorrow, after the council considers the projected treaty with Finland and the Danube issue.

Byrnes Repeats Words

Byrnes repeated his words and added he wanted no misunderstanding.

British Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin opposed a proposal on the Italian colonies issue to transfer legal sovereignty from Italy to the four powers represented on the the ministers' council, and urged continuing them under British administration pending final settlement, American sources said.

In a continuation of private supplemental meetings Bidault conferred for almost an hour with Molotov before today's sessions, but what they discussed was not disclosed.

French sources said the special commission on Italian colonies, divided on the issue of their interim administration, decided to place the question before the ministers' council.

Britain, France and the United States have favored keeping the colonies under British administration pending a final solution, which all agreed must be made within a year or go before the United Nations. The Russians wanted interim administration by all four powers.

BYRNES TO PRESS FOR DECISION ON PEACE CONFERENCE

Moscow Radio Sees Trend in U. S. for Separate Pacts in Europe

JUN 29 1946

Paris, June 28 (A. P.).—Secretary of State Byrnes served notice on the Foreign Ministers Council today that he intended to press for a decision tomorrow on the calling of a general European peace conference, an American information said.

At about the same time the Moscow radio was broadcasting a report that there was a trend in United States foreign policy toward a separate peace in Europe.

Hits "Elements In U.S."

"There is no question," a Moscow commentator said, "that there are people and organizations in the United States who place their party or other internal political interests above the interests of international peace, to say nothing of the fact that undoubtedly some elements in the United States are not at all pleased at the prospect of a stable and lasting peace."

The Ministers, considerably encouraged by the solution yesterday of the Dodecanese Islands and the French-Italian border questions, instructed their deputies to bring in skeleton drafts today of peace pacts for Italy, Bulgaria, Romania, Hungary and Finland.

Fundamental Issues Included

A British source said that, with all five treaties before them, the Ministers would be able to take up any topic they desired. This might lead to further discussion of the knotty problem of Trieste.

Many of the issues were fundamental. They included reparations and colonial issues, as well as the division of surplus naval units.

On the Balkan treaties, the principal problems concerned freedom of navigation on the Danube and freedom of commerce with Balkan nations. There were no fundamental points of disagreement on the Finnish treaty.

Doubtful On Meeting Deadline

A British source commented that, despite yesterday's fruitful session—at which the Italian-owned Dodecanese Islands in the Aegean Sea were awarded to Greece and the Tenda and Briga regions on the French-Italian border to France—it seemed doubtful that the Ministers could meet their self-imposed deadline for completion of work on the five treaties today.

Settlement of the French-Italian frontier question also included ratification by the Foreign Ministers of the award to France of Mount Cenis, agreed upon at the April-May meetings of the Ministers; the passes of Little St. Bernard and Larche, and an area around Bardonneche.

Tiny Coal-Iron Region

Mount Cenis is a tiny coal-and-fron mine region east of Modane through which runs a main railway line from France to Italy. Little St. Bernard Pass is south of Mount Blanc and Larche Pass is farther south.

The Tenda and Briga Valley has a population of about 3,500 and an area of 251 square miles.

A special commission was summoned prior to the Ministers' meeting to try and iron out the differences as to who should rule Italy's colonies during the year of grace given the commission to break the deadlock on the problem.

Tito Gives Worning.

London, June 28 (A. P.).—The Moscow Radio quoted Premier Marshal Tito of Yugoslavia today as saying that "an unjust settlement" of the Trieste problem "could bring about very grave changes in Yugoslavia's attitude toward the United Nations."

Reiterating that Yugoslavia would never abandon her claim to Trieste, the broadcast said Tito told the Yugoslav news agency Tanjug that his Government could not consent to having the matter settled by vote at a twenty-one-nation peace conference. The broadcast added that Tito declared he was deeply disappointed at the "lack of understanding" of Yugoslavia's "just demands" by the Western Powers.

Greece Hails Decision.

Athens, June 28 (A. P.)—Greece jubilantly acclaimed today the decision of the Foreign Ministers Council to return the Dodecanese Islands to Greece, morning papers announcing the news in Eight-column headlines.

The news reached Parliament shortly after 11 o'clock last night and the session immediately adjourned.

Premier Tsaladaris told newsmen: "This marks the beginning of satisfaction of the national claims of Greece, which has rendered so many services to the Allied cause."

A celebration is planned for tomorrow in the white marble Olympic Stadium and a thanksgiving program is being projected.

JUN 29 1946

Italians Displeased.

Rome, June 28 (A. P.)—"The stab in the back has been repaid." The afternoon newspaper La Capitale thus headlined today the news from Paris that the Foreign Ministers Council has agreed to award to France the Tenda and Briga territories along the French-Italian border.

L'Independente said Italians were indignant at the "iniquity of Paris" and "we did not expect this from French democracy." Italia Sera commented: "Always the same old French; they rob us of Briga and Tenda."

Baruch Urges Fast Action

JUN 29 1946

LARRY HAUCK

NEW YORK, June 28 (AP).—Bernard M. Baruch today called on the United Nations Atomic Energy Commission to move with utmost speed since "time presses and each day finds the world more insecure."

"Let us proceed at once to find a way out," he declared.

Baruch, U. S. delegate, spoke at a closed session of the commission's working committee after receiving a message from President Truman in which the chief executive reiterated his "full support and confidence" in Baruch.

Terming the task "so vital to the peace of the world and the welfare of mankind," President Truman said he would continue to follow the work with closest attention and "with every hope and prayer for its success."

Baruch offered the committee a chart showing areas of agreement and disagreement on various points as expressed by delegates and expressed the hope that this analysis would hurry a decision on the deadly bomb.

"We should now go ahead with our work of making our report that must go to the Security Council where its disposition rests in the good conscience and the sense of service of each of the 11 members," he said.

Truman Expresses His Support For Baruch In U.N. Atom Planning

JUN 29 1946

HAYES SON

New York, June 28 (AP)—President Truman pledged his support today to Bernard Baruch in a message to the United States delegate as the United Nations Atomic Commission went into working session.

The President's message said:

"As the Atomic Energy Commission on which you have been so ably representing our country begins its more detailed discussions, I want to assure you again of my full support and of my confidence that our participation in this great task, so vital to the peace of the world and the welfare of mankind, is in good hands.

"I have been following and shall continue to follow your work with the closst attention and with every hope and prayer for its success."

"Time Presses"

Baruch told the working committee, which met in closed session, that the commission should proceed "with the utmost speed" since "time presses and each day finds the world less secure."

Baruch then presented a chart showing the areas of agreement and disagreement on various points as outlined by delegates to date.

The committee voted unanimously to authorize Dr. H. V. Evatt, of Australia, commission chairman, to name a small working committee to draft an analysis of the problem.

Meanwhile, Soviet Russia tossed

JUN 29 1946

30.A-3805

a voting controversy into the lap of the Atomic Energy Commission today when she served notice that she would fight for a rule requiring a two-thirds vote for approval of all questions before the commission.

That was one of the first questions scheduled for action as the commission was called into session for its first meeting as a working committee to start laying the groundwork for a permanent atomic control agency.

The issue arose yesterday when the commission's committee of experts on rules and procedure approved a rule providing that measures could be adopted by a straight majority of the twelve commission members.

Russian Takes Exception

The Russian procedure expert took exception to the ruling and reserved the right for Soviet Delegate Andrei A. Gromyko to bring the issue before the commission at today's closed meeting.

Since the session was confined largely to procedural matters, it was decided to bar the press and public. Associates of Baruch said, however, that he felt that future meetings should be open.

Meanwhile, Gromyko's repeated use of the veto during Wednesday's Security Council debate on the Spanish question appeared to be developing into a major United Nations issue.

"Abuse Of Veto"

Dr. Francisco Castillo Najera, president of the Security Council and Foreign Minister of Mexico, asserted last night that Russia's numerous negative votes constituted an "abuse of the veto."

The commission has heard from every one of its twelve members and has decided that a working committee composed of a representative of each nation on the commission, plus advisers, must start formulating plans without delay.

Two Plans Studied

What faces the atomic group? The following questions and answers deal with the most pertinent matters:

Question—What propositions are before the commission?

Answer—Broadly speaking, there are only two plans. One is the United States plan advanced by Bernard M. Baruch, United States representative, at the commission's first meeting June 14. The other is the Russian plan put forward by Andrei A. Gromyko, of Russia, at the commission's second meeting June 19.

Q.—What did the United States propose?

A.—The United States laid down a broad program calling for creation by treaties among the nations of an international atomic development authority which would have full control over atomic-energy matters.

U.S. Plan Explained

Q.—What did Russia propose?

A.—A solemn convention among the nations of the world forbidding the production and use of a weapon based upon atomic energy.

Q.—What does the United States propose to do once it is satisfied that an adequate system of control has been set up and the atomic bomb is outlawed as a weapon of warfare?

A.—Three things:

1. Stop manufacturing atomic bombs.

2. Dispose of existing bombs pursuant to the terms of the treaty providing for the control.

3. Give the atomic development authority full information as to the know-how for producing atomic energy.

Q.—Would the United States give to the Atomic Development Authority its top secret formula for making the atomic bomb?

U.S. Offers Data

A.—That point is not specifically covered. The United States says it will give the ADA full information as to the "know-how for the production of atomic energy." It further says: "When the authority is actually created, the United States will join the other nations in making available the further information essential to that organization for the performance of its functions. As the successive stages of international control are reached, the United States will be prepared to yield, to the extent required by each stage, national control of activities in this field to the authority."

On the matter of atomic explosives, the United States proposal says the authority should be given the "sole and exclusive right to conduct research in the field of atomic explosives."

Nowhere in the Baruch speech did the United States go so far as to say "we will tell the world authority how we make the bombs."

Russia's Proposal

Q.—What does Russia's proposed convention provide?

A.—Article 1 puts the high contracting parties on record as forbidding the production and use of a weapon based upon the use of atomic energy and binds them to the following obligations:

"(a) Not to use in any circumstances an atomic weapon.

"(b) To forbid the production and keeping of a weapon based upon the use of atomic energy.

"(c) To destroy within a period of three months from the entry into force of this agreement all stocks of atomic energy weapons whether in a finished or semifinished condition."

Q.—The United States plan for yielding its atomic secrets is contingent upon adequate controls. How would the Russian plan take care of that?

JUN 29 1946

Would Wreck Weapons

A.—Russia's plan calls for all stocks of atomic energy weapons to be destroyed three months after its convention takes effect. That same convention in Article 3 requires that each contracting nation pass legislation within six months after the convention takes effect providing for severe punishment for violation of the terms of the convention.

The United States is the only nation known to have atomic weapons. If the United States accepted the Russian plan as it stands, and if the United States destroyed its weapons within three months after the convention became effective, there could be a period of three months more before any nation had to formulate any sort of control. The Americans argue that such control would be handled only by the individual nations and not by an international authority, with teeth in it. Persons close to Baruch represent him as feeling that without adequate force for punishment, any treaty or convention would be just a pious declaration and useless.

Veto Power Cited

Q.—Is the Atomic Energy Commission subject to the United Nations Security Council?

A.—Yes.

Q.—What are the United States views on the veto, by which one of five countries—Russia, France, China, the United States and Great Britain—can block action in the Security Council on substantive matters?

A.—The United States flatly declared in the Baruch plan that there must be no veto on atomic matters. Members of the American delegation indicate that they are willing to trade the atomic bomb for an adequate international control in which there is no veto.

Russia's Position

Q.—What are Russia's views on the veto?

A.—Gromyko took occasion to remove all doubt about that in his speech outlining Russia's position. He said the commission must work within the framework of the charter of the United Nations. He further said that efforts to undermine the unanimity of the Security Council on questions of substance should be resisted. Asked after that meeting if he meant Russia would stand by the veto, he said he did. That is perhaps the major difference that must be resolved.

Q.—Suppose the nations agree upon a law (or a convention) banning atomic energy weapons and a violation is found, say in the United States. What happens then under the American proposals?

A.—The American plan envisions that such an eventuality would be taken care of by the punishment system to be set up in the treaties establishing the atomic development authority. Briefly, the ADA would stop the violation and punish the offender.

Called Inadequate

Q.—What happens under the Russian plan?

A.—Russia proposes that each nation pass laws to punish violations in that nation. It further proposes that the commission study sanctions and controls to be applied. But the Americans insist that the Russian controls are not adequate. Suppose, they say, that a violation is found in the United States. Atomic projects are under Government control in this country and, therefore, the Americans declare, the United States Government would be expected to punish itself under the system of individual nations setting up their own penalties.

Suppose, however, the complaining nation is not satisfied and takes the case to the Security Council, charging that the United States has broken the international law on atomic control and that the violation itself is a prima facie evidence of aggression.

Could Be Vetoed

The American viewpoint expressed by members of the delegation is that the case could be argued in the Security Council and that the United States delegate in the final showdown could veto Council action against the United States.

United Nations observers pointed out in this connection that if affairs had progressed so far that the United States or another nation holding the veto power felt called upon to veto a Council move against it, for atomic reasons, that nation could be presumed to be hiding warlike intentions. This could mean that at that stage the other nations could, if they felt the urgency of the situation warranted it, go to war to punish a nation which had broken the atomic covenant.

May Override Veto

The veto thus could conceivably be one of the last steps before a resort to arms in an extremely serious case. The condemned nation could invoke the veto as much as it desired but if the situation were sufficiently serious the other nations might invoke sanctions and take other punishing measures, overriding the veto by force of arms.

Q. Would the international atomic development authority proposed by the United States come under the Security Council?

A. That is a matter for further study. The feeling of the American delegation is that the ADA should be set up by treaties among the nations, it should operate separately and apart from the Security Council as long as the Council holds to the veto power.

The Next Step

Q. Suppose the commission agrees upon a plan for atomic control. What then?

A. The commission report would go to the Security Council. If approved there, it would go to the United Nations General Assembly. If approved there, and assuming it would contain a draft treaty for atomic control, it would be sent to the member nations for ratification. Naturally, the United States Senate must approve any treaty before the United States is finally committed.

Summed Up By Evatt

Q.—How does the veto in the Security Council apply right now to the actions of the Atomic Energy Commission?

A.—Dr. Herbert V. Evatt, of Australia, commission chairman and long an opponent of the veto in the United Nations, sums it up this way:

"To some extent the recommendations of this commission will require review by the Security Council. In such review the veto may be exercisable according to the circumstances. In this commission itself no veto is exercisable unless we decide to introduce it, which is not contemplated. When the assembly of the United Nations deals with the welfare aspects of atomic energy, no veto is exercisable. If in the end an international convention establishes a world atomic authority, the day-to-day administrative decisions of that body may or may not be subject to the veto system of voting. That is a matter for the consideration of this commission when it is reviewing the problem as a whole."

Have Similar Aims

Q.—Are the Russian and American plans similar in any respect?

A.—Yes. Both aim at outlawing atomic energy as a means of warfare. Both are predicated upon the legal basis of a convention to forbid the employment of atomic bombs. Both agree that sufficient sanctions should be applied to anyone violating these obligations. Both agree that the pact is open to all nations, whether or not they are members of the United Nations.

Q.—What are the main points of divergence in the American and Russian plans?

A.—They are apart mainly on the veto powers on atomic matters, how punishment of an offender is to be applied, and how inspections of the nations to look for violations shall be carried out.

U.S. Not Satisfied

Q.—What about inspections?

A.—The Americans say that once the international control is set up and the manufacture of bombs has been stopped and existing stocks disposed of, rigid inspections must be made. They insist the Russian plan does not satisfy them on that point.

Russian circles say their plan does not necessarily bar inspections, which they indicate they might be willing to discuss later.

Questions And Answers On U.S. And Russ Atomic Control Plans

The following is an effort, in question-and-answer form, to make clear some of the many facets of the atomic question now under debate by the United Nations Atomic Energy Commission. It is designed to present in simple terms what the diplomats have been saying about a matter which ultimately will affect every man, woman and child in the world. It is based on the documents themselves and interpretations by high authorities.

'U.N. Splitting Up': Reuther

Cincinnati, June 28 (AP) — The United Nations "is splitting at the seams," says Walter P. Reuther, international president of the United Auto Workers-CIO.

"It was the product of a common hatred, the child of a common fear," the Detroit union leader declared last night in an address at the convention of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, and added:

"Now that that common fear has been destroyed, and Hitler is no more, the United Nations is splitting at the seams."

Cuba Will Ask U. N. Call Parley to Rule Out Veto

Her Envoy Says Plea Will Ca to Next General Assembly

JUN 29 1946

WASHINGTON, June 28 (AP).—Cuban Ambassador Guillermo Belt said in an interview today that his nation will ask the next General Assembly of the United Nations to call a general conference to revise the United Nations charter and eliminate the veto issue.

The ambassador, who is Cuba's permanent representative to the United Nations, has just returned from conferences with his government in Havana.

"We are confident," the ambassador told a reporter, "that when the time comes Cuba and Colombia will not stand alone against the veto as we did when the much debated veto issue finally came to a vote during the San Francisco conference.

"I have reasons to hope that many of the thirty nations who voted then in favor of the veto, as well as many of the fourteen nations who abstained from voting, and by their negative attitudes made the veto possible, will support wholeheartedly our motion to eliminate the veto.

"In our opinion the veto is the last rampart of isolationism."

SWEDEN WOULD JOIN THE UNITED NATIONS

Stockholm, June 28 (A. P.).—Foreign Minister Osten B. Unden said today that Sweden would apply for membership in the United Nations "when the Swedish Government judges convenient."

Parliament authorized the Government yesterday to make application for membership, after Unden told the deputies that the Government felt "Sweden's pacifist traditions are well consistent with the country's endeavor, through the United Nations, to guarantee world peace."

He said that membership would not mean Sweden's association with any great Power bloc and added: "It probably will be a long time before the United Nations stabilizes as a security organization, which, however, does will fall to pieces, but it is preferable to an optimist than a pessimist."

GOEBBELS BLAMED GERMANS FOR RUIN

Last Defendant at Nuremberg Says Propaganda Chieftain Charged They Chose War

T. Reddy

NUREMBERG, Germany, June 28 (AP)—Cornered in Berlin and about to commit suicide, Dr. Joseph Goebbels blamed the German people in a last bitter declaration for the war that brought Germany down in ruins, the International Military Tribunal was told today.

Hans Fritzsche, radio propaganda chief under Goebbels and the last defendant to be heard, described the scene from the witness stand.

"He was quite excited," Fritzsche said. "He said the people decided by referendum to leave the League of Nations and by this decided against a give-in policy. Thus the German people chose the war which they lost."

That, he said, was Goebbels' last big lie.

"Those words were untrue," he told the tribunal. "Never before had Goebbels given such significance to that plebiscite. He always took the opposite view that this vote was a solemn assurance on the part of peace.

"I can see now that Hitler and some of his co-workers then deliberately lied to the German people," Fritzsche declared.

"I consider that I, too, was lied to on those counts."

Claims He Balked Reprisals

The witness said he had played a stalling game with Goebbels in the last few weeks of the war over a Hitler decision to kill 40,000 Allied prisoners in retaliation for the bombing of Dresden. He supported this contention with an affidavit from Karl Hermann Scharpin, an assistant, who said Goebbels had ordered Fritzsche to announce the reprisals on the radio.

"Fritzsche protested at once," the affidavit said. "He expressed his opinion unequivocally against it."

Events moved so fast that Fritzsche was able to avoid the announcement and the reprisals never were carried out, the affidavit said.

Soviet Prosecutor Gen. Roman A. Rudenko introduced a document purporting to show that the Germans at one time had contemplated biological warfare. The record was a brief letter sent by Fritzsche from the Propaganda Ministry to the High Command. It referred to a "plan for biological warfare" that was being submitted for consideration by the proper agency.

Durants To Deny Gem Theft Guilt, Says Counsel

Frankfurt, June 28 (AP)—Col. J. V. Durant and his WAC captain wife will deny any guilt in connection with the theft of $1,500,000 Hesse family jewels, their lawyers said today.

DAY

"To whatever charge is placed against them we can offer a legal defense," declared Capt. Glenn V. Brumbaugh, Los Angeles, who flew here last night from Washington to represent the Durants. The trial will begin next month.

Doesn't Yet Know Charges

Brumbaugh, 38-year-old veteran defense counsel, said he did not yet know the nature of the charges to be made against his clients, who are held in custody in Frankfurt's best hotel following their arrest in the United States.

"But we are ready to go to trial any time—just as soon as we can get our witnesses here from the United States," Brumbaugh said.

"On the basis of information given out by the Provost Marshal General's Office, I don't see how they can file any charges against the Durants."

Not Representing Major

He said he would represent only the Durants. Major David F. Watson, of Burlingame, Cal., also is under arrest in the case. Virtually all the jewels have been recovered.

Brumbaugh, a former army instructor in military law, said he did not know the Durants personally before they asked for his services.

GERMANS PROTEST REMOVAL ORDER

JUN 29 1946

Hamburg, June 28 (A. P.).—British authorities held an unannounced number of German civilians under arrest today following a mass demonstration staged by Hamburg residents yesterday to protest an order directing 30,000 persons to evacuate their homes to make room for the families of British military personnel.

DAY

The demonstration, in which approximately 4,000 persons participated, was the first large-scale manifestation of resentment against the Allied occupation. The defiant crowd assembled in the city square chanting "first phosphorous bombs, now removal"—a reference to Allied air raids which destroyed a great part of the city—and booed Burgomeister Petersen when he appealed to the demonstrators to disperse.

The crowds milled about for almost two hours, during which it twice sang the old German National anthem "Deutschland Uber Alles." For the most part the demonstrators were fairly orderly. (ADD)

SAYS COSMIC RAYS COULD SPLIT ATOM

Herbert Spencer JUN 29 1946

Moscow, June 28 (A. P.).—A scientist writing in Izvestia today said Alexander Pavlovich Zhdanov, the physicist, had found that cosmic rays at high altitudes could completely break up the nucleus of an atom into its component parts, and that this discovery "opened a new page" in the development of nuclear physics.

DAY

Zhdanov, announced yesterday as the winner of a 100,000-ruble Stalin prize for his work with cosmic rays, found the phenomenon in studies using specially prepared photofilm, the article said. The splitting of the atom was traced on the photofilm, he said.

Zhdanov, the article added, in his high-altitude studies had "established a new fact of great scientific meaning:

"Through the mutual action of cosmic rays with substances arrayed with other processes, there occurs a nucleus splitting characterized by the throwing off of great quantities of protons from the disintegrating nucleus. In such a case obviously there are instances of the complete breaking up of the nucleus into its component parts—protons and neutrons." (ADD)

Trade Union Federation Wants Franco Outlawed

Asks U. N. to Recognize Giral Exile Government

MOSCOW, June 28 (AP).—The executive committee of the World Federation of Trade Unions voted today to ask the United Nations to declare General Francisco Franco an outlaw and to recognize the Giral government-in-exile as the real government of Spain.

Lord Citrine, at a news conference at the end of the eleven-day Moscow meeting, said the committee was determined to press its demand for a stronger voice in the U. N. councils.

He said the committee also voted to send a commission to Japan and Korea and other parts of the Orient to investigate trade unionism.

James B. Carey, secretary treasurer of the Congress of Industrial Organizations, attended as a United States delegate.

SOVIET AMNESTY EXTENDED

Moscow Presidium Also Calls U. S. S. R. Parliament for Sept.

MOSCOW, June 28 (AP)—The Presidium of the Supreme Soviet has extended the July 7, 1945, amnesty exempting from further punishment railway and water transport workers sentenced for violation of wartime regulations, it was announced today.

At the same time, the Presidium ordered a regular session of the Supreme Council of the U.S.S.R. (Parliament) convened in Moscow on Sept. 20.

In another decree, the Presidium increased State aid for pregnant women, mothers of large families and unmarried mothers. About 4,000,000,000 rubles would be paid out to 3,400,000 Soviet mothers during 1946.

A Moscow broadcast said the Soviet Union emblem was revised to include Lithuania, Latvia, Estonia, Moldavia and the Karelo-Finnish republic.

Russ Bonus Fund Dishonesty Found

Moscow, June 28 (AP)—The bookkeeping in the incentive system of Soviet industry, under which exceptional workmen get money prizes for breaking production records, appears due for an overhauling as a result of the discovery of dishonesty in handling the money in some plants and industries.

A nation-wide investigation by the State Control Ministry uncovered many cases where plant directors, who hold the pursestrings to huge sums earmarked for prizes, misused the money. With the connivance of subordinates, the directors falsified production reports to justify legal prize payments, and as a result large sums found their way into the pockets of the directors and their fellow manipulators.

In what was generally considered a stern warning to all industry, Soviet newspapers this week published the names of 26 persons charged with the transgressions.

No political significance is seen in the present action by the State Control Ministry.

The present emphasis on honesty in Soviet industry is expected to bring an overhauling of the bookkeeping system so that the plant directors will have to share control of the prize funds with others.

Tenda-Briga Award to France 'Grave Error,' Says de Gasperi

ROME, June 28—(AP) Premier Alcide de Gasperi told the constituent assembly today that the award of the Tenda-Briga region to France by the Big Four foreign ministers constituted "a grave error" against Franco-Italian friendship.

In Milan the world-famous Conductor Arturo Toscanini and the orchestra from La Scala Opera House refused to appear at a Sunday concert in Paris in protest against the action.

One Italian newspaper called the award robbery; another declared "the stab in the back has been repaid."

Recalls Mazzini's Words

Luigi Casparotto, minister for post-war aid, at a war veterans' council recalled the words of Giuseppe Mazzini, head of the 1849 short-lived Roman republic: "May he be cursed who dares deny to Italy the borders that nature has given her."

Walter Toscanini, son of the noted conductor of the NBC Symphony orchestra, said that he believed La Scala would also refuse to appear in London because the Paris decision was "against all human rights and against the Atlantic Charter decisions, so there is no reason for the Italian side to continue to offer acts of friendship."

Officials at La Scala Opera House said that Toscanini gave the orders to cancel the concert when he learned of the Paris decision. The management of La Scala said it concurred in the decision, which was "in complete agreement with municipal representatives, the directors of La Scala and the entire artistic personnel of La Scala."

The statement added that the action did not stem from any sentiment of offended nationalism, "but sought to confirm the distressed spirit of the Italian in this hour of renewed humiliation."

Watler Toscanini said that negotiations were under way to hold the concert in Geneva for the benefit of the International Red Cross.

Proceeds of the Paris concert were to have gone to the French Red Cross.

Waletr said that his father would issue no statement of his own. It was with La Scala that Toscanini gained fame a half century ago, going from its pits to the Metropolitan Opera in New York and later becoming conductor of the New York Philharmonic symphony.

He returned to La Scala, rebuilt after extensive war damage, for a triumphant appearance on May 11.

Train Ready to Start

The decision to cancel the Paris appearance was made after a train for the trip had been made ready at the Milan station. Several artists appeared at the station, but reurned to their homes when they were apprise of the situation.

In Paris it was discolsed that the border settlement included also the award of Mount Cenis, tiny coal and iron mine region southeast of Modane, to the French. This was agreed upon at the April-May meeting and ratified yesterday. A main railway line from France to Italy runs through the Mount Cenis tunnel, thence to Turin, 67 miles farther east.

The pass of Little Saint Bernard, south of Mont Blanc, in an area around Bardonn Echia, and the pass at Larche, farther south, also went to France.

The Tenda-Briga area has a population of approximately 3,500, in a narrow valley along France's southeast border. It measures approximately 251 square miles. The agreement provided that hydro-electric power produced in the area should be made available to Italy.

In Rome the newspaper Italia Sera declared in page-wide headlines "always the same old French—they rob us of Briga and Tenda." L'Indipendente asserted "we did not expect this from French democracy." La Capitale headlined its story "The stab in the back has been repaid."

DE NICOLA NAMED ITALIAN PRESIDENT

Neopolitan Statesman First Elected Chief Executive of New Republic.

ROME, June 28—(AP) Enrico de Nicola, 68-year-old veteran Neopolitan statesman, became the first elected president of the new Italian republic today.

De Nicola received at an afternoon session of the constituent assembly, received 396 out of 504 votes cast.

Cirdiano Facchinetti, Republican party deputy, received 40 votes, and a lone woman nominee, Ottavia Penna, of the right wing Uomo Qualunque (Comman Man) movement, polled 32 votes.

12 Votes to Orlando

Twelve votes went to the 86-year-old World War I Premier, Vittorio Emanuele Orlando, who presided over the assembly's opening session Wednesday, and two to Count Carlo Sforza, long-time foe of fascism and president of the consultatives assembly which paved the way for the June 2 plebiscite that ousted monarchy.

De Nicola's election had been assured early today when the Christian Democrats, Socialists and Communists, the three largest parties agreed that he would be an acceptable compromise.

Now in Naples, de Nicola is expected to come to Rome tomorrow to take the oath of office.

On his arrival, Premier Alcide de Gasperi's six-party coalition cabinet, which has governed the country since mid-December, will formally resign.

But because of the strong showing of De Gasperi's Christian Democrats in the June 2 assembly elections, De Nicola is expected to ask him to form another government.

A former journalist, De Nicola was elected to the pre-fascist chamber of deputies four times and served as under-secretary of colonies and treasury in the Ciolitti and Orlando cabinets.

In 1924—in the early days of fascism—De Nicola withdrew his candidacy for the chamber, but nevertheless was elected. He refused, however, to be sworn in.

Named By King

Former King Vittorio Emmanuele named him a senator in 1932 but De Nicola never appeared at any of the sessions and virtually withdrew from political life.

The constituent assembly will write a constitution for the new republic. Voters early this month voted in favor of the Republic, dethroning King Umberto who had succeeded his father, Vittorio Emmanuele, to the throne.

A few days after the people of Italy had made their choice, De Gasperi became acting chief of state and Umberto fled into exile. He is presently in Portugal.

Nicola Is Elected Italy President

Rome, June 28 (AP)—Enrico de Nicola, veteran Neapolitan statesman, was elected provisional President of the new Italian republic today by the Constitutent Assembly. He received 396 of the 504 votes cast.

De Nicola, 68, was assured election earlier when the Christian Democrats, Socialists and Communists agreed that he was acceptable as a compromise.

When the President arrives in Rome tomorrow, Premier Alcide de Gasperi's sixty-party coalition will resign.

Because of the strong showing of de Gasperi's Christian Democrats in the June 2 Assembly elections, de Nicola is expected to ask him to form another government. The Italians also voted on June 2 to depose King Umberto II and the royal house of Savoy and establish a republic.

A former journalist, Nicola was elected to the pre-Fascist Chamber of Deputies four times and served as Under Secretary of Colonies and Treasurer in the Giolitti and Orlando cabinets.

In 1924—in the early days of Fascism—he retired his candidacy for the chamber, was nevertheless elected, but refused to be sworn.

King Vittorio Emanuele named him senator in 1932, but he never appeared at any sessions and virtually withdrew from political life.

London Slavs 'Split Army'

Belgrade, June 28 (AP)—Dusan Simovic, a former Premier of the Yugoslav Government in exile, testified for the prosecution in Gen. Draja Mihailovic's treason trial today. He said the unity of the Yugoslav Army was destroyed by activities of politicians in the exiled Government in London, and named Momtchilo Nincic, Slobodan Jovanovic, Milan Gavrilovic, Zivan Knezevic and Milan Grol.

Simovic related that while he was Premier he tried to reconcile differences between the Chetniks and Tito's Partisans after Mihailovic told him in a telegram he was being attacked by both the Partisans and the Germans.

"I must inform you Mihailovic's telegram was erroneous—that the Germans had attacked the Partisans," the Court President said.

Politicians Destroyed Unity Of Yugoslav Army, Trial Told

BELGRADE, June 28 (AP).—Dusan Simovic, former Premier of the Yugoslav Government in Exile, told a military court today that the unity of the Yugoslav Army was destroyed by a group of politicians who later joined the emigre Government.

He testified in the trial of Gen. Draja Mihailovic, Chetnik leader, and 23 other defendants, including some members of the exiled Government being tried in absentia.

Appearing for the prosecution, Simovic named Momchilo Nincic, Clobodan Jovanovic, Milan Gavrilovic, Zivan Knezevic and Milan Grol as among those who "helped break up our armed froces."

Nincic is former Foreign Minister, Jovanovis a former Premier, Gavrilovic a former Minister to Russia, Knezvic a close advisor to the deposed King Peter, and Grol a former acting War Minister in the London Government who served briefly as a vice-premier in Marshal Tito's Government.

Asked how the London government made contact with Mihailovic's forces in 1941, Simovic said that this was accomplished through Gordna Bailoni, a woman described previously by the prosecution as a Gestapo agent, and through "an American passing through Lisbon." He said the unnamed American supplied the wave length and call letters of Mihailovic's radio station.

Nincic is a former Foreign Minister, Jovanovic a former Premier, Gavrilovic a former Minister to Russian, Knezevic a close adviser to deposed King Peter and Grol a former acting War Minister in the London Government who was briefly a Vice Premier in Marshal Tito's Government.

"Harmful BBC Propaganda"

Simovic also named Radoje Knezevic, brother of Zivan, as one of the leaders who "split our army and made propaganda over the BBC which did a lot of harm." Radoje also was an adviser to King Peter.

Simovic said that while he was Premier he tried to reconcile Mihailovic and Tito's Partisans by appealing to Mihailovic, Ivan Maisky, Soviet Ambassador in London, Prime Minister Stalin of Russia and British Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden.

Hoxha again appealed for Albania's admission to the United Nations.

RED POLICE STOP 2 U. S. NEWS MEN

Warsaw, June 27 (Delayed) (A. P.).—Russian secret police questioned and delayed two American correspondents for five hours this week at Poznan, suspicious that one was a Russian deserter because of his command of the language.

The reporters were John Scott of Time and Life magazines and Elie Abel of the North American Newspaper Alliance. They were traveling from Berlin to Warsaw in a jeep which accosted by a policeman, armed with a tommy-gun, and taken back to Poznan.

Scott, fluent in Russian after four years on assignment in Moscow, said two Russian secret police accused them of failing to complete formalities of crossing the border.

The reporters were released after the officers had conferred with superiors in Warsaw and after two attaches of the United States embassy intervened. Scott said the Russians were "very polite" and that both were his dinner guests last night.

TERROR IS REPORTED INCREASING IN POLAND

WARSAW, June 28—(AP) Polish newspapers today reported increasing terror, including slayings of members of voting commissions and intimidation of voters by outlaw bands, as campaigning for Sunday's national referendum entered the final stage.

The [illegible] Rzeczpospolita said Nazi-[illegible] organizations were cooperating with the outlawed NSZ, in attempts to force Polish voters to oppose all three questions in the referendum.

Voters will be asked whether they want a one-house parliament, whether they approve nationalization of industries and agrarian reforms, and whether they approve establishment of Poland's western borders on the Oder and Neisse rivers.

An affirmative vote is sought by the provisional government. The Peasant party, headed by Vice Premier Stanislaw Mikolajczyk, seeks a two-house parliament.

Plebiscite Due In Poland Sunday

Warsaw, June 28 (AP)—Approximately 11,000,000 Polish citizens will have their first chance to vote in eleven years at a national referendum Sunday, called to pass judgment on the policies of the Soviet-supported provisional government.

The plebiscite, which climaxes a period of bitter political campaigning and violence, will enable the voters to answer these three questions:

1. Do you want a one-house parliament? 2. Do you approve of the acts of the provisional regime nationalizing basic industries and agrarian reform? 3. Do you approve of the establishment of Poland's eastern frontiers on the Oder and Neisse rivers?

The accident occurred during maneuvers of the 2d Destroyer Squadron and submarine flotilla. The submarine sank almost immediately with all aboard.

The 1,536-ton Lepanto was damaged but reached Puerto de Soller on the west coast of the Mallorca Islands without loss of life. The C4 was commissioned in 1929, the same year as the Lepanto, and had a surface displacement of 842 tons.

GREEK REDS KILL NINE

Athens, June 28 (A. P.).—Communists ambushed and killed nine policemen at a mountain midway between Pharasalos and Lamia yesterday, the Ministry of Public Order said today. Three Communists were killed in the fight which lasted several hours.

A band of about seventy-five Communists fired into the police ranks with machineguns, automatic rifles and hand grenades, the Ministry said.

In another outbreak in Eastern Thrace near the Turkish border, the Ministry said, Communists killed two policemen in assaults.

Nagy Asserts Conditions Demand a Coalition

BUDAPEST, June 28 (AP).—Premier Ferenc Nagy, who returned recently from a trip to Britain and the United States, said today he told British Prime Minister Clement Attlee that conditions in Hungary are so bad his government "cannot tolerate opposition."

"The opposition must be in coalition with us," Nagy said.

He told a press conference that he expressed his views to Attlee after the latter had said he believed in a democracy where the minority was permitted to say a word about how things were run.

JERUSALEM, June 28 (AP)—British authorities opened a second military court in Jerusalem today to handle an increasing number of arrests of persons possessing firearms and accused of taking part in terrorist activities.

Starting next Monday, the two courts will operate simultaneously along with a third court in Haifa, where both Arabs and Jews charged with violating the Palestine Government's defense regulations will be tried.

The Jerusalem military court today sentenced David Buton, 18, to four years' imprisonment for possession of a case of arms.

HOPES FOR PEACE BRIGHTER IN CHINA

NANKING, June 28—(AP)—China's hopes for an end to its civil strife rose today with the report that Chiang Kai-Shek had declared "peace is very near," and had promised there will be no fighting even if an agreement is not reached before the expiration Sunday of the Manchurian truce.

A peace declaration from Shanghai reported the generalissimo made the statements during a 40-minute conference.

A few hours earlier, Chinese Communist sources had reported partial settlement of the knottiest problem confronting Manchurian peace negotiators—reorganization of government and Communist armies.

Communist sources said the troublesome question of the size of the armies each faction would retain had been "more or less settled." The problem now, they added, was to establish spheres of authority for each.

Chinese Truce Crisis Near

Nanking, June 28 (AP)—General Marshall's efforts to drag China from the brink of civil war before the latest Government-Communist truce expires neared a climax today.

The special United States envoy discussed for three hours with Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek the Communists' "final" proposal for peace, handed Marshall yesterday by Gen. Chou En-lai, the Communist negotiator.

Then after a hasty lunch he received Chou and outlined the Generalissimo's answers.

Progress On Last Issue

There was no hint of the details, but Communist sources said the last unsettled question, the union of Government and Communist forces in one army for China, had been solved in part.

These sources said the size of the armies each would retain had been "more or less settled" and the problem now was establishing spheres of authority for each.

They asserted that the Communists wanted to control certain key cities but that Chiang, at least before today, insisted on more restricted areas.

Eight Japs Face Trial For War Murders

Shanghai, June 28 (A. P.).—Eight Japanese officers, including Lieut.-Gen. Haruki Isayama, will be tried before a military commission here July 1 on charges that they murdered fourteen downed American flyers on Formosa, June 19, 1945, Army Headquarters announced today.

Australia Seeking Pacific Conference

Wants Territories and Bases Discussed by Powers

CANBERRA, Australia, June 28 (AP).—A government source said today that Australia is trying, through Dr. H. V. Evatt, to obtain the support of the United Kingdom for a conference in Canberra to discuss Pacific island territories and bases.

Federal Cabinet ministers would like to see the United States, the Netherlands, France, the Soviet Union, Portugal, China and India represented, in addition to Britain, Australia and New Zealand, the source said.

United States Cool to India

WASHINGTON, June 28 (AP).—Informal Australian suggestions for a conference of Pacific powers on defense arrangements were reported by American officials today to have received no encouragement in Washington.

The United States government, these informants said, would much prefer to go ahead with its own system of base development in the Pacific, including extensive facilities at the Australian-mandated island of Manus, in place of having a Pacific conference to lay out an elaborate defense plan in which it is felt the United States would still have to do the overwhelming share of the work.

Dr. Herbert V. Evatt, Australian foreign minister, has conferred with President Truman and ranking State Department officials in recent weeks. Best information is that he never has formally proposed a conference, but at various times the idea has come up in a general way.

The basic American approach to the problem is that Australia's real concern with Pacific military problems is to get protection for herself, and that if the United States obtains the bases it seeks Australia will have that protection.

Both Dr. Evatt and American officials are represented as confident that the situation will work out satisfactorily.

Premier Blamed In King Death

Bangkok, June 28 (AP)—Gen. Abul Dejarat, wartime underground leader, took over command of the Siamese Army today as mounting tension was climaxed by circulation of unsigned leaflets accusing Premier Thanamyong Pridi and his Government clique of complicity in the fatal shooting of young King Ananda Mahidol.

Abul's appointment by Pridi, which followed a medical board's statement that the king might have been assassinated, was interpreted in many quarters as a precautionary measure against revolt. Abul, who headed the police criminal investigation division, is described by political enemies as "chief of the Siamese Gestapo."

The leaflets, which circulated in the capital and were posted on the doors of the Ministry of Justice, said that Pridi, who "poses as Siam's saint, is actually the beast who killed the King."

Meanwhile, public hearings on the case by a commission of inquiry continued. Several witnesses have testified that at least two attendants of the King were in the dressing room at the time of the gunfire. The official announcement of the King's death said the shooting was accidental.

'31 Jap Premier Pictures Vain Mukden Tug

D. Hennessy

Tokyo, June 28 (AP)—The Premier who was in power when the Manchurian incident broke out testified today that the Japanese army plunged ahead over the protests of the Imperial Government.

"The Government did not even know who was responsible for the army's action," Reijiro Wakatsuki, Premier early in 1931, told the international war crime tribunal trying 27 former Japanese leaders.

Wakatsuki declared the Government's construction was such that the Cabinet could not even inquire into the army's action.

Hirohito's Role Comes Up

Earlier, Tribunal President Sir William Webb sought to determine whether Emperor Hirohito had any war responsibility by questioning a prosecution witness at the prompting of "some members of the court."

Unofficially, China and Russia have suggested that Hirohito be tried as a war criminal, but both Britain and the United States are opposed.

Webb asked Ken Inukai, son of Wakatsuki's slain successor, to tell what happened when his father asked the Emperor to end the Manchurian incident.

Softens Earlier Testimony

Inukai, who testified yesterday his father had appealed to the Emperor in vain to withdraw from Manchuria, replied:

"It is the tradition of the Japanese people to avoid bringing the name of the Emperor into any argument. On the order of this court I will dare to include the name of the Emperor in my testimony."

Inukai then tempered his previous testimony by saying he was uncertain whether his father appealed directly to the Emperor or talked with the Lord Keeper of the Privy Seal.

Did See Him Later

The Premier's son, now a member of the Diet, said he knew, however, that much later, in the closing days of 1931, Premier Inukai did see Hirohito, who asked him:

"What will you do if the Army is against what you propose?"

"Even if the entire Army is against me, I shall carry out this (peace) policy," Inukai said his father replied.

Premier Inukai was assassinated by the militarists in 1932.

Jap Woman Heckled In Diet Speech

Tokyo, June 28 (AP)—The Japanese Diet, long on debate and uproar under an Allied-given freedom, had another tumultuous session today, with a woman member being shouted down with cries of "Shut up, ye woman!"

Communist Sanzo Nozaka was under massed heckling from the Liberal (Right-wing) party when he denounced the proposed constitution as "an effort to retain a government of capitalists, landowners and bureaucrats."

Into the din stepped Miss Kiyoko Miki, an Independent, shouting at the top of her lungs "Quiet, please!" and "Give the Communist a chance to speak!"

The Liberals, astounded at hearing a woman raise her voice in the Diet for the first time, subsided at first, then fell to heckling again.

When she resumed shouting, they shouted right back "Shut up, ye woman!" Nevertheless, they quit after a while and let the Communist finish his speech.

SAYS EMPEROR SHOULDN'T VOTE

Tokyo, June 28 (A. P.).—Emperor Hirohito will be able to vote like any other citizen under Japan's new constitution, but he shouldn't, the Diet was told today.

State Minister Tokujiro Kanamori questioned by a member in the House of Representatives if the Emperor could vote, replied:

"Sovereignty rests with the people. The Emperor is included in the people. . . . So logically the Emperor in person has a right to vote. Yet in practice he should stand aloof of parties, be fair and impartial and not exercise the right."

Jap Gl's Try Own Officers

Tokyo, June 28 (AP)—Japanese soldiers who conducted their own "war-crime" trial while being repatriated aboard the Tatsuhara Maru from Bangkok, Siam, beat 33 "convicted" officers so severely that 30 were hospitalized and three had to be helped ashore, Kyodo News Agency reported today.

The officers, Kyodo said, were tried for beating and punishing subordinates unnecessarily and making excessive use of authority. The soldiers threw the convicted officers' baggage overboard.

The Tatsuhara Maru arrived at Kagoshima June 18 with 3,500 repatriates aboard. The soldiers will be held in temporary barracks while an investigation of the incident is made by Allied military police, Kyoda reported.

Christian Services Set for Matsuoka

British Shift Japan Command

TOKYO, June 28 (AP)—Lieut. Gen. John Northcott, who will return to Australia to become Governor of New South Wales, relinquished the command of British occupation forces in Japan to Lieut. Gen. H. C. R. Robertson today. A review of a battalion of the Dorsetshire Regiment brought praise from Lieut. Gen. Robert L. Eichelberger, United States Eighth Army commander, as "the most exact I have ever seen."

ROXAS DECLINES AID TO GUERRILLA ARMY

MANILA, June 28 (AP)—An estimated 25,000 former guerrillas who gathered at Malacana palace today to ask for benefits and recognition were told by President Manuel Roxas that the Philippine Government "has no authority" in the matter.

The United States Army has sole jurisdiction, President Roxas explained to the orderly throng, adding he had been assured that Lieut. Gen. W. D. Styer, commander of Army forces in the western Pacific, would continue to consider petitions for guerrilla recognition after July 4, when the Philippines become independent.

Meanwhile, United States High Commissioner Paul V. McNutt promised a "sympathetic study" of a petition signed by 5,000 guerrillas seeking recognition under the banner of Col. Marking Augustin.

Mr. McNutt likewise asserted he had no authority to take action on the request. The petition was presented by the famed woman guerrilla leader, Col. Yay Panillo Augustin after hundreds of the guerrillas had marched down Dewey Boulevard in the rain.

"I have already succeeded in some measure in assuring some benefits and care for the widows and orphans and disabled in the case of duly accredited guerrilla fighters," Mr. McNutt said. He added that he had discussed the matter with President Truman and War Department officials as well as with General Styer.

Mr. McNutt also revealed that the United States State Department had agreed to represent Philippine interests abroad pending the organization of the new republic's own diplomatic service after Independence.

Mass Starvation Blocked Hoover Tells Canadians

OTTAWA, June 28—(AP) Herbert Hoover said tonight that mass starvation in the world apparently has been prevented, except for China, and the gap between available cereal supplies and minimum needs has been closed.

In a broadcast prepared at the invitation of the Canadian government, the former United States president made what he called his "final report" upon his famine mission for President Truman in which he visited 38 nations.

Unity Must Continue

"It is at least reassuring that if we have continued cooperative action of the various nations, mass starvation will be prevented, with one exception," Hoover said. "That exception is China, where transportation to the interior and inadequate organization has rendered relief only partially successful."

"In other famine areas there will be suffering," he said. "Many of the old people and the weaker children will fall by the wayside; nevertheless the great majority of the endangered will be saved."

Warning, however, that the "precariousness of the situation is not over" and that his report dealt primarily with the immediate crisis months until the 1946 harvest is in, the former president urged that the New International Emergency Food Council take steps to give special aid to 30,000,000 to 30,000,000 children in Europe and other millions in Asia.

Recalling that after the first world war "we gave a good extra meal a day of restorative food to 10,000,000 undernourished children," Hoover said he deplored that a similar program had not been taken by any widespread organization after this war.

Children Are Vital

"Civilization marches forward upon the feet of healthy children," he said. "We cannot have recovery of civilization in nations with a legacy of stunted bodies or distorted and embittered minds."

He estimated that such a program would require $300,000,000 to $400,000,000.

Hoover recalled that in March the gap between available world cereal supplies and minimum needs was estimated at 11,000,000 tons, and that upon his return from Europe and Asia in May this gap was believed to have been reduced to 3,600,000 tons with a corresponding improvement in the situation on fats.

The gap was further reduced while he was in South America, he said, and "from all these gains I am happy to announce to you that it now seems assured that the tragic x x x can now be closed."

This was made possible, he said, by drastic curtailment of import programs by the food deficit countries, development of new sources of supply, substitutions, self-denial in surplus producing countries, reduction of Latin American import requirements during the crisis months, expanded contributions by the Latin American countries, decreased supplies in the "pipeline" to Britain, better distribution in India, and an early harvest in America.

Four Nations Lead

Upon Canada, the United States the Argentine and Australia, he said, "has fallen 90 per cent of the overseas burden of relief to this greatest famine in all human history."

The victory over the threat of mass starvation, he continued, was based on the assumptions that "drastic food regimes" in the food deficit countries will be maintained during the crisis months, that food surplus countris will continue to sacrifice and that shipments will not be interrupted.

"Scarcely any of the major food deficit areas have stocks of as much as 30 days overseas food even on the basis of their much reduced living," he said. "If we fail in shipments mass starvation will be instantly upon us."

He said he did not share the "extreme pessimistic view" of some quarters concerning the situation after the 1946 harvests.

"We have reason to believe that there will not be five coincident great droughts in one year" as there were this year in the western Mediterranean, India, China, South Africa and Argentine areas, he said. In addition, he said, "we can at least hope there will be no plundering by armies during the next year."

'Brass' Cuts Off De Seversky's Bomb Talk

Another Cross Roads staff member predicted that the bomb will fall during the first 20 days of July, even if the weather is unfavorable.

"We hope to get a good day on the first of July," he said, "but if we don't then we'll wait until we do get one.

"If the weather is unfavorable during the first 15 days of July," he added, "then I believe the bomb will be dropped regardless of weather—even if the bombardier has to use both vision and radar to find the target ship Nevada."

More than 100 observers and as many newsmen and photographers who arrived on the Appalachian, Panamint, and Blue Ridge toured this tiny island Friday.

Observers Scatter to Posts For Atomic Bomb Test Sunday

KWAJALEIN, Saturday, June 29—(AP) Scientists, Army and Navy personnel, and news correspondents scattered to their posts of observation today in preparation for the atomic bomb drop over Bikini lagoon.

Members of the "Operation Crossroads" staff observed meanwhile, that the bomb might be dropped an hour ahead of schedule—or 20 days later.

Capt. Fitzhugh Lee, atomic task force public relations officer, said the airmen who will make the drop may not have to make the three trial runs previously planned. In that case the spectacular blast might come some time before 9:30 a. m. Monday (5:30 p. m. Sunday, Eastern Standard Time).

Kwajalein, June 28 (AP)—Major Alexander de Seversky, stanch apostle of air power, predicted today that if the atomic bomb explodes "exactly as planned, the damage will be very slight and disappointing."

"I don't think much of the atom test," the outspoken major declared. He has said before he thinks the destructiveness of the atomic bomb has been overdrawn.

De Seversky made his comment as he arrived with a group of scientists and congressmen to observe the Bikini test scheduled for Monday (Sunday, United States time).

Hurried Away

He did not have a chance to elaborate before he was hurriedly escorted to an automobile by Brig. Gen. Roger M. Ramey, commander of the 20th Bomber Command, and Brig. Gen. Thomas Powers, assistant commander of the Army's atomic-test operation DAY.

Ramey and Powers grasped de Seversky by each arm and virtually whisked him into the automobile away from reporters.

It was the second eyebrow-raiser for reporters during the day.

Predicts Pact Signing

Earlier Maj. Gen. Anthony McAuliffe, Army ground forces representative, said he believed this first atomic bomb test would be the last if an international agreement to limit atomic energy to peaceful purposes was reached.

The General added that he thought such an agreement would be signed. An underwater test has been scheduled shortly after the mid-air bombing with a third deep-water experiment early next year.

The more than 100 observers and an equal number of news correspondents and photographers from the press ship Appalachian were briefed on the test operation and then driven around the tiny island before being luncheon guests of Commodore Ben H. Wyatt, commander of the Marshalls.

Last Three Ships Arrive

Most of the observers were at Kwajalein only a few hours before continuing to their observation posts, mostly aboard ships.

The observers and newsmen arrived aboard the last three ships of Operation Crossroads to reach the scene—the Appalachian, Panamint and Blue Ridge.

Among them were Admiral Charles A. Cooke, Jr., United States 7th Fleet commander; Vice Admiral A. E. Montgomery, Pacific Air commander, and Vice Admiral E. L. Cochrane, Navy Bureau of Ordnance; Lieut. Gen. Roy Geiger, commander of Pacific Fleet Marine Forces; Senator Guy Cordon, of Oregon; Senator Carl A. Hatch, of New Mexico, and Senator B. B. Hickenlooper, of Iowa.

A-Bomb May Go On First Or Second Run

Aboard U.S.S. Appalachian, June 28 (AP)—Capt. Fitzhugh Lee, atomic task force public relations officer, said today that the atom test bomb might be dropped before the scheduled hour of 9.30 A.M., when the day arrives.

Airmen have found, Lee explained, it may not be necessary to make the three trial runs previously planned and the bomb may be let go on the first or second run.

If weather conditions are as good as expected, the entire operation may be stepped up as much as an hour or more, he said.

Blast Of The Bomb To Be Broadcast

New York, June 28 (AP)—Anyone who'd like to hear an atom bomb go off can do so Sunday—by turning on a radio—provided Operation Crossroads isn't delayed by unfavorable weather.

All major radio networks are set to pool their facilities and personnel for a broadcast from Bikini atoll, beginning at 5 P.M. (E.S.T.), which will include eyewitness accounts, interviews with scientists and military men, voices of crewmen aboard the bombing plane—and the blast of the bomb itself.

Coast Quake Man Expects Little Record

Pasadena, Cal., June 28 (AP)—Dr. Charles Richter, California Institute of Technology seismologist, says he expects that no noticeable disturbance will be recorded on instruments here as a result of the Bikini atom-bomb test scheduled Sunday.

Only minor tremors were registered at the time of the tests in New Mexico, he said. There is "some slight possibility" of recordings when the underwater atom bomb goes off, he added.

Flour Rush In London

London, June 28 (AP)—Thousands of housewives swarmed from their kitchens today and joined in a great flour rush in the wake of the Government's decision to ration bread—a decision which the House of Commons agreed to debate next Wednesday.

In the first hour and a half after grocery stores opened, it was estimated that 750,000 to 1,000,000 pounds of flour passed over the counters, mostly in three-pound sacks.

Queues of women were standing at the doors when the shops opened and many went from store to store laying in flour and prepared cake and biscuit mixtures.

At Hastings, the Master Bakers Association issued an S O S to national conference delegates to cancel plans for a tour of Kent and attend an emergency meeting at which they resolved "to fight for abolition" of bread rationing.

Rationing, the bakers declared, "is not in the interests of the country."

Eire Rationing Hinted

Dublin, June 28 (AP)—A growing public belief that Eire may soon ration bread was reinforced last night by John Lemass, Minister of Industry and Commerce, who told the Dail that "the emergency is only beginning."

"It may be necessary not only to ration bread but to extend the scheme to commodities not now affected," Lemass declared.

His statement was made in defense of the present governmental procedure of trying suspected black-market operators before military courts.

Senate Passes OPA Measure, 47-23; Bowles Resigns as Stabilization Chief, Urges Truman to Veto Bill

BOWLES CONTENDS BILL CERTAIN TO BRING INFLATION

Truman Says Government Will Continue Battle Against Boom.

SILENT ON VETO

President Expected to Make Known Stand in Message to Congress.

BY J. W. DAVIS

WASHINGTON, June 28—(AP)—Congress passed the compromise OPA bill today and Chester Bowles resigned as stabilization director with a fervent plea to President Truman that its provisions certain to lead to an inflationary boom and a bust.

These events occurred within three hectic hours:

1. The OPA bill, extending a measure of price control for another year but opening the way for widespread price increases, passed the Senate, 47 to 23.

2. The White House made public a letter from the National Wage Stabilization Board declaring the bill would inevitably lead to "uncontrolled inflation."

3. The resignation of Bowles, effective July 10, was made public at the White House. Written before the Senate acted, it urged a veto on the bill on the ground that "it would only serve to legalize inflation" and bring on ultimate "collapse." With all price controls due to expire at midnight Sunday unless an extension bill is enacted, Bowles expressed the hope that Congress would yet provide "the legislation which is essential if we are to maintain a stable economy."

4. Mr. Truman replied that Bowles' resignation was "emphatic answer to the fantastic charge of spokesman for selfish interests that you sought extension of the price control bill in order to perpetuate yourself in office." Mr. Truman said "we shall continue the battle against inflation with every weapon at our disposal," but did not state whether he would sign or veto the bill.

At the White House during the evening were Justice Samuel I. Rosenman, who often helps the president with speeches, and J. Leonard Reinsch, the President's radio advisor. There was no announcement immediately.

The letter from the Wage Stabilization Board was signed by all its members, representing public, labor and industry. It urged Mr. Truman to call in spokesmen for industry, labor and agriculture to discuss the OPA bill's effects before taking action on it.

The letter said:

"The National Wage Stabilization board is deeply concerned about the prospect of uncontrolled inflation which, we as industry, labor and public members of that board believe is the inevitable consequence of the proposed legislation modifying the stabilization act and the emergency price control act.

"It is our unanimous judgment that the proposed legislation presents balance between wages and prices which is essential to economic stability."

With the entire price control structure due to collapse at midnight Sunday unless extension legislation is enacted, no one professed to know what the president's decision would be.

Veto Probable

One prominent Congress member who cannot be named, said he considered a veto "very probable." However, Democratic Leader Barkley of the Senate and other congressional chieftains urged Mr. Truman to sign the measure as the best that could be obtained.

There were reports that Mr. Truman was preparing a communication, perhaps a message to Congress, but whether it would be a veto message, or an explanation that he felt compelled to sign, was not known.

"This is the best bill we can get out of Congress now and it is either take that or nothing," Democratic Leader Barkley (Ky) said he told the President. "Even if it had nothing in it but rent controls, it would be worth signing."

Barkley and other congressional leaders visited the White House during the forenoon to urge Mr. Truman to sign the measure. They reported, however, that the President gave no sign of his intentions.

The bill requires thousands of price ceilings to be revised to cover cost increases, bars interference with dealers' normal profit margins, limits food subsidies, sets up a board to remove controls from certain items, and eliminates a regulation compelling clothing manufacturers to turn out a percentage of low-price garments. Much of the OPA's authority over food prices is shifted to the Agriculture department. The price control law itself is extended for a full year and rent controls are unchanged.

Last-ditch arguments by senators who favored junking the measure and permitting price control to die at midnight Sunday delayed final senate action. Each speaker was limited to one hour, however, as a result of an agreement obtained by Barkley early this morning at the end of an eight-hour filibuster by Senator O'Daniel (D-Tex.)

Senator Elmer Thomas (D-Okla.) told his colleagues that the bill makes farmers the "economic goats" of the government. It helps business men, he said, but still keeps farmers under control.

Senator Bushfield (R-S.D.) took caustic notice of the various rallies and "Save OPA" mass meetings. He said they were inspired by clever propaganda, "financed with the treasury funds."

Barkley reported that he and other congressional leaders told the President that if he vetoes the bill, Congress would refuse to do anything about price controls. That would mean the end of all controls—even rent—at midnight Sunday when the present OPA law dies.

Chester Bowles, the stabilization director, and Paul Porter, the OPA administrator, have urged a veto on the theory that rather than let price controls die Congress would vote a temporary extension of the law as it stands.

Theory Won't Work

That theory, Mr. Truman was told by his Capitol Hill lieutenants, just won't work. They reported Congress in a mood to load down any temporary bill with the same provisions—which Bowles has called "booby traps" of inflation—that are in the bill passed today.

"The President just would have to decide again if he wanted to accept the UNRA an unsatisfactory measure or none at all," Barkley told reporters.

The big question about the measure is: How much will prices go up?

Even those who led the fight to write in changes designed to give businessmen more recognition of increased costs in their price ceilings say that prices will climb.

They contend, however, that these changes will bring badly needed production increases, which in turn will tend to bring prices down as supply equals demand. Some argue further that price ceilings on scarce goods now are not true ceilings—that black market sales make the actual level higher than it would be without price controls. They say it is futile to try to control prices "and not wages." They cry out against what they call regimentation, bureaucracy and snooping.

Against these arguments, OPA's friends say the agency has saved the public billions of dollars, has held the fort against inflation and is as greatly needed now as ever in wartime. Without strong price control, they foresee new wage demands to meet higher living costs, and a deluge of production-delaying strikes.

The board of directors of the United States chamber of commerce, in a statement, urged business to use "self restraint in setting prices on commodities."

1946

JUN 29 1946

30.24-3811

"The public must be protected and business must not be charged with taking all that the traffic will bear," it said.

"Fair prices for more goods will pay dividends to everybody."

Bowles and Porter, it appeared, will await Mr. Truman's decision on the extender before they make known their course of action.

They could resign, as they have hinted they might, or they could stick it out and try to make the best of what they regard as a bad job.

RETIREMENT ENDS BITTER FIGHT ON BOWLES IN CAPITAL

As Economic Stabilizer He Was Storm Center in Washington.

FOUGHT PRICE RISE

Started as Conn. OPA Chief; He May Enter State Politics In Fall.

JUN 29 1946

NIGHT

WASHINGTON, June 28 (AP)—Chester Bowles' resignation tonight as economic stabilizer capped one of the most tempestuous careers in government.

Outspoken and a master of the biting phrase, Bowles made scores of bitter enemies during the three years he served in Washington, first as OPA administrator and then as stabilization chief.

But at the same time he could count on the steadfast loyalty of those who worked with him closest.

"The man is so utterly sincere," an aide said once, "that you just can't help feeling he must be right."

In Congress and in some segments of industry, however, he frequently was condemned as an obstacle to production.

Washington began to hear of Bowles from afar shortly after Pearl Harbor, when he joined the Connecicut OPA as rationing officer.

From his home in Essex, Conn., he began to pelt OPA headquarters with one suggestion after another on doing things a different way.

A retired advertising man and a wealthy one, he rose quickly to become Connecticut OPA director. In July, 1943, Price Administrator Prentiss Brown called him to Washington to become general manager of OPA.

Succeeded Brown in OPA

When Brown resigned in November, Bowles took over as OPA boss. Congress had just ordered the agency to get rid of its professors in key jobs, and Bowles' first job was to reorganize OPA completely, putting business men in top positions.

In the beginning he adopted a mild manner with Congress and with industry. His charm impressed congressmen and one of them said later that he was the best salesman in the United States.

But this honeymoon ended quickly and Bowles turned increasingly to blunter methods.

By last fall, when cries began to go up that price controls were stifling reconversion, Bowles was insisting on the other hand that prices had to be held or there would be runaway inflation.

That was the beginning of a bare knuckle campaign on Bowles' part to extend price control without change through June, 1947.

Meanwhile the administration had adopted a wage-price policy which encouraged pay boosts while attempting to hold prices.

Fought Price Rises

This and the steel strike precipitated a head-on clash last February when Bowles insisted that steel prices could not be raised as much as other government officials believed they should be.

The upshot was that Bowles decided to resign as OPA administrator. He changed his mind about leaving government service when President Truman handed him the job he quit today.

The agreement was that Bowles was to have complete jurisdiction over prices and wages, but that in return he would accept a liberal wage-price policy.

Thus it became his job as economic stabilizer to preside over the wave of price increases which developed. This put him on a hot spot, because at the same time he was waging his unrelenting drive for a price control extension bill acceptable to him.

As it became apparent that Congress was not going to pass such a bill, reports cropped up again that he was preparing to resign.

For months his name has been linked to the Connecticut political picture. While he has kept his own counsel on this, his friends believe he will decide to be a candidate this fall for governor of Connecticut or for the U.S. Senate.

President Truman expressed the hope tonight that Bowles would "remain in public life as a champion of the principles of this administration."

Texts of Bowles', Truman's Letters

WASHINGTON, June 28—(AP)—Following is the text of Chester Bowles' letter of resignation as director of the Office of Economic Stabilization:

JUN 29 1946

Dear Mr. President:

Effective control of prices and rents under the price control bill which seemed likely to pass the Senate today would be flatly impossible. The bill would only serve to legalize inflation.

Thousands of substantial price increases would be inevitable. The cost of living would climb rapidly. Black markets would multiply. There would be serious delays in production with the likelihood of a general breakdown in administration. Government itself would be seriously discredited.

Recommended Veto

I have recommended that this bill be vetoed as soon as it reaches your desk. I have made this recommendation only after a sober and objective study of the alternatives that face us.

Congress has been considering the extension of the Price Control act since last February. The time left before midnight, June 30 is short, and this fact places you in a particularly difficult position.

Nevertheless it is my hope and belief, that Congress, following the receipt of a veto message from you, will squarely meet the issues which confront us and provide the legislation which is essential if we are to maintain a stable economy. In any event, that hope represents the people's last practical chance to avoid a period of sharply increasing prices followed by a collapse.

I have participated in the fight to keep down the cost of living for four and one half years. It has been my responsibility to administer the stabilization program in the interests of all the people—businessmen, farmers, factory workers, white collar workers and consumers generally. The great majority of our people, who understand only too clearly the gigantic issues which are involved, have given me their whole-hearted support.

Stepped On Toes

But in carrying out my responsibilities, it has been necessary for me to say 'no' one hundred times for every occasion on which it was possible to say 'yes.' I have been forced to step on many important toes. Inevitably my efforts in behalf of all the people have antagonized those minority groups which seek special concessions.

As you know, I had hoped to leave Washington following V-E day, again after V-J day and again last February. I agreed to stay on only at your insistence.

In spite of that fact, a few bitter opponents of price and rent control, in an effort to rationalize their own position, have claimed that I am personally anxious to extend these essential controls indefinitely and unnecessarily.

The announcement of my resignation at this time, effective July 10, will eliminate any vestige of doubt as to my own position and further sharpen the grave issue which Congress must face in the next 72 hours in the event of your veto. Clearly I could not remain here in any event to administer the inflationary bill which the Congress is about to present for your signature.

Submits Resignation

I am submitting my resignation at this time with genuine reluctance. I recognize the tremendously heavy burden which rests on your shoulders. I appreciate, as do tens of millions of other Americans, the courageous efforts that you have made and are making in the interest of the country as a whole.

In the future if there is anything that I can do to be helpful to you personally or to the Administration, I hope that you will call upon me.

With my best wishes.
Very sincerely,
Chester Bowles.

Text of Truman's Letter

Following is the text of President Truman's letter accepting the resignation of Economic Stabilizer Chester Bowles:

Dear Chet:

Now that the Senate has taken the legislative action which you forecast in your letter of this date (June 28) I have no alternative but to accept your resignation as director of the Office of Economic Stabilization, effective at the close o business on July 10 next.

Deeply as I regret to see you leave the Administration I can sympathize heartily with the reasons which impel you to this step. I accede to your request most reluctantly. I am mindful of your desire to leave Washington, often expressed since V-E day and appreciate your self-sacrifice for remaining at your difficult post as long as you did.

Your action in submitting your resignation before the Senate had acted is an emphatic answer to the fantastic charge of spokesmen for selfish interests that you sought extension of the price control bill in order to perpetuate yourself in office.

Expresses Regret

In expressing my deep regret at your leaving the Government I know that I am merely adding my voice to one much greater—the voice of the American people. The people of this country know how conscientiously and faithfully you have worked to protect their interests both during the war and during the transition from war to peace.

They know that under your leadership, the Office of Price Administration and the Office of Economic Stabilization have been a powerful bulwark against the forces in our economy which might long since have destroyed the security and the hopes of millions of workers and their families. They know your personal fearlessness and integrity, which time and again you demonstrated in speaking out vigorously for the basic principles of this Administration.

Will Continue Fight

In accepting your resignation I want to assure you and at the same time every American, that this Administration will never give up the fight. We shall continue the battle against inflation with every weapon at our disposal, and shall not rest until this country has reached permanent high levels of production, prosperity and employment.

The hope that you may remain in public life as a champion of the principles of this Administration, and the assurance that I may continue to call upon you from time to time for counsel, will be some consolation for the loss of so tireless and effective a public servant as you have been over a period of more than four difficult years.

With every good wish,
Very sincerely yours,
Harry S. Truman.

'It's This Measure Or Nothing', He Is Advised

JUN 29 1946

Washington, June 28 (AP)—Congressional leaders told President Truman today that if he does not sign the compromise OPA bill price controls will die Sunday.

Democratic Leader Barkley (Ky.), following a White House conference, said that the majority leaders were unanimous in telling Mr. Truman that it is "all or nothing" so far as the bill now pending before the Senate is concerned.

Barkley said he, Speaker Rayburn, House Majority Leader McCormack and Senator McKellar (D., Tenn.) told the President that no simple resolution continuing present OPA powers even temporarily could gain approval of Congress in the event of a veto of the compromise bill.

Truman Silent

Those who saw the President said he did not commit himself.

They told the President, Barkley said, that any such resolution would be "loaded down" with the same sort of amendments, or possibly more drastic ones, than are attached to the compromise measure, which the House has approved.

Barkley predicted that the Senate would pass the bill this afternoon.

Only three senators were on hand when the Senate met at 11 A.M., an hour early. They were McKellar, presiding; Barkley

"We told the President that this is the best bill we can get out of Congress now and it is either take that or nothing," the Kentuckian said. "Even if it had nothing in it but rent controls, it would be worth signing."

With all senators limited to one hour of speaking time, Senator Elmer Thomas (D., Okla.) claimed the first 60 minutes to develop this theme:

"The farmers under this bill are the goats of this Administration. It will sentence 30,000,000 farmers to remain for another year at least the economic goats of this Government."

Farmers "Controlled"

Industry has been recognized and helped by the OPA extension measure, Thompson said. Wage earners are not under it. But the farmers are kept under it and are "controlled."

He recited repeated recommendations made by the Agriculture Committee, of which he is chairman, for easing price controls on farm products.

The next speaker, Senator Bushfield (R., S.D.), accused the OPA of trying to save itself through "notorious and habitual violation" of a law against lobbying by Federal agencies or officials.

He said a clever propaganda campaign, "financed with the Treasury funds in violation of a United States criminal statute," was responsible for coast-to-coast meetings and mass protests to Congress.

"Flagrant Violation"

Every member of the Senate, Bushfield said, knows of "flagrant

White, of Maine, the Republican leader.

No Sign Of O'Daniel

There was no sign of Senator O'Danie' (D., Texas), who talked for eight hours yesterday and last night against the bill.

Barkley said that President Truman is under compulsion to act one way or another on it before Sunday midnight, when the existing law expires.

JUN 29 1946

violation" of the law by Price Administrator Paul Porter and Economic Stabilizer Chester Bowles.

"Who would have believed a few years ago," he said, "that a couple of obscure citizens, who after becoming minor bureaucrats could or would use millions of dollars of the public funds to publicize and glamorize themselves and build a powerful propaganda machine that can be turned off or on as one switches a light on or off?"

"Unanimous In Decision"

Talking with reporters earlier, Barkley said:

"The President called us down to discuss the price-control bill and conference report on which we hope to get a vote in the Senate in a few hours," Barkely said.

"He asked us for our judgment in good faith. We were unanimous in our recommendation."

Barkley said he did not know whether the President would make a radio address in connection with whatever action he might take on the compromise legislation which would permit price increases on a wide range of commodities although retaining controls over meat, dairy and other products, and rents.

Earlier, White House Press Secretary Charles G. Ross said that whether the President makes a speech "depends on the course of events."

His plans, Ross added, are yet to be worked out.

Cabinet Meeting Canceled

The urgency of the OPA extension was emphasized when the President called off his usual Friday Cabinet meeting to talk with his congressional "big four."

The compromise bill appeared White House-bound after a few more hours talk by senators still weary from O'Daniel's filibuster.

O'Daniel quit at 10 minutes past midnight after he had talked since 3.52 yesterday afternoon in an attempt to prevent the bill's passage before the law expires at midnight Sunday.

Major Features Of OPA Measure

WASHINGTON, June 28 (AP).—These are the major features of the price control legislation:

1. Extends the life of the Office of Price Administration until June 30, 1947.

2. Omits House provisions which would have removed price controls on meat, poultry, dairy products, tobacco and petroleum products.

3. Sets up a decontrol board with authority to overrule OPA and the Secretary of Agriculture and force removal of price ceilings from specific commodities. The board would be appointed by the President.

4. Prohibits reduction of prewar profit margins of wholesalers and retailers on "reconversion items," such as automobiles, refrigerators, farm implements and radios.

5. Provides that ceilings for manufacturers and producers be based on average prices during October 1-15, 1941, and include average industry-wide increases in unit costs since that date.

(Present ceilings are based on 1936-39 industrywide average prices.)

6. Limits to $1 billion the total which may be spent in the next year for subsidies to encourage production of foods and metals. Ends all food subsidies except sugar April 1, 1947.

7. Eliminates the OPA requirement that manufacturers turn out inexpensive clothing in the same ratio to high-cost garments as they did during 1943—the so-called "maximum average price" regulation.

8. Transfers from OPA to the Secretary of Agriculture authority to decide what farm commodities may be kept under price control.

9. Prohibits ceilings on any commodity which was not under price control April 1, 1946.

10. Prohibits government control of margin requirements for trading in cotton for future delivery. OPA has raised margin requirements.

11. Assures manufacturers of cotton and woolen textiles a "reasonable profit" on each item, based on 1939-41 earnings and including "parity" costs of raw materials, plus average production costs.

MARINES TO STAY AS CHINA GUARDS DURING DISORDERS

WASHINGTON, June 28 (AP)—Acting Secretary of State Dean Acheson said today that United States Marines will have to stay on guard duty in China until order is assured, even though about 1,000,000 Japanese troops have been evacuated from that country.

At present there are more than 20,000 Marines in China mainly guarding supply lines from coal producing areas to the great coastal cities, a service which Acheson said it is essential to continue.

100,000 Japs Remain

In a lengthy restatement of American policy on China, the acting secretary said at a news conference that the evacuation of Japanese troops without allowing a civil war to break out in China was a great accomplishment. About 100,000 Japanese remain, he said, and they are being removed as rapidly as possible.

Declaring he had been disturbed by news reports from China by statements in Congress indicating a misunderstanding of America's Chinese policy, Acheson flatly denied that this country is supporting any one faction in China against any other.

Talking specifically about economic assistance to the Chinese, Acheson said in a statement that "too much stress cannot be laid on the hope of this government that our economic assistance be carried out in China through a medium of a government fully and fairly representative of all important Chinese political elements, including the Chinese Communists."

Over the whole program which includes projected assistance to unifying and training a Chinese army of 60 divisions on a ratio of five nationalists to one communist division, Acheson said:

"The various moves taken by this government to aid China are must steps in the complete implementation of a long-agreed program for helping the Chinese nation as a whole to rid itself of the effects of a long and devastating war against Japan.

"They cannot rightfully be interpreted as current support of any factional military group in China. They will not fully materialize for many months.

Work for Unity

"Their purpose is to cement rather than to destroy unity; to encourage the Chinese to find a solution of their internal problems by the democratic process of peaceful agreement rather than by resort to military force."

In response to questions, Acheson said that there was no question here that the national government of Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek is the government of China. But he added that there is also no question that the one party system (which now prevails) was not the system which the American government hoped China would embrace.

He cited in this connection a statement by President Truman last December urging the establishment of a broadly based government in China including other parties.

While Acheson spoke of great progress having been made toward unification of the Chinese factions, reports from China in recent days have told of increasing difficulties confronting General George C. Marshall, President Truman's special ambassador.

Statement by Acheson

WASHINGTON, June 28 (AP)—The text of Acting Secretary of State Dean Acheson's statement on China:

Recent press reports from China indicate a misunderstanding or misconstruction by various Chinese elements of our objectives and policies in affording assistance to China.

The various moves taken by this Government to aid China are but steps in the complete implementation of a long-agreed program for helping the Chinese nation as a whole to rid itself of the effects of a long and devastating war against Japan. They cannot rightfully be interpreted as current support of any factional military group in China.

They will not fully materialize for many months. Their purpose is to cement rather than to destroy unity; to encourage the Chinese to find a solution of their internal problems by the democratic process of peaceful agreement rather than by resort to military forces.

In the foregoing connection, it is pertinent to quote from the President's public statement on policy toward China of Dec. 15, 1945. He said: "As China moves toward peace and unity * * * the United States would be prepared to assist the National Government in every reasonable way to rehabilitate the country, improve the agrarian and industrial economy, and establish a military organization capable of discharging China's national and international responsibilities for the maintenance of peace and order."

There is now in Congress a bill authorizing advice and assistance to the Chinese Government in the creation of a modern, moderately sized Chinese Army. One of the principal objectives of this legislation is to provide practical assistance to the Chinese in implementing the agreement reached in Chungking on Feb. 25 this year for the reorganization and unification of the armed forces of China. This agreement provides for a single, non-political, national army made up of troops drawn from the presently existing Communist and Central Government armies.

In testifying before the Foreign Affairs Committee of the House in regard to this legislation, the Acting Secretary of State indicated that there was a direct relation between the successful implementation of the plan for the reduction and unification of Chinese military forces and steps that might be taken under the authority provided in the bill before Congress to give military aid and assistance to the Chinese Army.

Many of the contemplated measures for aid to China involve a time-consuming procedure of negotiation, agreements, legislative action, and, lastly, decisions by the President in the light of the situation existing at the time implementation is to be undertaken. These various steps consume many months, more than a year in the case of the legislation now in the Congress for military advice and assistance to China and, if interrupted in any particular stage, could not be readily resumed without running the risk of encountering considerable difficulty.

Publicity has recently been given to a pipeline lend-lease agreement with China for approximately $58,000,000. This agreement simply formalized an understanding reached shortly after V-J Day that China would purchase those lend-lease supplies which were being processed or were en route to China. Measures to provide economic aid to China in the form of supplies and credits are an impartial American effort to contribute toward a solution of the acute economic crisis in China and to forestall a financial and economic breakdown.

Too much stress cannot be laid on the hope of this Government that our economic assistance be carried out in China through a medium of a Government fully and fairly representative of all important Chinese political elements, including the Chinese Communists. This Government has felt that some measures of economic assistance could not be held in abeyance pending agreement among the Chinese political parties to come together in a unified Government. Failure to afford such minimum economic assistance would needlessly invite danger of an economic collapse which would bring great tragedy to the common people of China.

Army Tells How Scientist Died In Atom Mishap

Air in Laboratory Became Ionized, Turned Blue; Death Came in 9 Days

LOS ALAMOS, N. M., June 28 (AP).—The Army described today an atomic chain reaction set-up May 21 at the Los Alamos atomic laboratory which fatally burned a scientist as a blue glow with "no explosion in the sense that there were no mechanical effects, no debris, no noise."

The detailed report also disclosed that the accident which cost the life of another scientist, Harry K. Daghlian, twenty-four, of New London, Conn., in September was "almost identical" to the one in May which proved fatal to Dr. Louis B. Slotin, thirty-five, of Winnipeg, Canada.

In both cases equipment slipped, allowing fissionable materials of the type used in atom bombs to come together swiftly instead of under control.

The Army report gave this description of the accident:

"An accident occurred when a piece of equipment slipped. This brought the material swiftly together beyond the critical point. This resulted in a tremendous energy release within millionths of a second, which was svidenced to the persons present through a sensation of heat and visual perception of a blue glow around the material.

"In the words of one of the men present 'it was as if you were standing near an arc welder when he struck the arc.'

"The blue glow resulted from the ionization of air particles by rediation emanating from the fissionable material. There was no explosion in the sense that there were no mechanical effects, no debris, no noise.

"In the millions of a second in which this occurred, the immediate area and all in it were bombarded by intense high energy gama rays and nevtrons of all energies—fast, intermediate and slow. There were no beta and no alpha radiation.

"Dr. Slotin, at the instant of the mishap, knocked the equipment apart, thus halting the intensifying radiation and averting serious consequences, possibly death to his companions. He was brasping part of the equipment with his left hand at the moment of the accident."

The report told of immediate removal to the Los Alamos Hospital of the eight men, and the wait of several days before effects of radiation were apparent. Dr. Slotin died in nine days.

"The medical men began to treat the accident victims as soon as they were admitted to the hospital," the report said. "This treatment, in general, consisted of many transfusions of whole blood and plasma and fluids, principally glucose and saline."

The report said the burns suffered by Dr. Slotin were comparable to a "three-dimensional sunburn," explaining: "the skin burns from the radiation are superficial, but as the rays penetrate the body they burn deep, resulting in injury and destruction of tissue and blood cells."

Mr. Daghlian, whose burns were less severe, died twenty-six days after his accident.

ROCKET RISES 75 MILES

German V-2 Sets the Altitude Record at Army, Navy Test

WHITE SANDS, N. M., June 28 (AP)—A new world's altitude record was claimed for a German V-2 rocket which in a test flight today soared "more than seventy-five miles above the earth" by official estimate.

Army and Navy technicians who launched the projectile at the White Sands proving grounds said, pending recovery and examination of instruments carried by the rocket, it would be two or three days before they knew whether it reached their goal of 100 miles or more.

"The exact altitude is not positively known yet," Lieut. Col. Harold R. Turner, White Sands commandant, announced, "but it is above seventy-five miles." Previously, in a May 10 test, another V-2 was lofted seventy-one miles.

A-Bomb Project Is Falling Apart Due to Army Control—M'Mahon

WASHINGTON, June 28—(AP)—Chairman McMahon (D-Conn) of the Senate Atomic Energy committee said tonight that "our whole Manhattan Project is falling apart" because of continued army control.

The scientists "simply cannot work under the rigid military system which is the only way the army knows how to work," he declared in a speech for an NBC broadcast.

McMahon advanced this as one point in a renewal of his criticism of the House Military committee's action on the bill for domestic controls. The McMahon bill passed by the senate and endorsed by President Truman and the armed services provided for an all-civilian control commission. The house committee voted to require that one member be a military representative and to permit a second also to come from the military.

The committee was called into night session tonight in an effort to complete its work on the measure. In advance of the meeting, Chairman May (D-Ky) told the house that most of the criticisms of the committee's action "are lies of the whole cloth."

McMahon declared that "something alarming is happening in the capitol."

"I am referring," he said, "to the work of a small group of men who are supposed to represent you. I am referring to the action during the past two weeks of the Military Affairs committee of the House of Representatives."

Atomic Research By-Products Treat Skin Cancer Successfully

By The Associated Press

SAN FRANCISCO, June 28.—Successful treatment of two types of skin cancer with atomic research by-products was reported today by Dr. Bertram Low-Beer, University of California radiologist, to the North American Radium Society.

This presumably is the first practical medical application of radio elements such as will come from atomic ovens. The substance is radiophosphorus.

While the substance used by Dr. Low-Beer was made in the cyclotron, it can be made in relatively large quantities in the ovens which now turn out plutonium for atom bombs.

Dr. Low-Beer reported 100 per cent success in the treatment of thirty-six cases of hyperkeratosis, and 98 per cent in fifty-two cases of basal cell carcinoma. Both of these are shallow cancers, and, if caught in the early stages, often can be removed successfully by surgery or X-ray treatment, or with radium.

The radiophosphorus also was found to be 88.6 per cent successful in eliminating warts from the hands, 94 per cent in warts on the soles of the feet, and 93.6 per cent in warts under the finger-nails.

Dr. Low-Beer did not claim that the radiophosphorus treatment was any better than the other methods, but said it was much simpler. The substance was put into solution, a tiny pinch in a small bottle of water. A few drops of this solution were put on a piece of blotting paper cut to the size of the cancer to be treated. The patch then was bandaged over the growth and left for four or five days.

On removal, the cancers looked reddish and inflamed. Within two months they disappeared. In some cases a small dimple of non-malignant tissue remained to mark the spot.

Dr. Low-Beer emphasized that the treatment was applicable only to these types of superficial skin cancers and warts and could not be used against malignancies beneath the body surface.

Radiophosphorus is held to be ideal for surface effects because it emits only beta rays, which are streams of high-speed electrons and which penetrate to a maximum of only about half an inch. X-rays, on the other hand, penetrate deeply. Radium, which emits X-rays and also a ray of alpha particles capable of deep penetration, sometimes destroys considerable normal tissue as well as the malignancy at which it is aimed.

Although the use of radiophosphorus against cancer is limited, the fact that there are many different kinds of radioelements giving off rays with a wide range of penetration means there is hope that some of them will be useful against other kinds of malignancies, Dr. Low-Beer said.

House Insists UNRRA Bar Help For Nations Which Censor News

But Members Yield to La Guardia's Threat to Resign and Knock Out an Amendment Setting Deadline for Shipments

WASHINGTON, June 28 (AP)—The House insisted today on a "free press" provision in an appropriation bill for the United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration, but yielded on another restriction when F. H. La Guardia threatened to resign as director-general.

By a roll-call vote of 228 to 85, the House attached to the bill an amendment by Representative Dirksen, Republican of Illinois, which prohibits the use of funds for relief in any country which censors news regarding UNRRA activities. It is aimed at Russia.

The House then passed the measure by a voice vote and sent it to the Senate.

Mr. La Guardia told a news conference that the Dirksen amendment would result in withholding $367,000,000 of medical supplies slated for Russian republics, "and if anyone can take any joy in denying medical supplies to anyone, well, that's their lookout."

"The overwhelming majority of American people are not in agreement with the use of food as a political weapon or to make the delivery of food conditional," he added.

Taber Proposal Thrown Out

The amendment which prompted his threat of resignation, however, was one by Representative Taber, Republican, of New York, which would have prevented the use of the funds for shipments to be made after Dec. 31 to Europe and March 31 to the Far East. Present law fixes next June as the deadline for UNRRA in both cases.

The House had adopted the Taber amendment yesterday on a standing (non-record) vote of 125 to 105, but today it reversed itself and knocked it out on a standing vote of 84 to 65.

Mr. La Guardia's threat to quit was made in a letter to Chairman Cannon of the Appropriations Committee, which the latter read on the floor. The UNRRA head wrote that the amendment would "waste some $300,000,000 worth of food, supplies and equipment for which deliveries to UNRRA cannot be made within that time."

As an example, he cited agricultural machinery previously ordered "which should be in process of delivery now," but which he said probably would not be available for shipment until next year because of strikes. Other goods, he added, had been held up by the steel and coal strikes.

Meantime, a record peacetime Army appropriation of $7,595,449,868 won Senate approval in less than an hour and with only a dozen Senators present. It goes back to the House for action upon Senate increases of more than $500,000,000.

CALLS NO NEWS, NO CASH RULE SLAP AT SOVIET

Cannon Appeals to House to Reverse Itself on UNRRA Vote.

SAYS IT THREATENS PEACE

Missourian Declares There Is No Censorship of UNRRA News in Russia.

JUN 29 1946

Washington, June 28 (A. P.)—Deploring the action as "a direct slap at Russia," Representative Clarence Cannon (D., Mo.) appealed to the House today to reverse its vote putting a "no news—no cash" tag on future UNRRA relief.

The Appropriations Committee chairman said that he was hopeful that on a roll-call vote the House would nullify the top-heavy standing count of 154 to 53 by which it directed yesterday that none of a new $465,000,000 UNRRA fund be spent in countries denying American correspondents free access to UNRRA news. Supporters of the amendment professed confidence, however, that the House would stand pat.

Truman Report Upsets House.

The issue started to come to a head rapidly after President Truman reported to Congress Tuesday that all nations receiving UNRRA aid, except the Soviet Republics of Ukrainia and Byelorussia, have made satisfactory arrangements for uncensored press reporting of UNRRA operations.

Mr. Truman transmitted with his report a message from the Soviet Government stating the two republics contemplated no relaxation of press censorship, but adding that information on relief activities might nevertheless be obtained through normal UNRRA channels.

House dissatisfaction with this reply provided the momentum which brought yesterday's no news-no cash vote.

"The action of the House was a direct slap at Russia," Cannon told reporters. "It was a gratuitous insult to a friendly nation at a time when we should be doing everything we can to strengthen rather than strain our relationships with other nations."

JUN 29 1946

Cannon cited a statement issued yesterday in Berlin by Marshall MacDuffie, head of the Ukraine UNRRA mission, who declared that only a month ago a group of correspondents, including Americans, had visited Kiev and Minsk on an inspection trip with UNRRA personnel.

Members of an UNRRA team, MacDuffie added, "visited every important city in the Ukraine, covered the whole area with complete freedom of movement and received from Russian authorities every co-operation and the information we desired."

Calls It Threat to Peace.

Cannon said the MacDuffie statement "bears out what I told the House, that there is no censorship on UNRRA news in Russia." He cautioned the House that "there's no assurance that the blood of a million boys won't be shed if this amendment is agreed to.' He called it a threat to the peace of the world.

Representative Dirksen (R.-Ill.), author of the restriction, claimed that since 72 cents out of ever UNRRA dollar comes from the United States, the American people have a right to know how it's being spent.

The Senate, which rejected a similar amendment to an earlier UNRRA appropriation last fall, still must act on the bill.

There were no official estimates of how much of the new $465,000,000 fund — completing the actual appropriation of this country's $2,700,000,000 UNRRA commitment — has been earmarked for Ukrainia and Byelorussia. The latest UNRRA report showed budget commitments $61,000,000 for Byelorussia and $189,000,000 for Ukrainia. And unofficial Appropriations Committee figures listed $58,000,000 as having been spent in Ukrainia and $24,000,000 in Byelorussia through last April 30.

Senator Bridges Charges Russ Block Peace

Washington, June 28 (AP)—Senator Bridges (R., N.H.) today termed Russia "the great roadblock to the peace of the world" and said that if Russia won't move the roadblock "then we must build a road to peace around it."

Addressing the thirty-second graduating exercises of the Federal Bureau of Investigation National Academy, Bridges accused Russia of "persistently seeking the full compromise of American principles.

"In the affairs of men," he said, "there is a proper place for compromise, but there is no proper place for the compromise of principles of justice and honor.

Distortion Charged

"By distorting the truth, Russia seeks to turn world opinion in her favor. But honest men will not be fooled.

"The genius and industry of free men developed atomic energy. . . . Even in this time so filled with doubts, we are told the atom secret should be spread through the world. But I say the world is not yet ready to receive the atom secret; Russia is not ready to receive it."

Spellman Speaks

Francis Cardinal Spellman called on the FBI graduates to "unmask traitors who give lip loyalty to the language of democracy while anarchy and tyranny seethe in their hearts."

Spellman said "all of us must guard America and ourselves against injustices, against hatreds, greeds and bigotry, for they are the seeds from which sprung the curse of the world's worst war and which sown again will toll the end of civilization."

France Gets Credit For Shipping Losses

$17,500,000 To Be Available to Buy 75 Liberty Ships

WASHINGTON, June 28 (AP).—United States maritime officials said today that a $17,500,000 credit settlement with France for its war-time shipping losses will be available Aug. 1 to buy seventy-five surplus Liberty ships.

The credit, agreed upon in the recent settlement of France's outstanding lend-lease accounts, will compensate France for the loss of its former luxury liner Normandie and repay United States charter hire of French passenger vessels.

War Shipping Administration officials said the 82,423-ton Normandie, which burned at her New York pier in 1942 while being converted into a troop ship by the Navy Department, had been written off for about $14,000,000.

The total bill for American war-time use of French vessels to transport United States troops and supplies, they added, came to about $3,500,000.

Buys U. S. Surplus Items

WASHINGTON, June 28 (AP)—Brazil purchased about $2,000,000 in United States lend-lease supplies tonight for an undisclosed amount. Brazil will receive industrial equipment worth about $1,014,000, ordnance stocks totaling $898,000 and Air Forces supplies valued at $137,000.

Loan to Turkey Near Approval

WASHINGTON, June 28 (AP).—Turkey's negotiations with the United States government for a reconstruction loan were reported nearing completion today, with prospects that the Turks get about one-fifth of the $500,000,000 they originally requested. Government officials who are considering the Turkish application said final approval may be expected next week after the Export-Import Bank's directors approve the over-all plan.

Truman Names 9800 Veterans For Regular Army Officers

'Top Cream' Selected by Board From List of 108,000 Applicants—Eisenhower's Favorite Aid Fails to Make It.

Washington, June 28 (A. P.).—President Truman nominated 9,800 "top cream" veterans of world war II today as permanent officers in the regular Army. They were selected by the War Department from an original list of 108,000 applicants, all of whom held temporary commissions in the wartime citizen army.

The nominations, which went to the Senate for confirmation, will bring the officer corps of the Regular Army to its authorized strength of 25,000.

A Senate military subcommittee yesterday approved doubling this figure to 50,000 after hearing Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower testify that the additional officers may be needed for the next twenty-five or thirty years.

The War Department said it employed a new screening process in the selections designed to find "the best leaders in the world today." Voluntary withdrawals and failure to pass rigid physical examinations trimmed the original applicant list from 108,000 to 81,000, the department said. Those who failed to make the grade in today's list will have another opportunity if Congress follows the recommendation of Eisenhower and the Senate subcommittee.

Selections Made by Board.

Final selections were made by a board, which the Army Chief of Staff told the Senators yesterday was not subject to influence.

"A favorite aid of mine did not make it," Eisenhower said with a smile.

The General did not name the officer who was passed over, but another aid, Lieut.-Col. James Stack of Tacoma, Wash., was one of 600 nominated for the permanent rank of major, highest on the list.

Two thousand were named to be captains, 6,100 as first lieutenants and 1,100 as second lieutenants.

In virtually every instance their new rank will be a reduction from their wartime commissions. Age was the determining factor with second lieutenants under 28, first lieutenants between 28 and 35, captains between 35 and 42 and majors between 42 and 48.

Will Be Recalled.

Of the successful appointees, about 4,100 will be commissioned in the air forces, 3,100 in the ground forces and 2,600 in the service forces.

About a third of those on the list have already been returned to civilian life. They will be called back to active duty in fifteen days. Those still in service will continue at their temporary rank until reduced under normal procedure.

Every State and territory was represented in today's list. California led with about 900 nominees. Texas was second with some 800 and New York third with approximately 600.

Army Troop Goal In Sight

Washington, June 28 (AP)—The Army expects to reduce its strength "pretty close" to the interim goal of 1,550,000 men by July 1.

Demobilization will keep right on, however, possibly at a faster pace as a result of the eighteen month service limit set by Congress in extending Selective Service.

Maj. Gen. Floyd L. Parks, the War Department's director of information, said the July 1 strength objective was in sight without predicting it would be reached.

New Uncertainties

Other officials said the measure extending the draft until March 31, but exempting 18-year-olds, raised new uncertainties over army manpower. It still is awaiting President Truman's signature.

Some of the question marks will not be disposed of until returns are in this week end from a spot muster of all military personnel taken June 14. Other answers depend upon the effect projected pay increases will have on the campaign for volunteers. Like the draft-extension measure, the new pay bill has yet to be signed.

In the meantime the manpower picture shapes up thus:

Since its V-E-day peak of 8,300,000, the Army has released about 7,500,000 men and women.

Upturn Foreseen

Approximately 200,000 were demobilized in May, and a somewhat smaller number in June. Anticipating Mr. Truman's signature to the draft extension measure, officials said there might be a temporary upturn in discharges.

The bill directs the release upon request of any man who has served eighteen months, excepting those who volunteered for specifically longer periods.

Under present War Department regulations 21 months' service is required of inductees.

Recruiting Pace Held

Even without the inducement of prospective pay increases recruiting of volunteers has been maintaining an even pace in recent weeks, after a steady downward trend. The report for the week of June 8-14, the latest received, listed 12,319 volunteers.

The generals as well as the privates are being demobilized. By the week end, only about 550 will remain on active duty if schedules are met, contrasted with a peak of 1,541 in wartime.

Further trimming is in prospect in all ranks as the Army is gradually reduced in the next year toward the mid-1947 goal of 1,070,000.

Senate Passes Huge Army Fund

WASHINGTON, June 28 (AP).—A record peace-time Army appropriation of $7,595,449,868 won Senate approval today in less than an hour and with only a dozen Senators present. It now goes back to the House for action upon Senate increases of more than $500,000,000. The funds are to operate the Army during the fiscal year that begins July 1. Senator Warren Magnuson, Democrat, of Washington, succeeded on a voice vote in knocking out a provision which would have allowed "stop-watch time checks" on labor employed by the War Department. Previously, the Senate approved a similar amendment in the $4,000,000,000 annual Naval bill.

Air Courses Start Monday

21 Navy Stations Will Begin Refresher Training

WASHINGTON, June 28 (AP).—Twenty-one naval air stations will begin part-time refresher training of pilots, ground officers and enlisted men on Monday under the Naval Air Reserve program, the Navy announced today.

The program calls for training 6,100 Navy and Marine Corps pilots, 20,000 enlisted men and 2,800 ground officers in the ready reserve.

The pilots will be drawn from a pool of 40,000 who saw service in World War II. Each pilot will receive 100 hours' flying time annually. The program is under direction of Rear Admiral Edward C. Ewen, of Portsmouth, N. H., chief of the naval air reserve training command, with headquarters at the naval air station, Glenview, Ill.

The stations at which training will be given include Floyd Bennett Field, L. I.

1,500 Dentists To Be Drafted

WASHINGTON, June 28 (AP).—Secretary of War Robert P. Patterson said today Selective Service will proceed with the induction of 1,500 dentists to meet a "very critical shortage." This will be done, he said, despite the War Department's decision not to call on the draft for manpower in July and August.

War Powers Act Approved

WASHINGTON, June 28 (AP).—The Senate and House today approved a nine-months extension of the second War Powers Act, which permits the government to allocate and ration commodities. The bill was sent to the White House. Both branches accepted a report of a Senate-House Committee which adjusted differences in legislation passed by the two bodies.

Inter-Possession Trade at New High

Washington, June 28 (A. P.).—Trade between the United States and its territories and possessions reached a new high of $780,000,000 last year, the Census Bureau reported today. This was a gain of $70,000,000 over the previous record, established in 1941.

Value of shipments from this country was given as: $64,000,000 to Alaska, $241,000,000 to Hawaii, $161,000,000 to Puerto Rico and $5,000,000 to the Virgin Islands. Value of shipments to the United States was given as: from Alaska, $73,000,000; from Hawaii, $88,000,000; Puerto Rico, $145,000,000 and from the Virgin Islands, $4,000,000.

But the 12-Month Deficit Will Exceed $20,000,000,000, Officials Predict

WASHINGTON, June 28 (AP)—Prospects appeared good today for the Government to finish out its fiscal year Sunday more than $1,000,000,000 better off than President Truman forecast in April.

But the twelve-month deficit still will top $20,000,000,000, and much of the "saving" may simply spill over into the books for the new fiscal year.

Latest Treasury figures indicate that revenue receipts may exceed the $42,932,000,000 Mr. Truman foresaw on April 11, while actual expenditures may fall below his $64,654,000,000 estimate by more than $1,000,000,000.

Most of the "saving" appears attributable to the slow progress of the foreign lending program, including the British loan still before Congress.

Treasury reports falling just three working days short of covering the fiscal year 1946 show only $674,315,500 has been moved out of the vaults for foreign loans this year, against Mr. Truman's April estimate of $1,614,000,000.

Revenue receipts stand at $42,305,000,000 and are accumulating at an average of more than $255,000,000 a day. The President estimated they would total $42,932,000,000.

Budget expenditures are well below $63,000,000,000, compared with the April estimate of $64,654,000,000. But they are averaging nearly $250,000,000 a day.

Spending on defense, war and war liquidation, and on the "aftermath of war"—veterans, debt interest and tax refunds—also seemed likely to fall below Mr. Truman's guesses of $48,683,000,000 and $11,303,000,000, respectively.

Spending on other Government activities, however, appeared likely to exceed his estimate of $3,004,000,000.

The President's April figures constituted a $6,898,000,000 downward revision of his January forecast of a $28,620,000,000 deficit.

GOVERNMENT HOLDS CLARK QUIT BENCH

Brief Says Judge Enlisted and So Has No Claim to Return to Federal Position

JUN 29 1946

WASHINGTON, June 28 (AP)—The Justice Department contended today that former Judge William Clark of the Third Circuit Court of Appeals "vacated his judicial office" when he enlisted in the Army.

Mr. Clark has filed suit in the Court of Claims to recover $9,375 which he asserts is salary due him as a judge since his discharge from the Army. He contends that under the Selective Service Law he is entitled to his former position on the bench. The Third Circuit Court serves New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Delaware and the Virgin Islands.

In an answering brief, the Justice Department asserted that Mr. Clark's decision "to leave the bench and actively engage in the country's military campaigns is unquestionably deserving of the highest admiration and respect."

Judges Deferred From Service

"Yet it is plain," the brief went on, "that even in wartime the courts must continue to function; all three branches of our Government must perform their allotted duties without interruption, else the system of Government as we know it must necessarily fail.

"Congress specifically recognized this when it provided that members of the judiciary be deferred from military service.

"Plaintiff clearly had an election between two incompatible courses.

"He could remain on the bench and make his contribution there. Or, as he in fact did, he could decide within the dictates of his own conscience that he personally could make a greater contribution as a member of our armed forces.

"However, having made the election, it is submitted that it is not reasonable, after his military duties are completed, to claim that, despite another's having been appointed to fill his judicial post, it is now his legal right to resume his old position as judge.

View Called "Inconceivable"

"That such was ever the intent of Congress is, it is submitted, inconceivable."

The brief was signed by Assistant Attorney General John F. Sonnett.

Gerald McLaughlin was confirmed on June 8, 1943, to fill the vacancy on the bench created when Judge Clark left.

Mr. Clark also opposed the recent confirmation of Harry E. Kalodner of Philadelphia to a vacancy on the same court, contending that he is himself entitled to the position.

The department's brief stated that the Selective Service Act requires only that private employers must return former employes to their jobs after military service.

"The restriction of the remedy to cases involving private employers is not merely inadvertent," the brief said. "No sanctions against the Federal Government were provided in any draft of the bill."

Mead to Open Senate Inquiry Into War Profits

Investigation on Monday; Is Said to Have Received Power to Study Tax Data

JUN 29 1946

WASHINGTON, June 28 (AP)—Senator James M. Mead, Democrat, of New York, heading the Senate defense investigating committee on which President Truman made a name for himself, announced today a deep-rigging investigation of war profits to start Monday.

Senator Mead was reported to have gained Presidential authority for his committee to examine corporation and individual income tax returns.

The committee plans to check the hasty contracting procedures of the war era to determine whether producers of military goods found legal loopholes for overly large earnings in such measures as the excess-profits tax and renegotiation statutes.

Senator Mead told the Senate the first group of corporations to be brought under investigation will include Erie Basin Metals, Inc., of Elgin, Ill.; Batavia Metal Products, Inc., of Batavia, Ill., the Interstate Machinery Company, of Chicago, and eleven affiliated firms which held $78,000,000 in war contracts.

Senator Mead noted that $315,000,000,000 had been spent on war procurement up to the end of hostilities.

He said the investigation will be concerned with safeguards set up where the government made cash advances to contractors, readjustment of fixed-price contracts, regulations governing contract awards, granting of priorities, man-power controls and other activities "affecting the bill which the taxpayers have paid" for war goods.

Another committee member who declined to authorize the use of his name said the group plans to delve into the operations of a multiple-company combine through which a half dozen individuals reputedly gained nearly $1,000,000 in profits after borrowing that amount to finance their first contracts.

Mr. Truman apparently gave the inquiry his blessing at a White House conference with the committee this week. Senator Mead said the President agreed to issue necessary executive orders making records of all government departments, including the Treasury, available.

TECHNICALITY BARS ACTION ON HOUSING

Washington, June 28 (A. P.).—A rarely invoked point of order cut short today the opening hearings of the House Banking Committee on the Senate-passed Wagner-Ellender-Taft long-range national housing legislation.

Senator Taft (R.-Ohio) was pleading for favorable action on the measure, citing its objectives as "nine-tenths free enterprise," when Representative Buffet (R.-Neb.) made a point of order that the committee, without special permission, could not sit while the House was in session.

Representative Spence (D.-Ky.), the committee chairman, said it was the first time in his long years on the committee that such a point had been raised.

He then called the group to meet tomorrow, before the House convenes, to hear more testimony and he expressed the hope the measure still could be brought to a House vote before Congress quits for the summer.

Prior to Buffet's move, Senator Wagner (D.-N. Y.), sponsor of the bill with Taft and Senator Ellender (D.-La.), had urged its passage. Wagner said that the veterans housing program aimed at 2,700,000 new units in two years cannot succeed without the long-range legislation.

The bill contemplates a limited program of public housing, including slum clearance. Sponsors contend it would promote research urban development, and liberalize credit for home ownership, thus stimulating private construction on long-range basis.

WHALING INDUSTRY MAY BE REVIVED BY FAT SHORTAGE

JUN 29 1946

WASHINGTON — (UP) The world-wide shortage of fats and oils may bring a boon in the once flourishing whaling industry.

Soap manufacturers and other industrial users of fats would like to see the United States resume large-scale whaling and regain the dominant place it held in the days of the sailing ships.

Norway is the leading whaling nation, but even her activities are limited. Britain is the only other country to resume whaling since the end of the war, but even to a lesser extent than Norway.

Lack Killer Ships

The greatest obstacles to revival of the American whaling industry are lack of equipment and the relatively lower operating costs of the Norwegians.

The United States probably could send out a few whaling factories—the ocean-going processing plants—but lacks the killer ships which bring the whales to the factories.

American operators before the war tried using Norwegian killer boats with their own factories, but ran into legal difficulties that made the arrangement economically unattractive. The government ruled that use of Norwegian killers made the match a "foreign" product and therefore subject to a three-cents-per-pound excise tax on whale oil in addition to a customs duty of six cents a gallon.

UN Urges Step-Up

If American operators decline to put out their own whaling fleets, industrial oil users hope that these economic barriers can at least be lowered to permit greater imports from Norway.

The recent conference of the United Nations Food and Agriculture organization recommended a step-up in whaling during the current fats and oils emergency.

It urged modification of the international whaling agreement to permit more abundant catches and greater co-operation in providing technical equipment and trained personnel.

Americans To Get 2% Less Sugar

Washington, June 28 (AP)—Americans, and others, are to get two per cent less sugar this year than officials thought.

The British-Canadian-American Combined Food Board reported yesterday that prospective production of sugar this year is 500,000 tons less than previously estimated. As a consequence, the board reduced allocations to various countries by a uniform rate of two per cent.

The new allocation for the United States is 5,597,000 tons.

REDIN ACCUSER KEPT ON STAND

Kennedy Faces Additional Cross-questioning.

Seattle, June 28 (A. P.).—Herbert Kennedy, 69 years old, Scottish born marine engineer, was to undergo additional cross-examination today as star witness in the espionage-conspiracy trial of 30-year-old Nicolai Gregorovich Redin, Russian naval lieutentant and Kennedy's erstwhile friend.

That friendship, which included many exchanges of family visits, dinners, evening parties with mutual friends, and exchange of Christmas gifts, was emphasized last night under cross-examination by defense attorney Tracy Griffin.

He hit at Kennedy's reactions to Redin's alleged promise of much money for secret data on United States Navy radar and fire control and other technical details of the U. S. S. Yellowstone, new type destroyer tender. Kennedy, a British subject married to an American wife, was employed at the shipyard where the tender was built.

Kennedy said that the offer was made as they stood in Kennedy's kitchen drinking one evening in the spring of 1945. The engineer said he was shocked by the request for data.

Griffin asked why he did not immediately report the conversation to "the United States or your own Government."

"Well," Kennedy answered, "I didn't know what to do about it. I remember, I said, after the Redins had gone, that I had a good mind to report it to the FBI."

On direct evidence, he had testified that he finally did go to the FBI last October when Redin became insistent and made actual cash offers. The FBI, he said, assisted him in preparing the confidential data he gave Redin.

BERLIN, JUNE 28-(AP)-MARSHALL MACDUFFIE, HEAD OF THE UNRRA MISSION IN THE UKRAINE SAYS THAT A STATEMENT THAT UNITED STATES CORRESPONDENTS HAVE NOT BEEN ABLE TO REPORT UNRRA ACTIVITIES IN RUSSIA IS INCORRECT.

MACDUFFIE IN A NEWS CONFERENCE LAST NIGHT ATTRIBUTED THIS STATEMENT TO PRESIDENT TRUMAN IN HIS RECENT REPORT TO CONGRESS ON THE SUBJECT.

(WHAT THE PRESIDENT WROTE IN A LETTER MADE PUBLIC JUNE 24 WAS: "I AM ADVISED THAT SATISFACTORY ARRANGEMENTS WERE IN EFFECT TO PERMIT AMERICAN PRESS AND RADIO REPRESENTATIVES TO REPORT WITHOUT CENSORSHIP ON THE UNRRA PROGRAM IN ALL UNRRA RECEIVING COUNTRIES EXCEPT THE UNION OF SOVIET SOCIALIST REPUBLICS."

(THE PRESIDENT ATTACHED A RUSSIAN NOTE IN WHICH THE MOSCOW GOVERNMENT DECLINED TO EXEMPT FROM ITS GENERAL CENSORSHIP RULES CORRESPONDENTS COVERING UNRRA ACTIVITIES.

(MR. TRUMAN MADE HIS REPORT AS A RESULT OF A PROVISION IN THE LAST UNRRA APPROPRIATIONS BILL WHICH DIRECTED HIM TO TRY TO ENSURE THAT AMERICAN CORRESPONDENTS BE PERMITTED TO REPORT WITHOUT CENSORSHIP ON THE UTILIZATION AND DISTRIBUTION OF UNRRA SUPPLIES AND SERVICES.)

MACDUFFIE SAID THAT A MONTH AGO EIGHT CORRESPONDENTS, INCLUDING THREE AMERICANS AND TWO BRITONS, VISITED KIEV AND MINSK, CAPITALS OF THE UKRAINE AND WHITE RUSSIA, RESPECTIVELY, AND WITH UNRRA PERSONNEL INSPECTED RATION STORES, FREE MARKETS, COLLECTIVE FARMS AND RECEIVED RATION FIGURES AND OTHER DATA.

TWO OF THE AMERICAN CORRESPONDENTS WERE REMBERT JAMES OF THE ASSOCIATED PRESS AND DREW MIDDLETON OF THE NEW YORK TIMES.

(JAMES WROTE OF UNRRA OPERATIONS IN THE UKRAINE AND WHITE RUSSIA. THERE WERE NO INDICATIONS THAT HIS DISPATCHES DEALING WITH UNRRA HAD BEEN CENSORED.)

MACDUFFIE SAID THAT MEMBERS OF HIS ELEVEN-MAN UNRRA TEAM "VISITED EVERY IMPORTANT CITY IN THE UKRAINE, COVERED THE WHOLE AREA WITH COMPLETE FREEDOM OF MOVEMENT AND RECEIVED FROM RUSSIAN AUTHORITIES EVERY COOPERATION AND ALL THE INFORMATION WE DESIRED."

(THE RUSSIAN NOTE APPENDED TO PRESIDENT TRUMAN'S LETTER TO CONGRESS ASSERTED: "INASMUCH AS SPECIAL COMMISSIONS OF THE UNRRA WILL BE SENT TO THE UKRAINIAN S.S.R. AND THE BYELO-RUSSIAN (WHITE RUSSIA) S.S.R., AMERICAN OFFICIAL CIRCLES AND THE PUBLIC WILL HAVE THE POSSIBILITY OF RECEIVING INFORMATION OF INTEREST TO THEM CONCERNING THE UTILIZATION AND DISTRIBUTION OF THE SUPPLIES AND SERVICES OF THE UNRRA THROUGH THESE COMMISSIONS." GERMAN ELECTIONS (AMS)

BY RICHARD A. O'REGAN

FRANKFURT, GERMANY, JUNE 28-(AP)-APPROXIMATELY 2,000,000 VOTERS IN THE AMERICAN OCCUPATION ZONE OF GERMANY WILL TAKE A SIGNIFICANT STEP SUNDAY IN DECIDING WHAT SORT OF DEMOCRATIC GOVERNMENT THEY WANT.

IN BAVARIA, GREATER HESSE AND WUERTEMBERG-BADEN THEY WILL ELECT ASSEMBLIES WHICH WILL APPROVE OR REJECT ALREADY-DRAFTED CONSTITUTIONS FOR THREE STATE LEGISLATURES--FORERUNNERS OF A POSSIBLE ZONAL "PARLIAMENT."

THIS MAJOR JUMP IN THE PROCESS OF "DEMOCRATIZING" THE AMERICAN ZONE IS, HOWEVER, STIMULATING CONSIDERABLY LESS ENTHUSIASM THAN THREE PREVIOUS EXPERIMENTS IN FREE BALLOTING--THE FIRST IN GERMANY FOR 13 NAZI-RIDDEN YEARS--ACCORDING TO A GREATER HESSE MILITARY GOVERNMENT SPOKESMAN.

DESPITE PUBLIC APATHY, A SHARP CAMPAIGN STRUGGLE IS UNDERWAY BETWEEN LEFTIST AND RIGHTWING PARTIES. PARTY LINES IN THE AMERICAN ZONE HAVE BECOME CRYSTALLIZED AND THE GERMAN MIDDLE CLASS--WHICH ONCE SWEPT HITLER TO POWER--IS THE PRIZE IN THE PARTY TUG-OF-WAR.

MANY AMERICAN OBSERVERS FORECAST THAT THE RIGHTWING CHRISTIAN SOCIAL UNION (CSU)--BACKED BY FARMERS, CHURCH GROUPS AND HEAVY PROPERTY OWNERS--WILL SWEEP A FOURTH TIME TO VICTORY AS THE ZONE'S NO. 1 PARTY.

FACED WITH THIS POSSIBILITY, THE THREE REMAINING MAJOR PARTIES--THE SOCIAL DEMOCRATS, THE COMMUNISTS AND THE LIBERAL DEMOCRATS--ARE BELIEVED TO HAVE GANGED UP UNOFFICIALLY AGAINST THE CSU. IN GREATER HESSE, THE LEFTWING SOCIAL DEMOCRATS AND COMMUNISTS HAVE CONCLUDED TWO SECRET AGREEMENTS NOT TO ATTACK EACH OTHER, IT WAS REPORTED TODAY.

JUN 29 1946

THE BIG TEST OF STRENGTH IS BETWEEN THE CSU AND THE SOCIAL DEMOCRATS. THEY ARE FIGHTING FOR CONTROL OVER THE ECONOMICALLY INSECURE MIDDLE CLASS VOTERS OF GERMANY'S RUINED CITIES. WITH NO STRONG PRO-COMMUNIST TRADE UNION GROUPS EXISTING, AS A RESULT OF DE-INDUSTRIALIZATION, MIDDLE CLASS RANKS HAVE INCREASED AND BOTH PARTIES ARE MAKING IDEOLOGICAL CONCESSIONS TO THEM.

IMPOVERISHED AND KNOWING NEITHER PARTY CAN OFFER ANY DEFINITE PROGRAM AS LONG AS IT IS DEPENDENT ON U.S. MILITARY GOVERNMENT POLICIES, THE MIDDLE CLASS, HOWEVER, REMAINS COMPARATIVELY DISINTERESTED AND POLITICALLY UNAWARE.

JUN 29 1946

A194

MASS MEETINGS AND SOUND TRUCKS HAVE FAILED TO STIR MUCH ENTHUSIASM. POSTERS OF ALL PARTIES AND THE RED FLAGS OF THE COMMUNISTS BEDECK BUILDINGS THROUGHOUT THE ZONE, BUT BLARING SOUND-TRUCKS HAVE ATTRACTED ONLY PASSING GLANCES OF POTENTIAL VOTERS.

"THE PARTIES ARE WHOOPING UP THE ELECTION TO BEAT THE BAND, BUT THEY HAVE ONLY SCRATCHED THE SURFACE OF POPULAR INTEREST," A MILITARY GOVERNMENT OBSERVER SAID. "THE GERMANS JUST DON'T SEEM TO KNOW WHAT IT IS ALL ABOUT."

BUT THIS IS WHAT IT IS ABOUT:

AMERICAN-APPOINTED COUNCILS IN EACH STATE HAVE DRAFTED CONSTITUTIONS. WHEN THE ASSEMBLIES ARE ELECTED THEY WILL APPROVE, REJECT OR CHANGE THE DRAFTS.

IN EARLY DECEMBER, THE VOTERS WILL GO TO THE POLLS AGAIN.

AT THAT TIME, THEY WILL VOTE YES OR NO ON THE RECOMMENDATIONS OF EACH STATE ASSEMBLY AND ALSO ELECT REPRESENTATIVES.

UNDER THE PRESENT DRAFTS, BAVARIA AND WUERTEMBERG-BADEN PROBABLY WILL GET TWO-HOUSE LEGISLATURES (THE SENATE IN EACH CASE WILL COMPRISE WHAT THE DRAFTS CALL "RESPECTABLE" PEOPLE).

INDUSTRIAL GREATER HESSE HAS PROPOSED A ONE-HOUSE LEGISLATURE, "PAVING THE WAY FOR SOCIALISM."

THE UNPREDICTABLE FACTOR IN THE ELECTION IS THE LIBERAL DEMOCRATIC PARTY, WHICH THE MILITARY GOVERNMENT SAID WAS SHOWING A DEFINITE SWING FROM EXTREME RIGHTISM TOWARD A CENTRAL POSITION BETWEEN THE RIGHT-WING CSU AND THE LEFTIST SOCIAL DEMOCRATS.

TOKYO, JUNE 28-(AP)-ASIA'S GREATEST POTENTIAL DRAMA -- THE INTERNATIONAL WAR CRIMES TRIAL IN TOKYO -- HAS BECOME A SECOND-RATE SHOW.

A GENERAL APATHY SEEMS TO AFFECT EVERYONE CONCERNED, FROM MEMBERS OF THE TRIBUNAL TO THE SPECTATORS AND THE PRESS.

THE TRIAL HAS HAD LESS DRAMA SO FAR THAN ANY OF THE NUMEROUS WARTIME SHOWS STAGED BY JAPANESE MILITARISTS -- SUCH AS THE ORDINARILY ROUTINE SIGNING OF TREATIES WITH PUPPET STATES.

AS A RESULT, AUDIENCES ARE GROWING SMALLER.

THE JAPANESE PRESS HAS COMMENTED ON THE DULLNESS. TOKYO NEWSPAPERS HAVE VOICED DISGUST WITH THE SHABBINESS AND APATHETIC ATTITUDE OF THE PRISONERS.

JUN 29 1946

THEY HAVE REMARKED ON GOERING'S DEFIANCE BY CONTRAST, AND CONCLUDED THAT THE JAPANESE DEFENDANTS ALREADY HAVE DECIDED THEY HAD LOST THEIR CASE.

THE TRIAL HAS BEEN DOMINATED BY LEGAL WRANGLING--INCOMPREHENSIBLE TO THE AVERAGE MAN--AND THE MONOTONOUS INTRODUCTION OF UNREVEALING DOCUMENTS AND AFFIDAVITS.

AMERICAN PROSECUTORS ARE KNOWN TO BE WRANGLING BEHIND THE SCENES WITH DIVISIONS SO NUMEROUS THEY EVEN INCLUDE SOUTHERN AND NORTHERN CLIQUES.

THE PROSECUTION HAS CONSIDERABLE EVIDENCE BUT IS TELLING IT BADLY, MOST OBSERVERS AGREE.

IT IS BELIEVED HERE THAT THE MAIN PURPOSE OF THE TRIALS IS TO PUBLICIZE THIS MILITARIST PERIOD FULLY, PARTICULARLY TO THE JAPANESE, WHO KNOW LESS ABOUT IT THAN FOREIGNERS; THUS, IN A SENSE, THE TRIALS SHOULD DEMONSTRATE DEMOCRATIC JUSTICE IN ACTION. PUNISHMENT OF THE DEFENDANTS IS OF SECONDARY IMPORTANCE.

SEATTLE, JUNE 28-(AP)-A JOBLESS 24-YEAR-OLD FORMER SOLDIER, WANTS TO SELL ONE OF HIS LIGHT BLUE EYES TO FINANCE HIMSELF IN A BUSINESS OF HIS OWN.

"SOMEONE OUGHT TO BE WILLING TO BUY AN EYE," THE VETERAN, ALFRED I.WILSON, TOLD A SEATTLE NEWSPAPER LAST NIGHT. "I'M NOT CRAZY. I'VE THOUGHT IT OVER A LONG TIME AND IT SEEMS TO ME IT'S THE ONLY WAY OUT. I CAN SEE AS WELL WITH ONE EYE AS WITH TWO ANYWAY."

WILSON SAYS THE ROOT OF HIS DIFFICULTIES WAS A COLLISION IN 1943 BETWEEN HIS MOTORCYCLE AND AN AUTOMOBILE. IN A DAMAGE CASE THE JUDGE HELD HIM RESPONSIBLE. $400 DAMAGES, WHICH HE SAYS HE HAS REFUSED TO DO BECAUSE HE FEELS HE WAS BLAMELESS, HIS DRIVING LICENSE HAS REMAINED SUSPENDED.

AFTER A MEDICAL DISCHARGE FROM THE ARMY, HE WENT BACK FOR A SPIN AT COMMERCIAL DRIVING. BUT NOW HE IS MARRIED AND JOBLESS.

OTTAWA (DOMINION-CANADA-BUDGET) (1,000)

STRUCTURE TODAY WITH A NEW BUDGET REDUCING PERSONAL INCOME, CORPORATION AND EXCESS PROFITS TAXES EFFECTIVE THE FIRST OF THE YEAR.

THE BUSINESS WORLD, ALTHOUGH PROFITS LEVY, WAS DISAPPOINTED THROUGH GETTING THE REDUCTION IN THE EXCESS MEASURE ABOLISHED ALTOGETHER, AS IT HAS BEEN IN THE UNITED STATES AND BRITAIN.

INCOME TAXES FOR MOST PERSONS WILL BE CUT FROM 10 TO 15 PER CENT AND BETWEEN 550,000 AND 600,000 IN LOW INCOME BRACKETS--APPROXIMATELY ONE-FOURTH OF ALL THOSE NOW PAYING TAXES--WILL BE FREED OF THE BURDEN THEY BEGAN BEARING DURING THE WAR.

THIS WILL BE DONE BY RAISING THE EXEMPTION LEVEL FOR SINGLE PERSONS FROM $660 TO $750 AND FOR MARRIED PERSONS WITHOUT DEPENDENTS FROM $1,200 TO $1,500. IN THE UNITED STATES SINGLE TAXPAYERS BEGIN PAYING ON $500 INCOME, IN BRITAIN ON $490, AND IN AUSTRALIA AND NEW ZEALAND ON $700.

FLAT RATE TAXES ON CORPORATE INCOMES ARE TO BE REDUCED FROM 40 TO 30 PERCENT, AND THE EXCESS PROFITS TAX IS CUT FROM 20 TO 15 PERCENT WITH SOLE PROPRIETORS AND PARTNERSHIP EXEMPT.

THE CHANGES WERE CONTAINED IN THE BUDGET FOR THE FISCAL YEAR ENDING MARCH 31, 1947, PRESENTED TO PARLIAMENT LAST NIGHT BY FINANCE MINISTER J.L. ILSLEY. HE ANNOUNCED A REDUCTION IN THE DEFICIT FROM $1,735,000,000 TO ABOUT $260,000,000 FOR 1946-47, WITH A FORECAST THAT "WE SHOULD BE ABLE TO LOOK FORWARD TO SOMETHING LIKE A BALANCED BUDGET" IN THE FISCAL YEAR 1947-48.

ALTHOUGH HE SAID LAST OCTOBER THAT HE HAD HOPED TO ABOLISH THE EXCESS PROFITS TAX IN THIS BUDGET ILSLEY DECLARED "WE ARE STILL LIVING IN HIGHLY ABNORMAL TIMES, THE SHADOW OF WAR IS STILL UPON US, AND THE FINANCIAL BURDENS ON THE DOMINION BUDGET ARISING OUT OF THE WAR ARE STILL OF HUGE PROPORTIONS."

THE PROFITS OF BUSINESS THUS ARE TO REMAIN GEARED TO A GREAT EXTENT TO THE LEVEL OF 1939.

THE NEW INCOME TAX RATES ARE 22 PERCENT ON THE FIRST $250 OF INCOME ABOV THE EXEMPTIONS, 25 PERCENT ON THE NEXT $750, 28 PERCENT ON THE NEXT $1,000, WITH GRADUAL INCREASES UP TO 85 PERCENT ON INCOMES OVER $250,000.

ON A $3,000 INCOME, THE TAXES FOR A SINGLE PERSON ARE CUT FROM 692 TO $593, FOR A MARRIED PERSON WITHOUT CHILDREN FROM $491 TO $383, AND FOR A MARRIED PERSON WITH TWO CHILDREN FROM $259 TO $183.

CANADA WILL BE COVERING NEARLY 90 PERCENT OF HER EXPENDITURES FROM REVENUE, ALTHOUGH THE REVENUE FROM INCOME TAXES IS BEING REDUCED $143,000,000 OR 23 PERCENT, AND THAT FROM BUSINESS TAXES $135,000,000 OR ABOUT 25 PERCENT.

NOTE TO EDITORS

THIS IS FURTHER TO KEEP YOU POSTED ON THE GENERAL SITUATION WITH RESPECT TO COVERAGE OF THE BIKINI BOMB TESTS. BECAUSE OF UNSATISFACTORY COMMUNICATIONS, IT IS IMPOSSIBLE TO PREDICT HOW QUICKLY DETAILED ACCOUNTS OF THE DROPPING OF THE BOMB--TENTATIVELY SET FOR 5:30 P.M., EASTERN STANDARD TIME, SUNDAY, JUNE 30 (9:30 A.M., BIKINI TIME, MONDAY, JULY 1)--WILL BE DELIVERED TO NEWSPAPERS AND RADIO STATIONS. UNDER ARRANGEMENTS THUS FAR PUT INTO EFFECT BY THE NAVY, THE FASTEST MEANS OF COMMUNICATION--VOICECAST--HAS BEEN ASSIGNED TO RADIO NETWORKS. THEREFORE, THE FIRST NEWS STORIES TRANSMITTED BY PRESS ASSOCIATIONS MAY BE BASED ON DESCRIPTIVE MATERIAL OBTAINED FROM THE POOLED RADIO BROADCAST. PRESS ASSOCIATIONS STILL ARE AWAITING A RESPONSE FROM THE NAVY TO THEIR REITERATED REQUEST THAT DESCRIPTION OF THE ACTUAL BOMB DROP BE BROADCAST BY AN OFFICIAL "NEUTRAL VOICE," AND THAT SUCH BROADCAST BE MADE AVAILABLE ON EQUAL TERMS TO BOTH RADIO AND NEWSPAPERS.

MEANTIME, THE NAVY HAS SET UP SIX RADIO-TELETYPE CIRCUITS WHICH WILL BE ROUTED FROM THE MAIN COMMUNICATIONS SHIP OF THE BIKINI FLEET, THE APPALACHIAN, BY WAY OF NAVY RADIO AT PEARL HARBOR AND SAN FRANCISCO. THESE CHANNELS WILL BE FOR THE USE OF REPORTERS FOR WIRE SERVICES AND INDIVIDUAL NEWSPAPERS. NINE WIRE SERVICES OR AGENCIES, INCLUDING THE ASSOCIATED PRESS, WILL SHARE FOUR CLEARED RADIO-TELETYPE CIRCUITS DURING THE FIRST HALF HOUR AFTER THE BOMB IS DROPPED, WITH DISPATCHES LIMITED TO 250 WORDS PER "TAKE." FOR THE SECOND HALF HOUR, WIRE SERVICES WILL BE LIMITED TO TWO TELETYPE CIRCUITS. THEREAFTER THE FOREIGN NEWS AGENCIES WILL REVERT TO THE STATUS ACCORDED WRITERS FOR INDIVIDUAL NEWSPAPERS AND TWO CIRCUITS WILL BE TURNED OVER TO THE ASSOCIATED PRESS, UNITED PRESS, AND INTERNATIONAL NEWS SERVICE FOR THEIR USE EXCLUSIVELY FOR 24 HOURS.

NAVY RADIO ADVISES THAT ATMOSPHERIC CONDITIONS ARE NOT LIKELY TO BE GOOD FOR SEVERAL HOURS AFTER THE TIME SCHEDULED FOR THE BOMB DROP. IT HAS PROMISED TO KEEP US POSTED ON CONDITIONS AND THIS INFORMATION, TOGETHER WITH WORD RESPECTING OTHER DEVELOPMENTS, IF ANY, WILL BE FORWARDED TO MEMBERS PROMPTLY.

PROSPECTS OF SPOT PICTURES ON THE TEST WILL DEPEND ENTIRELY ON WHAT PICTURES ARE CLEARED BY THE JOINT TASK FORCE ON THE SCENE, AND WHEN THOSE PICTURES ARE RECEIVED IN SAN FRANCISCO BY RADIO FROM ANY OF THE THREE TRANSMITTING UNITS ESTABLISHED IN THE BIKINI-KWAJALEIN AREA. WITH GOOD LUCK, SPOT PICTURES MIGHT BE AVAILABLE BY RADIO IN A MATTER OF HOURS AFTER THE EVENT; WITH DELAY IN CLEARANCE OR TRANSMISSION, PICTURE AVAILABILITY WOULD BE POSTPONED ACCORDINGLY. WHENEVER THERE IS SPECIFIC WORD AVAILABLE ON PROSPECTS, WHICH PRLY ADVISED. NOT BE UNTIL AFTER THE EVENT, YOU WILL BE KEPT CLO., JUNE 28, 1946

KWAJALEIN, JUNE 28-(AP)-IF THE ATOMIC BOMB BLAST OVER THE FLEET IN BIKINI LAGOON JULY 1 DOESN'T SHAKE THE PUBLIC INTO A NEW REALIZATION OF AIR POWER, "THEN SOMEBODY'S ASLEEP!" IN THE OPINION OF LT. IT WAS NERO, THEN A STAFF SERGEANT, WHO DROPPED THE 1,100-POUND BOMB IN A FLIGHT OFF CAPE HATTERAS WHICH SANK THE OLD NEW JERSEY -- FIRST BATTLESHIP DESTROYED BY AERIAL BOMBING.

THAT SHOULD HAVE BROUGHT PUBLIC REALIZATION OF THE IMPORTANCE OF AIR POWER, BUT THE AIR FORCE HABE CLAIMS AND THE NAVY COUNTERCLAIMS, ME SAID, UNTIL THE PUBLIC DIDN'T KNOW WHAT TO BELIEVE.

"IF THE WEATHER IS UNFAVORABLE DURING THE FIRST 15 DAYS OF JULY, THEN I BELIEVE THE BOMB WILL BE DROPPED REGARDLESS OF WEATHER," HE ADDED:

O"BELIEVE ME, WITH ALL THE BRASS AND SCIENTISTS AND NEWSMEN AND OBSERVERS PRESENT, THE CHIEFS AREN'T GOING TO LET THEM SIT AROUND AND NOT EXPLODE THE BOMB. AFTER JULY 15 THE BOMB WILL BE DROPPED EVEN IF THE BOMBARDIER HAS TO USE BOTH VISION AND RADAR TO FIND THE TARGET SHIP NEVADA."

MOLOTOV BLOCKS PARLEY ON PEACE

JUN 30 1946

Big Four at Paris Study Proposal to Internationalize Trieste.

J. Dynan

PARIS, June 29.—(AP) The four-power foreign ministers tonight postponed a decision on a general European peace conference and pondered a new compromise proposal on the disputed port of Trieste which French sources said might break the conference deadlock, but which American quarters declared could not be seriously considered.

The compromise Trieste plan, submitted by French Foreign Minister Georges Bidault, calls for establishing Trieste as an autonomous region under international guidance for 10 years, French sources said.

Would Make New Decision

At the end of that time, the Big four would re-examine the problem, making a new decision if deemed wise or referring the matter to the United Nations. Both Italy and Yugoslavia have demanded Trieste outright.

French informants said that Soviet Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov accepted the Bidault proposal "in principle" as a "basis for discussion" with certain reservations. These were that the autonomous regime should be permanent instead of for only 10 years and that other interested nations, such as Czechoslovakia, be represented.

Americans who attended the meeting, however, described the plan as too complicated and added that it would solve nothing. They insisted that no indication had been given that any of the ministers would accept the plan. British informants said only that their group was "studying" it.

In a session lasting more than four hours, the ministers reached no agreement on U. S. Secretary of State James F. Byrnes' demands to call the 21-nation peace parley, and postponed action over the week end, American informants said Byrnes declared yesterday he wanted a straight "yes or no" answer from the ministers today.

Byrnes Calls For Vote

American sources said that Byrnes, in effect, enunciated the United States' foreign policy when he listed the reasons for calling a general peace conference soon and then called for a vote on holding a conference.

Both Bidault and British Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin voted affirmatively. Molotov voted no.

Byrnes, it was said, then remarked that the world now knows where the veto stands.

Molotov replied, the American informants said, that he might be able to make a decision concerning a peace conference in two or three days.

Adjourns Until Monday

The council then adjourned until Monday and the agenda for that day includes the question of Italian colonies, Trieste, the peace conference, and German problems.

In today's session, the ministers discussed freedom of commerce on the Danube river, Italian reparations, units of the Italian navy to be included in Italian reparations and the countries to which they would be awarded.

In outlining his demands for a peace conference, Byrnes said the American view at the Potsdam conference was that the then proposed foreign ministers council was to be instructed to make and not obstruct, peace. The ministers were to do the spade work on peace treaties, and not provide the finished product for other nations to rubber stamp with their approval.

Conditions last September delayed the start of the preliminary work on the conference, but during the Moscow conference, American sources quoted Byrnes as saying, the representatives of 21 nations were informed they would be invited to a peace conference on May 1, 1946, when it was expected that the preparation of treaty drafts would be completed.

May 1 meant May 1, Byrnes was quoted as declaring, but the 21 nations have been waiting for an invitation since that time, and the United States was becoming unhappy over the situation. In fact Byrnes said, his country no longer was willing to remain in that situation.

Debate is Bitter

French sources said the debate on the peace conference between Byrnes and Molotov was conducted on extremely bitter terms.

Byrnes asked that Bidault, as host minister, be empowered to invite the nations to a peace conference not later than July 20. Previously Byrnes had asked that the conference be convoked beginning on July 15.

If the conference is not held by July 20, Byrnes said, the participating governments will not have time to send representatives before the United Nations General Assembly meets in September.

New French Plan for Trieste

JUN 30 1946

Proposal Is Ready for Big Four in Paris—Showdown Near on Byrnes's Demand.

J. Dynan

Paris, June 29 (A. P.).—French spokesmen said that a new French proposal to settle the Trieste problem was ready for presentation at today's meeting of the Foreign Ministers Council, but [X]AY for a hint that it was along the lines of internationalizing the city, they revealed no details of the plan.

Previously the French had proposed internationalizing both Trieste and the Julian March (Venezia Giulia), a surrounding area, but that plan has been brushed aside.

After a long review of deadlocked issues which are preventing the draft of both Italian and Romanian peace treaties, the council yesterday shelved the question of Trieste, which is claimed by both Italy and Yugoslavia. Thereupon Secretary of State Byrnes proposed the calling of a twenty-one-Power peace conference this summer to do what the Big Four Council has thus far failed to do.

Byrnes Faces Showdown.

Today Byrnes faced a showdown on this issue with Vyacheslav Molotov, the Russian Foreign Minister.

Byrnes served notice last night that he would demand a straight yes or no answer from Molotov when the Big Four Ministers reconvene this afternoon. Speculation on the outcome ranged from confidence to downright gloom.

French official spokesmen expressed confidence that a European conference would be called and held before the end of summer to obtain views on eventual peace treaties from all the Allied nations which contributed to victory in Europe.

Molotov Blocks Conference.

Molotov thus far has blocked convocation of such a conference on the ground the Big Four must be in agreement among themselves on the fundamentals of the treaties with Italy, Finland, Bulgaria, Romania and Hungary before calling in the smaller nations.

Byrnes has urged that the Big Four hear the general peace conference views on the problems still at issue and already has served notice that he intends to take these questions to the United Nations General Assembly in New York in September if the conference is not held before that time.

French sources said that they felt sure the major Powers would reach agreement in time to call and hold the conference before then, but some Americans saw no hope of the Russians consenting to a general peace conference while major issues remained unsolved and prospects for reaching agreement remained dim.

Persons close to the United States Secretary of State said that Byrnes was prepared to stay here all summer, if necessary, to achieve essential accord with Russia on the knotty questions of Trieste, the Italian-Yugoslav frontier, Italian reparations, freedom of navigation on the Danube, and equal commercial opportunity in eastern Europe. Text of Trieste Proposal

By Wireless to The New York Times.

PARIS, June 29—Following is the text of the French Foreign Minister Georges Bidault's tentative proposal on Trieste, representing an informal basis for discussion and not a final French plan:

(1) Trieste and the adjoining territory would be created for ten years as an autonomous territory administered by the four powers, Italy and Yugoslavia. The integrity of the territory would be assured by the Security Council.

(2) The governor of the territory would be named by agreement among the Big Four powers.

(3) An assembly elected by universal and secret ballot will exercise legislative powers.

(4) A Council of Government, composed of six members named by the four powers, Italy and Yugoslavia and under the presidency of the governor will have the powers of Government and administration and will insure order and public services.

(5) The legislative and judicial organization shall insure respect for the rights of the inhabitants, such as schools, language, public office, etc.

(6) The representatives of the four powers in the Security Council will form a Council of Control to which the Government Council will report annually and which will be responsible for the execution of the statute. Any difficulties or disagreements will be submitted to it.

U.S., CHINA STUDY VETO

JUN 30 1946

Delegates Differ On Chance Of Abandoning Power

L. Hauck

New York, June 29 (AP)—The United States and China joined tonight in exploring irresponsible use of the veto power in the United Nations and Dr. Quo Tai-chi, Chinese delegate to the Security Council, predicted the weapon would be abandoned.

The United States, Great Britain, China, Russia and France hold the power to veto, which has been exercised five times by Russia, including three "blocks" at this week's bitter session on the Spanish case. France has vetoed once, also on the issue of Franco.

Trusts In Public Opinion

Dr. Quo, declaring that he expected public opinion to force a change in the rule if the veto is "frequently or lightly used," said in remarks broadcast in the University of the Air:

"I believe the time will come when all the nations will feel that it is no longer necessary to retain the ve

NIGHT

"China has never stood strongly for the veto. It can be used to such an extent as to paralyze the Security Council and render this vital organ of the United Nations ineffective. I hope this won't be the case."

He termed abandonment "inevitable if the United Nations succeeds in its purpose."

Cites Understanding On Use

Herschel Johnson, United States delegate, disagreed on the prediction that the veto would be killed, but declared:

"The veto power was accepted by the United Nations at San Francisco with the clear understanding that it would be used only sparingly. It should certainly not be used lightly or irresponsibly to prevent peaceful settlement of disputes that have been agreed to by the majority."

Elaborating his position on the question, Johnson said:

"Let's be realistic. The Soviet Union was not the only nation that supported the rule of big-power unanimity. This rule was adopted by mutual agreement, to prevent the major powers from being drawn into the use of military force against their will.

Still Have Ultimate Veto

"Suppose all nations agreed that the veto should be abolished, unlikely as that appears to be. I doubt whether it would make a great deal of difference in the affairs of the United Nations. After all, the major powers, the ones with real military strength, would still have an ultimate veto over any large-scale use of their troops.

"In this country, for example, only Congress has the power to declare war. The veto power, if used with restraint as it was intended to be, is a recognition of the facts."

Dr. Herbert V. Evatt, Australian delegate, already has said that he will ask a full airing of the veto question before the General Assembly here this fall and even indicated he might make an outright demand for its elimination. Cuba also announced that it will call for killing the veto.

Baruch Charts Atom Plans

JUN 30 1946

C.A. Grunich

New York, June 29 (AP)—An analysis prepared in chart form by Bernard M. Baruch showed today that the United States and Russian programs for world atomic control agreed in three phases, left fourteen others open for negotiation and were in headon conflict on three points, including the veto.

Baruch's efforts to speed the discussions of the United Nations Atomic Energy Commission by reducing te expressed views of all twelve members to black-or-white, yes-or-no basis were received by the delegates "with some reservations."

The chart, with exceptions footnoted and opposed views summed up in parallel columns, covered twenty main points to show the areas of agreement and disagreement between the United States and Russian plans and the supplementary modifications proposed mainly by Poland, France and Australia.

U.S. Plan Supported

DAY

It showed that with the exception of Poland, which indorsed the Russian plan without reservation, the atomic commissioners generally favored the American plan and that some regarded both programs as a common ground for negotiation.

By unanimous vote of the twelve-nation atomic working committee yesterday, Australian Foreign Minister Herbert V. Evatt, the commission chairman, was delegated to name a subcommittee for analysis of the various views presented. Evatt said it would be appointed Monday and would probably consist of five members.

Baruch's chart, which he presented as a personal analysis rather than a United States Government effort, was expected to serve as the work sheet for the present.

Public Meetings

Chairman Evatt announced that the commission itself would assemble next Wednesday afternoon and that all such meetings would be public, except committee sessions.

In Baruch's analysis the United States and Russia generally agreed on: 1—Fostering the use of atomic energy for peaceful purposes only; 2—Exchange of information on raw materials, and 3—Eventual extension of controls to other weapons of mass destruction such as gas and bacteriological methods.

Of the three specified conflicts between the Russian and United States plans, the veto remained the greatest stumbling block although the atomic conferees have tacitly agreed to bypass that until every effort has been made to reconcile the differences on other phases.

Other Powers' Stand

China and Great Britain were listed as willing to yield the veto right in a unanimous renunciation and France remained uncommitted.

All the smaller powers except Poland and the Netherlands, which made no comment on this subject, emphatically opposed the retention of the veto on atomic matters and some characteristically attacked the veto as applied to any subject before the Security Council.

The other two points of difference concerned "sanctions" and "outlawry of atomic weapons."

Denies Incursion Into French Territory by Bandit Forces

LONDON, June 29 (AP)—Siam rejected today a French complaint that "Siamese bandits" made attacks on the town of Vientaine on the frontier of Siam and Indo-China and repeated allegations that the French were guilty of minor aggressions themselves.

The Siamese Foreign Ministry, in a statement released through its London Legation, said British and American observers had gone to the area to inquire into the French reports of June 2 that the French side of the frontier river was shelled for forty-eight hours.

These observers interviewed the French commanding officer who did not mention the firing, the statement said.

The report said the Siamese received word of the French complaint on June 6 in a communication from the British Minister at Bangkok, Siamese capital.

Mission's Chief Acclaims Russia's Co-operation

BERLIN, June 29 (AP)— Marshall MacDuffie said today he had sent to U. N. R. R. A. Director F. H. La Guardia an urgent plea against Congressional action threatening to cut off funds for relief in Russia and declared the organization's work in the Ukraine "is a bright spot in the picture of Anglo-Soviet relations." MacDuffie is chief of the United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration's mission to the Ukraine.

He said at an interview that the message "gives in detail a report on our work and my stand on this issue, and points up the extreme necessity for continuing U. N. R. R. A. relief in the Ukraine." He said that during his four months in the Ukraine he and ten other members of his mission had received complete co-operation from the Russians and that U. N. R. R. A. had built up a great deal of good will among the Soviet people.

Chief of Mission to Ukrainia Appeals for Food Without Free Press Proviso.

Berlin, June 29 (A. P.).—Marshall MacDuffie, chief of the UNRRA mission to Soviet Ukrainia, said today that he had sent an urgent plea to the UNRRA director, Fiorello LaGuardia, against congressional action threatening to cut off funds for "this extremely necessary work" in Russia.

MacDuffie decided not to release the text of his message but said it contained a report of his mission's activities. "Also, it gives in detail a report of our work and my stand on this issue and points up the extreme necessity for continuing UNRRA relief in the Ukraine," he continued. "Without the aid which UNRRA is bringing to the Ukraine there would be widespread malnutrition and possibilities of extreme hunger in some sections and failure to fulfill UNRRA's program to help farm recovery would be tragic."

He estimated that the average Ukrainian ration is 1,700 calories a day and that if the UNRRA's canned meats and fats were subtracted, the ration would fall to 1,500—"putting it down with what we want to give the Germans."

[The House of Representatives yesterday affirmed its insistence that American newspaper correspondents be free to report on the use of UNRRA funds. It sent to the Senate a deficiency appropriations bill containing the free press proviso. The measure would appropriate $465,000,000 to the UNRRA. On Monday President Truman reported to Congress that Russia had refused to exempt correspondents covering UNRRA activities in Russia from her censorship rules.]

Ennis Didn't Set Policy, Lichfield Superiors States

JUN 30 1946

Bad Nauheim, Germany, June 29 (AP)—The former commanding officer of Lieut. Leonard W. Ennis, of Peekskill, N.Y., one of the defendants charged with authorizing cruel treatment to American soldiers at the Lichfield (England) detention camp, testified today that Ennis "had nothing to do with making any rules or establishing policy" at the camp.

The witness, Capt. Joseph A. Robertson, of Toledo, Ohio, said on crossexamination that Ennis had "complete authority over prisoners while they were outside the guardhouse" and was responsible for the way outside guards performed their duties.

Himself Awaiting Trial

Robertson, who is awaiting trial himself in connection with camp operations, commanded the 316th Reinforcement Company, which, he said, took over the administration of the Lichfield camp on November 13, 1944.

Ennis's counsel also brought out in Robertson's testimony that Ennis was officially on duty around the guardhouse from November 13 to December 28, instead of from October 1 to December 31, as charged, and that he was absent from Lichfield for at least three weeks during his official term of duty there. It was during the period from October to late December that many prosecution witnesses testified they were beaten or otherwise mistreated while guardhouse prisoners. A few witnesses said Ennis himself struck prisoners.

Who Was "Prison Officer"?

Major Walter H. Holdridge, of Searsdale, N.Y., former Lichfield classification officer, joined Robertson in testifying that Ennis was never officially appointed "prison officer" as the prosecution alleges.

Both Robertson and Holdridge said that the official prison officer was Lieut. Granville Cubage, of Oklahoma City, who was recently fined $250 and reprimanded for authorizing guards to strike prisoners with clubs.

Robertson testified that a dispute over authority once developed between Cubage and Ennis. Ennis, the witness said, resented having one of his orders countermanded by Cubage, who was then a second lieutenant, while Ennis was a first lieutenant.

"I want this business straightened out," Robertson quoted Ennis as demanding.

Division Of Authority

"I told Cubage he would have authority as usual over administration of prisoners inside the guardhouse, but Ennis would have complete authority over prisoners outside," Robertson testified.

Renewing a complaint that prisoner witnesses were given "preferential treatment" by the Army to induce them to testify against Ennis, the defense attorney tried to question the officer in charge of the Bad Nauheim guardhouse. The court sustained objections to nearly all questions, including a query as to whether the prisoner-witnesses are doing "hard labor," as their sentences require.

UNABLE TO PROVE BORMANN IS DEAD

JUN 30 1946

Nuernberg, June 29 (A. P.).—Counsel for Martin Bormann told the War Crimes Tribunal today that he had hoped to prove beyond doubt that Hitler's last deputy was dead, but for lack of witnesses he was unable to do so. Dr. Friederich Bergold opened the defense in the absence of Bormann, and said that he would have to confine it to the statement of one witness and direct testimony by another.

Other witnesses, such as Hitler's chauffeur, who saw Bormann on the night Berlin fell to the Russians, are unavailable, the attorney complained. He introduced an affidavit of Bormann's secretary, Else Kreuger, now living in Hamburg. The girl said that she believed the party deputy leader was killed trying to escape from the shattered capital.

Germans Apathetic Over New Vote

JUN 30 1946

Frankfurt, June 29 (AP)—Apathy prevails throughout the United States zone of Germany concerning tomorrow's election, which will give 7,000,000 voters their first chance in thirteen years to decide what sort of democratic government they want.

Although a sharp struggle is being waged between Leftist and Right-wing parties to obtain the support of the German middle class, the election is causing "considerably less" enthusiasm than three previous experiments in free balloting, a Greater Hesse military government spokesman said.

Only Real Program Is Imposed

The disinterested attitude was interpreted as a realization by the impoverished middle class that neither party could offer a definite program as long as it remained dependent upon United States Government policies.

The balloting will take place in Bavaria, Greater Hesse and Wuerttemberg-Baden, where the people will elect assemblies which will approve or reject already-drafted constitutions for three state legislatures—forerunners of a possible zonal "parliament."

The struggle centers between the Christian Social Union, which may win its fourth straight victory as the zone's strongest party, and the Social Democrats.

Gems Checked Off Against Hesse List

Frankfurt, June 29 (AP)—In the deep vaults of the heavily guarded Frankfurt Reichsbank, United States Army authorities today began checking off the recovered $1,500,000 Hesse family jewels against the inventory of their German ducal owners.

The bulk of the jewels, recovered in the United States after their theft from stately Kronberg Castle near Frankfurt, arrived safely by troop train from Bremerhaven early today.

At Bremerhaven, where they arrived aboard a trans-Atlantic dependents' transport in the charge of twelve enlisted guards and three officers from the War Department, the gems were received by Lieut. Col. Louis H. Erichs, of Tuckahoe, N.Y., deputy Frankfurt provost marshal.

No Easy Task

Army C.I.D. agents declared that the checkoff to determine whether all the jewels had been recovered was expected to be a long, hard task. Many of the jewels, it was said, have been dismounted from their settings and the inventory of the House of Hesse was described as "not well detailed."

Three United States Army officers are awaiting court-martial in connection with the theft.

DESCRIBES KILLING OF 3 U.S. CAPTIVES

JUN 30 1946

Dachau, June 29 (A. P.).—A 19-year-old former SS machine-gunner today described before an American military court the brutal battlefield murder of two American stretcher-bearers and their wounded patient during the battle of the Bulge. Present at today's court session were twelve visiting American newspaper editors and publishers.

The witness, Alsatian-born Marcel Boltz, said he saw another SS man order the stretcher bearers to face a wall and then shot them with his automatic weapon. Next, according to Boltz, the SS man walked to the stretcher and fired a bullet through the head of the wounded American.

Boltz, one of seventy-four SS men on trial for the Malmedy massacre and other ruthless killings, hedged on a previous statement that "it was common knowledge" that Col. Joachim Peiper, commander of the first SS Panzer Regiment, ordered the shootings at Malmedy. Boltz said he had stated this without having any direct knowledge of whether Peiper, a co-defendant, was responsible.

Armed Bands Clash With Secret Police—Balloting to Settle Western Border Issue

By The Associated Press.

WARSAW, June 29—Roving armed bands clashed with units of Polish security police and the Army today in rising unrest on the eve of tomorrow's national referendum on legislative reform and the nationalization of basic industries.

A spokesman for the Foreign Ministry declared that outlaw gangs were murdering and killing hundreds of persons, "and probably thousands," in pre-election disturbances. He said many polling officials had been attacked. Recently officials said 8,000 persons had been killed in ten months.

The two major opposing factions in the referendum are the four-party coalition including the Communist-backed Polish Workers' party, supporting the Provisional Government, and the Polish Peasant party of Vice Premier Stanislaw Mikolajczyk.

M. Mikolajczyk charged that security police were making mass arrests of party members, and were confiscating all his party literature demanding a negative vote on the first question in the referendum—whether voters want a one-House Parliament.

The two other questions are: Do you approve of the actions of the Provisional Regime nationalizing basic industries and agrarian reform? and Do you approve establishment of Poland's western borders on the Neisse and Oder Rivers?

There is major disagreement only on the first question, but M. Mikolajczyk, whose Peasant party claims to represent 60 per cent of Pol. 1's people, has declared that his chief concern was whether the referendum would be conducted fairly.

Soldiers armed with tommy guns will guard the polls. United States and British diplomats and newspaper men were informed that any Pole seen talking with them on referendum day would be arrested subsequently by the security police.

First Vote in 11 Years

The Government has denied M. Mikolajczyk's request that representatives from each of the six polling parties act as clerks. Instead, clerks were chosen from lists presented by the seventeen Provincial Councils, of which all but three are Communist-controlled. M. Mikolajczyk also protested a Government ruling that any blank ballots would be counted as affirmative votes.

Some 11,000,000 men and women are eligible to vote in this first balloting in Poland in eleven years. General elections have been promised for some time in the fall.

11 Million Poles Set To Vote

JUN 30 1946

Warsaw, June 29 (AP)—For the first time in eleven years, approximately 11,000,000 Poles will have an opportunity to vote tomorrow in a national referendum concluding a turbulent political campaign in which the chief concern of the opposition was whether the balloting would be free and unfettered.

One point of criticism by the opposition was the Government's ruling that all unmarked ballots would be counted in its favor. Opposition spokesmen declare this would permit unscrupulous polling clerks to fill ballot boxes with blanks in doubtful districts of the 8,000 in Poland.

Slayings Total 8,000

Officials acknowledge that nearly 8,000 slayings of a poltical nature have occurred in Poland in the last ten months and Polish newspapers yesterday reported increasing terror—including the killing of members of voting commissions and intimidation of voters by outlaw bands—as the campaign neared a close.

[An authoritative source in London said the British-Polish financial treaty signed in London Monday would not be ratified until the British Government was assured that the Polish Government had fulfilled its pledge for free elections. The agreement includes provisions for the return of $16,000,000 in Polish gold stored in London, demobilization of stores and other benefits.]

Peasant Leader Threatened

Vice Premier Stanislaw Mikolajczyk, head of the Polish Peasant party—core of the opposition, said last night that he had been informed that he was marked for arrest and his life threatened, "but I regard all this as simple agitation."

He charged mass arrests of members of his party, intimidation and terrorism.

Moscow, June 29 (A. P.).—Pravda described today the legislation for inter-American military co-operation, now before the United States Congress, as a part of a scheme of American imperialists to dominate Latin America.

"Contemp[illegible] American imperialism is not inclined to ride in the carriage of the past," the article continued. "Today it makes the Monroe Doctrine into a plan for a general offensive against Latin America.

"And this offensive pursues an aim—to push out completely or almost completely all possible competitors, to provide undivided, monopolistic domination by the United States in all countries of Latin America, not only on a political and economic but also on a military basis. Thus it is proposed to make Latin America into a military strategic base of the United States."

Sees No Justification,

The article said there was no justification for building up a military bloc when "no threat against the American Continent exists." It declared that, in order to cover "this naked imperialistic business," the United States was operating a gigantic propaganda machine grinding out speeches about the "noble aims" of the United States policy of "Pan-American solidarity," and "equal rights and sovereignty" between the United States and even such small States as Haiti and Santo Domingo.

The article contended that nobody believes these phrases, but that they made "nice noises while the ruthless business goes on of tying up Latin American economy."

"How can this policy of military blocs and 'offensive readiness' be reconciled with the principles of the United Nations organization?" the article asked.

JUN 30 1946

Belgrade, June 29 (A. P.).—The twentieth day of the treason trial of Gen. Draja Mikhailovich was devoted today to reading documentary evidence, through which the prosecution hopes to prove that forces of the Chetnik leader collaborated with Italians, carried out attacks against Partisans and took the lives of Yugoslav citizens.

One letter, which the prosecution claims was written by a Chetnik commander to Mikhailovich in 1942, quoted the Chetnik officer as saying "there's only one way out for our people—the way of collaboration with the Italians."

Scores of such letters and telegrams were read by the court president and when asked the question, "Did you receive this message?" Mikhailovich repeatedly replied, "I don't know."

Egyptian Says Britain Uses Coercion on Treaty

Charges Move to Force Joint Defense Council on Cairo

CAIRO, June 29 (AP).—Makram Ebeid Pasha, leader of Egypt's minority Wafdist bloc party, charged today that Great Britain was trying to force Egypt to accept a Middle East "joint defense council" as a substitute for British bases on Egyptian soil.

Interviewed by his party's newspaper "Al Kotla," Makram declared the British had "asked, if not warned," the Egyptian negotiating delegation, of which he is a member, to accept "new proposals" for revision of the 1936 British-Egyptian treaty.

He said that resumption of negotiations, suspended several weeks ago, "depends on such acceptance."

The newspaper said Makram explained that the British proposal was for formation of a joint defense council which would organize defense of the Middle East, including Egypt, and protection of seaways including the Suez Canal.

"This proposal," Makram said, "is another maneuver to make Egypt a sphere of British influence or, as Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin said, a base for defense of the Middle East. The Egyptians prefer Britain to any other nation as an ally, but they all refuse any treaty which may include restrictions."

BRITISH RESTRAIN PALESTINE JEWS

JUN 30 1946

Many Under House Arrest During 18-Hour Military Siege

O. Carruthers

JERUSALEM, June 30—(Sunday) —(AP)—More than 75 per cent of Palestine's 500,000 Jews were placed under virtual house arrest yesterday as British troops clamped a tight military siege over the Holy Land "to end the state of anarchy."

Early today the British began lifting the 18-hour curfew imposed at dawn yesterday, removing the ban for all of Tel Aviv and most of Jerusalem.

NIGHT

Unconfirmed reports said that five persons were killed in various Jewish settlements during the day and that scores of persons were injured, including 20 in the Yagur settlement near Jerusalem where Jewish resistence was described as particularly fierce. The deaths of a British soldier and one Jew were reported officially.

The curfew was put in force just as soldiers and police struck swiftly at daybreak in an effort to end a series of disorders which have spread widely over Palestine in the past two weeks. While in force, it was estimated that the house arrest confined 200,000 Jews to their homes in Tel Aviv, 70,000 in Jerusalem, 30,000 in Haifa and many other thousands in rural areas.

The British dragnet took in at least 1,000 Jews who were detained and questioned. Although most of them later were released, scores were held for further action. Among those held were high officials of the Jewish Agency, including Moshe Shertok, head of the agency's political department, and Dr. Bernard Joseph, an agency executive committeeman.

Communications Cut Off

Despite the violent events of the day, quiet which fell over the Holy Land at dusk was broken in the large cities only by the occasional rumble of military trucks through the streets. Palestine communications were partly "blacked out" during the day and the nation was isolated at times from the rest of the world.

An official statement said that troops met "considerable resistance" at Yagur which "had to be overcome" by the use of tear gas. A cache of arms, including 20 rifles and 30,000 bullets, was found at Yagur, the statement said.

British officials accused the Jewish Agency, a recognized Jewish supervisory body, of complicity in recent disorders and killings.

Almost the entire Jewish population of Palestine was kept from attending synagogue services today, and a few who attended early services were picked up as curfew violators as they left the temples.

The troops struck in Jerusalem, seizing Jewish Agency headquarters buildings, in Tel Aviv, and in at least seven other settlements. Planes circled overhead in Jerusalem.

Glass Litters Streets

Soldiers blasted open safes and seized more than a thousand documents in Tel Aviv. Glass littered the streets, and walls of buildings were destroyed by explosives used to open strong boxes. The damaged buildings included two or three Jewish banks and the Jewish Agency's subheadquarters.

The soldiers searched also for three missing British officers believed held by a Jewish underground group in Tel Aviv.

Britain cracked down after Palestine, long the disputed land of the Jews and Arabs, had seethed in growing tension for many weeks while both factions awaited acceptance or rejection of the British-American committee's recommendations for admission of 100,000 Jews into Palestine.

Dr. Chaim Weizmann, world president of the Jewish Agency, was reported en route under armed guard from Rehoveth to Jerusalem for an interview with Sir Alan Cunningham, High Commissioner of Palestine. The agency is regarded by the British as representative of the Jews in Palestine.

An official statement issued eight hours after the launching of the drive at 4.15 A.M. said operations were proceeding "according to plan" and that little resistance was encountered thus far.

Sir John Shaw, Chief Secretary of the Palestine Government, said the drive was intended "to end the state of anarchy existing in Palestine and to enable law-abiding citizens to pursue their normal avocations without fear of being kidnapped, murdered or blown up."

Temporary Censorship

He announced that a "rudimentary form" of censorship would be imposed on all press dispatches for the first 24 hours "to insure that the essentials of honesty are complied with."

Sir John declared, "I hope it won't be necessary to interfere with correspondents' telegrams, but while the news is sketchy, we wish to guard against incomplete and inaccurate reports."

A high-ranking British officer participating in the action in Tel Aviv said:

"British soldiers are browned off at the tactics used by Jewish underground organizations, and we have decided to make a few moves of our own. We have been punched at time and time again until we have decided to hit back. Today, we've landed a left hook—a drive against the terrorist organization."

Action Follows Lull

Today's action followed a lull during the last few days after violence attributed to Jewish underground forces. Six Jews died in the dynamiting of a half dozen bridges. Six British officers were kidnapped and held hostage by Irgun Zvai Leumi secret Jewish military organization. Three are still missing and are believed held hostage in demand for commutation of death sentences on Jews convicted of participating in a raid on a British army camp last month.

Radio Warned of Plan

On June 16 the "Voice of Israel" secret radio declared it had discovered a "highly secret" British plan to destroy Hagana, illegal Jewish defense organization, and arrest Zionist leaders "if the position in Palestine takes a more serious turn." Today Shaw said that neither the government nor the army had any comment on the resemblance of today's undertaking to the one alleged in the broadcast.

The British cracked down after Palestine, long a disputed land of the Jews and Arabs, had witnessed growing tension for weeks while both sides awaited acceptance or rejection of the British-American committee's recommendations for admission of 100,000 Jews into Palestine.

Cunnnigham Statement

The complete text of the statement issued today by Sir Alan Gordon Cunningham, Palestine high commissioner:

"It has been repeatedly and consistently stated by His Majesty's government that the Palestine problem is not one to be settled by force and that there could be no question of allowing the issue to be forced by violent conflict.

"They have, moreover, given constant warning that use of force by either community would be resolutely dealt with. In spite of these warnings there has been, over a considerable period, a campaign of vilification, incitement or threats of violence, which has not been confined to only one community. Furthermore, on the part of some members of the Jewish community, there has been carried out a series of outrages against life and property which has resulted in loss of numerous lives, including many innocent persons, and in damage to property amounting to a sum of great magnitude.

"In the face of most intense provocation the measures taken for suppression of violence have, up to now, been of a localized nature, conducted with greatest tolerance and restraint, not through weakness but in the earnest hope that reason and conciliation would prevail and that the country would be saved from the weight of large-scale operations.

To Root Out Terrorism

"I have to inform the people of Palestine that especially while discussions are proceeding about the future of the country, His Majesty's government are determined that law and order is to be maintained in the territory and to repeat that they will not tolerate the use of force by either community. It is, therefore, my duty to give solemn warning that it is firmly resolved to root out terrorism and violence.

"Lawlessness, from whatever source it may arise, will, in the future, be dealt with with the utmost vigor and determination. The object is to restore those conditions of order without which no progress can be made toward the solution of the problem of Palestine.

"The operations at present in progress under the direction of the commander in chief, Middle East, are being undertaken as a first step with this end in view.

"They are not directed against the Jewish community as a whole, but solely against those few who are taking an active part in the present campaign and those who are responsible for instigating and directing it.

Are Not Reprisals

"They are not reprisals; they are not punitive, and are being undertaken against one section of the Jewish community merely because it is from that section that the present violence has emanated.

"They will cease at the earliest possible moment after their object has been achieved.

"It has been necessary, temporarily, to occupy the premises of the Jewish agency owing to evidence in our hands as to the part it has played in organization and direction of, and co-operation with the forces which have carried out acts of violence against the government. It is not the intention at this time to proscribe or close the agency.

"In undertaking the present wide-scale measures it is intended studiously to refrain, as far as possible, from interfering with the well being of law-abiding citizens of Palestine and its economic life.

"Therefore, I call upon all those who have the true interests of 1946

Palestine at heart to co-operate with the government in the maintenance of the administration and in assisting the return to the normal administrative life of the country and its preservation thereafter.

Door Open for Negotiations

"It is not the intention to leave either community or any part of the community without protection, but in so far as it may be prescribed expedient for such protection to be provided by communities themselves it must be brought under proper control of the government.

"If any should be contemplating armed resistance or further violence I would commend them most earnestly to consider the misery which they may bring to a country which is so dear to all of us, of the loss of innocent lives which may be entailed, of the destruction they may bring to much that has been built with such devotion and skill.

"Finally, I would repeat, operations which are at present proceeding are directed towards one end only—the suppression of violence. The door of negotiation and discussion is not shut.

"The situation which has arisen demands calm and order on all sides, not precipitated, rash or irresponsible action.

"I rely on the good sense of what I feel must be the majority of sufferers in this country, to cooperate in the task of restoring peaceful conditions at the earliest possible moment."

TROOPS AND POLICE IN ACTION

Headquarters of Jewish Agency Are Seized in Jerusalem and Tel Aviv.

Jerusalem, June 29 (AP)—Britain began large-scale military operations in Palestine on the Jewish Sabbath at dawn today in what one official called a drive to wipe out "a state of anarchy."

Troops and police occupied buildings in Jerusalem and Tel Aviv used by the Jewish Agency, long recognized by the British and the Palestine Government as the official representative of Jews in Palestine. The British clamped a curfew on wide areas of the troubled Holy Land.

Many, if not all, members of the Jewish Agency's Executive Committee were arrested. Sir Alan Cunningham, British High Commissioner, declared in a proclamation that he had evidence that the agency was co-operating in a recent reign of "violence against the Government."

DAY

Search For Arms

Raiding police and troops, protected overhead by low-flying planes, conducted widespread searches for arms in Jerusalem, Tel Aviv and at least seven other communities. Haifa was also reported under curfew.

The troops and police cut telephone lines isolating the areas to be searched. Intercity telephone communication was disrupted.

Unaware of a ban on outgoing cables, newspaper correspondents were unable to file their first accounts of the operations until 10 A.M., nearly six hours after they began. Later, the Government announced that a "rudimentary form" of press censorship had been placed on all outgoing press cables for 24 hours.

To End "State Of Anarchy"

Starting swiftly after secret preparation, the operations were described by Sir John Shaw, chief secretary of the Palestine Government, as an "effort to end the state of anarchy existing in Palestine and to enable law-abiding citizens to pursue their normal avocations without fear of kidnapping, murder or being blown up."

Sir Alan, in his proclamation, said the measures were being directed by the British Middle East commander "to root out terrorism and violence."

Sir John said troops and police encountered "practically no resistance."

"I heard of one shot being fired," he said.

[A Reuter dispatch said, however, that a British soldier and a Jew were killed.]

Motor Traffic Banned

The curfew order prohibited all motor traffic in Galilee, Haifa, Samaria, Lydda and Jerusalem except in the subdistricts of Nablus and Janin, sections which are principally Arab.

Moshe Shertok, head of the political department of the Jewish agency, was among those reported arrested at Tel Aviv. He was said to have been taken to Latrun detention camp, where political offenders are detained.

Other members of the executive committee of the Jewish agency reported included among the many persons seized were Dr. Bernhard Joseph, the agency's Canadian-born legal adviser; Rabbi Jehuda L. Fishman, acting agency chairman, and Isaac Greenbaum. Bar Ray Hai, Jewish labor leader in Palestine, was also arrested.

Rabbi Fishman was said to have been placed in a British Army car only after a scuffle.

Reason For Censorship

Sir John, announcing the temporary censorship, said: "We wish to guard against incomplete and inaccurate reports" and "to insure that the essentials of honesty are complied with."

"The main thing at the moment is to record the facts as we know them and also to avoid misrepresentation for sectional reasons which can take several forms—from tendentious statements to outright lies."

Sir John said he had no comment to make on the resemblance between today's undertaking to "Operation B" described in a broadcast by the clandestine radio "Voice of Israel" a few days ago. The broadcast said Jewish underground forces had come into possession of secret British plans to wipe out Haganah, an illegal Jewish resistance organization, and arrest Zionist leaders.

CHINESE REDS OFFER TERMS

Withdrawal From Harbin Said To Be Proposed

Nanking, June 29 (AP)—Gen. George C. Marshall handed to Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek tonight a new Communist peace proposal, including an offer to evacuate the northern Manchurian city of Harbin—toward which Chiang's armies were advancing June 7 when the Manchurian truce was signed.

The new proposal came after a day in which the special American envoy redoubled his efforts to achieve a settlement before expiration of the truce Sunday noon.

A Communist spokesman said Chou En-lai, chief Communist negotiator, made the new bid after the Generalissimo had rejected Marshall's suggestion that the rival factions sign an "agreement in principle" leaving some details for further negotiations.

In addition to their offer to withdraw Red forces from Harbin, the Communists were reported to have made concessions on the ratio of Government and Communist forces to be maintained in Manchuria. They also were said to have offered to evacuate some Red troops from North Kiangsu Province and to accept "certain changes of positions" held by them in Shantung, Hupeh, Anhwei and Jehol Provinces.

There were indications that the Government might announce a further extension of the truce if no agreement was signed before tomorrow noon.

MARSHALL SEES PEACE SNIPING

Believes Some of Chiang Group Want War.

Shanghai, June 29 (A. P.).—Gen. George C. Marshall is aware of the possibility that reactionary elements within the Kuomintang (Government party) may be trying to sabotage any new agreement with the Communists, reliable observers said today.

When the Army reorganization agreement was signed in Chungking on February 25, the presidential envoy tersely, but emphatically expressed hope it would not be torpedoed by "a small group of irreconcilables"—an obvious reference to Kuomintang reactionaries.

Non-party advocates of peace have been charging repeatedly that these elements favor all-out civil war as the only means of retaining power. It is generally believed, however, that these elements, while strong, are not powerful enough to have their own way unless there is an overthrow of Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek, and presently, there is no suggestion of any such plan.

However, the so-called pro-German clique within the Kuomintang is believed largely responsible for a lenient policy toward Germans. The policy aroused bitter controversy in foreign newspapers, but no particular interest in the Chinese press.

Despite clear American displeasure, Chinese authorities have removed from repatriation lists a number of once active Nazis and it is possible these persons are secretly trying to foster discord in China.

It is generally assumed that unless the American forces withdraw from China altogether there is no real possibility of any Nazis taking an active part in the direction of nationalist military operations.

India Regime Named to Serve Until Election

Caretaker Government of 8 Men Will Hold Office Until Assembly Is Chosen

NEW DELHI, India, June 29 (AP). An eight-man temporary Indian government to serve until election of a constituent assembly was named by the British authorities tonight.

The caretaker regime was decided upon after the All-India Congress (Nationalist party) turned down a plan offered by the British Cabinet mission for an interim government by Indian parties. The Congress objected to details in the plan of representation.

Appointed by King George VI, the members of the temporary council and the posts which they are expected to hold are: General Sir Claude John Eyre Auchinleck, British commander-in-chief in India, war portfolio; Sir George Spence, law and education; Sir Eric Coates, finance; Sir Robert Hutchings, food and agriculture; Sir Eric Conran Smith, water transport, railways, post and air; Sir Gurunath Bewoor, commerce and commonwealth; Sir Akbar Hydari, labor, works, mines and power, information, arts and health, and A. A. Waugh, home, industries, and supplies.

Waugh, Sir Claude, and Sir Akbar Hydari now are serving as temporary members of Viceroy Lord Wavell's executive council.

The three-man British Cabinet mission, which came here to work out plans for Indian independence, left New Delhi today for Karachi on the first leg of the trip to London to report to the British Cabinet and to Parliament. The constituent assembly which is to be elected soon is to draft a constitution for India.

TEMPORARY RULE SET UP FOR INDIA

JUN 3 0 1946

New Delhi, June 29 (A. P.).—The British announced tonight an eight-member executive council which will administer a temporary government for India pending the election of a Constituent Assembly. The appointment of the temporary government was made necessary by refusal of the All-India Congress party to approve a British Cabinet mission plan for an interim government by India's parties.

The members of the council, appointed by King George, are: Sir George Spence, Sir Eric Coates, Sir Robert Hutchings, Sir Eric Conran Smith, Sir Gurunath Bewoor, Sir Akbar Hydari, A. A. Waugh, and Sir Claude Auchinleck, British commander in chief in India.

It was understood that Auchinleck would take the war portfolio in the new caretaker government; Spence, law, and education; Coates, finance; Hutchings, food and agriculture; Smith, war transport, railways, posts, and air; Bewoor, commerce, and commonwealth; Hydari, labor, works, mines and power, information, arts and health; and Waugh, home, industries, and supplies.

New York And Bombay Air Service In Prospect

Bombay, June 29 (AP)—Negotiations are under way between the United States Government and the Government of India for opening air-passenger service between New York and Bombay. Preliminary arrangements are being speeded by Trans-World Airlines.

Operations later are to be extended to Calcutta and the Far East. The Bombay-New York trip will require 48 hours. TWA plans to use DC-4 ships which have a cruising speed of 220 miles an hour and carry 40 passengers.

Brisbane Printer Gets Exclusive Membership

Brisbane, June 29 (AP)—Douglas W. Tate, Brisbane typographer, is the first native Australian to be admitted to the Brisbane Typographers Guild, exclusive craft guild. Membership is open to compositors in every country, but in 18 years only 39 men have qualified.

For his entrance examination, Tate had to design and set out in exact mechanical detail an eight-page booklet. The secret of success in typography, Tate says, is that design must be in sympathy with the subject, and that "the type must talk."

900 Missing Flyers Are Presumed Lost

JUN 30 1946

Melbourne, June 29 (AP)—After eight months of investigations through islands north of Australia, RAAF search teams have abandoned hope of finding alive any of Australia's 900 flyers missing in the Southwest Pacific.

However, the search will be continued until the end of the year.

DDT Sprayed Around Tokyo

TOKYO, June 29 (AP)—The Fifth Air Force today began spraying the 300-square-mile Tokyo area with DDT to kill flies and mosquitoes, which carry numerous diseases in the highly populated area. The program will require 400,000 pounds of DDT and 1,000,000 gallons of oil.

Ex-Wac Climbs Fujiyama

TOKYO, June 29 (AP)—Zoe Beraud, 38-year-old former WAC from New York, has become the first woman of the occupation forces to climb Japan's Fujiyama. Miss Beraud, who measures but 4 feet, 11 inches and weighs 95 pounds, went up the 13,000-foot peak without difficulty. Her home is 612 West 115th Street, New York.

How To Obtain Nylons And Beef

JUN 30 1946

Nogales, Sonora, Mexico, June 29 (AP)—Mexico is a land of plenty—if you have plenty of money.

T-bone steaks, Nylons, liquor, butter and sugar are abundant.

In fact, there isn't a shortage of much of anything in this city of 25,000, just across the border from Arizona.

Beef is piled high in market showcases or on blocks. But it doesn't look too tempting with flies swarming in the warm afternoon sun.

Stores advertise Nylons by size, gauge and make. There are no lines. The price is about $2.95 a pair.

Markets are loaded with sugar. It isn't as highly refined as the American product, but just as sweet. An American visitor can take five pounds back across the border without worrying about a ration stamp.

Camera Film Offered

Camera film is advertised by most merchants, and almost every size is on hand, but the cost is about double that in the States.

Mexican urchins roam the streets selling popular brands of American cigarettes at a quarter a package.

An American can bring $100 worth of Mexican goods into the United States duty free.

There is a steady two-way procession across the border these days. American are stocking up on scarce items. Mexicans buy armloads of groceries in Nogales (Ariz.) stores.

Hoover Sees Famine Averted

Tells Canadians Only China Is Facing Possible Mass Starvation.

JUN 30 1946

Ottawa, June 29 (A. P.).—Herbert Hoover, in a final report on his famine mission to thirty-eight nations, declared last night that the gap between available cereal supplies and minimum needs had been closed and that, except for China, mass starvation in the world apparently has been averted.

Speaking at the invitation of the Canadian Government, the former United States President said: "It is at least reassuring that if we have continued co-operative action of the various nations, mass starvation will be prevented, with one exception, that exception is China, where transportation to the interior and inadequate organization has rendered relief only partially successful."

"In other famine areas there will be suffering," he said, "many of the old people and the weaker children will fall by the wayside. Nevertheless, the great majority of the endangered will be saved."

Recalling that in March the gap between available world cereal supplies and minimum needs was estimated at 11,000,000 tons, Hoover said that upon his return from Europe and Asia in May this gap was believed to have been reduced to 3,600,000 tons—a gap that was still further reduced while he was in South America.

Sees Tragic Gap Closed.

"From all these gains," he said, "I am happy to announce to you that it now seems assured that the tragic gap can now be closed."

Among the factors that made this possible, he said, were sharp retrenchment in import programs by the food-deficit countries, development of new sources of supply, substitutions, self-denial in surplus-producing countries, reduction of Latin American import requirements during the crisis months, expanded contributions by the Latin American countries, decreased supplies in the "pipeline" to Britain, better distribution in India and an early harvest in America.

Hoover said that upon Canada, the United States, the Argentine and Australia "has fallen 90 per cent of the overseas burden of relief to this greatest famine in all human history."

Hoover warned, however, that the precariousness of the situation is not over and that his report dealt primarily with the immediate crisis months until the 1946 harvest is in. He urged that the new International Emergency Food Council take steps to give special aid to 20,000,000 to 30,000,000 children in Europe and other millions in Asia—a program which he estimated would require $300,000,000 to $400,000,000.

Hoover Won't Predict On Need Of Rationing

New York, June 29 (AP)—Herbert Hoover, honorary chairman of President Truman's Emergency Famine Committee, today replied it was "too far in advance to tell" when asked if he thought rationing would be necessary in the United States to cary out the world food program.

"You mean for next year?" the former President asked when questioned. "Well, it's too far in advance to tell. It depends on what the harvest will yield. We'll know better in September."

Hoover returned today in the President's plane, the Sacred Cow, from Ottawa, where he spoke last night on the world food situation.

Bikini Atom Blast On Today; Epic Naval Test Is Set Up

JUN 30 1946

Blandy Decision Sends Men Scurrying From Target Ships—Thousands of Gauges in Place to Record Cosmic Burst

DAN GIBSON HERD

By The Associated Press.

ABOARD THE U. S. S. APPALACHIAN, Bikini Atoll, Sunday, June 30—Vice Admiral William H. P. Blandy today designated 8:30 A. M. tomorrow [5:30 P. M. Sunday, Eastern daylight time] as zero hour for the detonation of the world's fourth atomic bomb on a guinea-pig fleet of old warships in Bikini L[illegible]

The [illegible] made after weather experts had informed the commander of Joint Task Force 1 that the cloud cover would be about 20 to 30 per cent and visibility about twelve miles.

Admiral Blandy can change his plans up to 10 P. M. tonight Bikini time [7 A. M., Sunday, Eastern daylight time] without serious disruption in the complex machinery of ships, planes and men. If plans for the test are changed by that time it would be possible to make adjustments for another try on Wednesday, assuming that meteorological conditions were satisfactory that day.

Promptly on receipt of Admiral Blandy's order, skippers of more than 100 support ships began making their vessels ready for the sea, there to take their assigned stations for the test.

A few minutes after the announcement had come from the staff conference room of the U. S. S. Mount McKinley, the flagship's hoarse whistle roared out a series of long blasts.

Skies at the time were clearer than they had been in several days and all hands crossed their fingers in the hope the bomb would be dropped on time.

Weather men estimated that winds in the extreme upper levels would be from the northeast and that therefore radiological safety was assured.

The time for the test set by Admiral Blandy was one hour ahead of the schedule decided on days ago.

"The forecast looks very favorable," the admiral said. "I hope to be able to conduct the test tomorrow." He added, however, "But I also reserve the right to cancel the drop tomorrow morning in the event of unforeseen weather changes."

Rear Admiral W. S. Parsons said that dryness in the air above 5,000 feet "indicates we will have very good luck with clouds and that there will be little likelihood of rain—which is good from a radiological point of view."

The evacuation of Bikini Lagoon is under way. About 40,000 officers and men, scientists, correspondents and observers must be clear of the lagoon by 5 P. M., Bikini time, leaving only skeleton crews to make last-minute adjustments to the instruments, cameras and recording equipment aboard ships and on islands of Bikini Atoll.

The bulk of the non-target fleet is steaming out of the lagoon, which a few months ago was a little-known region inhabited by a few score natives who have since been evacuated to another island. Patrol ships are busy shepherding vessels into the open sea.

Every ship and every man must be out of the lagoon two hours before the bomb is detonated. Then all that will be left will be the ghost fleet, silent ships on which there will be no human being. The craft will stand around the bullseye, the U. S. S. Nevada, as guinea pigs of the first test of atomic power against ships.

Engineers presumably began preparing to load the atomic bomb aboard the B-29 Dave's Dream shortly after Admiral Blandy had made his decision on the weather.

As soon as possible after daybreak, the pilot of the Superfortress, Major Woodrow P. Swancutt of Wisconsin Rapids, Wis., will take off and the fleet of aircraft assigned to the show will begin maneuvering into position. The other planes will carry cameras, recording instruments, news men, observers and members of President Truman's evaluation commission and the Joint Chiefs of Staff Evaluation Board.

The human beings nearest the explosion will probably be those aboard the Mount McKinley, about eight miles from the point of blast.

A sky armada will weave an intricate pattern in the skies above the target fleet, with pilotless drones herded through the air by mother planes to record the turbulence and radioactivity of the cloud mass rising from the explosion.

Major Swancutt will climb to about 30,000 feet while other planes are moving into position. Then he will make the bomb run, with Major Harold H. Wood of Bordentown, N. J., the bombardier, taking over the job of dropping the missile about six miles through space toward the Nevada.

The destroyer O'Brien will be downwind thirty-five miles from the target, and the destroyer R. K. Huntington will be fifty miles southwest of the target, acting as reference or guide ships to Dave's Dream on the bombing run.

Once the bomb explodes the two destroyers will begin a race with death to escape the radioactive cloud, which will be driven by the wind in their direction. Once safely out of the path of the cloud, the destroyers will circle and keep track of the cloud's movements.

30,000 Prepare To Leave Test Danger Zone

JUN 30 1946

D. C. Tribune

Aboard U.S.S. Appalachian at Bikini, June 29 (AP)—All hands concerned with Operation Crossroads made ready today to evacuate Bikini Lagoon, leaving only a ghost fleet of 50 old warships as guinea pigs for the world's fourth atomic-bomb explosion.

DAY

Vice Admiral W. H. P. Blandy, commander of the atomic task force, is expected to announce tomorrow morning (6 P.M. today, Saturday, E.S.T.) whether the bomb will be dropped as scheduled about 9.30 A.M. Monday, Bikini time. That is 5.30 P.M. Sunday, E.S.T.

Blandy told foreign and scientific observers today that "we can have the test any day when the sky is not more than half covered with clouds." He expressed confidence that conditions would be favorable either on Monday or "within the succeeding three or four days."

50-50 Chance On Monday

He said there was a "50-50 chance" the atomic bomb would be dropped Monday as originally planned.

Everything is ready. If the decision is affirmative, more than 30,000 military personnel, scientists, correspondents and observers will start for areas of safety, leaving only skeleton crews in the lagoon and on the islands of the atoll to make last-minute adjustments on instruments, cameras and recording equipment.

The old ships which will remain overnight in the lagoon are Admiral Blandy's flagship, the Mount McKinley, and the Kenneth Whiting, an instrument ship which will be making a late check of its technical equipment. A few small boats will be left to evacuate personnel.

246 Men Leaving Last

At midnight there will be only 246 men left on the target ships making final adjustments which will record the heat and light of the blast and radioactivity created by the mighty explosion. And on the islands there will be 46 men setting recording equipment.

But every nontarget ship and every man must be out of the lagoon two hours before the bomb is to be detonated.

All that will be left in Bikini Lagoon will be the silent target ships, on which there will be no human being. They will be anchored around the bull's-eye, the old battleship Nevada—in a deserted array as guinea pigs of the first test of atomic power against ships.

Today's Dawn Clear

Admiral Blandy's decision will depend on the weather. Today dawned clear. If meterological reports show prospects favorable for Monday, Blandy will give the signal for which everyone is waiting. And the final, dramatic act of this first test will begin.

Much of the success of the operation depends on Major Harold H. Wood, of Bordenton, N.J., one of the Army's finest bombardiers. He will drop the bomb over the Nevada from a B-29 Superfortress —Dave's Dream—flying at about 30,000 feet. Wood is confident of a direct hit.

More than 70 planes will participate in photographic or instrument assignments, and army and navy "drone" planes, shepherded by mother craft, will be driven pilotless through the turbulent atomic cloud gathering particles for later scientific study.

Speculation Increases

Speculation as to what will happen to the guinea-pig fleet increased hourly with late arrivals viewing the target array.

Navy Secretary Forrestal, boarding the Mount McKinley after an aerial sweep over the lagoon, said he felt the test was "objective" and "not frivolous or designed to produce calculated results."

At Kwajalein, Maj. Gen. Curtis E. LeMay, whose B-29's from the Marianas planted war-ending atomic bombs on Hiroshima and Nagasaki, termed the Bikini drop a "technical test—not strategic or tactical."

He predicted the bomb "may sink two or three ships if it's a good drop." "The ideal result," he said, "would be to sink one ship and damage others to varying degrees so as to obtain the maximum information."

What Man In The Moon Would See At Bikini

JUN 30 1946

Aboard U.S.S. Appalachian at Bikini, June 29 (AP)—The Man in the Moon, looking through a telescope at the atomic-bomb burst, would think he saw an exploding star—the same thing that astronomers call a nova, or new star.

He would see three great shells of blazing air, hotter and brighter than the sun, expanding one after another at great speed from the point of burst. They would look like expanding bubbles.

Five spectrographic instruments, with which astronomers look at exploding stars, have been brought to Kwajalein and installed in two planes to get the same view of the atomic bomb that is taken of new stars.

Measured Like Red Stars

The purpose is to measure this man-made star in exactly the same way that real stars are measured. Only these spectroscopic instruments will be able to see the burst completely in the first minute, to measure the heat of millions of degrees, and the speeds of the fiery shells.

This astronomical method of viewing the bomb will give complete data on its terrific power for the first time. In New Mexico and Japan, there was no opportunity to do a complete job.

Stars explode in successive shells of incandescent gas that are projected at speeds up to 2,000 miles a second for millions of miles into space. The speeds of star shells are faster than those attributed to the atomic bomb, and their power is vastly greater. But this thing created by man is probably hotter for a few millionths of a second than the star debris.

How Spectroscope Works

The spectroscope is an instrument that changes light into a rainbow. The instrument photographs the rainbow, and the atomic-bomb rainbow looks precisely the same as the star rainbow. Both photograph as rows of parallel vertical lines. Each line is made by the light from one kind of atom, and no other kind.

In this way, every atom burst will record its light. Positions of the lines will show the colors of the light and the colors will give the temperatures.

Speeding atoms will show their motion by causing some lines to shift slightly. This shift will enable astronomers to measure the speed. Heat and speed, when known, will give the forces.

The first expanding atomic-bomb shell is a shock wave that levels and burns everything, at least on land, within a mile and sometimes farther.

Second Shell In Same Second

The second atomic shell follows within the same second as the first. It comes along with a partial air vacuum that forms the suction wave of the burst.

The third shell is a ball of fire that expands quickly to nearly two miles in diameter and shoots skyward like a speeding sun—but at first much brighter.

The first two shells are invisible to man's eyes because they are so bright and so brief. The third is the most spectacular part of the bomb burst. This third shell expands as it rises until it becomes a huge mushroom cloud about fifteen miles in diameter that floats up to 60,000 feet.

The Bikini astronomical spectroscopes will take pictures at the rate of 6,000 a second. They will catch what happens in the first few millionths of a second, the period when other types of instruments will be unable to give such accurate measurements.

"Damn it, why'd you have to ask that?" he snapped.

Warner agreed that the dud was a possibility, and said that the chances of that possibility had been figured, but he declined to give the percentage, which rises with each successful drop. Thus, should the possibility have been one in ten before the New Mexico test of the first bomb, it would be one in seven with three successful drops already made, and by the time of the third test, next year, would have increased to one in five.

To a query as to what would happen if the dropped bomb failed to explode, the scientist came back with "What would happen if any other bomb was a dud? Wouldn't it just break up?"

Bomb's Adaptability.

Pressed for a more definite answer, he conceded the probability was that there would be a low-order detonation, with comparatively slight damage. On the adaptability of the bomb, he said:

"The atomic bomb might be as adaptable as other bombs, but first we must know the requirements for the bomb. It might be better to have four bombs a quarter the size of the one which was dropped on Nagasaki for a specific job."

Asked regarding the possibility of building a really huge atomic bomb, Warner replied: "All bombs have their limitations."

Damage Not Forecast.

He declined to discuss the possible damage at the Bikini test on the basis that too many interests—Army, Navy, science—are "testing too many things. Too many people are involved. We're likely to get fouled up from the complications."

Dr. Warner introduced to his press conference two Manhattan District experts who will be aboard the bomber making the Bikini drop. The two, Leon D. Smith of Wisconsin Dells, Wis., and Ensign David L. Anderson of Portland, Ore., both were at Tinian for the Hiroshima and Nagasaki drops, but neither has armed a bomb before, Warner said.

He said that just ten minutes before his press conference, he had given up his own airplane seat for the Bikini drop, "under pressure."

He declined to disclose the source of the pressure, or who replaced him, but added that "very few of the Manhattan District personnel will see the drop," though they are charged with producing and assembling the bomb, and with making it work.

C. P. Courtney

Kwajalein, June 29 (A. P.).—Dr. Roger S. Warner Jr. chief of the Los Alamos scientists, said today that with each successful drop of an atomic bomb the chances are greater that the next might be a dud

The scientist, who has been working under great strain preparing the atomic bomb which is the key to the entire Bikini test, jumped to his feet and turned on a press confererce questioner who asked if the Bikini bomb might be a dud.

Short Answer.

Bikini Experts Name The Atom Bomb Gilda

JUN 30 1946

KWAJALEIN, June 29 (AP)—Scientists and engineers named the Bikini atomic bomb Gilda today.

Three painters, working from a photograph, reproduced on the missile a likeness of Rita Hayworth, actress, wearing a low-necked black evening gown.

The bomb was placed in a restricted area on Kwajalein. It will not be armed — made ready for firing, that is—until it is air-borne on A-Day.

CONGRESSMEN VISIT SHIPS

Rooney of New York Among Group in Bikini Target Area

KAWJALEIN, June 29 (AP)—An Associated Press correspondent radioed from the U. S. S. Panimint that ten Congressmen visited three of the Bikini target ships today.

In the party were Senators Bourke B. Hickenlooper of Iowa and Guy Cordon of Oregon, and Representatives Albert J. Engel of Michigan, Edward V. Izac of California, Dean M. Gillespie of Colorado, John J. Rooney of New York, W. F. Norrell of Arkansas, Jack Z. Anderson of California, George J. Bates of Massachusetts and Michael J. Bradley of Pennsylvania.

Cost So Far: 70 Million

JUN 30 1946

Bikini, June 29 (AP)—Operation Crossroads to date has cost about $70,000,000, Vice Admiral W. H. P. Blandy estimated today. This is exclusive of the atomic bomb. Blandy said he did not know the bomb's cost.

O.P.A. Lapses Tonight; Truman Vetoes Bill; House Sustains Him; President Appeals for Voluntary Control by All Until Congress Acts

JUN 30 1946

PRESIDENT URGES BUSINESS TO HOLD PRESENT PRICES

JUN 30 1946

Makes Appeal to Nation as All Controls Expire Tonight.

HOUSE READY TO ACT

Committee Clears Extension Proposal for Debate Monday.

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON, June 29—President Truman appealed to the people tonight to help him in a deadlock between White House and Congress which will bring price and rent controls to a full stop at midnight Sunday.

NIGHT

He asserted in a nationwide broadcast that the fight "is not over" for something stronger than the Congress version of OPA extension which he vetoed earlier in the day with the declaration that it would lead to "disaster."

The impasse came when the House upheld the veto but failed, along with the Senate, to pass the temporary extension which would have kept the price agency alive past the month-end expiration of the present law.

Makes Three-Way Appeal

Tonight the President broadcast this three-way appeal:

To the voters—To make known to the lawmakers their determination "to retain price controls and so prevent inflation."

To Congress—To speed a temporary extension of the powers of OPA and then "pass a workable bill."

To business—To "exercise self restraint" against skyrocketing of prices until Congress comes through.

The President in the course of his all-network broadcast disclosed that he has called in the Department of Justice to investigate "some of the factors involved in our present shortages, to determine whether anyone is criminally responsible for them x x x."

Raps Taft Amendment

As he had done in the earlier veto message to Congress, the chief executive asserted that the Taft amendment providing higher prices for producers would be a "bonanza" for business, and would further increase the tendency to withhold goods for higher prices.

The President made his appeal while Administration leaders in Congress mulled over strategy for an effort Monday to reinstate the controls. There was evidence that the effort will come early, but equally strong evidence that the resistance will be stiff.

Senator Taft (R-Ohio) said he expected objections that would hold off floor consideration at least until July 4. Senator Barkley (D-Ky.), the majority leader in that branch, spoke of a possibility that final action might be delayed two or three weeks by the Senate practice of unlimited debate. And Taft said it would be difficult to breathe new life into OPA at all if the lapse ran as much as a week.

After listening to the President's speech, Senator Taft commented:

"The President was told just what was going to happen if he vetoed the bill. I don't know what he expects."

He said he would make a "complete reply" to the President in a Monday night broadcast.

Speedy Action Unlikely

Meanwhile, he predicted, there is little chance that Congress will take action Monday.

"Senator O'Daniel (D-Tex.) can delay even a referral of a bill to committee until Wednesday," he said.

After his plea to the voters to make their desires known to Congress, Mr. Truman said he felt sure the country could depend during the lapse on the patriotism and good sense of its citizens. He added:

"Therefore, I call upon every business man, every producer and every landlord to adhere to existing regulations even though for a short period they may not have the effect of law. It would be contrary to their own interests to embark upon a reckless period of inflation. It is to their own interest to exercise self restraint until some action can be obtained from the Congress.

"I also request every employe of the OPA to stay at his battle station. The fight is not over."

Whether price controls which come off at least for the time being at midnight tomorrow can be restored is an open question. Congress, however, appeared bent on reaching some decision early Monday.

Veto Sustained By House

A temporary end of restrictions was assured today when Mr. Truman sent to the House a sharply-worded veto of an OPA extension bill he said would lead "to disaster," the House followed up by sustaining the veto and the Senate and House both quit until Monday without acting on a temporary extension.

Mr. Truman said in his address to the people that he had wanted to sign a price control bill but came to the conclusion that the compromise measure Congress sent him was "no price control bill at all."

He repeated to Congress the request he previously had made directly that it "immediately pass a resolution continuing present price and rent controls until the Congress can pass a workable bill."

Vote is 173 to 142

The President's veto of Congress' version of price control extension was upheld by the House on a vote of 142 to sustain him and 173 to override, 38 short of the necessary two-thirds to pass it over his head.

The Senate quit in the midst of frantic efforts by the leadership in both houses to get action on a temporary measure.

Senator Wherry (R-Neb), backed by Senator O'Daniel (D-Tex) and others, had just turned down a plea for unanimous agreement even to permit introduction of the extension bill today.

Wherry said he could not consent because even that much of a concession "might hold out hope to the President" for eventual passage.

He stuck to that position in the face of an acknowledgement by Senator Barkley (D-Ky), the majority leader, that "it is not humanly possible that this bill could be enacted between now and Sunday midnight, and OPA will lapse anyway."

Chairman Wagner (D-NY) of the Banking committee planned to introduce the extender Monday, but Senator Taft (R-Ohio) said he was sure objections could hold off action at least until July 4.

Blocks House Action

On the House side, an extension resolution got into the hopper, offered by Chairman Spence (D-Ky) of the Banking committee, but an objection from Rep. Wolcott (R-Mich) blocked immediate action and sent it to committee.

The rules committee cleared the Spence proposal for House action shortly after the Senate quit, but no independent House action could keep OPA going. Furthermore, a two-thirds vote would be necessary to suspend the rules and pass the measure before it had lain over a day.

The resolution went to the floor subject to amendment, and nobody would predict what it might look like afterward.

The Rules committee okayed the extender for action after Spence and Democratic Leader McCormack told the members the nation confronts a "dangerous emergency."

During the Rules committee hearing Rep. Halleck (R-Ind) declared the President's veto message was "a paraphrase of what Chester Bowles has been saying, just like his veto of the Case (labor) bill was a paraphrase of what Hillman has been saying."

Halleck said if Congress "is going to accept the dictation of the President on what we shall do, we might as well fold up."

Barkley told reporters shortly after the Senate adjourned that he thinks there is "very little chance" that the Senate will approve any simple continuing resolution.

"There is no way of telling what the bill will look like when it comes out of committee," he said.

The Democratic leader remarked that it might take two or three weeks to obtain final Senate action because debate is unlimited.

Mr. Truman in his veto message blasted at the bill as "impossible" and "a sure formula for inflation." With that denunciation he coupled an urgent request for a stop-gap extension of existing price and rent controls until Congress could draft something "workable."

Lauds Courageous Action

The hard-punching veto message went only to the House because the patched-up legislation started there. Chester Bowles, bowing out as economic stabilizer, told a news conference the veto "took as much courage as any action since I have been in Washington."

It was against the advice of Barkley and other congressional leaders that Mr. Truman slammed the bill back to Congress less than 24 hours after he got it.

He minced no words. He said the measure would continue the government's responsibility to stabilize the economy and at the same time destroy the government's power to do so.

Veto's Foes Muster 173 Votes Against 142 for Proponents.

JUN 30 1946

NEEDED MAJORITY LACKING

House Immediately Sets in Motion Plans for Interim Law—Barkley Skeptical.

Washington, June 29 (A. P.).—The House upheld President Truman's veto of the amendment-laden OPA extension bill today, thus killing the bill.

The House vote was 173 to override the President and 142 to sustain him. A two-thirds majority is necessary to override. The vote of both branches is necessary to override, but one branch can sustain a veto.

It is now possible that there will be no price and rent controls after tomorrow midnight.

House plans were set in motion to try for a temporary bill extending the OPA as it is. But in the Senate, Democratic Leader Barkley cast doubt that such a temporary arrangement can be worked out.

Chairman Spence (D.-Ky.) of the House Banking Committee promptly offered a resolution for a three weeks continuation of OPA, during which a new bill could be considered.

Wolcott Blocks New Action.

Immediate consideration of the resolution however, was blocked by an objection by Representative Wolcott (R.-Mich.).

After Mr. Truman's strongly worded rejection of the OPA extender which both houses had passed originally by large majorities, these developments followed swiftly:

1. Spence pleaded with the House to uphold the President. He told of plans to offer a simple resolution continuing the OPA on a temporary basis.

2. Barkley said that there was "no chance" of committee action in the Senate on such a resolution today and that the Senate would not meet tomorrow.

Barkley's statement was important in its timing. The present price control law expires at midnight tomorrow.

The reading of the veto message was interrupted in the House when Republican Leader Martin of Massachusetts insisted on the presence of a quorum. A roll-call was ordered to obtain the quorum after the clerk had read only a small portion of the message. The quorum call produced 307 members to hear the message, and the clerk started reading it all over again at 12:05 P. M.

Administration leaders meanwhile went into a huddle to draft the continuing OPA resolution asked for by Mr. Truman in the event his veto was sustained.

Representative Monroney (D.-Okla.) told a reporter that the resolution probably would seek continuation of the agency for two or three weeks.

Asked if he thought a bill such as the President requested could be drafted in that time, Monroney said: "Well, at least it will give us another chance at bat."

The President's rejection of the bill was in direct cotravention of the stand taken by his congressional leaders, including Senate Majority Leader Barkley (Ky.), Senate President McKellar (Tenn.), Speaker Rayburn (Tex.) and House Majority Leader McCormick (Mass.). All four yesterday urged him to sign the bill, asserting that if that measure did not become law, Congress would not pass another bill.

When Barkley strode into the Senate chamber today, he was immediately surrounded by a group of Senators. He talked with them, gesturing angrily at times.

Senator McKellar told a reporter this morning he doubts that any successful move can be made to salvage even a part of the OPA controls. McKellar said a resolution might be offered to extend rent controls, but he predicted any such resolution would attract amendments similar to those in the bill Mr. Truman vetoed.

Of his action, Mr. Truman said:

"It is a choice between inflation with a statute and inflation without one. The bill continues the Government's responsibility to stabilize the economy and at the same time it destroys the Government's power to do so....

"It would provide us with no real safeguards at all. It would start prices and costs climbing and keep them climbing. It would start the value of the dollar falling and keep it falling. Far from helping production it would retard it. In the end this bill would lead to disaster."

Hanging on the swiftly moving developments was the answer to the question whether there would be a continuation of price and wage controls after midnight Sunday.

The second war powers act, by which the Government has authority to ration commodities, was amended in the Senate June 21 to provide that nothing in it could be construed as authority for fixing price ceilings.

Asks for Stop-gap Action.

Mr. Truman asked Congress to take stop-gap action to keep controls alive, by resolution, at once. Then, he said, the House and Senate should consider an extension of price control authority which would provide "adequate assurance of completing a successful transition to a sound peacetime economy."

Should the House or Senate uphold today's veto, the OPA could survive after tomorrow night only through special emergency legislation.

Economic Stabilization Director Chester Bowles, who dramatically resigned last night after the Senate passed the compromise extension bill which Bowles said was full of inflationary "booby traps," hailed the presidential veto of the bill, asserting:

"Every citizen in this country ought to deeply appreciate the courage of President Truman vetoing this impossible price control bill."

Bowles made his statement to the Associated Press just after he had been informed by his office of the President's veto.

As to Wage Controls.

"The issue now," Bowles told a reporter, "is: Are we going to have effective price control?

"I am confident Congress will meet this issue squarely to protect the people against rising rents and prices."

At the Office of War Mobilization and Reconversion, officials who preferred not to be named said that an expiration of price controls would also mean an expiration of wage controls.

They gave this explanation:

1. The only wage controls now effective are those established by presidential order under wage-price policy which say: any employer can raise wages all he wants but he can't get compensating price relief unless the wage increase is approved by the National Wage Stabilization Board.

2. The Wage Stabilization Board has set up standards for approving wage increases, holding them generally to the 18½-cent-an-hour level since the war ended. If employers have given pay boosts beyond that pattern because they couldn't get WSB approval, and price increases, for anything much beyond that figure.

3. Without any check on prices employers could raise wages, and labor organizations could demand raises, without regard to any Government pattern. There would be no necessity to have WSB pass on pay increases because prices would be set by business, alone, at whatever figures business men calculated market conditions called for.

Sets Up Some Conditions.

Mr. Truman said he would not object even to standards of decontrol—taking off price ceilings—of particular commodities as provided in the extension bill or establishment of a three-man independent decontrol board. But he put this on the condition that the standards were modified to make sure that in the next "crucial" six months, "ceilings do not have to be lifted where it is plain serious price rises would result."

The President made still another point. This was that "adjustment of product prices to make possible the maximum total production is, of course, one of the fundamental requisites of good price administration during this final transition period." So he said, he would have no objection to a specific provision requiring adjustment of price ceilings wherever this is necessary and where total production of needed goods would be increased.

Mr. Truman told the House in his veto that a great majority of the people want "an effective price control law" and are entitled to have it.

"Under such a law," he declared, "we can win the war against inflation just as decisively as we won the war against the Axis."

the Axis.

"I cannot bring myself to believe, however, that the representatives of the American people will permit the great calamity which will befall this country if price and rent control end at midnight Sunday."

The Fight on Inflation.

The fight against inflation is never easy, he said, and cannot be won "by soft measures."

For five years it has been proved that inflation can be prevented, Mr. Truman said. He said it still could be "if we have the will to prevent it."

"The fact that inflation has already gutted the economy of country after country all over the world," he asserted, "should shake our comfortable assurance that such a catastrophe cannot happen here."

The President conceded that there is a weariness and impatience with Government restrictions and controls. There is a natural temptation, he said, to remove essential safeguards prematurely.

"This bill yields to that temptation," he continued. "It would provide us with no real safeguards at all. It would start prices and costs climbing and keep them climbing. It would start the value of the dollar falling and keep it falling. Far from helping production it would retard it. In the end this bill would lead to disaster."

Criticizes Taft Amendment.

Mr. Truman also said that industries in real need of relief "will tend to be lost in the shuffle" as industry after industry "accepts the invitation of the Taft amendment in an attempt to make good profits better."

"The Taft amendment," he added, "in the name of stimulating production, promises peak profits on every product even where production is already going at full blast and profits are eminently satisfactory."

JUN 3 0 1946

"The Taft amendment would wholly destroy the program of wage stabilization which has been so painstakingly, and at times painfully, developed during the months since V-J day."

He said OPA had advised him that under the Taft amendment it would be required to recognize all wage boosts as a basis for price increases, regardless of amount or lack of approval by the Wage Stabilization Board.

"This is the beginning," he said, "of an inevitable spiral of uncontrolled inflation—a race between rising wages and rising prices. Far-sighted leaders of both labor and management know that nothing can be gained—and everything lost—by simply letting prices and wages chase each other."

Your savings, your insurance, your war bonds—all would decrease in value.

For five years we have proved to this country and to the world that inflation can be prevented. Those of you who remember the first world war will recall the wild inflation and the collapse that followed. You will remember how farmers were ruined, how business men went bankrupt, how wage earners suffered. This time we have succeeded in preventing such a calamity. We have done this largely through price control.

Truman's Appeal on Radio

WASHINGTON, June 29 (AP)—The text of President Truman's radio talk tonight on the Office of Price Adminsitration follows:

My fellow countrymen:

The crucial situation which confronts our country requires that I report to the people this evening.

Today I returned to the Congress without my approval the extension of the price control law which it presented to me for my signature.

I returned it with a long message stating my reasons. I hope that you will all read that message in your newspapers.

I assure you, my fellow countrymen, that before I vetoed this bill I gave the subject long days and nights of consideration. I consulted with practically every top official in the government. Either personally or through representatives I obtained the views of people in agriculture, industry and labor, as well as many others.

You have all heard a great deal about inflation. Its seriousness cannot be over estimated. It would affect every individual in the country. Inflation would cause an increase in the price of every article you buy. As prices soared with inflation, your money would buy fewer and fewer of the necessities of life.

It was not done by a miracle. It was done because the American people had the wisdom and the courage and the restraint to know that they had to submit to restrictions and controls or be overcome by the force of inflation. This is as important now and in the months to come as it was during the war. Time and again I have stated and restated this proposition.

I wanted to sign a price control bill. I gave this bill long and careful study. I came to the conclusion that the bill which the Congress sent me was no price control bill at all. It gave you no protection against higher and higher prices.

Having reached that conclusion, I was faced with these alternatives.

Explains Reasons for Veto

I could sign the bill on the plea which had been made to me that for the immediate present at least, it might be a little better than nothing. Or I could disapprove the bill, and call upon the Congress to give the American people a real, workable, price control law.

If I had taken the first course and signed the bill, I would have encouraged the false impression that you were going to be protected for the next year against excessive price increases. But, sooner or later, all of you would have awakened to a bitter realization of the truth. You would have soon begun to see thousands and thousands of price increases, adding billions and billions of dollars to our cost of living. It is hard to see how people could continue to pay higher and higher prices without requiring higher wages or salaries. The tremendous advances that we have made toward the settlement of labor-management disputes over wages would have been wiped out. The mad chase to inflation would soon have been under way.

I could not permit that to happen.

I took the second alternative, knowing full well all the dangers which would come with it. I knew that there was danger that the Congress might not pass a resolution which would give us some kind of protection after midnight tomorrow when the present price control law ends. I knew, therefore, that it was very possible that for a few days at least, we might be without any price-control law.

I could not bring myself to believe, however, that the representatives of the American people—your Senators and Representatives in the Congress would permit such a condition to continue long. And I was sure that when this issue was presented to the American people and to the Congress there could be only one answer. That answer is that the Congress should immediately pass a resolution continuing present price and rent controls until the Congress can pass a workable bill.

It would have been much easier for me to sign this bill. But the American people would have soon realized that real price control was at an end in spite of the law. If I had signed the bill the people would have seen their prices going up, day by day. You would have realized soon that the bill which had been passed and called a price-control law was not price control at all.

What I have done is to call a spade a spade. I must now rely upon the American people and upon a patriotic and co-operative Congress to protect us all from the great pressures now upon us, leading us to disastrous inflation unless we have the means to resist them.

I know how weary you all are of these restrictions and controls. I am also weary of them. I spend a good deal of my time listening to complaints. I know how eager every one of you is for the day when you can run of all price control this impossible bill was sent to me.

In my veto message to the Congress which I sent this morning I discussed the various provisions of the bill.

I do not have time this evening to comment on all the provisions of the bill. There are many objections to it, but my most fundamental objection is to the price raising amendment for manufacturers which was introduced by Senator Taft.

Under this amendment there would be thousands of needless price increases amounting to many billions of dollars. The Taft amendment provides that the manufacturer shall receive for each article the profit which he made on that article in 1941 and that he may add to the 1941 selling price all increases in cost which have occurred since that time. In 1941 the manufacturer received a much greater profit out of each dollar of sales than at any time in the five preceding years or in any of the five following war-time years. In fact, profit margins in 1941 were 50 per cent greater than in the banner year 1929.

Volume of sales is much greater today than in 1941, so that manufacturers would have received a bonanza. In addition, Senator Taft's fellow Republicans, Senator Wherry and Representative Crawford, put amendments into the bill which made sure that not only would the manufacturers' price increases be borne by the public but that such increases would be pyramided by generous wholesalers' and retailers' mark-ups.

As you sit in your homes this evening your interest in this bill and my interest in this bill are exactly the same. The question is: What effect would this bill have had on you—the people of our country?

Assails Taft Proposal

I believe in the profit system and desire that profits should be ample to provide the incentive for full production. The Taft amendment, however, provides for higher prices and higher profits even where production is already going at full blast and profits are wholly satisfactory.

We have been through five difficult years. We are looking forward to buying the things we need. Let us examine this problem together.

Do you need a new low-priced automobile? If so, what effect would the Taft amendment have had on the price of your new car? It would have increased immediately the prices of the popular makes of automobiles by two hundred and twenty-five to two hundred fifty dollars per car.

Are you a veteran planning to build a home for yourself and family? The Taft amendment would have added immediately a minimum of 20 per cent to the cost of your building materials. The program recently approved by the Congress to provide veterans' housing at reasonable cost would have been completely disrupted by this Taft amendment.

Are you a housewife who has been waiting for years for that new washing machine or refrigerator? The Taft amendment would have made it cost one-third more right away.

Are you faced with the responsibility of clothing your family? Under the Taft and other amendments the already high cothing prices would have been increased 15 per cent right away. For clothing alone the American people would have paid at least $3,000,000,000 more a year.

Are you in a business in which you need to buy steel? The price of steel would have gone up under the Taft amendment between four and eight dollars per ton right away.

Are you a farmer? Under this bill the price of farm machinery would have gone up thirteen per cent right away.

Those are only a few examples of the first round of increases the Taft amendment would bring. But that is only the beginning. Price increases in one industry are cost increases in another. By the time, for example, that the automobile industry had got its Taft increase based on present costs, it would be hit by the Taft increases in steel, tires, safety glass and other materials. So automobiles would go up still more.

In this way increase would follow increase. The bill had no stopping place in it.

In addition, these increases would have been passed right down the line. You, the consumer, would pay it all.

All of us agree that what this country needs is production. Production brings jobs, good wages, moderate prices. Perhaps the most vicious effect of the Taft amendment would be to slow up production.

Fears Effect on Prices

The only possible justification urged for all of these Taft price increases is the claim that they are necessary to encourage production. Even if they did encourage production, they would still be a terrific price to pay for that increased production—a price measured in suffering and distress among people of moderate and low incomes.

The fact is, however, that production would not be stimulated by the Taft amendment, but would be greatly impeded. Nobody wants to sell his goods this week if he can get a better price for them next week. This is no mere theory. You have seen if working day aftetr day for the last month or so, as people began to believe that price control might soon come to an end.

People who had cattle and hogs to sell for slaughter for food have decided to hold them for higher prices. People who had clothing for sale have decided to do the saem thing. So have people with innumerable other commodities which we all need so badly now.

Incidentally, I have asked the Attorney General to make an investigation of some of the factors involved in our present shortages to determine whether any one is criminally responsible for them and to place the responsibility where it tbelongs.

These instances of withholding goods from the consumer would be multiplied thousands of times under the Taft amendment; production and deliveries would be slowed down waiting for price increases. This would create bottlenecks of essential materials and essential parts which would bling production lines to a halt. By the time they started up again there would be new applications for price increases and additional waiting for greater profits. Labor would be penalized by loss of employment. Consumers would be penalized by lack of goods and ever rising prices. Farmers would be penalized by higher prices for what they buy and reduced markets for the things they sell.

It is a cruel jest to say that the Taft amendment would aid production. As I also pointed out this morning in my veto message, the Taft amendment would wholly destroy our program of wage stabilization which has been built up since V-J Day. It would destroy the usefulness of the wage stabilization board.

The result would be the beginning of an inevitable spiral of uncontrolled inflation—a race between rising wages and rising prices. Far-sighted leaders of both labor and management know that nothing can be gained—and everything lost—by simply letting prices and wages chase each other.

Despite the total impossibility of stabilizing other prices under this bill, I would have hesitated to disapprove it if I had thought it gave some real protection against soaring food prices and rents. We have learned, however, that higher prices for the things that farmers and landlords buy would inevitably force up food prices and rents. In both instances, serious increases would be forced upon us by the hard facts of business and economics.

I realize that the great majority of our people do not have the facts and figures that must be considered in order to know what a bill like this would do. That is why I am speaking to you this evening. You are entitled to have the facts before you.

Tribute to Congress Aids

I want to make clear that my decision to veto this bill does not mean any lack of appreciation of the sincere and tireless efforts of the leaders and many other members of the Senate and the House of Representatives to pass a workable price control bill. I know that many members of both houses who voted for the bill which was sent to me did so with regret and only because they had, at that time, no opportunity to vote for a good bill. Now every member has a clear-cut opportunity to show whether or not he wants effective price controls.

I have submitted to the Congress in my veto message a plan for price-control legislation for the comparatively short period of time that it is still needed. The will of the people is still the supreme law of our land. Your determination to retain price controls and so prevent inflation must be made known to the Congress. The Congress, the only branch of our government which has the power to pass a law providing for proper price control.

Now because of Congressional delay we are faced with a brief period in which legal restraints on price increases will be lacking. I have urged the Congress to act immediately and to adopt the kind of bill which can be made to work.

But, in the event of delay, I know that the United States can depend upon the patriotism and good sense of its citizens. Therefore, I call upon every businessman, every producer and every landlord to adhere to existing regulations, even though for a short period they may not have the effect of law. It would be contrary to their own interest to embark upon a reckless period of inflation. It is to their own interest to exercise self-restraint until some action can be obtained from the Congress.

I also request every employee of the O. P. A. to stay at his battle station. The fight is not over. I am counting on all employees of the O. P. A. to continue to serve in the future as they have in the past and to finish the job. I urge these loyal civil servants and the thousands of volunteers who are giving their time to make price control a success, to see this fight through.

And, finally, my fellow citizens, I say to you that we as a nation have it within our hands to make this post-war period an era of the greatest opportunity and prosperity in our nation's history. But if short-sightedness and impatience, if partisanship and greed, are allowed to triumph over the efforts to maintain economic stability, this grand opportunity will have been sacrificed.

That must not happen.

With your help and understanding it will not happen.

The Text of President Truman's Message Vetoing the OPA Bill as an 'Impossible' Measure

JUN 30 1946

By The Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, June 29 — The text of President Truman's message today vetoing the OPA bill follows:

To the House of Representatives:

I am returning without my approval H. R. 6,042 amending the price control laws and extending them for another year.

The choice which H. R. 6,042 presents is not a choice between continued price stability and inflation. It is a choice between inflation with a statute and inflation without one. The bill continues the Government's responsibility to stabilize the economy and at the same time it destroys the Government's power to do so.

If this bill were allowed to become law, the American people would believe that they were protected by a workable price control law. But they would not be protected and they would soon come to a bitter realization of that truth. It is only fair to tell them the facts now.

The lesson from our own experience after the last war, disastrous as it was to our farmers, our workers, our manufacturers, our distributors, and our consumers, has been too easily obscured by the annoyances and irritations and the occasional inequities of price control. The fact that inflation has already gutted the economy of country after country all over the world should shake our comfortable assurance that such a catastrophe cannot happen here.

For five years we have proved that inflation can be prevented. It still can be prevented if we have the will to prevent it. Today the opportunity of completing the transition from war to peace with an economy which is stable, sound and secure is within our grasp.

Appeal for Self-Restraint

To avoid sacrificing this opportunity requires courage, wisdom and self-restraint. This winter and spring the tensions have been more acute than ever before. We are all weary and impatient of Government restrictions and controls. We are all eager for the day when we can pursue our own affairs in our own way. In such a mood there is the natural temptation to remove essential safeguards, prematurely.

This bill yields to that temptation. It would provide us with no real safeguards at all. It would start prices and costs climbing. It would start the value of the dollar falling and keep it falling. Far from helping production it would retard it. In the end this bill would lead to disaster.

I shall not attempt to comment on all the bill's provisions. Some of them are entirely appropriate. Many others reflect minor concessions to special interest groups of the sort which the Congress has heretofore resisted. To these latter provisions I object on grounds of principle. But in the last days before the expiration of legislation so vital to the nation's welfare I should not regard these concessions as a basis for withholding my approval from an extension bill.

My fundamental objection to the bill is to the numerous amendments which would raise the price of essential cost-of-living commodities. Of those by far the most damaging is the price-raising amendment for manufacturers introduced by Senator Taft (Section 11), operating in conjunction with the revised price-raising amendment for distributors introduced by Senator Wherry (Section 10, Par. (T)), and with the special cost-plus amendments for automobile and appliance dealers first offered to the House Committee on Banking and Currency by Representative Crawford (Section 10, Par (Q) and (R).

Taft Amendment Stressed

The mainspring of this combination is Senator Taft's amendment. It is that amendment which would compel thousands of needless price increases amounting to many billions of dollars. The Wherry and Crawford amendments simply make sure that before the Taft-amendment price increases for the manufacturers reach the consumer, they will be pyramided by generous wholesalers' and retailers' mark-ups.

The provisions of the Taft amendment are complex, but they wear a superficial reasonableness. I am sure, however, that Congress adopted his amendment without full appreciation of its consequences.

I wish it were possible to tell you exactly how many billions of dollars the American would would eventually have to pay for the Taft amendment and its companion pieces. To attempt to do so, however, would be like trying to estimate the cost of a fire about to sweep a city before the first building had started to burn. Even to estimate the total amount of all the first round of price increases is not now possible.

Here, however, are a few examples which would enter into such a total.

The first impact of the Taft and Wherry amendments in the crucial field of housing would be little short of devastating. The prices of nearly all building materials would be affected. The average increase of such materials, excluding lumber, would be approximately 20 per cent. This would completely disrupt the program recently approved by the Congress to provide veterans' housing at reasonable cost.

Sees Steel Ceilings Rising

Ceilings for steel would have to be raised an average of $4 to $8 a ton. These increases would in turn be reflected in the ceilings of everything made of steel.

The average price of low-priced automobiles would be increased $225 to $250, on top of the substantial increases already granted.

Household appliances such as washing machines and refrigerators would increase from 25 to 30 per cent. Floor coverings would go up about 17 per cent; plumbing supplies, about 16 per cent; farm machinery, about 13 per cent.

The prices of clothing—already too high—would be increased by an estimated average of 15 per cent—more than half of which would be attributable to the Taft and Wherry amendments and the balance to other amendments. This by itself would add about $3,000,000,000 a year to the living expenses of American families.

These are only preliminary estimates of a few of the initial price increases. They do not take into account the further increases, for example, on automobiles, after steel, tires, safety glass, and other materials and parts have received their own increases.

The bill would cause some major increases in food immediately. It would curtail subsidy payments so that the prices of certain foods would have to go up. Other foods would get immediate increases under the Taft amendment but these would go to processors rather than to farmers. Like the wage earner, the white-collar worker, and the millions of old people and others who must live on fixed incomes, the farmer is a victim of this bill.

This, however, does not mean that the country would get any real protection, for long, in what it costs to eat. The same thing is true of rents. The bill does not direct any immediate increases in rents at all. But this does not mean that rents could be effectively controlled.

If I thought that his bill would make possible some genuine protection against soaring food prices and rents, I should hesitate long before disapproving it—despite the total impossibility of stabilizing the prices of other essential commodities. Our economy, however, cannot be half-stabilized. We cannot quarantine inflation. Higher prices for the things that farmers and landlords buy would inevitably force up farm prices and rents.

In the case of farm prices, this is required by the parity provisions of the law. In the case of both farm prices and rents, general increases would be forced upon us by simple justice and the hard facts of business and economics.

This bill, therefore, gives only the delusion of protection against rising costs of food and shelter. It would delay their rise a little. But the delay would be long enough to cause unnecessary hardship for farmers and landlords—not long enough to bring real benefits to consumers and tenants.

The spectacular increases in the prices of manufactured goods which the Taft amendment and its companion amendments would cause, right at the beginning, are far in excess of anything which industry needs to earn generous profits and obtain full production. The increases are so large because the formulas for computing them are bonanza formulas.

The Taft amendment puts into prices the profit per unit of sales which the industry received for the particular product in the year 1941. That was a year in which manufacturers and processors received a much greater profit out of each dollar of sales than in any one of the five peacetime years which preceded 1941 and more than in any one of the following five wartime years.

Indeed, 1941 profit margins were half again as great as in the banner year of 1929. Today, however, the volume of sales is greater than that of 1941 and it is going to increase steadily if inflation does not stop it. Thus, at the very time when we should be getting the benefit of high volume in the form of lower prices, the Taft amendment would inflate prices.

In the case of products like automobiles, washing machines and refrigerators which are just returning to the market, the Taft amendment produces especially unreasonable prices. This is because the amendment adds to prices all the abnormally high costs arising from temporarily low volume and change-over conditions.

The Wherry amendment gives a final boost to prices by requiring the pyramiding of manufacturers' increases at the wholesale and retail levels.

Of course profits ample to provide the incentive for full production are what makes the American free-enterprise system work. Prices must not be inflexibly held. Increases have been granted and more will have to be granted to remove impediments to production. The Taft amendment, however, in the name of stimulating production promises peak profits on every product even where production is already going at full blast and profits are eminently satisfactory. As industry after industry accepts the invitation of the Taft amendment in an attempt to make good profits better, prices will go up and up.

JUN 30 1946

Blow to Production Seen

In addition, the industries in real need of relief will tend to be lost in the shuffle. The OPA, already criticized for delay in these deserving cases, will be increasingly unable to act promptly to break production bottlenecks.

There is a grim irony in the fact that the Taft amendment is defended as a stimulant to production when in fact it will greatly impede production.

The evidence is readily at hand. For weeks we have seen meat and other commodities withheld from the market in anticipation of higher prices. The simple fact is that the average business man or farmer who knows that his price will soon be higher will not sell any more goods this week than he has to—be they suits or sewing machines or cattle.

The manufacturer with a price increase pending would naturally slow down deliveries as much as his working capital and his storage facilities would permit. At the same time the knowledge that his suppliers had their own increases pending would lead him to do all he could to build up his inventories.

But his suppliers would also slow down deliveries for the very same reason. As essential materials and parts were withheld from the market, production lines would gradually grind to a halt. Workers would pay their toll to this amendment in loss of employment. Consumers would pay theirs in lack of goods.

These cases would develop, not by hundreds but by thousands. As fast as price increases were granted, they would raise the costs of purchasing industries and form a basis for additional increases. Each one would bring its now slowdowns and new bottlenecks.

It is plain to see why the enactment of the Taft amendment as an aid to production would be a sorry jest. Production requires a reasonable stability in costs, a continuing flow of goods and a readiness to buy and sell. The Taft amendment would result in erratic price and cost movements, a feverish effort to buy and a calculated reluctance to sell.

The Taft amendment would wholly destroy the program of wage stabilization which has been so painstakingly, and at times painfully, developed during the months since V-J Day.

The Wage Stabilization Board has contributed greatly to that development. The representatives of industry, labor, and public who compose it have brought what threatened for a time to become a runaway wage movement into a fair and orderly procedure with which virtually all unions and managements have cooperated. This union still needs the continuing services of the Wage Stabilization Board.

I wonder, therefore, if the Congress realized when it voted for the Taft amendment that it was voting to destroy the present wage-stabilization program and the usefulness of the Wage Stabilization Board. Under the existing program the board has the task of determining the limit of wage increases which an employer can use as the basis for price increases. Its determinations of these limits have played a vital role in bringing about innumerable wage settlements.

"Price-Wage Race" Emphasized

The Taft amendment, however, provides that, "in determining costs for the purposes of this section, all costs shall be included." The Office of Price Administration advises me that under this provision it would be required to recognize all wage increases as a basis for price increases, even if the board had not approved them and regardless of their amount.

This is the beginning of an inevitable spiral of uncontrolled inflation—a race between rising wages and rising prices. Farsighted leaders of both labor and management know that nothing can be gained—and everything lost—by simply letting prices and wages chase each other.

Yesterday I received a letter from the National Wage Stabilization Board, which board represents industry, labor and the public. The board advises that it believes that uncontrolled inflation will result from this bill. Furthermore, the board states, "it is our unanimous judgment that the proposed legislation presents no possibility of wage stabilization or of the achievement of the balance between wages and prices which is essential to economic stability."

This bill provides a sure formula for inflation:

1. A first round of sharp and widespread price increases;
2. Production slowdowns due to price uncertainties;
3. Renewed demands for further wage increases due to higher living costs;
4. Higher production costs due to production slowdowns and stoppages and to higher labor costs;
5. A cost-plus pricing amendment which requires higher production costs to be translated immediately into higher prices.

And all this at a time when the supply of goods is still far below the record demand.

The formula would lead to disaster even if it could be assumed that price control could be administered in an orderly fashion, and that the Office of Price Administration would be able to build up a staff adequate to its new burdens. The fact is, however, that these assumptions are unreal. The OPA could not discharge the responsibilities which the Taft amendment and the other price-raising amendments would thrust upon it—either with its present staff or with any staff that it might conceivably recruit.

JUN 30 1946

Compliance Called Difficult

Moreover enforcement and compliance with price regulations are dependent on the general stability of prices over considerable periods of time. Once prices were set in continuous upward motion compliance would deteriorate rapidly. Little hope could be held out for compliance with ceiling prices fixed under the Taft amendment.

The reason for this is that the ceiling price of each individual manufacturer would depend upon the price which that particular manufacturer charged in the base period—usually Oct. 1-15, 1941. To this base period price each manufacturer would be entitled to add a uniform increase factor representing cost increases incurred by the industry generally since that time.

Under this system, obviously, every manufacturer who had a different price in the base period would have a different ceiling price now. Uniform ceiling prices would become impossible, except in those industries which charged uniform prices in the base period. Thus, most of OPA's dollars-and-cents regulations, which are the most readily enforceable kind, would be wiped out.

Proof of any ceiling price violation would require proof of the price which the particular manufacturer charged during a two-week period five years ago. Every enforcement proceeding would thus become a time-consuming and often futile historical investigation.

In these circumstances, the formal structure of price and rent control which the bill retains would be wholly ineffectual to stem the tide of inflation which it would set in motion. Unable to cope with the deluge of industry demands for higher ceilings under the new pricing formulas, and increasingly aware of the futility of its task, OPA's administrative staff would disintegrate. After irreplaceable losses from its ranks had reached a certain point, the consequence would not be more administrative delay. It would be complete collapse.

In the face of these alarming consequences to the country if the present bill should become law, I urge the Congress with all the earnestness at my command to reconsider the whole problem of stabilization.

In that reconsideration, let us see just where we stand today. Under the existing stabilization laws production has recovered remarkably from the shock of war's end. Output of civilian goods already surpasses the 1941 level and employment exceeds that level by six million. This record has been achieved in spite of shortages of critical materials and parts and in spite of extended work stoppages in basic industries. The major labor-management disputes are settled, and we are moving rapidly toward the realization of our post-war objectives of full production and full employment in a sound economy.

There still are shortages, but they will be progressively wiped out in the months ahead if business and labor stick to their job of producing the most possible goods in the shortest possible time. This can happen only if business has assurance of reasonable stability in its costs and if labor has assurance that its real wages will not be cut sharply by rising living costs.

We can look ahead to a steady easing of other inflationary forces. The efficiency of production is bound to increase and bring with it an upsurge in total output. If the stabilization laws are renewed in effective form, it is expected that the Federal budget will be balanced during the coming year, thus eliminating the deficit which was a basic source of inflationary difficulties.

As the inflationary pressures lessen, commodity after commodity can be removed from controls and we can emerge with a stable economy in which the traditional American free-enterprise competitive system can take command. Not until then will the law of supply and demand keep prices at reasonable levels. So long as demand far exceeds supply, the law of supply and demand will drive prices up.

Let us remember further that inflation and collapse in the United States would gravely jeopardize our efforts to build the kind of international economic relations that will provide a solid basis for world peace. The whole structure of international prices, currency values, and financial and trade relations is still unsettled. Because of our position and influence in world trade and finance, inflation and collapse in this country would shake the entire world.

In short, the most serious difficulties of the transition from war to peace are already behind us if only we have the wisdom and fortitude to see to it that the forces of inflation, so long held in check, are not unleashed when victory is all but won.

Therefore I call upon the Congress to act and act now by passing a bill which will give the nation adequate assurance of completing a successful transition to a sound peacetime economy. Such a bill should contain the following provisions:

First. The bill should provide for extension of the stabilization laws for a full year.

Second. The bill should authorize the continuance of stabilization subsidies on a scale sufficient to avoid serious increases in food prices during the next six months and to permit the orderly termination of subsidies during the hilf half of 1947. In my judgment, an authorization for the expenditure of a billion and a quarter dollars during the year as a whole is the minimum necessary for these purposes.

Third. The bill should lay down a Congressional policy with respect to the termination of price controls and subsidies. I approve the provisions of Paragraphs (A), (B) and (V) of the proposed new section 1A of the Price Control Act contained in Section 3 of the present bill.

These provisions call for the orderly removal of all price controls and subsidies during the course of the coming year, with the exception only of those commodities which, on or before April 1, 1947, the President finds to be still in critically short supply and for which he asks and secures authority for continued control to be administered by some established department or agency of the Government other than the Office of Price Administration.

De-Control Program Favored

I would not oppose the formulation of standards for the de-control of particular commodities, as provided in H. R. 6042 or the establishment of an independent price de-control board to review these applications—provided that the standards were modified to make sure that, during the next crucial six months, ceilings do not have to be lifted where it is clear that serious price rises would result.

The spelling out of detailed standards and the establishment of new and complex administrative machinery, however, do not seem to me to be necessary. If the Congress lays down the declaration of de-control policy contained in Paragraph (B) of the proposed new Section 1A, permitting Administration flexibility in its application, I give my personal pledge that the policy will be carried out to the full in spirit as well as in letter.

I ask the Congress also, if it gives me responsibility for carrying out a measure of the kind I am urging, to permit me to do this through a unified or effectively coordinated administrative organization and not to handicap me by legislating an unsound split of authority.

Fourth. The adjustment of product prices to make possible the maximum total production is, of course, one of the fundamental requisites of good price administration during this final transition period. I do not believe that any change in the present law is necessary to assure that such adjustments are made. To put the matter beyond doubt, however, I would not object to a provision which expressly requires the adjustment of price ceilings wherever this is necessary and would be effective to increase the total production of needed goods.

Issues Declared Obscured

The great majority of the American people want an effective price-control law. They are entitled to have it. Under such a law we can win the war against inflation just as decisively as we won the war against the Axis.

Most members of the Congress have not yet had an opportunity to take an unequivocal position on this issue. As the present bill became more and more heavily loaded with amendments during its four and one-half months' progress through the Congress, the issues became more and more obscured.

Members who wanted more effective price control were found voting for the bill, or for particular amendments to the bill, on the basis that these were the best that could be secured. Side by side with them were members who wanted to weaken price control or get rid of it altogether.

It is most unfortunate that the Congress has delayed final passage of a bill down to the eve of the very date of termination of the existing law.

As far back as Sept. 6, 1945, I urged the Congress to pass an extension of the Price Control Act at an early date so as to avoid the uncertainties which have made control more difficult for the last few months. Had this been done there would now be no necessity for these last-minute decisions. I repeated my request to the Congress to extend price-control legislation without crippling amendments again and again—on Jan. 21, 1946; May 22, 1946; May 25, 1946, and June 11, 1946.

Nevertheless just before the expiration of all price control there has been presented to me, by the Congress, an impossible bill.

I cannot bring myself to believe, however, that the representatives of the American people will permit the great calamity which will befall this country if price and rent control end at midnight Sunday. On behalf of the people I request the Congress to continue by resolution the present controls for the short period of time necessary to write a workable bill.

The fight against inflation is never easy. We are battling against economic forces which have caused us untold misery after every previous war and which have overcome or are threatening to overwhelm many of the nations engaged in this war.

We shall not win this fight by soft measures.

All of us who must play a part in the decision of this issue face a solemn responsibility. We stand at an historic moment. Our actions will be judged by the American people and judged again by history.

the consumers, they will be pyramided by generous wholesalers and retailers' mark-ups."

As to his belief that there would be renewed demands for higher wages due to higher living costs, if the bill became effective, the President said he had been advised that the OPA, under the Taft amendment, would be required to recognize all wage increases as a basis for price increases.

"This is the beginning of an inevitable spiral of uncontrolled inflation, a race between rising wages and rising prices," Mr. Truman noted.

Truman's Veto Points

JUN 30 1946

By The Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, June 29—Here are the main points on which President Truman based his veto of the Senate-House compromise OPA bill, which he called an "impossible" measure:

Inflation

"This bill provides a sure formula for inflation," Mr. Truman told the Congress.

This, he said, would be accomplished by:

1. A first round of sharp and widespread price increases.
2. Production slowdowns due to price uncertainties.
3. Renewed demands for further wage increases due to higher living costs.
4. Higher production costs due to production slowdowns and stoppages and to higher labor costs.
5. A cost-plus pricing amendment which requires higher production costs to be translated immediately into higher prices.

Outside of his own tabulation of points through which he said inflation could come, Mr. Truman said he foresaw "a feverish effort to buy and a calculated reluctance to sell," because of the expectation of price rises.

Amendments

Centering his fire on amendments which, he said, would "raise the price of essential cost-of-living commodities," Mr. Truman hit especially at these:

1. The Taft amendment, which he called the "mainspring" and which would, he asserted, "compel thousands of needless price increases amounting to many billions of dollars." The amendment provided for price increases for manufacturers.

2. The amendments by Senators Kenneth S. Wherry, Republican, of Nebraska, and Representative Fred L. Crawford, Republican, of Michigan, which he said would "simply make sure that before the Taft amendment price increases for the public reach

Price Of Bowles Quitting Surprise Even To Aides

JUN 30 1946

Washington, June 29 (AP)—Chester Bowles took his own top aides by surprise when he chose the time he did to resign as stabilization director.

His associates had expected him to quit promptly if President Truman should approve the stripped-down price control extension bill passed by Congress.

But Bowles caught them off balance with his decision to act even before the OPA measure, which he had termed an inflationary booby trap, reached the President's desk.

Made Decision Thursday

Bowles made up his mind at home Thursday night to resign in advance of Mr. Truman's decision on the bill. He wrote his letter of resignation yesterday morning and sent it to the White House in the afternoon.

While Bowles himself had no comment, there was speculation that he had decided to quit now in the hope that removing himself from the picture might persuade Congress to adopt the kind of bill he liked.

In his letter to Mr. Truman, Bowles expressed the hope that Congress, after receiving a vetoed bill, would extend the OPA as is. His resignation might remove one objection to this.

Another possibility was that Bowles hoped that his resignation on the eve of Mr. Truman's decision, together with his parting castigation of the bill, might serve to persuade the President to veto it.

Came To D.C. In 1943

His resignation came just three years from the time he arrived in Washington to become OPA general manager.

He had joined the organization shortly after this country went to war, as OPA rationing officer in Connecticut. He was State director when he was called to Washington in July, 1943, and in November of that year he was named OPA administrator.

He got along well with Congress at first, soothed somewhat the public's wrath over the OPA, and put business men in price-control jobs which had been held by college professors.

A retired advertising man, Bowles introduced graphic charts in testifying before congressional committees, and, in turn, was called by one legislator "the best salesman in the United States."

But when the war ended and the clamor went up from some quarters for elimination of price controls, Bowles began a slam-bang campaign to keep the lid on.

Lost Steel Battle

Last February he became stabilization director, moving over from the OPA after a knock-down, drag-out battle over steel prices, which he lost.

He took over administration of a liberalized wage-price policy which soon led to flurries of cost-of-living price increases, and found himself in the embarrassing position of having to approve them.

Weeks ago, anticipating that Congress would trim OPA's authority drastically, Bowles began burning his bridges behind him. He lashed out at the bill, said no honest man could administer it, and put himself on record as unalterably opposed to any compromise.

The only choice he left himself was when to resign.

OPA Calls Staff of 34,000 to Report Tomorrow Despite Doubt About Pay

JUN 30 1946

WASHINGTON, June 29 (AP)—What will happen on Monday to the 34,000 employes of the Office of Price Administration was an unanswered question here tonight with price and rent controls expiring at midnight tomorrow.

Although the OPA said it was counting on their reporting for work Monday morning, Senator Taft of Ohio said that no funds would be available legally after midnight tomorrow to pay administrative expenses or salaries.

Senator Barkley, the majority leader, agreeing that the agency would have no authority to spend money or meet payrolls, said that, so far as he could see, there would not be an OPA on Monday.

Paul Porter, Price Administrator, will go on the air over the ABC network on Monday at 9:15 P. M., Eastern standard time, to tell the agency's employes just what their status is.

Officials said that a memorandum issued late yesterday to the 3,304 members of its Washington staff had quoted Wallace Sayre, director of personnel, as saying:

"Regardless of what happens to OPA legislation over the week-end, all OPA employes are expected to come to work Monday morning."

Officials said they assumed that similar instructions had been issued to the 30,705 field office employes.

Whether they could be paid or what work they would do no one was prepared to say.

The OPA field set-up now totals 1,800 local price boards, sixty-six district offices, 500 area rent offices and eight regional offices.

BOSTON, June 29 (AP)—Eldon C. Shoup, regional administrator of the OPA, said that all personnel would report for work Monday.

If the Price Control Act lapsed at midnight Sunday, he said, his office still had control over sugar and slaughtering, under the Second War Powers Act. He added that enforcement of ceilings on those items would remain in effect and that warnings had been sent to dealers.

INCREASE IN RENTS SEEN AS OPA ENDS

JUN 30 1946

Federal Official Predicts 15 Pct. Boost by Aug. 1 if Controls Remain Off.

WASHINGTON, June 29—(AP)—A top stabilization official said tonight rents generally probably will jump "more than 15 percent" by August 1 "unless we get a quick renewal meanwhile" of Federal rent controls due to expire Sunday midnight.

This official, thoroughly familiar with the rent ceiling program which apparently will go by the boards, gave his views on the condition his name would not be used.

He expressed doubt there will be any appreciable number of rent increases before August "because in most states local laws require at least a 30-day notice by landlords."

In other cases, he said, tenants have one-year or longer leases which will block quick increases.

"But our only real salvation," this official declared, "is that Congress will act quickly to continue price and rent controls. If we go 30 days without them, the lid will be off."

He said that about 60 percent of the rental dwellings in the United States are occupied on a month-to-month basis.

The National Apartment House Owners association meanwhile asked landlords over the country to keep rents within 15 percent of present levels.

Climb in New Orleans

F. Poche Waugespack, president of the National Institute of Real Estate Brokers, said in New Orleans that "the general increases in rents, if there are any, will not be more than 15 to 20 per cent." Reports from real estate boards in several large cities indicated that many landlords favored the 15 per cent figure.

On evictions, the Federal official said, landlords who wanted to get rid of a tenant could raise rents "unconscionably" and then put the occupant out for non-payment if he couldn't meet the figure.

As for evictions in general, however, he said that "even though there are no Federal controls, landlords will have to continue to abide by local laws."

This means, the official added, that in most areas there can be no eviction of undesirable tenants without cause.

RISE IN COST OF NEW HOMES SEEN BY WYATT

JUN 30 1946

He Says Jump Will Be 10 to 25 P. C. Under OPA Extension Bill.

SMALL IS LESS GLOOMY

But He Sees Danger of Soaring Prices—Predicts Era of Record Production.

Washington, June 29 (A. P.).—Cost of the average newly-built home will jump 10 to 25 per cent if the OPA extension bill becomes law, Wilson Wyatt, housing expediter, reported today.

Dejected at the potential rise in prices of building materials embodied in the measure sent to President Truman last night, Wyatt said in a statement: "This would mean that the new 'low cost' house is a $10,000 house. That's a little exaggerated but not much. We had plans set to push down new-dwelling costs. Now we can't even hold our present price position—and it is bad enough."

Less gloomy, John D. Small, civilian production administrator, said that he would have no worry if industry and labor use self-restraint in pushing for higher prices and higher wages.

Yet there is room in the bill for prices to soar high enough to touch off a new wave of wage demands and strikes—"it's a danger that could occur," he warned, though it needn't."

Says Prices May Soar.

Moreover, he asserted, there is real danger that manufacturers, waiting for higher prices, might withhold their products from the goods-starved public, if the OPA goes slowly in making the the price changes permitted. The act gives the OPA sixty days in which to move.

Withholding—in meat and grain for instance—is "affecting your daily life already," Small reminded reporters at a news conference.

Neither Wyatt nor Small would say whether he had urged President Truman to accept the bill or to veto it in the hope of getting a temporary resolution through Congress extending the OPA as is.

The housing chief was unreservedly pessimistic. About 100 price increases already granted by the OPA to stimulate the output of building materials could be wasted, Wyatt said, if all other products get the same price benefits.

Other industries could again attract workers from the brick and lumber yards and from the radiator and pipe factories, while manufacturers would again tend to turn to more profitable lines of production, he said.

The premium payments plan, which offers $400,000,000 in subsidies to spur building materials output, would have to be revised industry by industry, Wyatt said, because prospective price increases would render its benefits negligible.

Sees Era of Prosperity.

Aside from the dangers seen by Small in the OPA bill, his monthly report on national production was encouraging.

An era of unprecedented production and prosperity may well follow, Small said, if the present breathing spell from major strikes continues.

JUN 3 0 1946

The nation's output in May dipped down to the January level because of the coal and steel shutdowns, but bounced back quickly in June. The strike setbacks, however, probably will prevent industry from again reaching the high level of March until midsummer.

Employment rose 770,000 persons in May, mostly in farm work. June, Small said, should clear the way for the large increase in non-agricultural employment which will be required to increase output during the remainder of the year.

30.24-3841

May Production Figures

As for the actual production record, May brought only a slight increase in automobiles—only 2 per cent over April's output of 150,000—but a sharp increase of 37 per cent in refrigerators.

Shoe production dropped slightly, lumber output gained markedly and apparently hit a two-year high while men's clothing production continued its all-time record breaking pace—a pace still far short of national demand.

Other production marks in May:

Washing machines—184,000 produced, slightly better than April and 16 per cent above pre-war average.

Vacuum cleaners and gas ranges—Down slightly, but both better than in pre-war years.

Sewing machines—Up 11 per cent but still less than half of pre-war production.

Radios—1,075,000 produced, just about the pre-war average and 8 per cent above April.

Tires—A new all-time record of 5,800,000 passenger casings set, 38 per cent above pre-war.

Sugar Ration Likely to Stay

O. P. A. Function May Revert to the Department of Agriculture

WASHINGTON, June 29 (AP).—Sugar rationing probably will continue despite Office of Price Administration expiration at midnight tomorrow, O. P. A. spokesmen said today.

Sugar, last of the war-time scarcity foods to remain under ration control, is rationed by O. P. A. under authority from the Department of Agriculture which the department can recapture on short notice.

It is likely, price officials said, that Secretary of Agriculture Clinton P. Anderson will move promptly to take the job, perhaps aided by a White House executive order transferring O. P. A.'s sugar rationing staff to the Agriculture Department.

Wirtz Says Pay Controls Will Have to End, Too

U. S. Was Able to Check Rates Through Price Relief Pleas

WASHINGTON, June 29 (AP).—W. Willard Wirtz, head of the National Wage Stabilization Board, said today that without price controls wage controls would have to end, too.

Early this year the government told employers that they could raise wages as they pleased. There was one hitch, and it alone gave the government a check on pay rates.

This was a requirement that any wage boost—in order to be recognized as a factor that the Office of Price Administration would recognize in giving price relief—must win the approval of the Wage Stabilization Board.

"There is no doubt," Mr. Wirtz declared, "but that this requirement served as a check on both management and labor to keep wages within the standards established by the Wage Stabilization Board."

Under these standards post-war wage increases generally held to a pattern of 18½ cents an hour, a figure established first in settlement of the steel strike early this year.

Labor leaders have warned that another rash of strikes will break out to back up new demands for higher wages to match any upward spurt in prices.

P.A.C. Students Applaud Veto Of Price Bill

Adopt Resolution Lauding Truman; A.V.C. Official Denounces Taft Prices

WASHINGTON, June 29 (AP).—Students attending a political-action school today loudly applauded President Truman's veto of the price-control bill after hearing pleas that they fight re-election of legislators who favored relaxing controls.

The school is a four-day course in practical politics sponsored by the National Citizens Political Action Committee. A "graduation" dinner tonight for more than 500 young men and women students was its last scheduled event.

Alex Efthim, of St. Louis, introduced as the American Veterans' Committee "one-man lobby" against crippling the Office of Price Administration, was addressing a class on organizing veterans for political action when word of the veto reached him. When he announced the news to the students a bedlam of cheering broke out and students rushed out to send congratulatory telegrams to the White House.

Later the student body, except for three representatives of the National Association of Manufacturers, adopted a resolution praising the President for his action. The N. A. M. trio, in abstaining from voting, said they were attending the school as observers.

Efthim had told of A. V. C. plans to "challenge these Congressmen when they get home," meaning those legislators who supported amendments opposed by the Administration.

"We ought to call these 'Taft prices' and publicize the hell out of it," he said in describing the bill rejected by Mr. Truman. "Taft and his forces are hurting the housing program for veterans by smashing price control."

Although Senator Robert A. Taft is one of the authors of the permanent housing bill, the speaker said the Ohio Republican is "wrecking housing by his cost-plus amendment to price control."

Henry Morgenthau 3d, son of the former Secretary of the Treasury, addressed the same class on housing. He said the Wyatt emergency housing program is a good one "but it is not being carried out." He urged the veterans to wake up all communities to its need.

He said the housing emergency in New York City, where he is supervisor of vacancy listing and registration of the City Housing Authority, is "very dark and unhealthy." Mr. Morgenthau blamed "lax administration" of the Civilian Production Administration in controlling non-residential construction, jurisdictional labor disputes and "constant bickering" between city and state authorities.

Mr. Morgenthau, also a member of the A. V. C., said it has been estimated that in New York City alone there will be 211,000 veterans and their families looking for homes by the end of 1946.

2 Views on O. P. A.'s Lapse: Soaring Prices, Normal Trade

By The Associated Press

With the lid off prices effective at midnight Sunday, millions of bewildered Americans plunged into an uneasy week end yesterday while leaders of both sides in the long Office of Price Administration battle issued predictions ranging from "disaster" to "the long-range betterment" of all.

Labor leaders generally supported President Truman's veto of the Congressional price control bill and grimly forecast unrest and labor trouble all over the nation. Business leaders, while agreeing with the union officials that price rises were coming, felt that a flood of production would soon stabilize the situation.

Wholesalers expected to see the commodity price list go upward immediately, but disagreed on whether the climb would be sustained or merely temporary.

Latin American countries, which had been asking substantial price increases for sugar and coffee, were free to ask higher payments for everything shipped to the U. S. A.

The cost of shelter seemed likely to soar, with tenants caught in the Housing shortage and unable to bargain with landlords.

At Des Moines, Walter D. Kline, Iowa district O. P. A. director, received telephone calls this afternoon from three house renters who told him they had received notices from their landlords of rent increases ranging from 30 to 35 per cent. Two landlords called to ask if they could raise the rents Monday—first day of the month—and Mr. Kline said he told them they could.

Want Small Increases

The National Apartment Owners Association, through its president, George M. Englar, sent telegrams to its members in fifty principal United States cities asking them to hold rent increases within 15 per cent above present rates. Mr. Englar said the association represented owners of about 50,000 apartment houses throughout the nation.

F. Poche Waugespack, president of the National Institute of Real Estate Brokers, said in New Orleans that "the general increases in rents, if there are any, will not be more than 15 to 20 per cent." Reports from real estate boards in several large cities indicated that many landlords favored the 15 per cent figure.

W. R. Scott, executive vice-president of the Kansas City Board of Trade, said future trading in grains would resume immediately when the O. P. A. expired and that grains "will assume true values and go back into natural channels instead of into the black market and other unnatural channels as is now the case." He thought prices would stabilize within a few days.

American Federation of Labor President William Green, Congress of Industrial Organization leaders, and the American Veterans Committee expressed fear of inflation as the result of O. P. A.'s end.

"If the veto stands, this country is faced with the most serious situation which has developed since the war," Mr. Green said. "There will be labor unrest and labor trouble all over the nation and unrestrained inflation."

Philip Murray, president of the C. I. O., expressed approval of President Truman's veto.

"President Truman is to be commended for his patriotic and statesmanlike act in vetoing the O. P. A. legislation. I'm sure that his action will have a salutary effect and a stabilizing influence in this period of great stress," he said.

The A. V. C. said it had fought for strong price control because inflation "is the biggest veterans' problem," and added that "Congressmen must now show where they stand—with the people or with the special interest lobbies."

Philip R. Melnick, secretary-manager of the Southern California Retail Meat Dealers' Association, urged the public not to "fear that food prices will go sky high. As far as meat is concerned, the entire country will be better off.

A spokesman for the National Association of Manufacturers said the association was refraining from immediate comment.

Carl F. Dietz, president of the Manufacturers Association of Syracuse, N. Y., declared, however, that elimination of controls would mean "the long-range betterment of every individual."

Truman Signs Bill Extending Draft Into '47

JUN 3 0 1946

Non-Fathers, 19 to 45, Are Subject to Service; Pay Raised for All Personnel

WASHINGTON, June 29 (AP).—President Truman signed into law today legislation extending the draft act until next March 31 and prohibiting the induction of eighteen-year-olds.

Product of a long controversy between the Senate and the House the legislation permits the drafting nineteen-year-olds and non-fathers up to the age of forty-five.

In fact the Army already has announced it will levy no draft quotas for July and August.

The law does not change the existing requirement for eighteen-year-olds to register; it simply prohibits their actual induction.

Major provisions of the new law, which replaces a stop-gap bill expiring at midnight June 30:

Ages of liability for induction: Nineteen through forty-four, both inclusive.

Limit of compulsory service: Eighteen months for men inducted after Oct. 1, 1946; men inducted prior to Oct. 1 may obtain their release upon request upon completion of eighteen months of service. A service period of longer than eighteen months may be ordered by the President if Congress declares that "the national interest is imperiled."

Legislation raising the base pay of buck privates and apprentice seamen by 50 per cent effective July 1 also was signed into law today by President Truman.

Thumpingly passed by Congress in an effort to spur voluntary enlistments and hold down draft inductions, the law grants pay boosts all along the line for Army, Navy, Coast Guard and Marine Corps personnel, with men in the lower grades receiving the larger increases.

Here are the increases it provides in monthly pay of Army enlisted men, with the same raises for men of corresponding rank in the other services:

Buck privates, from $50 to $75; first class privates, $54 to $80; corporals, $66 to $90; sergeants, $78 to $100; staff sergeants, $96 to $115; technical sergeants, $114 to $135; first and master sergeants, $138 to $165.

For officer personnel, these are the increases, based on annual pay:

Second lieutenants and ensigns, $1,800 to $2,160; first lieutenants and Navy lieutenants, junior grade, $2,000 to $2,400; Army captains and Navy lieutenants, senior grade, $2,400 to $2,760; majors and lieutenant commanders, $3,000 to $3,300; lieutenant colonels and commanders, $3,500 to $3,850; colonels and Navy captains, $4,000 to $4,400; all grades of generals and all Navy officers above the rank of captain, flat 10 per cent over present base pay.

Congress Voted 24 Billions for New Fiscal Year

Army and Navy Budgets Are Slashed; Increases Go to 'Old Line' Departments

WASHINGTON, June 29 (AP).—The Seventy-ninth Congress ended its first post-war fiscal year today with a spending record showing appropriations cuts of approximately 60 per cent from last year's war-time financial allotments.

With only a few major bills to be disposed of and but little controversy over the money provisions in them, the fiscal year appropriations total, as estimated by the House Appropriations Committee, will be approximately $24,000,000,000. They are for all activities of the government for the year starting next Monday.

The total appropriated for the year ending at midnight tomorrow was $58,921,422,229.

Offsetting the $24,000,000,000 appropriated this year, Congress recaptured during the year $64,328,626,487 in appropriations made previously for war activities. A large part of that total came off of the $58,921,422,229 provided during the first part of 1945.

The biggest peace-time cuts were made in the budgets of the largest war-time spenders, the Army and the Navy. The Army, which received $21,496,902,030 this year, was given approximately $7,500,000,000 for the coming year. The Navy's record total of $23,601,136,064 this year was chopped to $4,119,659,300.

On the other hand, many of the so-called "old line" departments, whose operations had been cut during the all-out war effort, received more for the coming year when they will get back to normal peace-time programs.

A comparison of this year's and next year's appropriations for the non-war agencies, with action not yet completed on some bills:

Agriculture Department, $589,931,520 this year and $581,240,121 next year.

District of Columbia, $65,635,660 this year and $76,755,009 next year.

Independent offices, $3,121,900,230 this year and $5,094,976,677 next year.

Labor Department and Federal Security Agency, $1,115,617,256 this year and $1,136,500,238 next year.

Legislative establishment, $50,994,481 this year and $53,809,736 next year.

State, Justice and Commerce Departments, $265,521,700 this year and $438,330,612 next year.

Treasury and Postoffice Departments, $1,342,958,105 this year and $1,604,556,940 next year.

War Department civil functions (engineer projects), $112,450,940 this year and $333,230,498 next year.

Deficiency and supplemental appropriations this year amounted to $7,046,683,985, while for next year they will approximate $3,000,000,000.

The Senate completed legislative action today on a $4,119,659,300 Navy Department appropriation bill. The total was about $20,000,000 smaller than that approved by the House, and $20,000,000 larger than the Senate bill.

13 PLANE CARRIERS RECEIVE CITATIONS

JUN 3 0 1946

Naval Commendations Assert 'Ships Bore Brunt of Pacific Air-Sea Offensive'

WASHINGTON, June 29 (AP)—Thirteen battle-scarred aircraft carriers, most of them charter members of famed Task Forces 38 and 58, today were awarded Presidential citations or naval commendations for "extraordinary heroism in action."

The Navy narrative of flattop heroism covered all the great Pacific naval actions from the time the United States began launching carriers in volume in 1943 until the Japanese surrendered three years later.

It said the thirteen ships "bore the brunt of the Pacific air-sea offensive."

Eight ships received the Presidential individual citation:

The Lexington, dubbed "Mitscher's Blue Ghost" by the baffled Japanese because it eluded them from Tarawa to Tokyo and participated in virtually every major carrier action of that period, for operations between Sept. 18, 1943, and Aug. 15, 1945; the Essex, "Fightingest Ship in the Navy," because of its record of seventeen months, without a let-up, in battle zones, actions Aug. 31, 1943, to Aug. 15, 1945; the Bunker Hill, "Holiday Inn" to her fighting sons because, come a holiday, she always was in the thick of a battle and sweated out fifty-eight consecutive days and nights in action at Iwo Jima, Tokyo, the Inland Sea, Kyushu and Okinawa, Nov. 11, 1943, to May 11, 1945.

Five other ships received the Navy commendation:

The Enterprise, the "Big E" of the fleet and first capital ship to receive the Presidential commendation (previously awarded), Nov. 19, 1943, to May 14, 1945; the Wasp, May 19, 1944, to Aug. 15, 1945; the Hancock, Oct. 10, 1944, to Aug. 15, 1945; the Langley, Jan. 29, 1944, to May 11, 1945; the Cowpens, Oct. 5, 1943, to Aug. 15, 1945.

The citations, identical for each ship, said they "spearheaded the concentrated carrier warfare in forward areas, struck crushing blows toward annihilating Japanese fighting power and fiercely countered the enemy's aerial attacks."

The citation told the story of Fleet Admiral William F. "Bull" Halsey Jr. and two carriers, the old Yorktown and the Enterprise, made up a "task force" of early war days. Their "sorties" frequently were lone-wolf expeditions.

Combined Food Board Ends Work Tomorrow; 19-Nation Council Will Continue Program

WASHINGTON, June 29 (AP)—A joint statement by the United States, Great Britain and Canada today announced the termination of their Combined Food Board, effective Monday. Its work will be continued by the International Emergency Food Council of nineteen nations which was established June 20.

Until the council was formed, it had been planned to continue the three-nation board to Dec. 31.

The statement read:

"We announced on May 9, 1946 plans to continue the Combined Food Board until December 31, 1946 because of the deterioration that had occurred in the world food situation in recent months, and the need to control the distribution of many foods with a view to preventing widespread suffering and starvation.

"Subsequent to this announcement, a special meeting on urgent food problems was convened in Washington by the Food and Agriculture Organization of the United Nations on May 20. As a result of discussions at this meeting, certain recommendations with respect to the formation of an international emergency food council were approved and submitted to the Governments concerned.

"It was a part of these recommendations that the Governments of the United Kingdom, United States and Canada should arrange without delay for the Combined Food Board to call a meeting. This meeting was held on June 20, 1946, and was attended officially by representatives of nineteen countries who, on behalf of their Governments, formally accepted the terms of reference of the international Emergency Food Council.

"Accordingly, the International Emergency Food Council was established forthwith, and held its inaugural session on June 20. This organization will continue the work of the Combined Food Board which is hereby declared to be terminated as of July 1, 1946. The functions of the Combined Food Board, together with all its documents and records, will be transferred to the international Emergency Food Council on July 1, 1946."

MORE WHEAT ACRES ASKED

JUN 3 0 1946

Planting Goal Set At Highest Figure Since 1938

Washington, June 29 (AP)—Expecting the world food shortage to continue for at least two more years, the Agriculture Department today called upon farmers to plant more land to wheat for harvest in 1947 than in any year since 1938.

It set a national planting goal of 71,700,000 acres, compared with 71,057,000 seeded for this year's crop and with 78,891,000 planted in 1938.

With yields equal to the last few years, this acreage would give the country its fourth consecutive crop of more than 1,000,000,000 bushels. Present prospects point to a crop of 1,033,000,000 bushels this year compared with last year's record harvest of 1,123,000,000, and with an average crop of about 825,000,000.

Truck-Crop Increase Asked

At the same time, the department recommended that the 1947 acreage for seventeen winter vegetable crops in commercial truck-crop areas be increased four per cent over that of this year and nineteen per cent above the 1941-45 average. The largest increase asked was 30 per cent for tomatoes.

This year's bumper wheat crop will not provide sufficient grain to meet unrestricted domestic and foreign demands.

It is possible, however, that a crop of 1,000,000,000 bushels next year might exceed needs, but if so, any extra supplies could be readily handled by the "ever-normal granary" program. This country went into the war with heavy reserves but they have been depleted by wartime needs.

Flour Limitation Eased

Announcement of the new wheat goal comes as the Government permits millers to increase distribution of flour for domestic consumption. Since the emergency foreign famine program was inaugurated in March, millers have been limited in their monthly distribution for domestic consumption to 75 per cent of the flour they distributed a year ago.

In July, the authorized distribution will be 85 per cent of the monthly average of 1945.

With this year's crop beginning to move to market in considerable volume from early harvesting areas, mills should be able, officials said, to get sufficient grain in July to fill the full civilian quota.

Meanwhile, the department has started the purchase of 250,000,000 bushels of wheat from this year's crop for export to shortage areas during the next twelve months.

State planting goals for wheat will be announced later.

The department made no announcement with regard to price supports for the 1947 crop. It is required, however, by farm laws to provide growers with price-supporting loans at 90 per cent of the parity price of wheat. The present parity price of the grain is $1.65 a bushel. Farmers received an average of $1.74 for wheat marketed this month.

No Letup In Demand Expected

With industrial production and employment expected to climb to a new peacetime peak in the near future, the department said it could foresee no letup in the heavy demand for foods that developed during the war.

Despite strikes that caused serious delays in reconversion and considerable unemployment, income payments to individuals during the first five months of this year were said to have been only four per cent below the record for the comparable period last year, and 133 per cent above the 1935-39 annual average.

The heavy demands for food and other commodities has resulted, the department said, in broad advances in prices since the beginning of the year. It added that pressures on the price structure have in no way been weakened.

Outlook By Commodities

The department outlined the price-and-demand outlook for principal farm commodities as follows:

Livestock and Meats—High consumer incomes indicate a strong consumer demand through the first half of 1947, but total meat production in 1947 may be a billion pounds less than the estimated 1946 production of 22,600,000,000 pounds. As cattle numbers are only moderately below a year ago, slaughter of grass-fed cattle in the second half of this year promises to be large. Likewise, hog slaughter will continue larger than a year earlier through the remainder of 1946.

Dairy Products—Demand for manufactured dairy products exceeds available supplies. Fluid-milk and ice-cream uses have absorbed a larger portion of the near-record farm production of milk than last year, leaving smaller quantities for manufactured items, particularly butter, evaporated milk and cheese.

Poultry And Eggs

Poultry and Eggs—Civilian supplies will be at least as large as last year, since near-record cold-storage holdings of shell and frozen eggs will offset any likely decline in farm production during the last half of the year. Supplies of chicken and turkey meat during the last half of the year will be significantly lower than a year ago.

Fats, Oils and Oilseeds—Recent developments point to a decline in domestic output of fats and oils this year.

Corn and Other Feeds—The demand for feed grains and byproduct feed is expected to continue strong during the next few months, but live-stock feed requirements during the last half of 1946 probably will be smaller than during the last half of 1945.

Wheat—With prospective export demand very large again this year, wheat prices are expected to continue at ceiling levels. Wheat production prospects in most importing countries appear to be better, however, than a year ago.

Fruit—Continued high prices for fruit in general are in prospect this summer. Supplies of oranges and lemons will be smaller this summer than a year ago.

Truck Crops — Prices of most truck crops sold on the fresh market this summer are expected to be moderately lower than a year earlier. Indicated production is twenty per cent larger than last year.

Data Reported Sold to Redin Is 'Vital to U. S.'

Yellowstone's Supervisor Says Information Could Be Used Against Nation

SEATTLE, June 29 (AP).—Captain Homer N. Wallin, supervisor of shipbuilding for the 13th Naval District, told a Federal District Court jury today that all data on the new design destroyer tender Yellowstone, which Herbert Kennedy, marine engineer, testified he sold to Russian Naval Lieutenant Nicolai G. Redin, could have been used to the advantage of a foreign nation.

In a quietly dramatic courtroom scene in Lieutenant Redin's espionage-conspiracy trial, Captain Wallin took up Mr. Kennedy's longhand copy of "confidential information" he said Redin bought for $250, and scanned it sentence by sentence.

It covered "restricted" information on the Yellowstone's general specifications, its auxiliary machinery and the dock trials of its propulsion machinery.

Captain Wallin, who supervised the Yellowstone's construction at the yard where Mr. Kennedy was test engineer, said he considered "most significantly injurious" to the United States' national defense "the references to steam temperatures and steam pressures, the amount of vacuum and the general capacities of various ofthe Yellowstone's auxiliaries."

30.24 -3843

Captain Wallin testified, over defense attorneys' strenuous objections, that all items in the memorandum were "unquestionably confidential."

This afternoon District Judge Lloyd L. Black reversed an earlier ruling and permitted the introduction as an exhibit of Sections 76 and 77 of United States Naval Regulations on "top secret, secret, confidential and restricted information.

Apparent intention of District Attorney Victor Anderson, of St. Paul, assisting the prosecution, was to use the naval regulation to define the meaning of the term "restricted," which appeared on the face of the government's contract with the Todd Pacific Shipyard, covering the Yellowstone construction here.

U.S. and American Worker Delegates Abstain From Balloting on Minimum

SEATTLE, June 29 (AP).—The World Maritime Conference at its closing session today formally adopted an international convention proposing a $64 monthly minimum wage and standard hours for seamen. The vote was 55 for, 21 against and 7 not voting.

The American government and worker delegates abstained from voting, while Maitland Pennington, employers' representative, voted "no."

If countries represented ratify the convention it will be the first time in history an international minimum wage has been set for an entire industry.

Formal adoption of the proposal by the conference followed approval of a final draft after an all-night meeting.

The final draft was approved by a vote of 55 to 24, with nine delegates abstaining after worker delegates agreed to give up their demand for the modified form of the eight-hour day for near-trade ships, an issue that had threatened the passage of the convention.

The United States government and worker delegations, who had fought bitterly throughout the conference for a flat eight-hour day for seaman, abstained from voting.

GEN. LITTLEJOHN WILL HEAD WAA

JUN 30 1946

Washington, June 29 (A. P.).—President Truman today accepted the resignation of Lieut.-Gen. E. B. Gregory as War Assets Administrator and announced the selection of Major-Gen. Robert McG. Littlejohn to replace him.

Gregory resigned because of ill health. He had headed the WAA since its establishment five months ago. Previously he had served as Army Quartermaster-General.

Littlejohn, former Quartermaster-General for the European Theater, will be named WAA Administrator, Mr. Truman said in a letter to Gregory, "as soon as legal formalities can be arranged for him to enter upon detached service."

Gregory's letter of resignation was dated May 16, 1946. It said that by that time the WAA's monthly sales had been increased from $200,000,000 a month to $500,000,000 a month.

'2D WAR POWERS ACT' IS SIGNED BY TRUMAN

WASHINGTON, June 29 (AP)—President Truman today signed an amended version of the second War Powers Act, which renews his authority to ration and allocate scarce materials.

The bill contains a specific provision that it cannot be used as authority for fixing price ceilings on commodities or rents.

Signing of the measure also bestows on President Truman for another year the powers to requisition property and give priorities.

That authority, used during the war to concentrate the economy upon the winning of military victory, is continued as a peacetime weapon of the Government to steer the economy toward reconversion and high production.

The amendment on price control killed off any chance that the Government might, for instance, keep clothing prices under its grip allocating cloth only to garment makers who agreed to sell for a certain price.

Although the Civilian Production Administration is the principal user of the war powers, through its allocation controls over tin, lead, antimony, chemicals and other items necessary in the reconversion of industry, the Agriculture Department has used them increasingly of late.

The act is the authority by which sugar is rationed, for instance, and by which the use of grain by whiskey distillers is limited.

Surplus Probe Plans July Open Hearings

Washington, June 29 (AP)—The House Committee to Investigate Surplus Property Disposal will begin open hearings here in mid-July, Chairman Slaughter (D., Mo.) announced today.

He declined to make public at this time the names of those who would first be called upon to testify, but high committee officials told a reporter the initial witnesses would be "at the management level" of the War Assets Administration.

Committee investigators have been busy taking statements preparing for a "comprehensive series of hearings," Slaughter said. He expects the investigations and hearings to continue throughout the summer and autumn.

Slaughter plans to leave here Sunday for Kansas City, where he will unofficially open his campaign for re-election, but he expects to return to Washington the following week.

Ton of Deadly Beryllium To Be Sunk in Atlantic

JUN 30 1946

Radioactive Dust Was Used in Atomic Experiment

WILMINGTON, Del., June 29 (AP).—An Army tug was loaded today with a one-ton iron box of fine dust, potentially far deadlier than dynamite, to be dumped in the Atlantic "in a day or two" for safety's sake.

The dust is radioactive beryllium, which was used for four years in atomic bomb work by the Bio-Chemical Foundation, at Newark, Del. Scientists experimented with it to develop means to reduce hazards in working with atomic power.

Dr. Ellice McDonald, director of the foundation, estimated the beryllium would remain radioactive for 1,000 years. The box is "too hot" to have around, he said.

V-2 Rocket Travels 75 Miles Or Higher

White Sands, N.M., June 29 (AP). A record of at least 75 miles altitude was set in yesterday's firing of a German V-2 rocket at the Army's White Sands ordnance proving ground.

Experts are awaiting a study of instruments carried in the rocket before making a closer computation of the altitude reached.

Lieut. Col. Harold R. Turner, White Sands commandant, said the height was a new record for guided missiles. In the previous best test, the rocket is estimated to have gone up 71 miles on May 10.

Another rocket is to be fired on July 9.

Dutch Girl Wants To Care For Grave Of A Yank

JUN 30 1946

Los Angeles, June 29 (AP)—In the crucial days following the battle of the Bulge, just before the big push into Germany, a war-weary GI found refuge with a compassionate Dutch family in the village of Gronsveld, Holland.

For three days the soldier, Miles E. Strand, knew once again the attentions and, such as they were, the comforts of a home. He won the respect of J. van der Boorn and Mama van der Boorn and the love of all the eight little van der Boorns.

Cried When He Left

They cried when Strand moved on to the front. But Strand survived, and now he is back at his job here.

The other day a letter came from the oldest of the van der Boorn children, Lucy, 18, who had learned a little English in school.

"There is no more war in Gronsveld," wrote Lucy, "but in the next village there is a big United States military cemetery for the 1st and 9th armies, with 20,000 graves.

"Send Me His Name"

"I want to ask you if you don't know somebody who was killed. We can take care of a grave. Please send me his name and I will take care for [sic] his grave."

Strand has no American friends buried there. But someone who has may write to Lucy. Her address is Ryksweg 115, Gronsveld, Limburg.

A. P. STOPS LISTING TROOPSHIP NAMES

JUN 30 1946

By the Associated Press

The Associated Press ended today its daily listing of service men and women returning from overseas—the greatest mass distribution of names ever made by a press association. Since the service was started last July 20, more than 2,000,000 names were sent by commercial telegraph facilities and mail to more than 400 newspapers and radio stations.

The lists made newspapers, radio stations and the Associated Press office in New York a clearing house for information on returning service personnel as relatives sought information by telephone, telegraph, and mail. The New York Sun established a special ship desk to handle incoming calls, often receiving more than 300 daily. The peak day was last December 26, when 342 calls were received.

To handle the reports, the press service had a crew of typists working around the clock to keep even with and often ahead of the arriving ships, which on peak days brought home as many as 35,000 troops. The bulky passenger lists were prepared by the Army from stencils flown from overseas, but when they reached the A. P. they were not arranged alphabetically, or by States. The news agency separated them into State lists for distribution. Recently, when the Port of Embarkation here curtailed its personnel the stencils were sent directly to the A. P.

Last month newspapers were notified that the special service would end with the completion of the redeployment program on June 30. Port of Embarkation officials said that most war-time personnel had been returned and that, though troop movements would continue for months, they will be largely replacements and no stencils for them will be available.

LONDON, JUNE 29-(AP)-A REUTERS DISPATCH FROM BATAVIA TODAY SAID THE DUTCH MONITORING SERVICE THERE HAD PICKED UP AN ANNOUNCEMENT FROM A RADIO STATION AT JOGJAKARTA--HEADQUARTERS OF THE INDONESIAN NATIONALIST PARTY--SAYING ARMED MEN HAD TAKEN DR.SUTAN SJAHRIR, INDONESIAN REPUBLICAN PRIME MINISTER, AND OTHERS FROM THEIR HOTEL ROOMS THURSDAY NIGHT.

JUN 30 1946

JS259PED

batavia, java, sunday, june 30 - (ap) - the republican radio at jogjakarta said last night that an armed band had abducted dr. sutan sjahrir, indonesian republican premier, and other prominent persons from a hotel at soerakarta on thursday night.

JUN 30 1946

these kidnapped with sjahrir were mme. maria ulfah santoso, minister of social affairs in sjahrir's cabinet, and maj. gen. sudibye, head of the organization providing air evacuation for dutch internees in the indonesian interior.

a british military source said yesterday, prior to the radio announcement, that sudibye had expressed fears an incident of this kind would occur. an indonesian army major, sudibye's chief assistant, had been kidnaped previously.

dutch evacuation officials said they were afraid the incident would interrupt the currently smooth running air evacuation system which has been removing 500 internees a day from the interior.

indonesian official circles in batavia said they were "completely bewildered" by the news.

(ADVANCE)...LONDON, JUNE 29-(AP)-ONE HUNDRED THOUSAND PERSONS WOULD BE KILLED OR INJURED AND 300,000 OTHERS WOULD BE RENDERED HOMELESS BY THE EXPLOSION OF ONE ATOMIC BOMB OVER A LARGE BRITISH CITY, A BRITISH MISSION REPORTED TODAY.
SUMMARIZING DAMAGE AND DEATH CAUSED BY THE AMERICAN ATOMIC BOMBS DROPPED ON HIROSHIMA AND NAGASAKI, THE MISSION PUT ITS FINDINGS INTO A SOMBER CALCULATION OF EQUIVALENT DAMAGE IF THE SAME TYPE OF WEAPON WERE USED AGAINST THE UNITED KINGDOM.

30.24-3845

IT ESTIMATED: 50,000 PERSONS WOULD BE KILLED INSTANTLY OR DIE FROM INTERNAL INJURIES WITHIN EIGHT WEEKS; ANOTHER 50,000 WOULD REQUIRE EXTENDED HOSPITAL TREATMENT; 100,000 NON-CASUALTIES WOULD BE HOMELESS PERMANENTLY, OR FOR THE MONTHS REQUIRED TO CARRY OUT MAJOR REPAIRS; 200,000 WOULD BE TEMPORARILY HOMELESS PENDING LESSER REPAIRS.

EFFECT OF THE BLAST, SAID THE REPORT, WOULD BE EQUIVALENT TO A TOMB TWICE THE SIZE OF BRITAIN'S BIGGEST, THE SIX-TON BLOCK-BUSTER, EXPLODING ABOVE A MODEL TOWN BUILT TO THE SCALE OF GULLIVER'S LILLIPUT, ONE-INCH-TO-THE-FOOT.

ONLY REINFORCED CONCRETE AND STEEL-FRAME BUILDINGS APPEAR TO OFFER VERY MUCH RESISTANCE, THE REPORT SAID, AND SUCH CONSTRUCTION "THEREFORE SHOULD BE ADVOCATED FOR ALL PUBLIC AND SEMI-PUBLIC BUILDINGS, AND RULES DRAWN UP FOR A REASONABLE STANDARD OF PROTECTION AGAINST FLYING DEBRIS AND GLASS, HEAT FLASH AND GAMMA RAYS."

THE MISSION SAID STANDARD BRITISH BOMB SHELTERS WOULD HAVE RESISTED COLLAPSE, EEVEN AT THE CENTER OF DAMAGE IN HIROSHIMA AND NAGASAKI, BUT OCCUPANTS PRESUMABLY WOULD HAVE BEEN AFFECTED TO VARYING DEGREE BY PENETRATING, SHORT-WAVE RADIATION. DEEP SHELTERS, HOWEVER, SUCH AS REFUGES PROVIDED BY THE LONDON UNDERGROUND, WOULD HAVE GIVEN COMPLETE PROTECTION.

VICTIMS OF THE GAMMA RAYS, THE REPORT SAID, APPEAR TO BE UNHURT UNTIL SYMPTOMS OF NAUSEA, VOMITING AND FEVER SET IN AFTER 24 HOURS. THE RAYS DAMAGE THE BONE MARROW, PREVENTING FORMATION OF NEW BLOOD CELLS, AND CAUSING PROGRESSIVE ANEMIA EVENTUALLY FOLLOWED BY INFECTION AND DEATH.

JUN 30 1946

"IT IS THROUGHT THAT GAMMA RAYS ULTIMATELY CAUSED THE DEATH OF NEARLY EVERYONE WHO WAS FULLY EXPOSED TO THEM UP TO A DISTANCE OF HALF A MILE FROM THE CENTER OF DAMAGE," THE REPORT SAID.

BOTH WERE DEFINED AS FAVORING SANCTIONS AGAINST NATIONS BUT AS AGAINST INDIVIDUALS THE STATEMENTS SHOWED: UNITED STATES: "THE UM.N. CAN PRESCRIBE INDIVIDUAL RESPONSIBILITY AND PUNISHMENT ON THE PRINCIPLES APPLIED AT NUERNBERG." RUSSIA: "PUNISHMENT OF INDIVIDUALS BY THEIR RESPECTIVE GOVERNMENTS."

ON "OUTLAWRY" THE QUESTION OF "TIMING" WAS BROKEN DOWN TO SHOW DIFFERENCES INSIDE A GENERAL AGREEMENT OF VIEWS BETWEEN THE UNITED STATES AND RUSSIA.

HOWEVER, ON THE QUESTION WHETHER "MORE THAN A TREATY" IS NEEDED TO ASSURE FULL ATOMIC CONTROL, THE UNITED STATES WAS SHOWN IN THE "YES" COLUMN, RUSSIA IN THE NEGATIVE POSITION WITH THE VIEW THAT EXISTING BOMBS SHOULD BE DESTROYED WITHIN THREE MONTHS AFTER A CONVENTION IS ADOPTED. ADD New York (OAY-UN) XXX WEAPONS (GROMYKO)

ON THE 14 POINTS IN WHICH BARUCH'S ANALYSIS SHOWED "THE DOOR IS OPEN FOR NEGOTIATION," THE RUSSIAN POSITION WAS DESCRIBED BY BARUCH AS CONTINGENT ON CONCLUSIONS REACHED BY THE DRAFTING COMMITTEE PROPOSED BY THE U.S.S.R. IN CONSIDERING "MEASURES, SYSTEMS, AND ORGANIZATION OF CONTROL IN THE USE OF ATOMIC ENERGY."

JUN 30 1946

THESE POINTS ARE: ESTABLISHMENT OF AN ATOMIC DEVELOPMENT AUTHORITY WITH SUPREME POWERS, DOMINION OVER RAW MATERIALS, OWNERSHIP AND MANAGERIAL CONTROL OVER PRIMARY PRODUCTION PLANTS, RESEARCH ON ATOMIC EXPLOSIVES, STRATEGIC DISTRIBUTION OF ACTIVITIES AND MATERIALS, DEFINITION OF DANGEROUS AND NON-DANGEROUS ACTIVITIES, OPERATION OF DANGEROUS ACTIVITIES, INSECTION, FREEDOM OF ACCESS (FOR INSPECTION TO DETECT UNLAWFUL ATOMIC DEVELOPMENTS), PERSONNEL ON AN INTERNATIONAL BASIS, PROGRESS BY STAGES, DISCLOSURE OF INFORMATION, YIELDING OF NATIONAL CONTROL IN STAGES, AND SUBORDINATION OF SUCH NATIONAL CONTROL BODIES AS MAY BE ESTABLISHED TO AN INTERNATIONAL BODY.

NIGHT LEAD ATOMIC WARNING TO THE PUBLIC THAT THE ATOMIC BOMB TO BE DROPPED AT BIKINI LAGOON MIGHT BE A "FIZZLE" WAS VOICED BY AN EMINENT SCIENTIST TODAY AS MILITARY MEN, SCIENTISTS AND OTHER OBSERVERS SCANNED THE SKIES OVER THE MARSHALLS FOR SOME HIN OF MONDAY'S WEATHER.

BY CHARLES H.MCMURTRY

KWAJALEIN, JUNE 29 (AP)-A WARNING CAME FROM DR.KARL COMPTON, CHAIRMAN OF THE JOINT CHIEFS OF STAFF EVALUATION BOARD.

"MY SCIENTIFIC COLLEAGUES," HE TOLD A PRESS CONFERENCE, "SAY THAT EVEN IF WE HAD A NUMBER OF BOMBS, ALIKE PHYSICALLY, EACH WOULD VARY FROM A FIZZLE TO MAXIMUM EFFICIENCY.

"THERE IS A CERTAIN PROBABILITY--THOUGH SMALL--THAT THIS BOMB MIGHT FIZZLE. I AM ANXIOUS THAT THIS BE REALIZED SO THE PUBLIC WILL NOT THINK WE ARE ALIBYING IF WE GET POOR RESULTS."

WHETHER THE BOMB, NOW HIDDEN BEHIND A CANVAS-COVERED AREA ON THIS ISLAND, WILL PROVIDE A MAGNIFICENT EXPLOSION OR A SMOKY FIZZLE WILL BE KNOWN AT 9:30 MONDAY MORNING (5:30 P.M., SUNDAY, EST)--IF THE WEATHER IS FAVORABLE. VICE ADM.W.H.P.BLANDY WILL RULE ON THE QUESTION OF WEATHER, ANNOUNCING AT BIKINI SUNDAY MORNING WHETHER THE TEST CAN GO AHEAD ON SCHEDULE OR MUST BE POSTPONED.

VICE ADM.W.H.P.BLANDY, CROSSROADS TASK FORCE COMMANDER, ANNOUNCED AFTER A CONFERENCE WITH WEATHER EXPERTS THAT THE ZERO HOUR WOULD BE 8:30 A.M. TOMORROW (4:30 P.M. SUNDAY, EST). VISIBILITY AT THAT TIME WILL BE ABOUT 12 MILES, AND THE CLOUD COVER 20 TO 30 PER CENT.

BLANDY RESERVED THE RIGHT TO POSTPONE THE BOMB DROP, HOWEVER, IN THE EVENT OF UNFORESEEN WEATHER CHANGES.

30-24-3853

IF THE STARTING SIGNAL COMES, THE NON-TARGET FLEET WILL BEGIN EVACUATING THE LAGOON. THEN, AT DAWN MONDAY, THE AIR FORCE WILL SWING INTO ACTION AND THE LONG-AWAITED TEST WILL BE UNDERWAY.

BRADLEY DEWEY, PRESIDENT OF THE AMERICAN CHEMICAL SOCIETY AND A MEMBER OF THE EVALUATION BOARD, OBSERVED THAT IF THE BOMB WERE A DUD IT "MIGHT NOT BE RECOGNIZED AS SUCH UNTIL WE GET EFFICIENCY MEASUREMENTS FROM INSTRUMENTS."

"A DUD PROBABLY WOULD PRODUCE A WHACKING GOOD EXPLOSION," DEWEY SAID, "BUT PERHAPS IT WOULD NOT MUSHROOM. THERE WOULD BE SOME ACTIVITY."

IF THE BOMB DOES MUSHROOM, 20 WHITE MICE WILL BE FLOWN INTO THE INTERIOR OF THAT GREAT, COLORFUL PLUME.

DR.HAROLD BATCHELOR OF FREDERICK, MD., BIOLOGIST AND BACTERIOLOGIST FOR THE CHEMICAL WARFARE SERVICE, ARRIVED AT ENIWETOK TODAY WITH THE MICE. FIVE WILL BE PLACED IN EACH OF THE FOUR B-17 "DRONES" WHICH WILL BE GUIDED INTO THE UMBRELLA AT 13,000 TO 30,000 FEET.

UNOFFICIALLY, SOME OBSERVERS HERE FELT THERE WAS A POSSIBILITY THE SCHEDULED DROPPING OF THE ATOMIC BOMB, OFFICIALY SET FOR 8:30 A.M. MONDAY (4:30 P.M. SUNDAY EST), MIGHT BE POSTPONED BY VICE ADMIRAL W.H.P.BLAND6.
ALL OTHER WEATHER CONDITIONS WERE SAID TO BE IDEAL FOR THE BOMB TEST EXCEPT FOR SOME CLOUD COVERING.

JUN 3 01946

KWAJALEIN, JUNE 30-(AP)-THE FORECAST TODAY WAS FOR CONTINUED SUNNY WEATHER, BUT WIND CONDITIONS MAY FORCE A DELAY IN THE SCHEDULED DROPPING OF THE BIKINI ATOM TEST BOMB, COL ALLAN CLARK, CHIEF OF OPERATIONS FOR THE 20TH BOMBING COMMAND, SAID TODAY
SUNNY WEATHER BEGAN YESTERDAY AT MID-MORNING AFTER SEVERAL DAYS OF THUNDERSHOWERS INTERSPERSED WITH CLOUDS AND SUNSHINE
HOWEVER CLARK EXPLAINED, SHEAR WIND CONDITIONS--IN WHICH WINDS CONVERGING FROM TWO DIRECTIONS MEET AND DISPERSE IN SEVERAL DIRECTIONS--MAY PROHIBIT THE SCHEDULED DROP
THE SHEAR WIND CONDITION WOULD SEND THE RADIATION FROM THE DETONATION IN SEVERAL DIRECTIONS AND MIGHT ENDANGER MANY THOUSANDS OF THE 42,000 PERSONNEL ENGAGED IN THE BIKINI TEST
THE NEARNESS OF THE POTENTIAL A-DAY IS NOTICEABLE ON KWAJALEIN IN THE TENSENESS OF MANY KEY FIGURES, IN THE INCREASED GUARD AROUND RESTRICTED AREAS ESPECIALLY AROUND THE CANVASS COVERED AREA WHERE THE BOMB HAS BEEN ASSEMBLED AND IN THE INCREASED FIRE DRILLS.
REAR ADM.W.S.PARSONS, DEPUTY COMMANDER FOR TECHNICAL DIRECTION OF THE ATOMIC TASK FORCE, SAID RECENTLY HOWEVER THAT THE ONLY DANGER TO KWAJALEIN IN THE TESTS WOULD BE FROM A CRACK-UP ON THE TAKE-OFF--OR AN ACCIDENT IN LANDING WITH THE BOMB ABOARD--WHEN AN UNUSUALLY INTENSE FIRE MIGHT CAUSE A LOW-GRADE EXPLOSION.
NEVERTHELESS, COMMODORE BEN H.WYATT, COMMANDER OF THE MARSHALLS, HAS ORDERED ALL UNESSENTIAL PERSONNEL EVACUATED TO EBEYE ISLAND, THREE MILES AWAY. THIS AFFECTS SOME 1,500 OF KWAJALEIN'S 5,000 PERSONNEL. NEWS CORRESPONDENTS COVERING THE KWAJALEIN STORY WILL BE AMONG THOSE REMAINING.

KWAJALEIN,JUNE 29-(AP)-THE ARMY VESSEL BRIG.GEN.A.J.LYON IS POSSIBLY THE STRANGEST CRAFT IN KWAJALEIN LAGOON.

IT IS A FLOATING REPAIR SHIP. ITS PRIMARY MISSION IS TO PROVIDE ON EMERGENCY ORDER PRECISION PARTS OF REPAIRS FOR B-29 AND B-17 ARMY BOMBERS ENGAGED IN THE BIKINI ATOLL ATOMIC BOMB TEST. NOW, HOWEVER, ITS EXPERT MECHANICS ARE CALLED ON MOST OFTEN FOR DELICATE WORK ON EXPENSIVE HIGH SPEED CAMERAS, UPON WHICH SCIENTISTS--ARMY, NAVY, CIVILIAN--ARE RELYING FOR VITAL INFORMATION ON NUCLEAR REACTION.

BY HOWARD W.BLAKESLEE
ASSOCIATED PRESS SCIENCE REPORTER

BIKINI,JUNE 29-(AP)-EVERY FIGHTING SHIP OF THE A-BOMB FLEET--EXCEPT FOR A FEW DESTROYERS--IS IN POSITION IN BIKINI LAGOON WHERE IT WOULD BE DESTROYED OR SEVERELY DAMAGED--WERE SHIPS BUILDINGS.

AND EVERY ONE--WITH THE SAME EXCEPTIONS--IS SET SO THAT EVEN IF IT IS NOT DESTROYED, THE PERSONS INSIDE WOULD BE MOSTLY KILLED OR INJURED BY THE BLAST--IF THESE SHIPS WERE STURDY CONCRETE OR STEEL LAND STRUCTURES.

BUT ALL SHIPS ARE STRONGER BY FAR THAN MOST EDIFICES. ALL WILL BE CUSHIONED BY WATER AS THE BLAST HITS THEM. AND THIS CUSHIONING SHOULD SAVE MOST OF THEM FROM BEING TORN TO PIECES.

IT SHOULD BE UNDERSTOOD THAT, FIRST, THE A-BOMB IS STRICTLY A LAND WEAPON. THIS MEANS THAT THE AIR EXPLOSION PLANNED FOR JULY 1 IS NOT AT ALL THE MANNER IN WHICH AN ATOM BOMB WOULD BE USED AGAINST NAVIES, BUT VERY STRICTLY, A MANNER OF USE AGAINST CITIES.

FOR THIS REASON, THE TARGET SHIPS HAVE BEEN ANCHORED IN A NEARLY PERFECT IMITATION OF A SMALL CITY. THEY ARE DENSE NEAR THE CENTER LIKE A CROWDING OF SKYSCRAPERS. THERE ARE MORE THAN 20 WARSHIPS IN THIS CITY LIKE THE CENTER IN A CIRCLE NOT MUCH MORE THAN A MILE IN DIAMETER.

THE WARSHIPS IN THE CENTER ARE SO DENSELY PACKED THAT FROM A COUPLE OF MILES AWAY IT IS NOT POSSIBLE TO SEE THE SPACES BETWEEN MOST OF THEM. THIS FLOATING CITY IS LAID OUT LIKE OLD-TIME CAPITALS--A CENTRAL STRUCTURE WITH STREETS RADIATING IN FOUR DIRECTIONS.

THE CENTER HERE IS THE RED AND WHITE BATTLESHIP NEVADA. OTHER SHIPS CLUSTER AROUND HER SO CLOSELY THAT ONLY HER SUPERSTRUCTURE CAN BE SEEN.

BUT THE NEVADA IS NOT THE HIGH POINT OF THIS CENTRAL MASS OF MASTS AND SUPERSTRUCTURES. DOMINATING EVERYTHING ELSE IN HEIGHT IS THE TALL CENTRAL STRUCTURE OF THE RUSTY OLD JAPANESE BATTLESHIP NAGATO. THIS MASS LOOKS FROM A NEAR DISTANCE JUST LIKE A TOWER RISING OVER A CITY.

BEYOND ARE TWO CAPITAL SHIPS. ONE IS THE AIRCRAFT CARRIER SARATOGA. THE OTHER IS THE GERMAN CRUISER PRINZ EUGEN. THEY ARE ON EXACTLY OPPOSITE SIDES OF THE CENTRAL MASS OF SHIPS. THE SARATOGA'S DISTANCE FROM THE NEVADA IS AROUND TWO MILES. THE PRINZ EUGEN APPEARS TO BE SLIGHTLY LESS.

ASTFX

BOTH SHIPS ARE WITHIN POSSIBLE RANGE OF SOME OF THE BOMB'S RADIOACTIVE RAYS, ALTHOUGH THOSE EFFECTS WILL BE RELATIVELY LIGHT ON THIS PAIR. NEITHER SHOULD BE GIVING OFF X-RAYS FOR ANY IMPORTANT LENGTH OF TIME AFTER THE BOMB EXPLODES. BUT IT IS NOT BEYOND POSSIBILITY THAT SHOULD PERSONNEL BE ON DECK, SOME WOULD BE INJURED BY UNSEEN RAYS. BOTH ALSO ARE IN RANGE OF THE DEW OF DEATH--THE FALLING RADIOACTIVE PARTICLES. THESE MIGHT ENTER VENTILATORS TO PERIL THE CREW.

THE TOUGHEST TARGET THE A-BOMB YET HAS FACED IS THE NEVADA. THIS OLD BATTLESHIP'S CENTRAL STRUCTURES RISE IN THE FORM OF A PYRAMID, SIX DECKS HIGH. IT IS EQUIVALENT TO THE HEIGHT OF A SIX-STORY BUILDING. THIS WARSHIP PYRAMID IS ALL STEEL. MOST OF IT IS WELDED. NO SKYSCRAPER WAS EVER BUILT WITH SUCH STRENGTH--AND NO REINFORCED CONCRETE BUILDING, EITHER.

ATOMIC 170
BY DON WHITEHEAD

ABOARD U.S.S.APPALACHIAN,BIKINI,JUNE 29-(AP)-AN ARMY OFFICER DISCLOSED TODAY THAT TROOPS STOOD BY WHEN THE ATOMIC BOMB WAS TESTED IN NEW MEXICO WITH ORDERS TO EVACUATE A WIDE AREA INCLUDING EL PASO, TEX., ROSWELL AND ALBUQUERQUE, N.M., IF NECESSARY TO PROTECT INHABITANTS FROM RADIOACTIVITY.

AT THAT TIME, COL.STAFFORD WARREN, RADIOLOGICAL OFFICER, EXPLAINED SCIENTISTS DID NOT KNOW WHAT MIGHT HAPPEN AFTER THE BOMB EXPLODED. THEY FEARED A RADIOACTIVE CLOUD MIGHT SETTLE OVER INHABITED AREAS AND WERE PREPARED FOR MASS EVACUATION, HE SAID.

WARREN DECLARED THERE WAS A POSSIBILITY THE NON-TARGET FLEET WOULD HAVE TO WITHDRAW 50 TO 100 MILES FROM BIKINI LAGOON IF THE BOMB WERE DROPPED AT A TIME WHEN WINDS WERE UNFAVORABLE.

"IF WE DON'T GET WEATHER AS ORIGINALLY PLANNED, HE SAID, "AND IF WIND DIRECTION AT UPPER LEVELS WOULD ENDANGER SHIPS THEN THE SHIPS--ESPECIALLY THE SLOW ONES--MAY HAVE TO WITHDRAW AS FAR AS 100 MILES TO ENSURE SAFETY OF PERSONNEL.

HE ADDED, HOWEVER, THAT THIS WAS ONLY A SLIGHT POSSIBILITY.

JUN 3 01946

A136KX

THERE ALSO WERE THE BATTLESHIPS NEW YORK AND ARKANSAS AND THE FLATTOPS SARATOGA AND INDEPENDENCE, STANDING WITH MANY OTHER VETERANS OF ATLANTIC AND PACIFIC SEA BATTLES.

NEAR THE NEVADA WERE TWO ALIENS OF A DEFEATED NATION--THE JAPANESE WARSHIPS NAGATO AND SAKAWA, WHICH ONCE BROUGHT DREAD TO AMERICANS AS THEY ROVED THE PACIFIC. NEAR THE FRINGE OF THE ARRAY WAS THE SLEEK NAZI CRUISER PRINZ EUGEN.

WITHIN A COMPARATIVELY FEW HOURS THIS LAGOON IN THE MARSHALL ISLANDS OF THE CENTRAL PACIFIC MAY BE THE GRAVEYARD OF THOSE SHIPS. BUT NO ONE CAN SAY FOR CERTAIN.

NO ONE CAN PREDICT EXACTLY WHAT WILL HAPPEN, SAVE THAT WHEN THE BOMB BURSTS BIKINI WILL BE A DEATHTRAP FOR ANY LIVING THING CAUGHT IN THE RANGE OF THE BOMB'S AWFUL BLAST OR EXPOSED TO THE DEATH RAYS CREATED BY NUCLEAR ENERGY.

WHEN ADMIRAL BLANDY GIVES THE STARTING SIGNAL THE NON-TARGET FLEET WILL BEGIN EVACUATING THE LAGOON TO STAND A SAFE DISTANCE AWAY. EXTRAORDINARY PRECAUTIONS HAVE BEEN TAKEN TO PROTECT PERSONNEL FROM INJURY. THE SHIPS HAVE BEEN ALERTED TO EVACUATE NEARBY ISLANDS SHOULD THE INHABITANTS BE ENDANGERED BY THE RADIOACTIVE CLOUD WHICH WILL RISE FROM THE EXPLOSION.

AT DAWN MONDAY (ABOUT NOON SUNDAY EST) THE AIR FORCE WILL SWING INTO ACTION AND THE GREAT SHOW WILL BE UNDERWAY, BARRING UNFORESEEN WEATHER DELAYS.

MUCH OF THE SUCCESS OF THE OPERATION DEPENDS ON ONE LONE MAN--THE BOMBARDIER WHO WILL DROP THE A-BOMB OVER THE NEVADA FROM A HEIGHT OF ABOUT 30,000 FEET.

HE IS MAJ.HAROLD H.WOOD OF BORDENTOWN, N.J., WHO LEFT A JOB AS CLERK TO BECOME ONE OF THE ARMY'S FINEST BOMBARDIERS.

"I'LL HIT THE TARGET," WOOD SAID CONFIDENTLY.

THE BOMB WILL BE DROPPED FROM A B-29 KNOWN AS "DAVE'S DREAM." THE SHIP WAS NAMED AFTER CAPT.DAVE SEMPLE OF LONG BEACH, CALIF., WHO WAS THE ORIGINAL "ATOMIC BOMBARDIER." HE LATER WAS KILLED ON A TEST FLIGHT NEAR ALBUQUERQUE, N.M.

JUN 3 01946

NEVER BEFOR, AIRMEN SAY, HAS THERE BEEN AN AIR OPERATION AS COMPLICATED AS THAT WHICH WILL BEGIN AFTER BLANDY'S DECISION IS MADE.

MORE THAN 70 PLANES, INCLUDING "DAVE'S DREAM," WILL RENDEZVOUS AT POINTS 30 TO 50 MILES FROM THE NEVADA. THEN EACH WILL MOVE TO A GIVEN PLACE TO PERFORM A DEFINITE FUNCTION. MOST OF THEM WILL BE PHOTOGRAPHIC AND INSTRUMENT SHIPS.

B137KX

THEY WILLFLY IN A CIRCLE AT HEIGHTS FROM 1,000 TO 30,000 FEET AROUND THE NEVADA. THEN MAJ.WOODROW P.SWANCUTT, PILOT OF

"DAVE'S DREAM," WILL BRING THE PLANE IN ON THE BOMBING RUN.
"DAVE'S DREAM," WILL BRING THE PLANE IN ON THE BOMBING RUN.
WAITING OUTSIDE THIS AIR CIRCUS WILL BE ARMY AND NAVY DRONE PLANES, SHEPHERDED BY THEIR MOTHER CRAFT.
WHEN THE BOMB BURSTS THESE ROBOT MARVELS, LOADED WITH INSTRUMENTS, WILL BE DRIVEN DIRECTLY INTO OR THROUGH THE SWIRLING TURBULENT CLOUD MASS THAT WILL MUSHROOM FROM THE EXPLOSION AS IT DID IN THE NEW MEXICO TEST AND AS AT HIROSHIMA AND NAGASAKI, WHERE THE FIRST ATOMIC BOMBS WERE USED IN WARFARE.
AS SOON AS THE INSTRUMENTS SHOW THE BIKINI AREA SAFE FROM RADIO-ACTIVATION THE SCIENTISTS WILL MOVE BACK INTO THE LAGOON TO BEGIN THEIR STUDIES OF WHAT HAPPENED IN THE ATOMIC BURST.

A-BOMB SURVEY
BY DOUGLAS I.CORNELL
(ADVANCE) WASHINGTON, JUNE 29--(AP)-A FAR-REACHING PLAN FOR DEFENSE AGAINST ATOM BOMB ATTACK, INCLUDING WIDE DISPERSAL OF INDUSTRY AND THE ARMED FORCES, SHELTERS FOR THE POPULACE, AND STURDIER BUILDINGS, WAS URGED TONIGHT BY CIVILIAN EXPERTS WHO SIZED UP FOR PRESIDENT TRUMAN WHAT THE BOMB DID TO JAPAN.
FROM THE RUBBLE OF HIROSHIMA AND NAGASAKI, THE U.S. STRATEGIC BOMBING SURVEY CONSTRUCTED A WARNING THAT "THE DANGER IS REAL AND THE UNITED STATES MUST GET READY "NOW" TO MEET AN ATOMIC ATTACK.
CALLING FOR AN "UNRELAXING STATE OF READINESS," IT RECOMMENDED SPECIFICALLY:
THE "DISPERSAL, CONCEALMENT, PROTECTION AND CONSTANT READINESS" OF ALL MILITARY FORCES, SO NO SINGLE BLOW OR SERIES OF THEM CAN CRIPPLE THEIR ABILITY TO FIGHT BACK.
SHELTERS TO PROTECT THE PEOPLE AGAINST BLAST, FLASH BURNS AND RADIATION--THE THREE MAIN CAUSES OF DEATH AND INJURY IN ATOMIC WARFARE.
STURDIER BUILDINGS, A NATIONAL CIVILIAN DEFENSE, RESERVES OF CRITICAL SUPPLIES AND EQUIPMENT, THE SCATTERING OF INDUSTRIAL AND MEDICAL FACILITIES, AND READY-MADE PLANS TO EVACUATE CITIES.
THE STRATEGIC BOMBING SURVEY WAS SET UP UNDER THE LATE PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT TO APPRAISE THE EFFECTS OF AIR ATTACK ON GERMANY. PRESIDENT TRUMAN ASKED IT TO DO THE SAME IN JAPAN.
THE REPORT TONIGHT DEALT ONLY WITH THE IMPACT OF THE TWO ATOM BOMBS ON JAPAN LAST AUGUST. IT WAS DRAFTED UNDER THE CHAIRMANSHIP OF FRANKLIN D'OLIER, NEWARK, N.J., INSURANCE COMPANY EXECUTIVE WHO WAS AN ARMY OFFICER IN WORLD WAR I.
A PARALLEL REPORT ON THE IDENTICAL SUBJECT WAS RELEASED SIMULTANEOUSLY BY THE AGENCY WHICH DEVELOPED THE A-BOMB--THE WAR DEPARTMENT'S MANHATTAN PROJECT DIRECTED BY MAJ. GEN. LESLIE R. GROVES.

BOTH STUDIES TENDED TO DISPEL THE BUGABOO THAT SOME DEATHS WERE DUE TO RADIOACTIVITY LINGERING IN THE TARGET AREAS. BUT THE CIVILIANS SAID THAT PHASE OF THE STORY MIGHT HAVE BEEN "OMINOUSLY" DIFFERENT HAD THE BOMBS EXPLODED AT GROUND LEVEL INSTEAD OF SEVERAL HUNDRED FEET IN THE AIR.

THE ARMY SAID PRELIMINARY REPORTS THAT THE FIRST ATOM BOMB PACKED ROUGHLY THE PUNCH OF 20,000 TONS OF TNT WERE ABOUT RIGHT.

THE STRATEGIC BOMBING SURVEY WAS MUCH MORE CONSERVATIVE. IT FIGURED THAT THE CHARGES IN 2100 TONS OF HIGH EXPLOSIVE, INCENDIARY AND ANTI-PERSONNEL FRAGMENTATION BOMBS WOULD HAVE DONE THE TRICK AT HIROSHIMA. AND THAT WOULD ALLOW FOR THE USUAL PERCENTAGE OF BOMBS FALLING OUTSIDE THE TARGET AREA.

THE TWO DOCUMENTS SKETCHED VIVIDLY NOW THE ATOM BOMBS WERE LOOSED, THE HOLOCAUST AND TERROR THAT FOLLOWED, AND THE HASTENING OF JAPAN'S SURRENDER. BOTH DESCRIBED THE NATURE OF AN ATOMIC EXPLOSION--WITHOUT SPILLING ANY SECRETS--AND THE TYPE OF DAMAGE AND CASUALTIES THAT RESULTED.

JUN 30 1946

THE ARMY SAID THE APPROXIMATE DATE FOR THE FIRST ATOMIC BOMB BLAST WAS PICKED IN THE FALL OF 1942. THE TARGETS WERE SELECTED WITH THESE FACTORS IN MIND:

RANGE OF AIRCRAFT; DESIRABILITY OF VISUAL BOMBING; WEATHER CONDITIONS; HARDNESS OF SECONDARY TARGETS (NAGASAKI WAS A SECONDARY OBJECTIVE); MILITARY EFFECT ON THE JAPANESE PEOPLE AND THE SHORTENING OF THE WAR; AND MORALE EFFECT ON THE ENEMY.

ONLY THE CIVILIAN REPORT TRANSLATED THE PICTURE OF ATOMIC DESTRUCTION INTO GRIM TERMS OF WHAT IT MEANS TO AMERICA. IT SAID:

"THE DANGER IS REAL--OF THAT, THE SURVEY'S FINDINGS LEAVE NO DOUBT."

IT ADDED THAT THE FINDINGS SUPPLY CLUES TO MEASURES THAT COULD CUT CASUALTIES AND DAMAGE TO A MINIMUM. DESPITE ITS AWESOME POWER IT SAID THE ATOM BOMB "HAS LIMITS OF WHICH WISE PLANNING WILL TAKE PROMPT ADVANTAGE."

THE REPORT POINTED TO NOW SOME CONCRETE AND STEEL SHELLS SURVIVED NEAR THE CENTERS OF THE BOMB BLASTS, AND TO HOW 400 PEOPLE WERE SAVED IN A NAGASAKI SHELTER.

"WITHOUT QUESTION," THE CIVILIAN EXPERTS DECLARED, "SHELTERS CAN PROTECT THOSE WHO GET TO THEM AGAINST ANYTHING BUT A DIRECT HIT."

POINTING UP THEIR SUPPORT FOR THE OLD FORMULA OF NOT PUTTING ALL THE EGGS IN ONE BASKET, THEY NOTED THAT INDUSTRIES ON THE OUTSKIRTS OF BOTH TARGET CITIES SUFFERED SMALL DAMAGE WHEREAS MEDICAL FACILITIES CONCENTRATED IN THE MIDDLE OF THE TOWNS WERE ALL BUT WIPED OUT.

THE SURVIVAL OF SHELTERED SECTIONS OF NAGASAKI, CUT UP BY HILLS AND VALLEYS, SUGGESTS THE USE THAT CAN BE MADE OF IRREGULAR TERRAIN, THE REPORT SAID.

WHILE THERE IS "REASON TO HOPE" FOR BETTER PROTECTIVE WEAPONS AND TECHNIQUES, THE SURVEY SAID, THERE CAN BE NO PERFECT GUARDS AGAINST THE ATOMIC WEAPON. THUS THE MISSION OF DEFENSE, IT SAID, IS "TO PREVENT THE SURPRISE USE OF THE ATOMIC BOMB FROM BEING DECISIVE."

"OUR FURTHER MEASURE OF SAFETY MUST ACCOMPANY THE OTHERS. IT IS TO AVOID DESTRUCTION," IT ADDED.

THE SURVEY SUGGEST WAYS TO AVOID WAR.

NO MORE FORCEFUL ARGUMENTS FOR PEACE AND FOR THE INTERNATIONAL MACHINERY OF PEACE THAN THE SIGHT OF THE DEVASTATION OF HIROSHIMA AND NAGASAKI HAVE EVER BEEN DEVISED.

x x x

THE ARMY AND CIVILIAN REPORTS WERE CLOSE TOGETHER ON THE EXTENT OF THE DEVASTATION. THEY DIFFERED SOMEWHAT ON THE NUMBER AND TYPE OF CASUALTIES AND ON OTHER DETAILS.

THE ARMY SAID THE ATOMIC BOMB "DID NOT ALONE WIN THE WAR AGAINST JAPAN, BUT IT MOST CERTAINLY ENDED IT" AND SAVED THOUSANDS OF ALLIED LIVES.

THE CIVILIAN APPROACH CREDITED THE BOMBINGS WITH GIVING THE JAPANESE GOVERNMENT AN OPPORTUNITY IT HAD BEEN SEEKING TO BREAK A DEADLOCK OVER ACCEPTANCE OF SURRENDER TERMS.

JUN 30 1946

A122WX

OUTSIDE THE TARGET CITIES, THE SURVEY SAID, THE ATOMIC ATTACK HAD MORE EFFECT ON THE THINKING OF GOVERNMENT LEADERS THAN ON THE MORALE OF RANK-AND-FILE PEOPLE.

IN JAPAN AS A WHOLE, IT REPORTED, MILITARY LOSSES AND FAILURES SUCH AS THOSE AT SAIPAN, THE PHILIPPINES AND OKINAWA WERE "TWICE AS IMPORTANT AS THIS ATOMIC BOMB IN INDUCING CERTAINTY OF DEFEAT." MORE THAN A MONTH BEFORE THE FIRST ATOM BOMB EXPLODED, IT SAID, 74 PERCENT OF THE POPULATION FELT DOUBTS ABOUT A JAPANESE VICTORY.

THE LENGTH OF ITS BLAST, AS WELL AS ITS FORCE, ENTERS INTO THE DESTRUCTIVE POWER OF THE A-BOMB, THE REPORT SHOWED. WITHIN A NARROW RADIUS, IT SAID, AN ORDINARY 100-POUND BOMB ACTUALLY EXERTS A HIGHER PRESSURE FROM ITS BLAST THAN DID THE ATOMIC BOMB AT ANY POINT EITHER CITY.

YET THE A-BOMB'S AREA OF EFFECTIVENESS AGAINST BRICK BUILDINGS WAS LISTED AT 15,000 TIMES THAT OF A 500-POUNDER.

"THE OVERWHELMING BULK OF BUILDINGS IN AMERICAN CITIES," THE SURVEY DECLARED, "COULD NOT STAND UP AGAINST AN ATOMIC BOMB BURSTING A MILE OR A MILE AND A HALF FROM THEM."

BUT IT TERMED THE GREAT NUMBER OF CASUALTIES THE "MOST STRIKING RESULT OF THE ATOMIC BOMBS." IT SAID IMPROVED BOMBS MIGHT BE EVEN MORE DEADLY.

THE SURVEY ESTIMATED THE DEAD AT HIROSHIMA AT 70,000 TO 80,000 WITH AN EQUAL NUMBER OF INJURED. IT FIGURED THE NAGASAKI DEAD AT MORE THAN 35,000 AND THE INJURED AT SOMEWHAT MORE. IT SAID A PLAUSIBLE COMPUTATION OF CAUSES OF DEATH ASSIGNS 20 TO 30 PERCENT TO FLASH BURNS, 50 TO 60 PERCENT TO OTHER INJURIES, AND 15 TO 20 PERCENT TO RADIATION.

JUN 30 1946

THE ARMY SAID ITS BEST CALCULATIONS WERE 66,000 DEAD AND 69,000 INJURED IN HIROSHIMA, 39,000 DEAD AND 25,000 INJURED IN NAGASAKI.

THE ARMY ATTRIBUTED 60 PERCENT OF DEATHS IN HIROSHIMA TO BURNS, 30 PERCENT TO FALLING DEBRIS AND 10 PERCENT TO OTHER CAUSES. FOR NAGASAKI THE FIGURES WERE 80 PERCENT FOR BURNS, 8 FOR DEBRIS, 6 FOR FLYING GLASS AND 6 FOR OTHER.

WASHINGTON, JUNE 29-(AP)-FIRST OFFICIAL ANNOUNCEMENT OF THE DROPPING OF THE ATOMIC BOMB ON THE TEST FLEET AT BIKINI WILL COME THROUGH A BROADCAST BY A "NEUTRAL VOICE" REPRESENTING NO SPECIFIC AGENCY, ADMIRAL H.B.MILLER, CHIEF OF NAVY PUBLIC RELATIONS, SAID TODAY.

THIS BROADCAST WILL BE AVAILABLE TO THE PRESS AND THE RADIO NETWORKS SIMULTANEOUSLY, ADMIRAL MILLER SAID.

JUN 3 01946

AFTER THE "NEUTRAL VOICE" BROADCAST DESCRIPTION OF THE DROPPING OF THE BOMB, COMMUNICATIONS ARRANGEMENTS WILL REVERT TO THE ORIGINAL PLAN.

UNDER THAT, THE RADIO NETWORKS WILL TAKE OVER THE VOICECAST CHANNELS FROM BIKINI FOR THEIR DESCRIPTIONS OF THE TEST, WHILE THE PRESS ASSOCIATIONS WILL UTILIZE RADIO-TELETYPE CIRCUITS.

THE ORIGINAL PLAN HAD CALLED FOR THE RADIO NETWORKS TO HAVE THE VOICECAST CHANNELS, WITH NO NEUTRAL BROADCAST, THE PRESS ASSOCIATIONS USING THE TELETYPES.

THIS MIGHT HAVE LIMITED THE PRESS ASSOCIATIONS AND THEIR MEMBER NEWSPAPERS TO GETTING THEIR FIRST STORIES OF THE BOMB FROM THE RADIO NETWORK ACCOUNTS.

THE PRESS ASSOCIATIONS, FOR THAT REASON ASKED THE NAVY TO PROVIDE FOR AN OFFICIAL "NEUTRAL VOICE" BROADCAST WHICH WOULD BE AVAILABLE SIMULTANEOUSLY TO BOTH THE PRESS AND THE RADIO CHAINS.

ADMIRAL MILLER TOLD A REPORTER THAT THE CHANGE IN PLANS WAS MADE BY SECRETARY OF THE NAVY FORRESTAL, WHO IS AT BIKINI.

AFTER THE "NEUTRAL VOICE" BROADCAST IS OVER, THE PRESS SERVICES COPY WILL BE TRANSMITTED VIA RADIO-TELETYPE CIRCUITS ROUTED FROM THE MAIN COMMUNICATION SHIP OF THE BIKINI FLEET, THE APPALACHIAN, THROUGH NAVY RADIO AT PEARL HARBOR AND SAN FRANCISCO.

NINE WIRE SERVICES OR AGENCIES, INCLUDING THE ASSOCIATED PRESS, WILL SHARE FOUR CLEARED CIRCUITS DURING THE FIRST HALF HOUR AFTER THE BOMB IS DROPPED. DURING THAT TIME DISPATCHES WILL BE LIMITED TO TAKES OF 250 WORDS EACH. THE SECOND HALF HOUR, THE WIRE SERVICES WILL BE LIMITED TO TWO TELETYPE CHANNELS.

FIRST LEAD ATOM BOMB (200)

SAN FRANCISCO, JUNE 29-(AP)-BROADCASTS FROM BIKINI SAID TODAY VICE ADM.W.H.P.BLANDY ANNOUNCED WEATHER FAVORABLE FOR THE ATOM BOMB TEST AND THAT, BARRING AN UNFORESEEN CHANGE IN ATMOSPHERIC CONDITIONS, THE BOMB WILL BE DROPPED ON SCHEDULE AT 9:30 A.M. BIKINI TIME, MONDAY, (5:30 P.M., SUNDAY, EASTERN STANDARD TIME).

THE ADMIRAL COMMANDING THE CROSSROADS TASK FORCE THUS RANG UP THE CURTAIN ON HISTORY'S MOST FANTASTIC ONE-PUNCH ARMED ENCOUNTER -- A SINGLE SMALL ATOM BOMB AGAINST A FLEET OF SOME 50 WARSHIPS.

HIS ANNOUNCEMENT WAS THE SIGNAL FOR WITHDRAWAL OF THE NON-TARGET FLEET FROM BIKINI LAGOON AND THE BEGINNING OF THE RETREAT OF 40,000 MILITARY PERSONNEL, SCIENTISTS, CORRESPONDENTS AND OBSERVERS TO SAFE DISTANCES BEYOND THE POSSIBLE REACH OF THE A-BOMB'S LETHAL RAYS.

IT SET IN MOTION THE INTRICATE AND GIGANTIC MACHINERY OF AN OPERATION GEARED TO REACH ITS CLIMAX IN THE ACTUAL DROPPING OF THE BOMB FROM A HEIGHT OF ABOUT 30,000 FEET OVER THE USS NEVADA, BULL'S-EYE OF THE TARGET FLEET ANCHORED IN THE LAGOON.

BLANDY'S ANNOUNCEMENT CAME SOMEWHAT EARLIER THAN EXPECTED, AND IT WAS STRESSED THAT HE COULD STILL WITHDRAW HIS ORDER, HALTING THE INTRICATE PROCESSION OF PREPARATORY MOVES AND POSTPONING THE TEST, IN CASE OF A SUDDEN CHANGE OF WEATHER.

NIGHT LEAD UNDATED ATOMIC

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

VICE ADMIRAL W.H.P. BLANDY, TASK FORCE COMMANDER, TODAY SET THE TIME FOR THE DROPPING OF THE WORLD'S FOURTH ATOMIC BOMB OVER TARGET SHIPS IN BIKINI LAGOON FOR 8:30 A.M. MONDAY (4:30 P.M. SUNDAY, EST) AS HE RECEIVED FAVORABLE WEATHER REPORTS FROM METEOROLOGISTS.

THE TASK OF EVACUATING THE HUNDREDS OF MEN ABOARD THE SEVENTY ODD SHIPS TO BE BLASTED BY THE BOMB WAS UNDERWAY. THE B-29 WHICH WILL DROP THE BOMB IS SCHEDULED TO TAKE OFF EARLY IN THE MORNING.

WEATHERMAN PREDICTED THAT VISIBILITY AROUND BIKINI LAGOON IN THE PACIFIC WOULD BE ABOUT 12 MILES. THERE LIKELY WILL BE SOME CLOUDS BUT NOT ENOUGH TO OBSCURE THE TARGET SHIPS FROM THE BOMBARDIERS VIEW.

THE MAIN TARGET FOR THE ATOMIC BOMB WILL BE THE OLD UNITED STATES BATTLESHIP NEVADA, WHICH IS NEAR THE CENTER OF THE ASSEMBLED SHIPS TO BE SUBJECTED TO THE TEST.

THE 42,000 MEN INVOLVED IN THE TEST, WHICH ALREADY HAS COST $70,000,000 NOT INCLUDING THE COST OF THE ATOM BOMB, HAVE BEEN ALERTED FOR THE TEST.

HEAVY GUARDS HAVE BEEN PLACED AROUND THE CANVAS COVERED BOMB ON KWAJALEIN ISLAND, FROM WHERE THE B-29, "DAVE'S DREAM," WHICH WILL DROP IT, WILL TAKE OFF FOR BIKINI.

LAST MINUTE PREPARATIONS HAVE BEEN COMPLETED FOR GETTING THE DRONE PLANES THAT ARE TO FLY THROUGH THE RADIO ACTIVE CLOUDS FORMED BY THE BOMB BURST INTO THE AIR.

SCIENTISTS, NERVOUSLY CHECKED AND RECHECKED THEIR INSTRUMENTS TO MAKE CERTAIN THAT THE TEST WENT OFF WITHOUT A HITCH. MANY OF THEM WERE VISIBLY SHOWING THE STRAIN UNDER WHICH THEY HAVE BEEN WORKING FOR THE PAST FEW WEEKS.

NOTE TO EDITORS

THIS IS FURTHER TO KEEP YOU POSTED ON THE GENERAL SITUATION WITH RESPECT TO COVERAGE OF THE BIKINI BOMB TESTS. BECAUSE OF UNSATISFACTORY COMMUNICATIONS, IT IS IMPOSSIBLE TO PREDICT HOW QUICKLY DETAILED ACCOUNTS OF THE DROPPING OF THE BOMB--TENTATIVELY SET FOR 5:30 P.M., EASTERN STANDARD TIME, SUNDAY, JUNE 30(9:30 A.M., BIKINI TIME, MONDAY, JULY 1)--WILL BE DELIVERED TO NEWSPAPERS AND RADIO STATIONS. UNDER ARRANGEMENTS THUS FAR PUT INTO EFFECT BY THE NAVY, THE FASTEST MEANS OF COMMUNICATION--VIOCECAST--HAS BEEN ASSIGNED TO RADIO NETWORKS. THEREFORE, THE FIRST NEWS STORIES TRANSMITTED BY PRESS ASSOCIATIONS MAY BE BASED ON DESCRIPTIVE MATERIAL OBTAINED FROM THE POOLED RADIO BROADCAST. PRESS ASSOCIATIONS STILL ARE AWAITING A RESPONSE FROM THE NAVY TO THEIR REITERATED REQUEST THAT DESCRIP-

TION OF THE ACTUAL BOND DROP BE BROADCAST BY AN OFFICIAL "NEUTRAL VOICE," AND THAT SUCH BROADCAST BE MADE AVAILABLE ON EQUAL TERMS TO BOTH RADIO AND NEWSPAPERS.

MEANTIME, THE NAVY HAS SET UP SIX RADIO-TELETYPE CIRCUITS WHICH WILL BE ROUTED FROM THE MAIN COMMUNICATIONS SHIP OF THE BIKINI FLEET, THE APPALACHIAN, BY WAY OF NAVY RADIO AT PEARL HARBOR AND SAN FRANCISCO. THESE CHANNELS WILL BE FOR THE USE OF REPORTERS FOR WIRE SERVICES AND INDIVIDUAL NEWSPAPERS. NINE WIRE SERVICES OR AGENCIES, INCLUDING THE ASSOCIATED PRESS, WILL SHARE FOUR CLEARED RADIO-TELETYPE CIRCUITS DURING THE FIRST HALF HOUR AFTE THE BOMB IS DROPPED, WITH DISPATCHES LIMITED TO 250 WORDS PER "TAKE." FOR THE SECOND HALF HOUR, WIRE SERVICES WILL BE LIMITED TO TWO TELETYPE CIRCUITS. THEREAFTER THE FOREIGN NEWS AGENCIES WILL REVERT TO THE STATUS ACCORDED WRITERS FOR INDIVIDUAL NEWSPAPERS AND TWO CUICUITS WILL BE TURNED OVER TO THE ASSOCIATED PRESS, UNITED PRESS, AND INTERNATIONAL NEWS SERVICE FOR THEIR USE EXCLUSIVELY FOR 24 HOURS.

NAVY RADIO ADVISES THAT ATMOSPHERIC CONDITIONS ARE NOT LIKELY TO BE GOOD FOR SEVERAL HOURS AFTER THE TIME SCHEDULED FOR THE BOMB DROP. IT HAS PROMISED TO KEEP US POSTED ON CONDITIONS AND THIS INFORMATION, TOGETHER WITH WORD RESPECTING OTHER DEVELOPMENTS, IF ANY, WILL BE FORWARDED TO MEMBERS PROMPTLY.

ON PICTURES--

PROSPECTS OF SPOT PICTURES ON THE TEST WILL DEPEND ENTIRELY ON WHAT PICTURES ARE CLEARED BY THE JOINT TASK FORCE ON THE SCENE, AND WHEN THOSE PICTURES ARE RECEIVED IN SAN FRANCISCO BY RADIO FROM ANY OF THE THREE TRANSMITTING UNITS ESTABLISHED IN THE BIKINI-KWAJALEIN AREA. WITH GOOD LUCK, SPOT PICTURES MIGHT BE AVAILABLE BY RADIO IN A MATTER OF HOURS AFTER THE EVENT; WITH DELAY IN CLEARANCE OR TRANSMISSION, PICTURE AVAILABILITY WOULD BE POSTPONED ACCORDINGLY. WHENEVER THERE IS SPECIFIC WORD AVAILABLE ON PROSPECTS, WHICH PROBABLY WILL NOT BE UNTIL AFTER THE EVENT, YOU WILL BE KEPT CLOSELY ADVISED.

OPA REACTION

NEW YORK, JUNE 29-(AP)-F.H.LAGUARDIA, UNRRA DIRECTOR, TODAY TERMED PRESIDENT TRUMAN'S VETO OF THE OPA BILL AS "REAL LEADERSHIP.

"ALL CONSUMERS, AND PARTICULARLY THE HEADS OF FAMILIES," LAGUARDIA SAID, "WILL FEEL RELIEVED FROM A MENACE THAT HAS THREATENED THEM FOR THE LAST SEVERAL WEEKS. M X

"THIS IS REAL LEADERSHIP. CONGRESS NOW SHOULD EXTEND OPA FOR ONE YEAR WITHOUT FRILLS AND FLUKES, WITHOUT JOKERS AND JAZZ--A STRAIGHT EXTENSION OF PRICE CONTROL, RETAINING ALL NECESSARY SUBSIDIES."

N233PED

(ADVANCE) WASHINGTON, JUNE 29-(AP)-PRESIDENT TRUMAN DISCLOSED TONIGHT THAT HE HAS ASKED ATTORNEY GENERAL CLARK TO INVESTIGATE "SOME OF THE FACTORS INVOLVED IN OUR PRESENT SHORTAGES" TO DETERMINE WHETHER ANY-ONE IS "CRIMINALLY RESPONSIBLE," AND TO PLACE THE RESPONSIBILITY.

THE PRESIDENT TOSSED THAT DISCLOSURE INTO A RADIO ADDRESS TO THE PEOPLE EXPLAINING WHY HE VETOED THE OPA EXTENSION BILL. HE MENTIONED IT ONLY "INCIDENTALLY."

BUT HE SAID THAT WITHHOLDING OF GOODS FROM CONSUMERS WOULD BE "MULTIPLIED THOUSANDS OF TIMES" UNDER PROVISIONS OF THE VETOED LEGISLATION.

A93WX

IT IS NO MERE THEORY, MR.TRUMAN ASSERTED, THAT NOBODY WANTS TO SELL GOODS THIS WEEK IF HE CAN GET A BETTER PRICE NEXT WEEK. HE SAID THE PEOPLE HAD SEEN THIS WORKING FOR A MONTH OR SO AS THE IDEA AROSE THAT PRICE CONTROLS SOON MIGHT END.

APPROPRIATIONS-UNRRA

WASHINGTON, JUNE 29-(AP)-THE USUAL FISCAL YEAR-END APPROPRIATION LOG-JAM CROWDED CONGRESS TODAY, COMPLICATED BY A "NO NEWS--NO CASH" AMENDMENT ADDED BY THE HOUSE TO AN UNRRA SUPPLY BILL.

MORE THAN HALF A DOZEN MAJOR SUPPLY MEASURES CARRYING AN ESTIMATED $15,000,000,000 TO FINANCE A SCORE OF FEDERAL AGENCIES DURING THE NEW GOVERNMENT YEAR STARTING NEXT MONDAY PILED UP IN THE SENATE AND THE HOUSE.

BOTH BRANCHES CONVENED EARLY AS THEIR LEADERS LED A DOGGED DRIVE TO PROVIDE FOR A NEW FISCAL YEAR BEFORE MIDNIGHT TICKS AWAY THE OLD YEAR--TOMORROW BEING A GOVERNMENT HOLIDAY.

THERE WAS LITTLE DOUBT THAT THE FISCAL HURDLE WOULD BE CLEARED IN TIME--BUT JUST IN CASE, A DEFICIENCY APPROPRIATION BILL PASSED SOME TIME AGO MADE PROVISION AGAINST "PAYLESS PAY-DAYS" FOR GOVERNMENT EMPLOYES IN THE EVENT OF A STALEMATE.

IT CARRIED A CLAUSE PERMITTING GOVERNMENT AGENCIES TO INCUR NORMAL OBLIGATIONS AFTER TODAY IN THE EVENT THEIR REGULAR APPROPRIATION BILLS ARE NOT ENACTED BEFORE THE NEW FISCAL YEAR STARTS.

NOT THE LARGEST BUT ONE OF THE MOST CONTROVERSIAL OF THE BILLS HANGING FIRE IS THE $724,271,909 DEFICIENCY MEASURE FINANCING, AMONG OTHER THINGS, FUTURE ACTIVITIES OF THE OFFICE OF PRICE ADMINISTRATION AND THE UNITED NATIONS RELIEF AND REHABILITATION ADMINISTRATION.

HOUSE REPUBLICANS TRIED HALF-HEARTEDLY AND WITHOUT SUCCESS TO LOP $26,650,000 FROM THE $106,650,000 OPA FUND.

30-29-3859

BUT, WITH SUBSTANTIAL DEMOCRATIC ASSISTANCE, THEY WROTE INTO THE $465,000,000 UNRRA ALLOTMENT A BAN AGAINST USE OF ANY OF THE MONEY FOR AID TO COUNTRIES NOT ALLOWING AMERICAN CORRESPONDENTS TO REPORT WITHOUT CENSORSHIP ON UNRRA OPERATIONS.

LABELED BY OPPONENTS AS "A SLAP AT RUSSIA," THE AMENDMENT ADMITTEDLY WAS AIMED AT UKRAINIA AND BYELORUSSIA, TWO SOVIET REPUBLICS WHICH, PRESIDENT TRUMAN REPORTED TO CONGRESS, HAVE NOT AGREED TO ALLOW AMERICAN CORRESPONDENTS TO REPORT WITHOUT CENSORSHIP ON UNRRA ACTIVITIES. THE HOUSE APPROVED IT BY A 228 TO 85 COUNT.

ITS CHANCES IN THE SENATE WERE DOUBTFUL. ONLY EIGHT MONTHS AGO THE SENATE REFUSED TO GO ALONG ON A SIMILAR AMENDMENT WRITTEN BY THE HOUSE INTO ANOTHER UNRRA BILL.

A73WX

JUST BEFORE SENDING THE BILL TO THE SENATE, THE HOUSE DISCARDED A PREVIOUSLY-APPROVED AMENDMENT BANNING USE OF ANY UNRRA FUNDS FOR SUPPLIES SHIPPED TO EUROPE AFTER NEXT DECEMBER 31 AND TO THE FAR EAST AFTER NEXT MARCH 31.

THE REVERSAL CAME AFTER F.H.LAGUARDIA, DIRECTOR OF UNRRA, THREATENED TO RESIGN HIS POST IF THE AMENDMENT BECAME LAW. IT WOULD BE IMPOSSIBLE TO ADMINISTER THE PROGRAM WITH SUCH A RESTRICTION, LAGUARDIA SAID IN A LETTER TO CHAIRMAN CANNON (D-MO) OF THE HOUSE APPROPRIATIONS COMMITTEE.

JUN 3 01946

SO THE HOUSE TOOK OUT THE AMENDMENT BY A VOTE OF 34 TO 33, LEAVING THE UNRRA FUNDS FREE FOR OBLIGATIONS UNTIL JUNE 30, 1947.

BESIDES THE DEFICIENCY BILL CARRYING THE UNRRA AND OPA MONEY, THESE OTHER MAJOR SUPPLY MEASURES AWAITED FINAL ACTION:

A GOVERNMENT CORPORATIONS BILL CARRYING INDEFINITE CASH ALLOTMENTS FOR BUDGETING THE ACTIVITIES OF MORE THAN A SCORE OF GOVERNMENT CORPORATIONS FINANCED OUT OF OPERATING INCOME.

A $1,150,000,000 LABOR DEPARTMENT-FEDERAL SECURITY BILL, WHICH INVOLVES CONTROVERSY OVER THE UNIONICATION OF FOREMEN AND OTHER SUPERVISORY WORKERS.

A $7,500,000,000 WAR DEPARTMENT MEASURE, WITH THE SENATE AND THE HOUSE A HALF BILLION DOLLARS APART.

A $4,119,000,000 NAVY BILL, WITH DIFFERENCES OVER FUNDS FOR TRAINING AND THE LOCATION OF A TORPEDO PLANT.

A $965,000,000 STATE-COMMERCE-JUSTICE DEPARTMENT BILL, WITH FUTURE OF THE STATE DEPARTMENT'S INTELLIGENCE SERVICE A BONE OF CONTENSION.

A $1,600,000,000 TREASURY-POSTOFFICE MEASURE, WITH THE PRICE OF SILVER STIRRING UP A SENATE-HOUSE CONTROVERSY.

(ADVANCE) WASHINGTON, JUNE 29-(AP)-SECRETARY OF THE NAVY FORRESTAL TODAY DIRECTED THE JUDGE ADVOCATE GENERAL OF THE NAVY TO PREPARE RECOMMENDATIONS FOR LEGISLATION TO MODERNIZE THE BASIC GOVERNMENT OF THE NAVY AND TO AUTHORIZE CHANGES IN THE COURT-MARTIAL PROCEDURE.

THE SECRETARY'S DIRECTIVE WAS BASED IN PART ON THE REPORT BY A BOARD HEADED BY ARTHUR A. BALLANTINE, NEW YORK ATTORNEY, WHICH HE HAD APPOINTED TO STUDY THE NAVY'S WARTIME ADMINISTRATION OF JUSTICE.

LIKEWISE THE SECRETARY'S DIRECTIVE WAS IN CONJUNCTION WITH THE DEDICATION PROGRAM OF THE UNITED STATES SCHOOL OF NAVAL JUSTICE AT PORT HUENEME, CALIF. IN ACCORD WITH THE BOARD'S RECOMMENDATION THAT MEN SHOULD BE TRAINED IN NAVAL JUSTICE PROCEDURE TWO MONTHS' CLASSES ARE BEING GIVEN 150 OFFICERS AND 50 YEOMEN THERE.

FORRESTAL CONCURRED WITH THE BOARD THAT RULES PRESCRIBING THE DUTIES OF THE TRIAL JUDGE ADVOCATE FOR COURT-MARTIAL SHOULD BE REVISED.

IT IS CONTEMPLATED THAT AN OFFICER QUALIFIED IN LAW AND SPECIALLY TRAINED WILL BE APPOINTED AS THE TRIAL JUDGE ADVOCATE TO ADVISE THE COURT, THE PROSECUTOR AND THE ACCUSED, IMPARTIALLY, ON ALL QUESTIONS OF LAW AND PROCEDURE. HERETOFORE, THE TRIAL JUDGE ADVOCATE HAS COMBINED THAT DUTY WITH HIS PROSECUTION JOB.

FORRESTAL ALSO INSTRUCTED REAR ADM. O.S. COLCLOUGH, JUDGE ADVOCATE GENERAL OF THE NAVY, TO UNDERTAKE IN COOPERATION WITH VICE ADM. LOUIS E. DENFELD, CHIEF OF NAVAL PERSONNEL, THE PROCUREMENT OF OFFICERS QUALIFIED IN LAW TO PERFORM LEGAL DUTIES IN THE JUDGE ADVOCATE'S OFFICE.

JUN 30 1946

ACTION ON OTHER RECOMMENDATIONS BY THE BALLANTINE BOARD WAS DEFERRED PENDING FURTHER STUDY AND A REPORT BY ANOTHER BOARD, HEADED BY PROF. ARTHUR J. KEEFFE OF CORNELL UNIVERSITY, WHICH IS REVIEWING THE SENTENCES OF ALL NAVAL PERSONNEL NOW IN PRISON WHO WERE TRIED AND SENTENCED BY GENERAL COURT-MARTIAL PRIOR TO SEPT. 1, 1945.

THE BALLANTINE REPORT RECOMMENDED THAT THE NAVY SET UP BOARDS OF REVIEW, COMPOSED OF AT LEAST ONE CIVILIAN WITH LEGAL BACKGROUND, ONE NAVAL LAWYER AND ONE OR MORE GENERAL SERVICE OFFICERS TO REVIEW SUCH CASES AS THE SECRETARY MIGHT SEND IT.

AN INCREASE IN THE POWERS OF THE SUMMARY COURTS-MARTIAL WAS RECOMMENDED. AT PRESENT A SUMMARY COURT IS AUTHORIZED TO AWARD SENTENCES OF CONFINEMENT N

MENDED. AT PRESENT A SUMMARY COURT IS AUTHORIZED TO AWARD SENTENCES OF CONFINEMENT NOT EXCEEDING TWO MONTHS AND LOSS OF PAY NOT EXCEEDING THREE MONTHS. THE COURT CAN GIVE A "BAD CONDUCT DISCHARGE."

ASSOCIATED PRESS SCIENCE REPORTER

SAN FRANCISCO, JUNE 29-(AP)-ATOMIC MEDICINE RESEARCHERS ARE LOOKING FOR RADIOACTIVE SUBSTANCES THAT WILL SEEK OUT AND KILL CANCER CELLS IN THE BODY IN MUCH THE SAME MANNER THAT SOME MILITARY PROJECTILES GUIDE THEMSELVES TO THEIR TARGETS.

ANOTHER OBJECT OF THE SCIENTIFIC HUNT IS AN ATOMIC PARTICLE THAT WILL PENETRATE DEEPLY INTO THE BODY AND THERE EXERT A FORCE AGAINST CANCER.

NEITHER OF THESE IS YET WITHIN REACH BUT THEORETICAL RESEARCH AND LABORATORY EXPERIMENTS HAVE BROUGHT THEM WITHIN THE REALM OF POSSIBILITY, DR. HARDIN B. JONES, UNIVERSITY OF CALIFORNIA PHYSIOLOGIST, TOLD THE AMERICAN RADIUM SOCIETY TODAY.

DR. JONES, WHO WORKS WITH A GROUP OF MEDICAL PHYSICS RESEARCHERS HEADED BY DR. JOHN H. LAWRENCE, SAID THERE WAS SOME HOPE FOR THE DEVELOPMENT OF COMPOUNDS ESSENTIAL, TO CELL GROWTH WITH BUILT-IN RADIOACTIVITY AND A PREFERENCE FOR CANCER TISSUE.

AS AN EXAMPLE HE CITED NUCLEIC ACID, ONE OF THE ESSENTIAL COMPOUNDS OF LIVING CELLS. RAPIDLY GROWING CELLS USE MORE NUCLEIC ACID THAN THE SLOWER GROWING CELLS. SINCE CANCER CELLS GROW FASTER THAN NORMAL CELLS, THEY USE MORE NUCLEIC ACID.

ANOTHER POSSIBILITY HE ADDED WOULD BE A 200,000,000-VOLT PROTON WHICH COULD PENETRATE THE BODY LIKE A BULLET BUT WOULD EXERT ITS LETHAL EFFECTS ONLY AFTER ARRIVING AT A GIVEN DEPTH.

DR. JONES SAID DR. R.R. WILSON, ATOM BOMB RESEARCHER NOW WORKING AT THE UNIVERSITY OF CALIFORNIA RADIATION LABORATORY, HAD MADE CALCULATIONS INDICATING THAT PROTONS OF EXTREMELY HIGH ENERGIES WOULD HAVE THIS PECULIAR DEPTH EFFECT.

THE PROTON HAS BEEN USED IN THE CYCLOTRON AS A BULLET TO SMASH OTHER ATOMS BUT NEVER HAS BEEN GIVEN SUFFICIENT VOLTAGE TO TEST DR. WILSON'S CALCULATIONS. CONFIRMATION OF THIS WORK AWAITS THE DEVELOPMENT OF SOME MACHINE THAT WILL GIVE THE PARTICLE A DRIVING FORCE EQUIVALENT TO 200,000,000 VOLTS.

Fires Break Out on Several Vessels, Carriers Hard Hit.

NEVADA STILL AFLOAT

Admiral Blandy Reports No Tidal Waves Accompanying Blast.

BY DON WHITEHEAD

ABOARD U.S.S. APPALACHIAN, off Bikini, Monday, July 1—(AP)—The first two waves of the non-target fleet re-entered Bikini lagoon today within three hours after the world's fourth atomic bomb sank two of the 73 guinea pig vessels, capsized a third and damaged 16 others.

The first to return were crewmen checking radioactivity of the possibly lethal waters, ships and islands, to establish safety before permitting the bulk of the working fleet to re-enter.

"Radiological activity was about as expected," a brief announcement said.

Bomb Bursts on Schedule

The Nagasaki-type bomb, with the flash and heat of 10,000 suns, burst in the air above the center of the deserted fleet at 9 a.m. (5 p. m. Sunday, E.S.T.) with a mass of flame that quickly sent a vast cloud column towering up 50,000 feet.

A task force spokesman announced at 11:15 a.m. (7:15 p.m. Sunday, E.S.T.) this toll:

Two transports, the Gilliam and Carlisle, sunk, the destroyer Lamson capsized, and the carrier Independence battered and burned, adrift and listing noticeably.

Heavily damaged were the Nazi heavy cruiser Prinz Eugen, the Japanese battleship Nagato, the cruiser Pensacola, the submarine Skate, the Japanese cruiser Sakawa, as well as the Independence.

Fires—reported no longer visible some three and a half hours after the blast, had been started aboard the gallant old carrier Saratoga, battleship Nevada, battleship New York, destroyer Wilson, and transports Briscoe, Niagara, Bladen, Banner, Butte and Cortland.

The task force command earlier had reported "moderate fires" aboard a half-dozen ships, shortly after the explosion.

Saratoga in Flames

Through big glasses on the flag bridge of the Mt. McKinley, Admiral Blandy's flagship, a staff officer reported flames on the veteran Saratoga's teak-planked flight deck seemed to be decreasing. He said he thought they might go out without the aid of fire-fighting crews, still waiting until it was radiologically safe to venture inside the lagoon to board her.

"I don't want to indicate the damage is very slight; we have to wait until we get inside the lagoon to see," he explained. "But I'm just reporting what I can see from this distance."

The Independence seemed most seriously damaged. Her superstructure was practically torn away, deck plates gouged up, and a piece of her stern had been blown away. She appeared to be listing as a result of the terrific blow of the bomb.

Nagato Heavily Damaged

One officer announced the German heavy cruiser Prinz Eugen and the Japanese battleship Nagato were heavily damaged—"this is a complete surprise to most of us," he added, "but it is an official report."

The Prinz Eugen had not been listed previously as crippled, and the Nagato at first was believed to have suffered only minor damage from the bomb.

Later information also transferred the cruiser Pensacola and the Japanese cruiser Sakawa to the heavily damaged category, and reported there had been flames noted aboard the battleship New York. Fires also were sighted aboard the transports Niagara, Bladen, Banner, Butte, and Cortland.

Within three and a half hours after the blast, however, reporters noted virtually no smoke rising anywhere in the target area.

Masts of several ships on the outer perimeter were bent sharply over or into a bow shape by the tremendous force.

The sound of the blast—a distinct boom—reached the Appalachian, 18 miles distant, about two and a half minutes later. With it came the shock wave. I noted a sudden, sharp pain in my ears, and felt the rush of the wind. But it was only a small, sharp shock—far from the wind anticipated by those who had heard descriptions of the New Mexico blast which swept men from their feet at 20 miles.

First reports from Vice Admiral W. H. P. Blandy, task force commander, cited this damage to the target fleet:

"The destroyer Lamson has capsized—several other ships appear to be damaged and the following ships have moderately small fires aboard: the Pensacola, the Japanese cruiser Sakawa, the carrier Independence, the carrier Saratoga, the transport Gilliam and one concrete oil barge. We cannot accurately determine extent of the damage until boarding crews enter the lagoon. There have been no tidal waves, no earthquakes. . ."

Promises More Details

He promised a more detailed report in 12 hours.

Some 34,000 military personnel, newsmen, scientists and observers at a safe distance aboard their ships watched the writhing, twisting column of lethal smoke shoot up from the shrouded target area.

When the balsing ball of fire and smoke rolled up from the horizon it was a pure white mass, boiling, rolling and surging toward the stratosphere.

At first the column was blocked from view of the Appalachian by a huge, white, fleecy cloud, but the cloud drifted away and there was one of the most magnificent sights ever seen by man.

Cloud Mushrooms

It had broken up into three mushrooms, with the great cap of it thousands of feet above the lagoon in a matter of 10 minutes. The colors were incredibly lovely. The center of the column was glowing rose, and the billowing edges of the cloud were creamy white, gradually suffused by a rose glow as it mounted into the blue heavens.

From planes circling the lagoon came word that some ships were smoking and possibly were ablaze out there in the lonely, deserted lagoon of ghost ships—now an area of death.

The bomb exploded exactly on time, and evidently fell dead over the center of the target fleet.

"The bomb drop was a success," Admiral Blandy reported quickly from his flagship.

The Appalachian was receiving reports from all parts of the fleet and from more than three-score planes in the air, photographing the explosion and making scientific recordings.

Many Disappointed

A super-thrilling spectacle, holding newsmen enthralled, the atomic blast was nevertheless a second-rate show.

"God, I'm disappointed," one man said after the first dazzling ball of fire broke from the horizon and rushed into the sky.

A terrific tension had been built up in onlookers waiting for the seconds to pass and the bomb to drop. Maj. Woodrow P. Swancutt sent his B-29 bomber, "Dave's Dream," on her first dry run across the lagoon at 8:30 a. m. After a second run Bombardier Maj. Harold H. Wood reported "weather okay for bombing."

The third was the live run—visibility unlimited.

Members of the ships' crews were permitted to come topside to see the column of smoke after the first flash.

Associated Press Correspondent Paul K. Lee radioed from the observation ship Panamint that through black goggles the flash was disappointingly faint—"like a distant flash of lightning."

Sees Television Show

Howard W. Blakeslee, Associated Press science writer watching the target fleet on a television screen aboard the Appalachian, saw all capital ships still afloat after the blast. Some observers, however, declared they believed the explosion greater than that of the first atomic bomb—tested in New Mexico.

More than an hour after the explosion, fires were observed burning in the lagoon and one was seen breaking out on Bikini island.

Reports of the ship fires were fragmentary and without confirmation, beyond Admiral Blandy's brief preliminary report.

There was no indication of any casualty in any part of the vastly complicated test.

Just how successful the test was cannot be determined, of course, until scientists and observers are able to re-enter the lagoon which they began evacuating yesterday.

Drone boats carrying instruments to gauge radioactivity in the area have withdrawn from the lagoon, but as yet there has been no report on what their instruments recorded on the lethal rays generated by nuclear fission.

An hour after the explosion, the mushroom cap of the radioactive cloud was drifting slowly to the southwest, but it was not visible from this ship.

The Appalachian steamed toward Bikini after the explosion and at 11 miles, those aboard could see the palms and steel towers still standing. None of the towers, in which television and radar instruments were encased, had been blown down or fused by the terrific heat of the explosion.

The intense ball of fire which formed the heart of the burst registered more than 100,000,000 degrees Farenheit, scientists asserted. It did not appear large and quickly mushroomed into the rising cloud.

Delayed Half Hour

The test had been delayed a half hour.

Blandy set back the time apparently because of weather conditions, as the great fleet of observation ships moved out of the way of the bomb.

"The test is on," Blandy announced last night as the hour for possible last-minute cancellation swung past.

High altitude winds, which radiologists had been watching with a wary eye, began swinging from the northwest and quarter, and meteorologists predicted they probably would be blowing safely from the northwest—away from the watching fleet—by "bombs away" time. It had to be certain no contamination from the poisonous cloud would drop on the non-target fleet or on inhabited islands of the Marshalls.

Oceans Currents Studied

Long scrutiny also had to be made of ocean currents to be sure no radioactive water would drift onto shores of islands where people are living.

Through the night, the experts kept tabs on the wind by sending up balloons with electric lanterns. The good weather was expected to continue for about 36 hours.

The bomb, covered with canvas, was hauled on a large truck to the canvas-covered loading ramp late yesterday morning. All traffic was prohibited as the bomb was moved slowly along the two-mile rout to the bomber. When it was put aboard the Superfortress, the crew got its first look at the weapon.

This greatest military experiment in history—already it had bost more than $70,000,000 exclusive of the bomb's value — culminated years of research in the field of nuclear fission. Technicians had spent weeks making delicate adjustments in the vast assortment of listing, measuring and recording devices. (AP)

Pilot Tells How Crew Got Set to Drop the Bomb

1946

Each Had His Own Lucky Piece, and Confidence in His Ability to Do the Job

By Maj. Woodrow P. Swancutt

Pilot of the Atomic Bomber Dave's Dream

KWAJALEIN, July 1 (Monday) (AP).—This is the day we've worked, prayed and waited for for four months.

In just three hours Woody (Major Harold H. Wood, bombardier), will drop the atom bomb over Bikini. We know he will score a bullseye. I don't think it ever occurs to him that he could miss.

What's the toughest spot on this flight? It's flying the way the navigator, radar operator and bombardier want the plane flown. But I or co-pilot Captain William C. Harrison can hold it right on the designated air speed.

Superstitious? No. None of us is but some of us have good-luck pieces. Mine is a dirty old towe I've packed around for ten years It's never been washed. A friend gave it to me in my home town, Wisconsin Rapids, Wis., when I was boxing. I wore it on my head to warm up and into the ring.

It got to be well known in Wisconsin. One time I left it off and I lost an intercollegiate match at Pennsylvania. Next year I met the same boxer at Wisconsin. I was wearing the towel and I knocked him out.

I wore it when I won the national intercollegiate middleweight championships in 1939. When the Wisconsin field house burned everything burned except that towel.

"I've had it on every one of my forty-nine combat missions. I use it as a seat cover and never take it from the plane.

Woody doesn't carry any good-luck piece. He used to have an old cigarette lighter but sent it to the factory for repairs. He's our champion slot-machine player though. We call him "lemon bar."

Bill Adams (navigator) carries a silver Indian rupee, but he says it's for luck in matching for drinks.

Captain Harrison carries a silver dollar, or what's left of it. He says it's about the size of a nickel now from bouncing it on runways. It's a habit he started in B-17 school, waiting hours for take-offs.

Lieutenant Robert M. Glenn (flight engineer) carries his wife's picture, his nephew's baby shoes and a thing he calls a battered penny. A little girl ran to him at the port of embarkation at Muroc, Calif., handed it to him and said it was a good-luck piece. It looks like a piece of copper run over by a train.

Capt. Paul Chenchar jr. (radar operator) simply carries a rosary.

I've got a veteran crew I'm proud of. Six have a total of 239 missions in every war theater. Technical Sergeant Zack W. Cothran (radio operator) tops all with seventy-four, Adams has fifty-five, Glenn twenty-nine, Wood twenty-four, Chenchar eight, and I have forty-nine.

We've got the best plane I've ever flown. It's got personality plus. Dave's Dream is the only plane that ever talked back to me.

It knows it's not being mistreated. We turned down three planes before we accepted this one. It handles beautifully—smooth as silk—all the way through. (AP) guarded by four riflemen. At the side of the ramp, toward our plane, stood a fire engine with emergency equipment.

Original plans, calling for us to take off seven minutes after the bomb carrier, and to follow it to the target, were changed at the last minute. Our plane was ordered airborne first, so the method would be provided to report to the world any misadventure to the atomci bomb the bomb carrier and to Kwajalein if "Dave's dream" crashed in taking og.

Lining each side of the runway every sort. Fire, we had been told in repeated briefings, was the primary hazard to the bomb which would not explode from the crash alone.

From the expressions on the faces of the firefighters observed as we eased up the taxi strip, they took their assignments seriously.

We took og directly into the spectacular sunrise. The sun itself was coming up behind a thunderhead from which long yellow streamers of light radiated across the horizon. A rainbow arched over Kwajalein behind us.

Plane Gets Off Safely

We had an anxious minute or two on the intercom until word came from our radio man that the plane carrying the bomb was safely in the air, 18 minutes behind us.

Fifyt feet ahead of me, toward the nose of the plane, the head and shoulders of William Downs, radio broadcaster, extend into the astral dome of the aircraft. He has an unobstructed view in all directions, superior to the view from the nose phone headset connected with all other positions in the plane.

At my feet and to the left as I face astern is a radio teletype, from which this dispatch is sent through automatic relays aboard the U.S.S. Appalachian and on Guam to San Francisco.

At my feet on the opposite side of the plane sits John Carlisle, elected by all the special correspondents to write the featurized story of the bomb drop for pooled distribution. He has access to the left and right gun blisters. His typewriter is mounted on a wooden box.

We all wear parachutes over Mae West life preservers, a bulky combination to handle in connection with portable typewriters, earphones and the midnight-black goggles whcih have been issued as a protection against both radiation and glare at the moment of detonation. So dense are these glasses that the sun is barely discernable through them.

Arrive at Bikini

At 6:50 a.m., we arrived over our orbit point at Bikini. The sky seems entirely clear over the atoll, with cloud banks obligingly rolled back on all sides.

At 7:10 we swung over the doomed fleet, 73 vessels quietly awaiting fury from the sky. The old Nevada stands out clearly as the bullseye. There is no movement of ships or small boats—no sign of life in the lagoon. Apparently evacuation has been completed and the ships await their fate alone.

We will continue to circle the target until the bomber is ready for its practice run some time after 8 o'clock.

At 8 o'clock we are steadily circling the target array in 16-mile long swings.

When we cross Bikini island or the reef of the lagoon we pass over a broken overcast of white fluffy clouds. While we are over the lagoon itself and the target vessels it is usually wholly clear and sunny.

Of the 72 other aircraft which will be traversing various other orbits in the area we have so far seen only one—a navy torpedo bomber which passed us like an arrow.

At our elevation of 7,000 feet we are seldom in any cloud formation.

We have moved eastward over the open ocean now and are flying above the ships of Joint Task Force One, including the command ship Appalachian which is receiving our radio broadcasts and press transmission. Feathery trails in the water astern indicate these vessels are all under steerage way.

Bomber Reaches Target

At 8:12 a. m. the intercom tells us the bombing plane is now over the target for the first practice run. We strain our eyes and catch a fleeting glimpse of flashing reflected light high in the sky. We are staying clear of the lagoon now.

The executioners are sighting their guns on the historic old Nevada, which has 17 minutes to live—or is she stronger than the scientists have calculated?

On the intercom we hear a voice from far off: "Hello Broadway One. The target area is clear. The target area is clear."

We are flying in tight circles over the task force now.

The air is full of communications from the control ship to the bombing plane.

At 8:25 these communications terminate and the bombing tone is tested. It sounds like a shrill version of a busy signal on an automatic telephone. When started on the bombing run it will continue until the contact is broken by the dropping bomb itself unless the bombardier changes his mind at the last moment.

The scene below is a quiet pastel of blues and white. Deep blue sea, milder blue sky, soft white clouds. An oddly peaceful backdrop for the greatest explosive charge ever contrived by man.

At 8:30 we hear "Broadway One" tell "Abraham" that he hopes to drop the atomic bomb in 20 minutes.

"This is Broadway One announcing the actual bombing run."

Major Russel Ireland, in charge of our B-29, made each of the 17 men aboard inspect and tighten his parachute.

Ready for Explosion

A bell rang and we put on black glasses. They were so black that we could see nothing at all through them. The flash of the atomic bomb exploding did not penetrate. Another bell rang in the airplane and we took off the glasses.

Observer in B-29 Describes Tense Moment As Atom Bomb Bursts Among Target Ships

1946

By FRANK H. BARTHOLOMEW

ABOARD B-29 PRESS-RADIO OBSERVATION AIRPLANE OVER BIKINI, Monday, July 1—(AP) I saw an airplane with a deadly cargo waiting poised on a ramp paralleling the airstrip at Kwajalein at dawn today.

In front of it, a rubber-tired tractor waited, motor running, to ease the atomic bomb carrier and its sensitive cargo down the incline and into position for the takeoff.

Our press radio observation plane, twin of the bomb carrier, taxied to the head of the runway at 5:15 a.m.

Bomber Guarded

Maj. Woodrow P. Swancutt's bomber, 100 feet to our right, was of the plane, which offers visibility in three directions only.

I am high in a revolving seat in the central fire control dome, in which in combat operations sits the spotter for all other gun positions in the aircraft. My seat swings in a full circle. My head and shoulders are 18 inches above the top of the aircraft, protected by the plastic dome. I have a tele-

JUN 2 1946

30-29-38

A small, coffee-colored column was shooting up into the sky to the west, a third of the way to our horizon.

We waited for the sound of the explosion. It did not come.

The roar of our four great engines drowned it out. Ther was no shockwave, either; our plane had been maneuvered skillfully.

We grinned at one another. Seventeen men in one airplane above the blast were still alive and kicking; we hoped silently that those aboard the 70-odd aircraft in the area had shared our good luck.

Reassurance came over the interphone:

"No casualties reported thus far."

The cloud now is spun out in 11 ziz-zag angles from the water up to an elevation of perhaps 40,000.

Cloud Covers Ships

We are crossing over the Bikini reef at 9:04 a. m. The base of the atomic cloud seems to cover all ships in the target array. We cannot tell yet what has happened to the vessels themselves.

At 9:06 the cloud is separating into two mushrooms superimposed on each other. The topmost is assuming a creamy yellow color, the bottom one pure white.

We wheel in close again and I can see a score of the target array still afloat. None seem to be afire.

I cannot see the Nevada.

The great cloud, base and all, is moving westward across the lagoon.

At 9:13 a second cloud is seen forming perhaps a mile away from the base of the first. Whether it is from an exploding ship or an offshoot of the atomic blast itself we cannot yet tell.

The atomic cloud is thinning out, losing definite outline. It is now 9:16 a. m.—a quarter of an hour since the detonation.

The base of the cloud is being blown westward across the entrance of Bikini lagoon. The top of the cloud, however, seems to hover stationary either directly over the target fleet or perhaps move slowly in our direction to the east.

The vast column now is ragged and Z-shaped. The top mushroom is attached by a thin, tenious fog-like connection to the lower column.

At 9:15 the base of the column seemed to be boiling up with renewed vigor. We are now at the far end of our orbit off Bikini and cannot tell whether the turbulence is due to exploding or burning ships. Natural clouds are interposing. We turn back on our course toward Bikini once more at 9:21 a. m.

Drones Hover Nearby

We can now see the drones hovering about the cloud. Whether they are mother ships awaiting their lost children or the pilotless planes themselves we do not know.

The atomic cloud is still the lowgest in the whole panorama of sea and island below us but no longer dominates. The natural clouds now, an hour after the atomic detonation, are of firmer outline and substance. However, the atomic cloud reaches out curiously like an octopus, with vague, dark tentacles everywhere against the eastern sky.

It is going to be an increasingly difficult job for the task force ships below and the aircraft flying with us to keep out from under those long, vague, angular extensions.

We are closer to the top of the cloud now than we have ever been, and are sheering away from an additional margin of safety, but we are bound for our Kwajalein base and many miles from the scene of the detonation.

Observers Are Disappointed In Explosion Of Atomic Bomb

JUN 1946

By PAUL J. LEE
[Associated Press Correspondent]

Aboard U.S.S. Panamint, off Bikini, Monday, July 1 (AP)—Black smoke rose from Bikini Lagoon today, minutes after the atomic bomb dropped, indicating fire on at least one of the target vessels.

Through black goggles, the flash was disappointingly faint—like a distant flash of lightning.

Then a narrow, pink-stemmed pink cloud mushroomed rapidly upward. Ninety seconds later, a low rumble was heard. It sounded like a thunderstorm, or naval gunfire at a great distance.

Observers Disappointed

Observers agreed in expressing disappointment in the atom bomb burst insofar as the spectacle was concerned.

Representative Gillespie (R., Col.) said he had expected much more brilliance and a heavy blast after having viewed pictures and read about the previous three bombs.

Capt. Stanhope C. Ring, of Coronado, Cal., who took the Saratoga to its target position, also expressed some surprise.

A scientific observer, Dr. W. M. Wilson, of Urbana, Ill., said the explosion was "less than I'd expected."

All Watch Cloud

Similar expressions were heard on every side, but all eagerly scanned the great mushroom cloud which rose like a pink fountain, fanned out into a creamy head at an estimated 50,000 feet and then slowly turned a bluish-pink and rosy orange after rising through a layer of cumulous clouds.

"Small practical results, I fear," said Prof. Semyon Alexandrov, Russian observer, after witnessing the bombing.

"If we had been say, four or five miles from the target, it might have seemed more spectacular," he added. (ADD)

PACIFIC AIRLINERS HALT DURING TEST

C. JUN 1946

KWAJALEIN, June 30—(AP) As a precaution against radioactive dangers all transPacific air service will be halted during the atom bomb test, except on the Aleutians route.

The restricted area extends from Guam to Honolulu.

Effective about sunset tonight every plane in this area will be grounded except Army and Navy craft actually engaged in the test operation. The grounding will remain efective for at least 12 hours after detonation of the bomb. It will be lifted only after the cloud-chasers report all clear.

The cloud-chasers are two B-29s assigned to track the huge mushroom of the explosion until it dissipates or until nightfall Monday. It is possible that the grounding may be extended to 48 hours, but that is not expected.

More than 40 "VIPs" (very important persons), including Maj. Gen. George C. Kenney, chief of the Pacific air command; Brig. Gen. Curtis E. Lemay, Vice Adm. John H. Hoover and more than a score of aides, were briefed tonight on the test mission. They donned life-jackets, went through bailing-out procedure and were fitted with parachutes.

Air-sea rescue units will remain within a few miles of Bikini throughout the critical period of the test.

Anticipating the arrival of VIPs—more than 300 arrived on Friday alone—Navy men with a sense of humor painted on the door of their quarters the sign VUP (the U standing for unimportant.)

BIKINI TELEVISION SHOWS NO MOTION

JUN 1946

Target Ships Appear Unhurt at Instant of Atomic Blast—Huge Spray Shoots Up

H. Blakeslee

ABOARD U. S. S. APPALACHIAN, Off Bikini, Monday, July 1 (AP)—In the television screen, there was no visible motion among the target ships at the instant the atomic blast hit from overhead.

Momentarily, everything was blotted out by a huge spray of water that rose hundreds of feet and pitched toward the television tower nearly three miles distant on Bikini Island.

Bikini's palm trees, two inches tall in the near foreground of the screen, did not even appear to sway in the blast. They did not burn or fall, nor did any of their great, graceful branches droop or wither.

The spray lasted only fifteen or twenty seconds and then cleared, leaving all ships apparently intact. Great clouds of smoke, but not much steam, then covered the target fleet. This smoke blew rapidly away.

The Bikini Island dock appeared to be undamaged, and the indistinct television view indicated the blast did not do much damage to any part of the island. Speculation before the blast had led to the expectation that the island might suffer heavily. (ADD)

TWO SHIPS OF FOE STUDIED FOR BLAST

JUN 1946

The Pennsylvania and Sakawa Provide Test of Welding in Naval Construction

JUN 1946

ABOARD U. S. S. MOUNT McKINLEY, Monday, July 1 (AP)—Military men and scientists are eager to examine the effects of today's atomic-bomb blast on two former enemy ships, the German heavy cruiser Prinz Eugen and the Japanese light cruiser Sakawa, in the target fleet.

The two will receive special attention because they were of modern, welded steel construction. Of the American target vessels only the carrier Independence was similarly constructed.

Welding is accepted by many ship designers as far superior to the earlier rivet method of building ship hulls, both in strength and flexibility. These factors will be of importance because the blast was a crushing blow, delivered over the whole area of the vessels.

The third captured enemy vessel in the target fleet, the Japanese battleship Nagato, was a mass of wreckage before the atomic bomb went to work. American naval aviators plastered the ship during the war.

What the explosion did to United States submarines left surfaced during the test also will be of particular interest to the investigators. If the submarines are still in shape, they will probably be submerged for the underwater atomic bomb test, to be held soon.

FUNEREAL QUIET NOTED ON SHIPS

ABOARD U.S.S. PANAMINT AT BIKINI, June 30—(AP) Three congressmen today paid sentimental farewell visits to their home state battleships, the U.S.S. New York, Pennsylvania and Arkansas, as the atomic bomb target fleet was being abandoned to its fate.

The congressmen were John J. Rooney of New York, Michael J. Bradley of Pennsylvania and W. F. Norrell of Arkansas.

The Arkansas of Pennsylvania will be abandoned before dawn tomorow but Rep. Rooney was aboard for the actual abandonment of the New York and was the last man to leave her.

Before leaving the ship, Capt. Lowe H. Bibby walked to the fantail of the New York, hauled down the Stars and Stripes, reverently folded the flag and handed it to Rooney as a parting memento.

Then with a piece of chalk the captain carefully lettered on a gun turret "Old sailers never die." With glistening eyes he turned to Rooney and said:

"That sign will still be there this time tomorrow."

A red and yellow striped target flag was run to the mast and with a farewell salute Captain Bibby stepped down the gangway leaving Rooney the honor of being the last man off the ship.

"It was like a funeral," said Rooney. "A ship that had been so alive suddenly seemed dead, peopled by ghosts. I felt a little chill."

Bradley got the Pennsylvania flag but it was not the one from the taffrail.

Blast Not Shown On Seismographs

JUN 1946

Honolulu, June 30 (AP)—No visible effect of the atomic bomb explosion at Bikini was recorded by the University of Hawaii seismograph, Lieut. Com. L. C. Wilder, of the United States Coast and Geodetic Survey, said today.

[In Berkeley, the University of California seismograph similarly recorded no tremor from the atomic blast.]

[The seismographs at the Dominion Astrophysical Observatory at Victoria, B.C., and at the University of Washington in Seattle also failed to indicate any disturbance.]

BIKINI CLEARED FOR A-BOMB BLAST

JUN 1946

ABOARD U.S.S. PANAMINT, Bikini Lagoon, June 30—(AP) Like the Arabs, Bikini's recreation clubs folded their tents and stole away tonight—but they planned to be back for new stands at the same old location right after Monday's bomb explosion.

Gear of the recreational spots was loaded onto landing craft leaving the lagoon.

The target ships were being abandoned according to rigid schedule. One by one they ran up the yellow and red striped flags denoting they were deserted. On the beach military police jeeped about making sure that no heedless individual was left behind. Observation planes circled low over the island for the same purpose.

Then when all were clear the observer ships and transports for the target crews headed slowly seaward through the channel to take up their stations to witness the historic occasion tomorrow.

VARIATIONS REPORTED IN A-BOMB STRENGTH

JUN 1946

BIKINI, June 30—(AP) Fred Searles of President Truman's atomic evaluation commission said today it was impossible to make two atom bombs of exactly the same strength.

But he added that the commission had the written assurance from the man who made both of the Bikini bombs that as nearly as possible they were replicas of the bomb dropped at Nagasaki.

BOMBING WENT AS EXPECTED, CREWMEN SAY

JUN 1946

But Shock Wave Jarred Ship, Giving Colonel Cut Under Eye

New York, June 30 (AP)—Crew members of the B-29 which dropped the atom bomb over Bikini described tonight in an NBC broadcast how the white clouds rushed up towards their plane and soared above it, and how the big ship jarred and shook in the "shock wave" of the explosion.

Major Woodrow P. Swancutt, pilot, said:

"We had no bad moments. Everything went as we expected. The most tense moment, I believe, was about fifteen seconds before 'bombs away,' and after the breakaway, when we were awaiting the shock wave."

Only casualty of the trip was Col. John R. Sutherland, bomb commander, who suffered a slight cut under his eye.

Was Watching Light

"I was watching through the drift sight when the shock wave hit the plane and pushed the sight up into my face," he said.

Sutherland said there was no damage done in the air—it was "all on the surface." The cloud passed the plane about three minutes after the explosion, he said.

JUN 1946

Major Harold Wood, the bombardier, was asked what he saw when the bomb was detonated.

"A straight flash," Wood said. "I didn't see anything else. We were able to see that (the cloud) about three minutes after detonation. The cloud was to our left and was well past our altitude."

Worried About Target

Was he worried about perhaps missing the target?

"Well, I guess—to be truthful—I was," Wood admitted. "That's always a bombardier's headache."

Sitting in the tail with an excellent view of the explosion, was Col. William Blanchard, commanding officer of the air attack unit of the 58th Wing.

"I think the most interesting thing was the way the snow-white cloud came up toward the plane—watching it come up toward us. It was rather a terrific sight to watch as it came."

Blanchard said the shock wave was not "as bad as a good thunderhead draft over the harbor or something of that nature."

"It came so quickly, and was so fast," he said, "that it rather surprised us all."

Lerner Decries Atom Bomb Test

Cincinnati, June 30 (AP)—Max Lerner, political writer for PM, New York newspaper, today told the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People that results of the atom bomb tests, made shortly after he spoke, "might well prove that 140,000,000 people responsible for it are dancing a collective dance to death."

Lerner substituted for Chester Bowles, who resigned Friday as Economic Stabilization Director, at a mass meeting in the University of Cincinnati's Nippert Stadium concluding the N.A.A.C.P.s' annual convention. Bowles telegraphed his regrets at being unable to attend, but gave no reason.

The meeting was attended by Joe Louis, heavyweight champion, who acknowledged the cheers of an estimated 6,500 by declaring:

"I am very happy to be here. I think we should all get behind the N.A.A.C.P. 100 per cent."

Lerner said the atom bomb tests "might also prove that we so-called civilized people actually still are not very far removed from savages," and added:

"I say that the $500,000,000 (CQ) being used to finance the tests should have been put toward controlling the use of it or toward remedying the veterans housing situation or some other humane measure. . . ."

Bomb Test Causes Suicide

Los Angeles, June 30 (AP)—Police reported that Susanah Gregory, 23-year-old registered nurse, leaped to her death from the roof of a thirteen-story apartment building today. Mrs. R. L. Garlich, an aunt whom the nurse was visiting, told police Miss Gregory became visibly depressed by the radio broadcast of the Bikini atom bomb test "and feared for the future of the world."

in the face of abuse from their fascist countrymen. Now the remnants of these same fascists are saying: 'You see; we were right.'

"Maestro Toscanini feels so much saddened that he cannot undertake the concert and considers that it would be wrong for the orchestra to travel abroad in the present state of feeling x x x."

The announcement said Toscanini regarded the concert as merely postponed.

Toscanini Bars London Concert Because of 'Big Four' Decisions

LONDON, June 30. — (AP) Orchestra conductor Arturo Toscanini today telephoned his regrets to London that he would not conduct a symphony concert by Milan's La Scala orchestra at Covent Garden Wednesday and voiced disappointment with Britain's role at the foreign ministers' conference in handing over north Italian communes to France.

Toscanini canceled yesterday a concert by La Scala's orchestra scheduled for Sunday in Paris.

The Covent Garden box office said 100,000 persons had applied for tickets for the garden's 2,800 seats.

Officials of London's Music and Drama society, quoting a statement they said the Italian conductor had telephoned from Milan, announced:

"The decision of the Paris conference of the foreign ministers of the 'Big Four' regarding the French-Italian frontier has deeply shocked him and all other truly democratic Italians and made them look forward with grave disquiet to future decisions in which democratic Italy feels vitally interested.

"He and all of them who have worked so hard to create again a real democratic Italy had cherished the conviction that, having succeeded, they could rely on the great British democratic government to help them and to spare them humiliation.

"He and they have always strived and upheld the cause of friendship between the two countries, often

(In Milan, Spokesman for La Scala said Toscanini would leave there to return to North America around Aug. 15. He added that the maestro would return to Milan in November to open the opera season. The same spokesman said that the La Scala management was still negotiating to hold in Luzerne or Geneva, Switzerland, the concerts that were to have been given in Paris and London.)

RUSSIA REDUCES PRICES 40 PCT.

LONDON, June 30—(AP) The Moscow radio announced tonight that consumer goods prices throughout the Soviet Union would be cut an average of 40 percent. The announcement was made shortly before the termination of all federal price controls in the United States.

NIGHT

The broadcast said the price cut, effective next Tuesday, was ordered by the Ministry of Trade of the U.S.S.R.

"Lowering of prices applies to industrially manufactured goods," the broadcast said, giving these typical reductions:

Shoes 42 percent, wool textiles 45 percent, silk textiles 50 percent, cotton fabric 38 percent, dresses 43 percent, toilet soap 46 percent.

Present prices of the articles were not given.

U.S. Will Support Siam's Bid For U.N. Action in Border Fight

L. Hayek

NEW YORK, June 30 (AP) The United States will support a full hearing for Siam before the United Nations Security council on its border [illegible] NIGHT French Indo-China and further will back Siam's application for U.N. membership, a spokesman for the U. S. delegation said today.

Siam's parliament has decided to officially submit the case to the world agency and reports from Bangkok said a delegation would come here in July. A Siamese commission, meanwhile, was preparing a history of the border controversies dating from the era of French colonial expansion in the 19th century.

The U. S. spokesman thus anticipated that this question would be the next big one going before the council, now in recess after its harrowing sessions on the Spanish question.

Herschel Johnson, U. S. delegate, indicated he expected the Siamese case to come before the council and remarked:

"This is a case that would take a good deal of study. The disputed territory along the border was awarded to Siam with the help of Japan, and therefore the transfer is not recognized."

Regarding the membership application, awaiting council action along with others from Albania and Outer Mongolia, delegate Dr. Quo Tai-Chi of China said his country, Great Britain and India would join with the United States in endorsing the bid.

However, Siam was not expected to await action on the application. She is allowed as a non-member to bring her complaint before the council merely by formalizing charges against France and accepting in advance "the obligations of a Pacific settlement."

Siam first drew the case to the attention of the U.N. last month with contentions that French forces remained on her soil. (400)

ITALY SENDS PLEA TO PARIS PARLEY

J. Dynan

PARIS, June 30. — (AP) Premier Alcide de Gasperi of Italy sent a "last appeal" to the foreign ministers council today asking that Italy be given a hearing before any action is taken on Trieste.

The ministers, in recess today, are slated to resume discussions tomorrow on the Adriatic port, claimed by both Italy and Yugoslavia.

A Rom[illegible] said the De-NIGHT Gasperi had telegraphed the council a plea that "Italy's voice be heard," in view of a proposed French compromise on Trieste which "transforms radically the approach to the problem."

De Gasperi said that the compromise—which would establish the city as an autonomous region under international guidance for 10 years—would "cast aside" the principles recognized as "equitable and reasonable" by the ministers at their first meeting in London.

"In critical hours for my country, I beg you not to neglect this last appeal I send you, trusting to your equity, and pressed by the anguished anxiety of all Italians," the message said.

An American informant said that the council's decision yesterday on the future of the Italian fleet would allow Italy to retain 41 units and many other auxiliary craft.

He declined to reveal the names of the ships, but said they did not include any of the newer, larger battleships. The names of the ships apparently are being kept secret because of fears that the vessels might be scuttled by their Italian crews.

It was reported that the Italians would retain two battleships, four destroyers, 16 torpedo boats and 19 corvettes, besides the auxiliaries.

A special naval committee of technicians has been instructed to list ships which will be given to Yugoslavia and Greece. The surplus will be divided equally among the United States, Britain, France and Russia, under an agreement adopted previously by the ministers. (1100)

UNRRA And Russia

Berlin, June 30 (AP)—Marshall MacDuffie, of New York, chief of the UNRRA mission in the Ukraine, said today that he had resigned in protest against action by the United States House of Representatives to prohibit the use of relief funds in any country which censors news accounts of UNRRA activities.

MacDuffie made public a radiogram from F. H. LaGuardia, director general of UNRRA, accepting his resignation and stating: "I assure you I will fight on for continuation of relief to the Ukraine and Byelo-Russia." NIGHT

American correspondents visiting these regions of Soviet Russia must submit their stories through the usual censorship channels in order to transmit them from Moscow.

Insists Russians Co-Operate

MacDuffie, who stopped here for medical treatment en route home, has contended that the Russians have not restricted correspondents' movements and have given UNRRA workers every co-operation. He said LaGuardia told him:

"I agree that all your statements are correct, and I am in here fighting for everything you say. I am sorry I am constrained to accept your resignation, but I can assure you I am confident there will be no curtailment of the Ukraine-Byelo-Russian program. There will be no broken promises, and I am going to fight it through on the firing line right up to that time."

714,187 D. P.s To Be Screened By U.N.R.R.A.

Recheck Seeks to Eliminate Ineligible Relief Cases; Polish Jews Still Arrive

O. DeFree

FRANKFURT, Germany, June 30 (AP)—Lieutenant General Sir Frederick E. Morgan, chief of United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration Operations in Germany, announced today a strict rescreening of the 714,187 displaced persons in the western zones of occupation to eliminate those ineligible for U. N. R. R. A. care. NIGHT

In new instructions clarifying the displaced persons problem, Morgan made it plain, however, that Polish Jews are entitled to U. N. R. R. A. assistance regardless of when they left their homeland. Polish Jews are now arriving from the East at the rate of about 10,000 a month, and an U. N. R. R. A. spokesman in Berlin said the rate is expected to increase to 16,000 a month.

Displaced persons camps in the American zone have shouldered the entire task of accommodating the news arrived Jews. The British Military government has refused to allow displaced persons to enter the British zone.

Morgan's directive was issued at the request of the U. N. R. R. A. Council, international governing body of the relief organization. It provides specifically that persons persecuted by the enemy because of their race, religion or activities in favor of the Allies are "eligible for U. N. R. R. A. care irrespective o fthe date they left their coun-[illegible]."

Acheson Answers Legion

Washington, June 30 (AP)—Dean Acheson, Acting Secretary of State, wrote the American Legion today that United States has no authority to withhold UNRRA supplies from Yugoslavia because of the trial of Gen. Draja Mihailovic on charges of collaborating with Nazis.

The Legion executive committee, which made public Acheson's letter, asked the State Department if it could withhold relief until the General "is guaranteed a fair and unprejudiced trial."

The Legion letter said Mihailovic forces saved the lives of 600 Americans who crashed or were forced down in enemy territory during the war.

GERMAN ECONOMY STAYS STAGNANT, M'NARNEY FINDS

R. Kasischke

30.24-3865

JUN 1 1946

BERLIN, June 30—(AP) Gen. Joseph T. McNarney reported today some improvement in the German food situation due to American imports and increased local production, but warned "imports at the expense of taxpayers of other countries" cannot restore permanently the German economy.

The NIGHT military governor said in his monthly report that because of the four-power stalemate on occupation policies with Germany economy is "kept virtually stagnant" and the American taxpayer and the United States zone were the heavy sufferers.

Demands One Zone

He renewed his demand for fulfillment of the provision in the Potsdam declaration providing for administering Germany as an economic unit and urged the erasing of zonal boundaries to permit a more free flow of trade. This, he said, would alleviate the difficult position of the U. S. zone, which is short on materials.

Although the food situation improved somewhat with increased local production and greater imports from the United States, McNarney said, "it is recognized that imports at the expense of taxpayers of other countries does not offer a permanent solution to the problem of restoring the economy of Germany."

In addition to the food improvement he reportd "short term gains" in industrial activity, but added that the "gap between the short-term gains and the unsolved long-term problems accentuates the need for treating Germany as an economic unit in accordance with the Potsdam declaration."

He stressed these other points in his report:

1. Exports from the U. S. zone dropped to four percent of the total imports, and in an effort to get dollars to pay for such vital imports as food from the United States "it is likely that the future German export marketing program will stress exports to the United States."

2. The budgetary position of the three states in the U. S. zone turned out much better than expected, with two showing substantial surpluses for the 1945 fiscal year instead of anticipated deficits, and the third likely at least to break even.

3. The displaced persons problem is worsening with heavy infiltrations from eastern Europe, chiefly Polish Jews. (P90)

U. S. TROOPS FIGHT POLICE IN GERMANY

JUN 1 1946

FRANKFURT, Germany, June 30—(AP) American soldiers engaged in fist fights with German police early today in an effort to prevent the questioning of frauleins suspected of prostitution in the neighborhood of Frankfurt's two railway stations.

The NIGHT police, armed with pistols which were not used, reported to U. S. military government authorities that the soldiers had interfered with the performance of their duty during a six-hour raid before dawn.

A dozen fist fights reportedly broke out as plainclothes police officers, assisted by policewomen, requested that the frauleins on the streets after midnight produce their identification papers.

Some Americans took the inspection of girl friends good-humorously, but others squared off defiantly.

More than 40 civilians were arrested, the majority teen-age girls near American soldier clubs.

NEW PROTEST IN HAMBURG

1,000 Score British Eviction Plan —Demonstration Orderly

HAMBURG, Germany, June 30 (AP)—A thousand men and women, under the eyes of British officers and German police, sounded new protests today against the possibility of being evicted from their homes to make room for British headquarters officials and their wives.

The NIGHT demonstration spirited but orderly, and the authorities made no effort to interfere. Spokesmen for the protesting resident were frequently applauded when they said that the British were placing an undue hardship on Hamburg.

Speakers said that the British had already established the boundary lines of the eviction area and that between 30,000 and 35,000 persons living there must move. These persons have no place to go, the speakers said.

ROME, June 30—(AP)—Enrico de Nicola will be inaugurated provisional president of the new Italian republic tomorrow.

The veteran Italian parliamentarian, who was elected at Friday's NIGHT session of the constituent assembly, will drive to the capital and proceed directly to the assembly's chamber in Monte Citorio palace for the ceremony.

Pro-Italian Disturbance Leads To Calling Of General Strike

Trieste, Monday, July 1 (AP)—Five American soldiers were injured yesterday in a grenade explosion while helping to quell rioting by pro-Italian residents of Trieste which led to the calling of a general strike over the whole of the troubled Venezia-Guilia area.

The riots broke out shortly after an attack on the 50 participants of the Around-Italy Bicycle Race. Italian police said the attackers were a group of "Slav Communists."

Troops Called To Help

American and British soldiers were called out to aid the harassed civil police after the rioters, sweeping rapidly from area to area in the city, had injured more than twenty persons and wrecked at least 25 offices and stores serving as Slav Communist and Socialist centers.

Three officers and two enlisted men of the 1st Battalion, 349th Regiment, 88th American Division were wounded when a grenade exploded near their jeep as they strove to break up a crowd in Garibaldi Square in midtown Trieste. They received first aid at battalion headquarters and then were hospitalized.

Military authorities temporarily withheld the injured soldiers' names, but said none was injured seriously.

Combined Groups Call Strike

In protest of the riots, a combine of organizations in Trieste announced a general strike would start at noon today. Among the organizations participating will be the Communist party, the Italian General Labor Confederation, the United Syndicates and the Italo-Slav anti-Fascist Youth Organization.

Most of the organizations involved have both Italian and Slav membership. A British officer at the Allied military government headquarters estimated they control about 120,000 workers in the British-American occupation zone of Venezia Giulia.

One British officer, hearing of the attack on the cyclists, said:

"This has been coming for a long time. They have just been looking for a cue."

Increased By False Report

The rioters' ire apparently was increased by early, erroneous reports that one of the racers had been killed by gunfire.

Although all rioting ceased when the foreign troops, armed with tear gas and machine guns, made their appearance, crowds continued to mill through Trieste streets tonight.

Police said one man was so severely wounded that he might die.

Civil police headquarters estimated that approximately 1,000 young pro-Italians participated in the riot and moved so rapidly about the city that police were always one jump behind. At each place visited furniture and typewriters were smashed, books and papers were burned and certain official documents were confiscated.

Ten Arrested

Police arrested ten persons and booked charges against five of them.

The attack which started the riots was made against the 50 Italian cyclists who left Milan 30 days ago and who were set upon with sticks and stones as they approached Trieste.

The attack occurred as the riders, mostly well bunched, started to cross the bridge over the Isonzo River at the village of Pieris. Italian police escorting the cyclists said they fired more than 100 shots into the air before the assailants withdrew.

Some of the riders, including those injured, turned back to Udine, 40 miles northwest of Trieste. The others continued to Trieste, arriving two hours behind schedule. (ADD)

Buildings Stormed

Word of the attack spread rapidly through this city, which is claimed by both Italy and Yugoslavia. Pro-Italian crowds formed quickly and stormed several buildings housing Yugsolav organizations, breaking up furniture and causing other damage.

Shots were fired from one building, and an unconfirmed report said at least one member of the besieging mob was killed.

Trieste restaurants and movie houses quickly closed their doors. Streetcars stopped operating.

British military police, reinforced by a platoon of infantry armed with tear gas and sub-machine-guns, broke up the demonstrations by firing shots into the air.

One of the buildings attacked was that housing headquarters of the Italian Communist party, which the mob assaulted with bottles, stones and other missiles.

2,000 Arrested, Four Killed In British Palestine Moves

JUN 1 1946

O. CARUTHERS AND C. DAVIDSON

Jerusalem, June 30 (AP)—The British announced today that 2,000 persons were held for investigation and four persons were killed in operations begun yesterday "to restore law and order in Palestine," while in Tel Aviv a high Jewish source said Jewish officialdom was considering a retaliatory "passive resistance movement."

A communiqué from British military authorities said that the operations were virtually over, but that searches for hidden arms were still in progress at a number of places.

Shot On Balcony During Curfew

The communiqué said one Jew was killed when a shot had to be fired in Tel Aviv last night, bringing casualties thus far to three Jews killed and one British soldier accidentally killed.

The Jew killed in Tel Aviv was identified as Eliezer Malhi, 25, who was shot to death, Jewish leaders said, by a British soldier when he appeared on the balcony of his home during the curfew. Plans were made by Jews today for a large procession at his funeral.

A number of persons suffered minor cuts and bruises, and thirteen Jews were admitted to hospitals, the bulletin added.

A secret radio station of the Jewish resistance movement, "The Voice of Israel," declared:

"Britain has declared war on the Jewish community. We will return it." (INSERT)

Passive Resistance Considered

In the all-Jewish coastal city of Tel Aviv a high Jewish source said meetings were called throughout Palestine today to consider a "passive resistance movement" similar to those undertaken by nationalists in India.

A decision would be taken "as to the best method by which Palestine's Jewish community can demonstrate to the British they will have to arrest tens of thousands of us if the Government thinks we are accepting quietly everything it wants to put on us," he said.

Passive resistance would include nonpayment of taxes, a strike by Jews in Government service and "in all ways complete nonco-operation with the British," this source said. (INSERT)

Curfews imposed on the three major cities of Jerusalem, Haifa and Tel Aviv were lifted, with the exception of certain portions of Jerusalem around the building of the Jewish agency, but a new six-hour curfew was clamped on the community of Rehoboth for what the military called the "disgraceful and undisciplined behavior" of its inhabitants yesterday.

Clash Before Weizmann Home

An official statement said Jewish youths threw stones and repeatedly placed road blocks in front of military parties attempting to enter the home of Dr. Chaim Weizmann, leader of world Zionists.

Seven members of the executive of the Jewish Agency, recognized by the British as the Jewish supervisory power in Palestine, were reported transferred from the Latrun prison camp to a military camp near the Egyptian border.

They were Moshe Shertok, head of the Agency's political department; Rabbi J. L. Fishman, acting chairman of the Agency; Dr. Bernard Joseph, Itzhak Greenbaum, David Remez, David Hacohen and David Shingarevsky. Military authorities would not reveal where they were being held. (INSERT)

Outgoing Censorship Lifted

The British lifted censorship on outgoing press communications. The British communiqué said that a large cache of arms, including two Lewis guns, 27 rifles, 48 automatic pistols, and 10,000 rounds of small ammunition had been found at the Et Meshel Yagur settlement. (INSERT)

Armed forces barred the way to the Jewish Agency building in Jerusalem, and in the adjoining Jewish National Fund Building troops searched for evidence of illegal activity. The British charged yesterday that the Jewish agency was involved in acts of violence which provoked the military action.

Jerusalem was quiet, but armored cars, Bren gun carriers and radio patrol cars roamed the streets near the agency building.

Looting In Tel Aviv Charged

Jewish officials in Tel Aviv charged that "more than 40" buildings were entered and "looted" by British soldiers during the search. Dr. Michel Laudau, manager of the Jewish War Needs Funds, said $5,200 in cash and checks were taken from a safe containing money for relief work.

Jewish Agency officials said $4,000 was taken by looters from a safe in the agency building in Tel Aviv and that $3,600 was missing from the Women's International Zionist Organization Building there.

Section Of Haifa Sealed Off

The Hadar Hacarmel quarter of Haifa was sealed off from the rest of the city until tomorrow morning after a man, a woman and a child had been injured by gunfire. The shots were fired while thousands of Jews were returning from a mass meeting.

The Jewish Council of Jerusalem unanimously adopted a resolution declaring that the "arrest of our leaders and the seizure of the Jewish Agency is equivalent to a declaration of war on the whole Jewish nation."

Meanwhile, the "Voice of Fighting Zion," a secret broadcasting station of the Irgun Zvai Leumi appealed to Haganah for a union with Irgun "on the eve of the great revolt." Both are Jewish resistance organizations.

The broadcast said the British "no longer distinguished between the soldiers of Irgun and the soldiers of Haganah."

SOEKARNO LAYS KIDNAPPING TO FIFTH COLUMN

JUN 1 1946

Two Of Those Taken With Sjahrir Named By Indonesian President

Batavia, Java, June 30 (AP)—President Soekarno of the unrecognized Indonesian Republic said in a radio address tonight that fifth columnists were responsible for the kidnapping of Sutah Sjahrir, Indonesian "Premier."

Speaking from Jogjakarta, Republican capital, Soekarno identified two of those seized with Sjahrir Thursday as Public Welfare Minister Darmawan and a Major Soedibjo.

Soekarno warned his listeners to "beware of radical Leftists, whose actions lend support to Dutch statements that we are not yet ready to govern ourselves."

Life Believed Not In Danger

Earlier today a close friend of Sjahrir's speculated that the Javanese leader was kidnapped "either by Communists or by a mob of irresponsible youths." He added that he did not think Sjahrir's life was in danger.

No word had been received today from the missing Premier, who was kidnapped from his official residence at Soerakarta.

The Indonesian radio, which originally reported that Mme. Maria Ulfash Santosa, Minister of Social Affairs in Sjahirir's Cabinet, and Maj. Gen. Sudibyo, head of the organization providing air evacuations for Dutch internees in the interior, also had been kidnapped, later denied the report.

Appeal For Particulars

Soekarno's half-hour radio speech tonight was followed by an appeal to Soerakarta residents to provide all particulars possible regarding the armed band which supposedly committed the kidnappings.

The radio announced that Soekarno would meet leaders of all political parties in the next few days.

A Dutch military spokesman denied rumors current here that Dutch troops throughout Java had been alerted.

The RAF command on the island had not decided tonight whether air evacuation would be resumed Monday in view of uncertain conditions in the Soerakarta area.

Truce in China Is Extended To Let Negotiations Continue

JUN 1 1946

By The Associated Press

NANKING, June 30.—China's uneasy truce was extended indefinitely today, in an effort to find a formula by which the government and Communist factions can leave in peace. The government made the announcement of the extension as the deadline for the twice-extended truce in Manchuria arrived at noon.

General George C. Marshall, special American envoy, who labored all last week in search of a formula, thus was given a breather and the feared renewal of violence in Manchuria was avoided.

Peng Hsueh-pei, Chinese Minister of Information, made a formal announcement that the "status quo" was being extended to permit further search for an agreement. He said Marshall would continue to direct the negotiations.

The length of the truce extension was not specified, beyond an assertion that the government agreed to continue cessation of hostilities long as the Communists did likewise. Peng added, however, that the government was determined to obtain concrete settlement of political as well as military differences before accepting a final agreement.

"General Marshall worked incessantly, seeking peace for China and the entire world," Peng asserted. "We should not disappoint him. The government, therefore, has decided to request General Marshall to continue his efforts to secure a peaceful settlement."

The statement was disappointing to those who had hoped that by exerting the full pressure of the American aid, loans and mutual assistance for both factions Marshall would be able to force the signature of a new settlement before the truce ended.

A government source said the fact that Marshall would be unable to "remain indefinitely in China" was an important factor in the negotiations.

The Minister of Information's statement was seen as a re-echoing of other government announcements which have indicated that mistrust still is strong between the rival factions.

Peng warned that "if the Communist troops continue to attack as they have recently, the government will be compelled to resist and counter-attack."

The wording of the announcement, while permitting hope that a settlement might be reached and resumption of all-out fighting averted, suggested to some observers there still has been no real meeting of minds between the Communist and government negotiators.

TRAIN WRECK JOLTS GANDHI

JUN 1 1946

Indian Leader Intimates An Attempt On His Life

Poona, India, June 30 (AP)—Mohandas K. Gandhi escaped injury today when his special train crashed into boulders which, he intimated, had been placed on the track in a deliberate attempt against his life.

The accident occurred 68 miles from Poona. The spiritual leader of the Congress party was en route home from New Delhi, where he had conferred with members of the British Cabinet Mission on their proposals for Indian independence.

Although there was a severe jolt, no one in Gandhi's party was injured. The engine was damaged and the train was 6½ hours late in reaching Poona.

Hopes To Live 125 Years

"We came very near death," Gandhi said tonight at his prayer meeting. "I have never done any harm to anybody and not even in my dreams have I thought of injuring anyone. I do not understand why anyone should wish to do harm to me.

"But I feel that God did not wish me to die and now that He has saved me, I hope to live for 125 years to serve my people.

"I should never have reached here today but for the grace of God. . . . I was told that big boulders had been placed on the track. Had it not been for the vigilance and skill of the driver, I do not know what would have happened."

War Documents In Trial Of Japs

Tokyo, July 1 (AP)—The international prosecution section attempted to strengthen its case in Japan's major war-criminal prosecution today with the introduction of six key documents on the war, including a part of the report of the Pearl Harbor investigating committee.

Among the documents with which Hugh B. Helm, of Lexington, Ky., assistant prosecutor for the United States, confronted War Premier Hideki Tojo and 26 associate defendants was former United States Secretary of State Cordell Hull's testimony on Japan's "two-faced" diplomacy in the years from the Manchurian incident in 1931 to Pearl Harbor.

Other documents presented included the diary of Marquis Koichi Kido, former Lord Keeper of the Privy Seal and wartime adviser to Emperor Hirohito, and the treatise "the road to world reconstruction," authored by Kingoro Hashimoto, onetime chief of the jingoistic Black Dragon Society.

The international military tribunal granted a prosecution request that it present excerpts from the documents in an effort to speed up the trial. The defense had argued for full copies of all documentary evidence.

Tokyo Municipal Dispute Ends

OPA Chief Confident

JUN 1 1946

Congress Will Restore Price Controls

JUN 1 1946

JUN 1 1946 30-24-3867

PORTER IS HOPEFUL FOR SPEEDY ACTION ON NEW MEASURE

WASHINGTON, June 30—(AP) Paul Porter, OPA administrator, asserted tonight that if a new price law "does not do so by its specific terms," OPA will reestablish present ceilings on all items "when legal authority is available."

Porter prefaced that caution to business with the confident prediction that Congress will restore price and rent controls within a short time.

The OPA chieftain said he did not expect any "sweeping upward price movements," during what he expects will be a comparatively short interim in Federal price control.

Sees Some Excessive Prices

There will be "some instances of excessive prices on certain commodities which are in short supply," Porter said in a statement.

But he adedd that these should be isolated cases" to be appraised against the background of what is happening to prices generally.

Porter's statement was released as top OPA officials met in emergency sessions across the country to keep the agency on a standby basis, even though its present legal authority terminates at midnight tonight.

Upon instructions from Porter, OPA regional administrators drafter similar plans to keep their field staffs throughout the nation on the job while Congress debates whether to restore price control legislation.

Porter sai dthe absence of Federal controls on rents does not leave a tenant completely without protection nor a landloard without obligation. He sai dtenants holding leases will be protected by them, and that there are local and state laws which protect "the much larger number of tenants who have no leases."

Sugar Rationing Continues

Sugar rationing and the livestock slaughter control program, he added, will be continued "since authority for these programs arises from the Second War Powers act was was extended into next year by the President's signature Saturday."

President Truman backed this up with an executive order tonight, supplying specific authority for continuing these OPA functions under the war powers measure.

The order allows OPA to carry on operations which do not deal with fixing pirce or rent controls.

In this category, it rpovided for continuance of OPA enforcement activities, so long as they deal with violations which occurred prior to expiration of the price control act.

A White House announcement accompanying the order said "it is the view of the President" that these functions "should be retained in OPA and the price administrator."

One important factor which "should tend to prevent skyrocketing prices is the natural resistance of consumers to ill advised efforts to take advantage of this hiatus," Porter declared.

No Basis for Permanent Board

The OPA boss emphasized that price increases which may occur "during the brief interlude without a statute" will not be considered the basis for any permanent price hike.

With respect to enforcement, Porter noted that the expiring price control act permits prosecutions in the future of violations which occurred while the act still was in force.

TRUMAN OPA VETO ASSAILED BY TAFT

JUN 1 1946

Senator Places on President Responsibility for End of Controls.

WASHINGTON, June 30—(AP) Senator Taft (R-Ohio) said tonight that President Truman "has chosen to plunge the economy of this country into chaos" by his veto of Congress' price control extension bill.

The responsibility for "the ultimate and unavoidable breakdown of price control will result directly from the President's policy, not from act of Congress," Taft asserted in an address prepared for broadcast on the Mutual network. Taft asserted that Mr. Truman "deliberately misrepresented" Taft's own position in a "long personal attack" and added:

Favors Basic Controls

"My own position and that of Congress is perfectly logical. We think the time has not quite come to take off basic price controls, but we do think the administration of OPA must be improved x x x.

"In short, in the act passed by Congress, the President received complete power to prevent speculation and speculative increases in prices and all increases in rents. We merely reaffirm more vigorously the original principles of the price control act."

He expressed doubt that any new measure will come through Congress quickly, and went on:

"I hope price control will be continued, and I should vote to reenact the bill he has vetoed; but I am afraid the bill which the President will get the next time, if he gets any, may go further toward decontrol than the one he has vetoed."

Direct Reply to Truman

Taft's speech constituted a direct reply to both the veto message and last night's White House broadcast on the issues raised by the end of price controls at midnight tonight. In both the message and speech the President had singled out an OPA extender provision sponsored by Taft as the feature most objectionable to him in the vetoed measure. He mentioned Taft by name repeatedly in both veto and speech.

Taft asserted that the President's veto action represents a surrender to the PAC. He added that that organization "really wants price control continued indefinitely in line with their idea of the totalitarian state."

The Ohioan's speech came a few hours after Carroll Reece, chairman of the Republican National committee, had said that control of rents and the prices of scarce commodities "must be recaptured by forceful congressional action."

Reece, like Taft, blamed President Truman for loss of that control. He said it must be regained and "retained until our economic system has had time to recover from the manhandling it has received at the hands of radical economic planners who have dominated the Democrat Administration."

Paul Porter, OPA administrator meanwhile expressed confidence that the lapse in price control will be short. But in the interim, he counselled Americans to show "self restraint."

Taft also dwelt on the "self restraint" theme during his talk.

Reece Blasts Truman

Reece's blast at the President, was embodied in a statement. In it he declared, Mr. Truman "has now, apparently lost control of himself,"

"He took the responsibility," the Tennesseean added, for throwing the American people into the fires of inflation, to use his own words, in a vain effort to fry his own political fish."

Although Reece and Porter botn called for restoration of controls, they were talking about different types of curbs. Reece sought the diluted bill which Congress passed and which Mr. Truman vetoed. Porter was after the stronger version of the OPA legislation which Mr. Truman had wanted.

Taft declared that the President's whole speech last night "had the aspect of a partisan political attack" but failed to point out that the vetoed bill was adopted by a Democratic Congress.

He recalled his own part in helping draft wartime price controls and said that while he believed control should be continued for six months longer, "like every other person who believes in the American system, I think it should be ended at the earliest possible moment."

Little Choice for Action

"No price control act is an easy measure to pass through Congress," he said, "and I doubt whether any extension can now be put through again."

He described "a great majority of the people west of the Mississippi" as wanting immediate termination and said "many others east of the Mississippi are disgusted with the complete breakdown of OPA in meat control, lumber control, and a number of other vital commodities."

Taking up particular points raised by the President, Taft said the chief executive raises objections to a provision in the bill cutting off price controls when supply equals demand.

"If we can't get rid of price control when a sufficient supply is produced, will we ever get rid of it?" Taft demanded.

The OPA chief's plea came in a statement a few hours before the midnight expiration of the federal price control act.

Meanwhile a finish fight between White House and Congress over resuscitation of the price agency was building up, and the people were making themselves heard on the point in a flood of telegrams to lawmakers and the President.

At issue were the veto of Congress' idea of OPA extension, upheld by the House, and the lawmakers' failure to follow his advice by enacting a stop-gap extension of the present controls before the midnight deadline.

JUN 1 1946

TEXT OF THE TALK

The text of Senator Taft's talk follows: N Y Times

Yesterday President Truman vetoed the bill to extend his own power to fix prices and rents. Last night he defended his action by what amounted to a long personal attack on me, because I had some part in drafting one of the various amendments to the bill.

His whole broadcast had the aspect of a partisan political attack and apparently was drafted by the Office of Price Administration, the chief of which is Mr. Paul Porter, who was the publicity chief for the Democratic National Committee in the last campaign.

Mr. Truman omitted to state that this bill was adopted by a Democratic Congress. There are 236 Democrats to 190 Republicans in the House of Representatives and fifty-six Democrats to forty Republicans in the Senate. He was strongly urged to sign the bill by the Democratic Speaker of the House, the Democratic floor leader of the House, the Democratic leader of the Senate and the Democratic President-pro-tem of the Senate.

He disregarded their advice and followed the advice of Chester Bowles and the Political Action Committee. The personal attack on me is merely a smoke screen to conceal the real forces behind his action. As a matter of fact, I have always supported price control as essential in the war period.

Believes in Price Control

I believe we would be better off to continue it for six months longer, although like every other person who believes in the American system, I think it should be ended at the earliest possible moment. I assisted in drafting the original Price Control Act and all the amendments.

I find a letter in my files from this same Chester Bowles, dated June 27, 1946, after a bitter fight on extension very much like the present one, in which he said, in part:

"Dear Bob: I want to thank you for your courteous, friendly and intelligent efforts to work out the Stabilization Extension Act. I know how hard it was and the amount of patience it required."

Only last week I argued strenuously for the passage of this bill against those who desired to end price control altogether, or at least end it with reference to meat, dairy products and poultry.

No Price Control Act is an easy measure to pass through Congress, and I doubt whether any extension can now be put through again. The cross-currents of economic interest from different sections of the country are almost impossible to reconcile.

The vetoed bill was only put through Congress without specific decontrol by the adroit management of Senator Barkley. A great majority of the people west of the Mississippi desire the immediate termination of price control, as do their representatives in Congress.

Many others east of the Mississippi are disgusted with the complete breakdown of OPA on meat control, lumber control and a number of other vital commodities. They point to empty shelves, bread lines, butter lines, deserted production lines and black markets, and argue that anything is better than the kind of price control we have.

Calls Position Logical

My own position and that of Congress is perfectly logical. We think the time has not quite come to take off basic price controls, but we do think the administration of OPA must be improved. The bill provides for the gradual liquidation of OPA over the next twelve months, the ending of subsidies on April 1, 1947, and reasonable pricing in the interval so that we can stimulate production and get rid of all the shortages that exist today.

The PAC really want price control continued indefinitely. It is in line with their idea of the totalitarian state. Apparently, the President now agrees with their philosophy. He objects in his message to the provision that there shall be decontrol of any commodity when the supply equals the demand.

If we can't get rid of price control when a suffiicent supply is produced, will we ever get rid of it? He wants subsidies continued until July 1, 1947. It would then be easier to renew them again at that time. He uses the price amendments as a whipping post, but he is really demanding the indefinite continuation of the whole outfit.

He does not apparently accept in good faith the policy which is universally accepted in Congress and stated in the bill that "the general control of prices and the use of subsidy powers shall be terminated as rapidly as possible."

The President's attack on the amendment which I offered in the Senate is utterly unfair. All that the Taft amendment provides is that producers, including farmers and manufacturers, shall be allowed to charge prices which reflect the increased cost of labor and material which they now have to pay.

This is done by permitting them to charge for each major product a price equal to their 1941 prices plus the average increase in the cost of labor, materials, etcetera, since 1941.

After all, this is peacetime again. Why shouldn't the producer be placed in the same position he was in before the war? There is no question of a freeze any more, because the OPA itself has put over 500 price increases into effect since March 1.

All we want to prevent during the next six months are the speculative rises in prices over and above the increase in costs. The danger I am concerned about is taking the roof off, as the President does by his veto.

But how can anyone hope to get production if we don't allow the producers to charge enough for their products to pay for the increased cost of labor and material? Even the President admits in his message that this principle has a "superficial" reasonableness.

There is nothing superficial about it except to the master minds among the New Deal economists at the OPA.

As a matter of fact, there is nothing new in thep rinciple. The original Price Control Act expressly provided that the Administrator should start with the prices prevailing between Oct. 1 and Oct. 15, 1941, and should make adjustments for general increases in costs of production, distribution and transportation, among other factors. The language was pretty general, and the OPA never paid any attention to it.

Then, in 1945, we passed a law which expressly provided that "modification shall be made in maximum prices established for any agricultural commodity and for commodities processed or manufactured from any agricultural commodity and that means nearly all food and clothing in any case where, by reason of increase labo ror other costs incurred since Jan. 1, 1941, the mavimum prices so established will not reflect such increased costs."

As usual the OUA didn't pay much attention to Congress, but they did use almost exactly the formula of the Taft amendment in pricing canned vegetables in 1944 and 1945. Furthermore, the so-called Bankhead amendment for several years has compelled the mto follow more or less the same formula as to all cotton textiles.

In many fields, however, the OPA has by express regulation forced manufacturers to sell some products at cost or at a loss, because some members of the industry were making profits on other products. Of course, nobody makes the things which have to be sold at a loss. This is the reason for the shortage of butter, of many standard types of clothing, of building materials and many other articles.

The President's figures on possible increases are wild guesses and for the most part dead wrong. I was called today by the Association of Washing Machine Manufacturers who said that the President's estimate of one-third more for washing machines was a gross exaggeration, that the manufacturers hoped there would be no price increase at all, even if price ceilings were removed entirely.

Any steel increase would be less than half that stated by the President. You can judge from this how accurate his other figures are.

Any increase in manufactured goods brought about by the Taft amendment would be of minor importance compared with the importance of actually being able to buy them.

Furthermore, the President deliberately misrepresented the effect of my amendment when he said his six times that price increase would result "immediately" or "right away." Under the amendment no increase can occur until the Industry Advisory Committee has presented complete figures to prove its case. This would take from thirty to sixty days.

Then the Price Administrator is given sixty days in which to examine the figures and fix the amount of the increase. The burden of proof is on the industry. If the administrator refuses to permit any increase, there is an appeal to the Emergency Court of Appeals, which would take several months more.

Long before that, I hope we would be well on the way to the end of all price control. I hope the administrator would act more promptly, but there is nothing immediate about it; whereas the President's veto removes all controls of every kind at midnight tonight.

Effect on Rents and Food

It is significant that the President admits that the Taft amendment would have no direct effect on food or rents. He argues that because other prices would go up, food and rents would be bound to rise.

I admit that ultimately there would be some effect if other prices rise, but the effect would be about one-tenth of the effect on food and rents of the wage increases stimulated by the President.

Of course, it was impossible to keep price control much longer after the President removed all wage control on V-J Day. Of course, an increase of about ten billion dollars in wages and salaries will produce billions of dollars of increase in prices.

But the ultimate and unavoidable breakdown of price control will result directly from the President's policy, not from any act of Congress—certainly not from the minor requirement that manufacturers be allowed to reflect their increased costs in prices.

In short, in the act passed by Congress, the President received complete power to prevent speculation and speculative increases in price and all increases in rents. We merely reaffirm more vigorously the original principles of the Price Control Act. Yet, he has chosen to plunge the economy of this country into chaos.

In such a controversial field where feelings already run high, we cannot hope that the Senate will act without debate, and it should not do so, because the issues to be settled are vital to the welfare of the country.

Would Re-Enact the Bill

I hope price control will be continued, and I should vote to re-enact the bill he has vetoed; but I am afraid the bill which the President will get the next time, if he gets any, may go further towards de-control than the one he has vetoed.

In the meantime there are no price controls. No businessman knows what he should do or what price he should charge. I hope that everyone will exercise the reasonable restraint which Americans always exhibit in a crisis.

The President had a choice between a reasonable transition from price control back to the free enterprise system on the one hand, and the ending of all OPA powers by veto. He chose to take all the chances of chaos, followed by speculative rises in price.

He chose this course, having been warned by his own Democratic leaders of the necessary result of his policy. He has repudiated their leadership and assumed to write a law for Congress, although the Constitution of the United States gives the Congress power to state the conditions on which price control shall be continued.

Telegrams Pour Into White House On OPA Action

JUL 1 1946

Washington, June 30 (AP)—Telegrams reaching the White House since President Truman told the nation why he vetoed the OPA bill are running 50 to 1 in support of the Chief Executive, Eben Ayers, a presidential secretary, said tonight.

About 2,500 messages have been received since Mr. Truman spoke Saturday night, Ayers said.

Typical of those backing the President's stand, Ayers said, was this message:

"Congratulations on your veto. The enemies of our beloved country must be defeated. American people are behind you."

Ayers said the messages apparently are of spontaneous origin, coming from individuals and business people, and from all sections of the country.

Many Sent From Baltimore

Baltimoreans flooded Western Union offices yesterday with telegrams to President Truman and their congressional delegation demanding an OPA with "teeth in it."

A Western Union spokesman said that the number of operators taking telegrams over the telephone was doubled. Extra employes were scattered among the offices throughout the city.

He added that the largest portion were telephoned in, "probably since so many people don't come downtown on Sundays."

Cautious Price Rises Predicted By Economists

JUL 1 1946

Big Jumps, However, Seen for Food and Clothing; Auto Boost Delay Asked

WASHINGTON, June 30 (AP).—High-ranking government economists predicted today business generally will exercise caution on price boosts with Office of Price Administration controls ditched, but they forecast sharply higher food and clothing costs.

One big straw in the wind supporting their views was an appeal by the National Automobile Dealers Association that new car prices be held at present O. P. A. ceilings until Congress decides the fate of the agency.

This appeal was sent to all members of the association by W. I. Mallon, N. A. D. A. president.

In a survey of top government economists' views on what will happen to prices after O. P. A.'s death at midnight, a reporter found that in general they expect sharp sporadic increases right away for many items.

These officials, all of whom asked that they not be quoted by name, said immediate price jumps are most likely to occur in food and clothing.

They said, too, that rents undoubtedly will be up substantially by August if Congress does not act in the mean time to revive Federal rent controls.

But their virtually unanimous opinion was that big business, particularly heavy industries such as steel and the auto makers, will want to play it cautious as long as there still is a chance price controls may be clapped back on.

"If I were a manufacturer," said one official, "I certainly wouldn't want to take the risk of kiting prices, only to have to roll them back in a short time. I think that same factor will influence many dealers."

How high prices may go in case merchants go ahead with increases, none of the economists would predict. They agreed, however, that the boosts probably will be sharp.

They cited small household appliances and possibly radios as scarce items which may command much higher prices right away.

On what may happen to prices if Congress decides against restoring any controls, the economists are also agreed. This comment of one was typical:

"People will be surprised at the new price increases which occur right away if and when it becomes clear that controls definitely are out.

"The market will feel itself out for a few weeks. But from one to two months later the upward spiral really will get going.

"I predict that by the end of October the cost of living would be up 10 per cent. On some items the increase would be much more.

"And that would be only the beginning. Thereafter the cost of living increase probably would be at the rate of 2 to 4 per cent a month."

Since April, 1943, to last May 15 the cost of living had risen only 5.2 per cent, according to the Bureau of Labor Statistics.

Prices Are Expected To Seek Own Levels Beginning Today

JUL 1 1946

Washington, June 30 (AP)—The prices a man pays for bread and butter, a roof over his head, the shirt on his back—harnessed four years by Federal controls—will be cut loose tomorrow to set their own pace.

A canvass of the nation, as OPA was about to expire at midnight, brought these early trends in the dramatic situation which some predicted would end in ruinous inflation; others in a return of the old days "with plenty of everything at a fair price":

Meat industry spokesmen predicted a ten per cent increase in meat prices, or 5 cents a pound.

A jump of 2 cents a quart in milk prices was forecast in dairy quarters.

Rental Boost In Month

Real-estate authorities indicated a fifteen per cent boost in rentals, effective August 1. Today is rent-paying day, customary time for 30-day notices to be served.

However, one of the nation's largest food chains — A. & P. — announced that "prices in all our stores will show no increase Monday."

Spokesmen for restaurants in New York city and Chicago foresaw only minor increases on some items and this accompanied with a wider selection of foods previously withheld due to prohibitively low price ceilings.

Many Optimistic

Many sources optimistically predicted no immediate change in the price situation, pending further congressional reaction to President Truman's veto of the OPA Extension Bill.

And others predicted that prices, after a brief flare-up, would subside but to levels considerably higher than existing OPA ceilings.

Gordon C. Corbaley, president of the American Institute of Food Distribution, said "most food retailers, wholesalers and processors will continue selling at OPA ceilings or less while Administration leaders endeavor to negotiate a compromise extension" of price ceilings.

Canned Goods Markup

A markup of "about 25 cents a case" on such items as canned goods will result immediately, said an Atlanta wholesaler.

The Illinois Federation of Retail Associations said it intended to meet the President's challenge with voluntary discipline and predicted little change in prices.

Peter Katavalos, acting president of the New York State Restaurant and Liquor Dealers Association, asked 22,000 members to "prove they can operate in a democracy without regulation" and urged them to "hold the line except in a very few cases, where OPA prices resulted in extreme hardship."

Competition is keen among 4,000 restaurants in Chicago and there will be "no skyrocketing of prices," said Donald F. Kiesau, of the Chicago Restaurant Association.

A jump of a "cent or two" in milk was forecast by John Brandt, president of Land O' Lakes Creameries, Inc., St. Paul, but he said production could be counted on to keep down inflated prices in butter, milk and other dairy products.

"For Own Protection"

Joseph B. Hall, Kroger Grocery Company president, did not specifically state the price policy to be followed in Kroger stores today, but he said:

"There may be some major price increases. Everyone should aim to keep prices within reason and business will do so for its own protection."

Although sugar rationing will continue, sugar trade officials in Washington said an immediate increase in the sugar price was certain.

In Denver, Col., the Retail Food and Meat Dealers Association expected a sharp increase in prices but looked for them to level off quickly.

Downward Trend To Follow

A temporary increase with a downward trend almost immediately was forecast by Carl F. Dietz, president of the Manufacturers Association of Syracuse, N.Y.

"Inflation disguised by Government subsidies, black market, deterioration of quality and other offshoots of OPA will become immediately apparent to all," he said, thus bringing about higher prices.

The prospects for holding the line on OPA rent ceilings was much darker.

The National Apartment Owners Association sent telegrams to owners of 50,000 apartment houses in 50 principal United States cities asking them to hold rent increases within fifteen per cent of present rates.

In Des Moines, Iowa, Dalton Fox, president of a property-owners' association controlling more than half of the rental properties in this city of 183,000, said members planned immediate 30-day notices to tenants.

The association hopes to hold increases to a fifteen per cent maximum, Fox said.

On the other side of the picture, there were concerted efforts in scattered section of the country to hold prices and rents at the OPA ceiling until Congress has time to fashion some sort of price-control program to replace the OPA.

Will Make Own Controls

In Portland, Ore., Meier and Frank, twelve-story department store occupying a square city block, announced in full page advertisements Sunday morning:

"In the absence of Government regulations we will make effective in this store our own controls. Our every effort will be expended. . . . to keep prices down."

In Spartanburg (S.C.) merchants agreed to maintain present ceiling prices pending the Government's determination of policy. The city is in the midst of a prosperous peach harvest and 25,000 textile workers start a week's vacation with pay today.

No-Increase Pledge Sought

Joseph A. Brown, counsel for the San Francisco apartment industry, called a mass meeting for July 11 to obtain a no-increase, no-eviction pledge from 1,200 apartment-house owners.

Dann C. Byck, president of the Louisville Retail Merchants Association, indicated that merchants would stand pat on prices. The Kentucky Retail Food Dealers Association asked grocery organizations to refrain from buying or selling at marked-up prices.

Merchants in Indianapolis's 124-year-old City Market said they planned no immediate price increases when the tri-weekly market opens Tuesday.

Will Keep To Old Prices

The Katz Drug Company in Kansas City, one of the Southwest's larger chain drugstores, said, "Our policy will be to keep prices on the level set during the OPA."

William Green, AFL president, applauded President Truman's stand but predicted that unless Congress rises to the occasion immediately "there will be labor unrest and labor trouble all over the nation and unrestrained inflation."

Labor To Ask More

"Prices will run wild" and there "will be a flood of strikes," Daniel J. Tobin, president of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters, predicted. "The situation is dangerous. It's dynamite."

30.24-3869

Labor will ask increases to balance living costs, said Stanley Earl, executive secretary of the Oregon CIO council, backed up by James E. Fadlin, president of the CIO-International Woodworkers of America.

Crop Survey Optimistic On Hope for Gain in Food

JUN 1 1946

Mid-June Study Points to Increase Over 1945 Harvest.

WASHINGTON, June 30. — (AP) The Agriculture department reported today that food production prospects in most parts of the world in mid-June were substantially better than a year earlier.

Nevertheless, it said, the world faces almost as great a shortage of supplies during the next 12 months as it suffered during the past year. Improved production prospects were said to be offset by by a reduction in stocks.

Increase in Acreage

In its second survey of the world production outlook since the planting season started north of the equator, the department said there has been some increase in the acreage of planted crops and that relatively few areas have reported unfavorable crop conditions.

However, the total acreage planted to food crops was said to be still below pre-war. Further, yields were said to be restricted by shortage of fertilizer, work animals and other facilities for proper cultivation.

"Should present prospects for crop production continue until harvest, the world production of food in 1946-47 will be somewhat larger than the relatively low levels of 1945-46, but will be definitely below pre-war, particularly on a per capita basis."

Reserves at Low Level

Stating that reserves at the beginning of the current harvest will be at a low level, the department said that "even with larger production, total supplies of available food products during 1946-47 will not be much above those of a year earlier." It cautioned that careful utilization of all food products must be continued.

It appears now, the department said, that food production in continental Europe will be between 88 and 90 per cent of pre-war in terms of food energy. Production last year was 80 per cent of pre-war.

Present prospects point, the department said, to larger crops of wheat and increased production of food fats and oils. Supplies of meats, dairy products and eggs will be smaller, it said, because of restrictions being placed on the feeding of grain to livestock.

Far East Conditions Bad

The department said that in the Far East conditions thus far have not been generally favorable for planting of 1946-'47 crops. Some progress in expanding crop production in Japan was reported. South China has been plagued by dropghts. Insufficient rains likewise prevented Australia from increasing acreages as much as it had planned.

In Russia, a slightly larger acreage was seeded to grains, and recent rains have relieved a drought situation of the Ukraine.

In surplus producing areas of southeastern Asia, the rice acreage is expected to be larger than last year, but the turnout of grain may be only about two-thirds of pre-war because of a shortage of work stock and of consumer goods to exchange for rice.

The department said total food output in Germany may fall below last year's low level. In the American zone of occupation, conditions were said to have deteriorated somewhat during the past month because of a prolonged dry spell.

France continues to expect a much larger wheat crop than last year.

'FREE MARKET' IS STUDIED

JUN 1 1946

Business Termed Confused By Sudden End Of OPA

New York, June 30 (AP)—American business tonight faced a period of considerable confusion, but there were strong indications that many segments of "big business" at least would make no immediate major boosts in prices.

Thrown suddenly onto free prices for the first time since the Spring of 1942, a number of top executives were known to be weighing these factors:

1. A change in price structures for a corporation doing business over a wide geographical area could not be made effective at a moment's notice.

2. Confusion would be piled on confusion if a price change was announced and Congress suddenly acted to restore controls, even temporarily.

Danger To Good Will

3. Business prestige and good will, for which millions have been spent, also would be lost in any such quick double-shuffle.

4. Business generally is faced with a warning that if prices suddenly skyrocket, the possibilities of a quick congressional crackdown will be much enhanced.

Many big business men were chary of comment over the week end. Tomorrow will be "huddle day" in the offices of scores of corporations as executives seek to map what changes, if any, will be made in the immediate future.

It appeared, however, that many would be unwilling to act until they could see more clearly what Congress will do, and how quickly it will do it.

Manufacturers In Doubt

A spokesman for the National Association of Manufacturers, which carried the ball for many big corporations for the immediate abolition of OPA, said:

"We don't know what the score is going to be. We don't know what Congress is going to do. We could say plenty if we knew there was going to be no more price control."

Gwilym A. Price, president of the Westinghouse Electric Corporation, said late today his company "will exercise great restraint in raising the prices of its products in the period ahead—with or without OPA controls in effect." He said it was necessary to keep appliance prices at rock bottom in order to enjoy a mass market.

Commerce Group Appeals

The United States Chamber of Commerce already had come out in Washington with an appeal to business to hold the line as much as possible

Business observers here were of the opinion that tomorrow would see many increases in prices in meats, foods and in some retail lines.

There were possibilities that many small businesses, which had felt themselves to be pushed close to the line and with only small financial reserves, might find it necessary to boost prices immediately. In the case of suppliers of big business, this might tend to force major corporations to act more quickly than they normally would.

It was the consensus, nevertheless, that a great many business men would wait to see what Congress is going to do before acting.

OPA Rent Ceilings Still Hold In N.Y.

JUN 1 1946

Albany, N.Y., June 30 (AP)—The OPA's residential rent ceilings tonight were proclaimed the law of New York State, effective when the Federal price control agency dies at midnight.

Joseph D. McGoldrick, sworn in as State Control Commissioner at 9.18 P.M., immediately promulgated State residential rent control "master regulations."

Governor Dewey promised "vigorous enforcement."

The action, authorized by the 1946 Legislature, in effect continues OPA residential rent ceilings in all New York areas which were under Federal rent control.

Housing completed after the State law becomes effective will be exempt from control.

McGoldrick, former Comptroller of New York city, was appointed rent boss by Governor Dewey this afternoon. He was flown to Albany to be sworn in before midnight and declare the State law operative as soon as the Federal regulations expired.

Farm Groups' Spokesman Hails OPA End; Says Country 'Will Reconvert More Rapidly'

JUN 1 1946

ITHACA, N. Y., June 30 (AP)—A spokesman for eight state-wide farm organizations declared today that "a large number of farmers" would welcome the end of OPA.

Edward F. Foster, secretary of the New York State Conference Board of Farm Organizations, said in a statement:

"The OPA has long outlived its usefulness.

"Perhaps it served a worthwhile purpose during the war, but the country will reconvert more rapidly without it."

Mr. Foster's words reflected, he said, the general opinion of the members of the conference board, which represents the Grange, the Dairymen's League Cooperative Association and the Grange League Federation, among others.

Mr. Foster attributed "the critical feed shortage in the Northeast" and a shortage of bale ties largely to the restraint of OPA ceiling prices. He said that black markets would be encouraged if Federal price control were resumed.

"I have more confidence in the 140 million people of this country acting as a committee of the whole in determining prices than in any committee that can be created in Washington," Mr. Foster said.

Industrialists Anticipate Sharp Spurt, Followed by Leveling Off.

The prices a man pays for bread and butter, a roof over his head, the shirt on his back—harnessed four years by Federal controls—were cut loose today to set their own pace.

A canvass of the nation, as OPA expired at midnight, brought these early trends in the dramatic situation which some predicted would end in ruinous inflation; others in a return of the old days "with plenty of everything at a fair price":

10 Pct. Chunk Seen

Meat industry spokesmen predicted a 10 per cent increase in meat prices, or five cents a pound.

A jump of two cents a quart in milk was forecast in dairy quarters.

Real estate authorities indicated a 15 per cent boost in rentals, effective August 1. Today is rent-paying day, customary time for 30-day notices to be served.

Hope for No Change

Many sources optimistically predicted no immediate change in the price situation, pending further congressional reaction to President Truman's veto of the OPA extension bill.

And others predicted that prices, after a brief flareup, would subside but to levels considerably higher than existing OPA ceilings.

Typical reaction from insiders in the industries affected by the death of OPA was the statement of Harry B. Coffee, president of the Union Stock Yards Co., Omaha, Neb.

"Consumers will pay more than OPA ceiling prices for meat," he said, "something 80 per cent of them have been doing anyway."

Coffee predicted, however, that "prices will seek a reasonable level."

Meat prices probably will go up five cents a pound, said F. Erwin Wernke, president of the Louisville, Ky., Provision Co., due to elimination of subsidy provisions for the meat industry.

An increase of 10 per cent was considered possibly by Dan McKinney, secretary of the California Cattlemen's association, but he said this would be "no higher than present black market rates."

In Chicago, a spokesman for Armour and company said he expected livestock prices to go up Monday but added that he did not expect this to be reflected in meat prices immediately.

Swift and company said "we are proceeding normally and will decide our pricing policy after markets have become established."

Gordon C. Corbaley, president of the American Institute of Food Distribution, said "most food retailers, wholesalers and processors will continue selling at OPA ceilings or less while Administration leaders endeavor to negotiate a compromise extension" of price ceilings.

A markup of "about 25 cents a case" on such items as canned goods will result immediately, said an Atlanta, Ga., wholesaler.

The Illinois Federation of Retail associations said it intended to meet the President's challenge with voluntary discipline and predicted little change in prices.

The National Association of Manufacturers, perhaps the outstanding foe of post-war price control, said through Vice President Holcombe Parkes:

"Our position has been and still is that we do not believe wartime price controls should be continued in peacetime. If we knew now that there was going to be no more price control we would have plenty to say."

Peter Katavalos, acting president of the New York State Restaurant and Liquor Dealers association, asked 22,000 members to "prove they can operate in a democracy without regulation" and urged them to "hold the line except in a very few cases were OPA prices resulted in extreme hardship."

Press Raises And Condemns Veto of O. P. A.

Truman's Action Labeled Reckless, Wise, Proper, Fearful and Courageous

By The Associated Press

President Truman was praised and condemned with equal vigor by the nation's newspaper editors for his veto of the Office of Price Administration extension bill handed him by Congress.

"President Truman's reckless veto of the O. P. A. extension bill apparently ends all hope of bringing price control to a gradual and orderly end," said "The Cleveland Plain Dealer."

"Whatever violent shocks the nation may experience . . . must be blamed on an Administration whose thirst for power and whose fear of the labor unions was so great that it demanded all or nothing in the control of prices—and got nothing.

"Mr. Truman is in the position, therefore, of having said to the American people: 'If you won't go to heaven in the way we want you to, then you can go to hell.'"

Attained Greatest Stature

"The Chicago Sun" asserted that "Mr. Truman, in vetoing the 'impossible' price-control measure passed by Congress, rose to his greatest stature in national leadership. His veto message was detailed and convincing. Mr. Truman drew the basic issue plainly.

"Now is the time for the people to rise in a great storm of indignation against the Congress which committed this evil."

"The Providence (R. I.) Journal-Bulletin" declared that "responsibility for the O. P. A. dilemma rests squarely and solely on President Truman. Whatsoever motives behind it, Mr. Truman's veto placed the national economy in dire jeopardy."

"In the judgment of this newspaper," said "The Richmond (Va.) Times Dispatch," "the President made a mistake in not signing the compromise bill. It was admittedly a better bill, as it finally emerged from the joint conference committee, than the administration had expected in the light of the original House and Senate versions."

Must Shoulder Blame

"The New York Times" said that "no doubt Congress is responsible for the long delay in framing compromise legislation. But the President and his administration must inevitably shoulder a larger share of the blame themselves. . . . He and his advisers have consistently demanded all or nothing—the expiring law as it now stands or no law at all."

"Confronted by a choice between inflation with statute and inflation without one' the President has shown both wisdom and courage in electing to veto the extension bill," said "The Washington Post."

"In our opinion any unprejudiced reader of the veto message will be convinced that his reasons for rejecting the bill are absolutely sound."

"The Detroit Free Press" said that "by his accurate indictment of Congress for the part it has played in this fiasco, President Truman cannot absolve himself from fault.

"An efficient handling of O. P. A. by a man who knew his business and did not resort to histrionics might have found a co-operative Congress.

"Mr. Truman cannot blame Congress because he does not know how to pick men."

"The Baltimore Sun" said it believed that the President "made the proper decision."

"Let us keep this straight in our heads," "The Sun" said. "It was the enemies of price control, not President Truman who brought this about. The corpse is still warm and if Congress chooses to act the breath of life can be restored."

"Showing rare courage and wisdom, President Truman vetoed it," "The Atlanta Constitution" commented. "No control at all is better than a 'whipping boy' behind which Congress could have hidden. It took courage to do it. Congress was indulging in blackmail."

Reds Hold 700,000 Jap Captives As Slave Labor Force in Siberia

WASHINGTON, June 30—(AP) American officials estimated today that Russia has removed possibly 700,000 Japanese troops from Manchuria to Siberia where they are presumably in use as a labor force.

The estimate is based on military reports respecting the number of troops the Japanese had in Manchuria when the war ended. Despite American inquiries Moscow has given no official information.

The situation is regarded by authorities here as one of the numerous international irritations which have developed out of divergences between Anglo-American and Soviet moves to end war conditions in Europe and Asia.

Another, said to be of considerably less importance though indicative of a pulling apart of the great powers in the Far East, is the apparent refusal of Russia to allow opening of an American consulate in northern Korea, which the Russians occupy.

Similarly in the Allied control commission in Tokyo and the Far Eastern commission Washington, the pattern of disagreement has followed the line of a sharp split between the other powers and Russia.

It is in the commission in Tokyo that the issue of the Japanese troops in Manchuria appears likely to come to a showdown. George Atcheson, Jr., American member, told the commission last week that the United States considers failure of Russia to repatriate the troops to Japan a violation of the Allies' Potsdam promises to the Japanese before their surrender.

Here it was learned that the subject was taken up with Soviet officials when Secretary of State Byrnes was in Moscow last December. All they learned was that the troops had been removed to Siberia.

Meanwhile the United States, Britain and China were repatriating the Japanese forces in the areas they controlled.

Control Of War Profits Aim Of Mead Committee

Washington, June 30 (AP)—Prevention of "future war profiteering" was spotlighted today by Senator Mead (D., N.Y.) of the Senate War Investigating Committee, as the chief objective of an inquiry opening tomorrow with the blessings of President Truman.

The New York lawmaker, successor to the Chief Executive as head of the committee, promised a review of at least two months' duration to cover the whole field of war profits. He said Mr. Truman had assured the committee: "I'll back you up."

Mead said that out of the study may come a recommendation for establishment within the War Department of a board of experts to maintain a continuing study of plugging loopholes and preventing profiteering "if — and I hope it won't—a third war occurs."

He said that the "policing" of profits in the second World War was far better than in the first, but he said there is evidence that even specially granted powers to recapture excessive war profits had not done a 100 per cent job.

Army to Control Culture For Occupied Countries

Takes Over Information and Education Today

WASHINGTON, June 30 (AP)—The Army is taking over from the State Department tomorrow complete operating control of information, education and religion for the civilian populations of American - occupied countries abroad.

Announcing this today, Major General Oliver P. Echols, chief of the War Department's Civil Affairs Division, said the Army plans to produce as well as procure documentary and other motion picture films to help speed democratic processes in Germany, Austria, Japan and Korea.

William Benton's Office of International Information and Cultural Affairs in the State Department will continue operations in other foreign countries. The State Department will remain responsible for long-range policy in the occupied countries as well.

NAVY WILL OVERHAUL COURT-MARTIAL RULES

WASHINGTON, June 30.—(AP) Secretary of the Navy Forrestal today directed the judge advocate general of the Navy to prepare recommendations for legislation to modernize the basic government of the Navy and to authorize changes in the court-martial procedure.

The secretary's directive was based in part on the report by a board headed by Arthur A. Ballantine, New York attorney, which he had appointed to study the Navy's wartime administration of justice.

Likewise the secretary's directive was in conjunction with the dedication program of the United States School of Naval Justice at Port Hueneme, Calif. In accord with the board's recommendation that men should be trained in naval justice procedure, two months' classes are being given 150 officers and 50 yeomen there.

CONTROL EASED ON NEWSPRINT

JUN 1 1946

Special Inventory Limit And Import Rule Lifted

Washington, June 30 (AP)—The Civilian Production Administration tonight lifted its special inventory limits on newsprint. It simultaneously revoked all import controls on the paper.

Hereafter, the agency said, newspaper publishers will be subject only to the supply curbs which govern other scarce materials—that the users keep on hand no more than "a minimum practicable working inventory."

Previously newspapers have been limited to a 50-day supply of newsprint in the West and South, 30 day's supply elsewhere.

Output Up 24.7 Per Cent

North American mills have boosted their output in the last five months 24.7 per cent over the same period of 1945, said Col. J. Hale Steinman, who resigned last week as chief of the CPA's printing and publishing branch.

The five-month total, 2,146,111 tons, represents a 33-per-cent increase over 1939 production, Steinman said. The supply picture is further improved by Canadian expectations of producing 10,000 tons more a month in the last half of this year.

Since newsprint manufacturers have no space for storage, and since newspaper publishers usually curtail their usage in the summer, Steinman said the rigid inventory rules are "no longer practicable."

Mutual-Assistance Plan

The CPA said it is counting on the so-called "New England plan" for mutual assistance among newspapers to insure that no legitimate newspapers is forced to suspend publication for lack of newsprint.

The plan was approved by the American Newspaper Publishers Association when the CPA lifted the restrictions on the tonnage of newsprint which could be used.

Steinman noted that no publisher or newsprint dealer in the last six months had been without a supply equal to his 1945 supply except where the flow of woodpulp was interrupted by a loggers' strike.

No Suspension Of Publication

"The newsprint manufacturers seem to have rationed their output equitably to all customers," he said. "No publisher, either during the war or during the reconversion period, has had to suspend for one day due to lack of newsprint although, due to a world shortage of newsprint, no one has had as much as he wanted or could use."

The controls on imports of newsprint were lifted because of expiration of an agreement that this country would not draw on Scandinavian sources of paper.

The agreement was made last August by the Combined (British-American-Canadian) Raw Materials Board, with the idea that Scandinavian supplies should be used to meet in part the newsprint needs of the liberated countries of Europe.

FARMERS URGED TO BOOST WHEAT PLANTING IN 1947

WASHINGTON, June 30. — (AP) Expecting the world food shortage to continue for at least two more years, the Agriculture department today called upon farmers to plant more land to wheat for harvest in 1947 than in any year since 1938.

It set a national planting goal of 71,700,000 acres compared with 71,057,000 seeded for this year's crop and with 78,891,000 planted in 1938.

To Exceed Million Bushels

With yields equal to the last few years, this acreage would give the country its fourth consecutive crop of more than one billion bushels. Present prospects point to a crop of 1,033,000,000 bushels this year compared with last year's record harvest of 1,123,000,000, and with an average crop of about 825,000,000.

At the same time, the department recommended that the 1947 acreage for 17 winter vegetable crops in commercial truck crop areas be increased four per cent over that of this year and 19 per cent above the 1941-45 average. The largest increase asked was 30 per cent for tomatoes.

This year's bumper wheat crop will not provide sufficient grain to meet unrestricted domestic and foreign demands. It is possible, however, that a crop of one billion bushels next year might exceed needs, but if so, any extra supplies could be readily handled by the "ever-normal granary" program. This country went into the war with heavy reserves but they have been depleted by wartime needs.

Flour Distribution Widens

Announcement of the new wheat goal comes as the government permits millers to increase distribution to flour for domestic consumption. Since the emergency foreign famine program was inaugurated in March, millers have been limited in their monthly distribution for domestic consumption to 75 per cent of the flour they distributed a year ago.

In July the authorized distribution will be 85 per cent of the monthly average of 1945. With this year's crop beginning to move to market in considerable volume from early harvesting areas, mills should be able, officials said, to get sufficient grain in July to fill the full civilian quota.

Meanwhile, the department has started the purchase of 250,000,000 bushels of wheat from this year's crop for export to shortage areas during the next 12 months.

GRAIN BOARD ENDS CEILINGS

Chicago Retains 5-1946 Limit On Daily Change, However

Chicago, June 30 (AP)—The Board of Trade directors today ordered removal of ceilings on corn, barley and oats as a result of the expiration of the OPA, but retained the 5-cents-a-bushel daily limit on fluctuations in grain prices.

In the meat-packing industry, however, a spokesman said the end of price controls resulted in a "confused and uncertain" situation.

At a special meeting of the board directors it was decided that effective with the opening of the market tomorrow, "trading in futures contracts in which trading is now permitted on this exchange shall not be limited or restricted by any ceilings established in price schedules heretofore issued by the Federal Government through its agencies."

Will Retain Daily Limit

William B. Bosworth, acting secretary of the board, said the 5-cents-a-bushel daily limit on fluctuations in grain prices will be retained. Trading in wheat and rye was suspended two weeks ago and no immediate action permitting resumption of trading was taken.

Receipts of cattle in the Chicago livestock market tomorrow were estimated today by the Department of Agriculture at 14,000 head, a small increase over actual receipts of 10,376 last Monday.

Ralph Walters, president of the Chicago Live Stock Exchange, said: 'Our duty is to sell at the highest price obtainable. We will follow this policy tomorrow and as long as it is within the law."

Adjustment Foreseen

"One of the first effects of the removal of ceilings," Walter asserted, "will be adjustment in prices between different grades which was impossible heretofore because the poorer quality commanded almost as much as the best grades. For the next day or so, we may see some unusual fluctuations in prices until these relationships are properly adjusted."

A spokesman for the packing industry asserted that meat at a fair competitive price is the goal of the industry. He declined, however, to predict how long this will take or what conditions may develop tomorrow.

"Situation Uncertain"

The situation is confused and uncertain, he added, but the objective of the meat industry is to get back into business and restore order so that meat may be available to the average consumer at a fair competitive price.

The industry has to buy at a price the black market cannot afford to pay, and sell at a price that they cannot take, he said. Much depends on shippers how long it will take to develop a competitive market. Should tomorrow's shipments be heavy, the packing business will make its start toward functioning normally.

"Proceeding Normally"

None would predict what the prices for livestock may be in the immediate future. A spokesman for Swift and Company, covered the position of the packers, saying "we are proceeding normally and will decide our price policy after the market becomes established."

The American Meat Institute, which represents packers generally said that it should be understood that it will take a little time for the industry to get back on its feet.

FEPC Expires, Submits Report Hitting Racial Discrimination

WASHINGTON, June 30. — (AP) The Fair Employment Practice committee dies at midnight tonight and both friend and foe of the controversial agency agree this Congress will let it lie.

All concede it will be an issue again in 1947 and probably for years thereafter. The committee's six members, handing in their resignations to President Truman tonight, declared an "unchecked revival" of racial discrimination is wiping out wartime gains.

All Funds Spent

The official end of FEPC is anticlimactic. It closed shop weeks ago and turned its records over to the Treasury department, having spent the $250,000 Congress voted it in 1945 for liquidation.

FEPC was created by executive order of the late President Roosevelt, June 25, 1941, and charged with the duty of seeing that no federal agency, or company doing business with the government, discriminated against any person because of race, creed, color or national origin.

President Truman urged Congress to make it permanent.

Bills to revive the agency and broaden its field to cover all business are pending on both Senate and House calendars. Supporters claim southern-led maneuvers against a vote have "thwarted the majority," while opponents insist the proposals are "vicious legislation."

Bill Written by Chavez

Senator Chavez (D-NM), author of the Senate bill that was caught in a 24-day filibuster earlier this year and finally by-passed, told a reporter:

"I have no hope for the pending bill. I expect it to be brought up in future congresses, and I still feel it is sound legislation."

Senator Russell (D-Ga), one of FEPC's most persistent critics and leader of this year's filibuster said in an interview: "It will not pass this congress. It certainly won't if we adjourn July 20, because it would require more discussion than there is time left."

Rep. Marcantonio (AI-NY), expressing belief "Congress will not adjourn before January 1," said in answer to an inquiry that he hopes to get the House bill up before that time. Speaker Rayburn (D-Tex), however, hasn't changed his forecast of mid-July adjournment.

Marcantonio has endeavored to get the measure up each Wednesday, when the roll of committees is called and they may bring up any of their pending bills, but southern Democrats have used delaying tactics to prevent the labor committee, which has FEPC, being reached.

The FEPC members asserted in their final report to President Truman:

1. The "wartime gains of Negro, Mexican - American and Jewish workers are being lost through an unchecked revival of discriminatory practices."

2. This "denial of equal opportunity, if allowed to become permanent, cannot fail to create civic discord and to be a cause of embarassment to the United States in its international relations."

3. "Nothing short of congressional action to end employment discrimination can prevent the freezing of American workers into fixed groups, with ability and hard work of no account to those of the 'wrong' race or religion."

Eden Leaves For London

New York, June 30 (AP)—Former British Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden left LaGuardia Field for London today aboard a British Overseas Allways Constellation. Eden arrived in the United States early this month with a group of British members of Parliament en route to Bermuda to attend the Empire Parliament Association conference. He went to Canada recently, returning Saturday.

U.S. Jews Pick Delegates To Zionist Congress

New York, June 30 (AP)—American Jewry began voting today throughout the United States to elect delegates to the twenty-second World Zionist Congress in Jerusalem in December.

The congress will be the first international assembly of Zionists since 1939.

There are five tickets on the ballot, the Zionist Organization of America, the Labor Zionist bloc, the Religious-National bloc, the United Zionist-Revisionists and Hadassah, the women's Zionist organization of America.

Dr. Wise Going To Palestine

New York, June 30 (AP)—Dr. Stephen S. Wise, president of the World Jewish Congress and founder of the Zionist Organization of America, said today he and three other Jewish leaders would leave for Palestine "as early as possible" to lend their support to the Jewish Agency for Palestine.

Accompanying Wise will be Dr. Nahum Goldman, political officer of the executive of the Jewish Agency; Louis Lipsky, former president of the Zionist Organization of America, and Dr. Abba Hillel Silver, cochairman with Wise of the American Zionist Emergency Council and president of the Zionist Organization of American.

Time of the departure was not announced.

A-BOMB SAFETY

BY HOWARD BLAKESLEE

ABOARD THE U.S.S.APPALACHIAN, MONDAY, JULY 1-(AP)-A NEW DEPARTMENT OF THE NAVY, THE SECTION OF RADIOLOGICAL SAFETY, DID A 100 PERCENT PERFECT JOB AND PROBABLY LARGELY SPOILED THE ATOMIC BOMB TEST SHOW FOR MOST OBSERVERS TODAY.

THIS SECTION IS NEW IN WARFARE. ITS DUTY IS TO KEEP ALL HANDS CLEAR OF X-RAYS. EVEN THOUGH X-RAYS FROM THE ATOMIC FLASH WERE REGISTERED SLIGHTLY ON BOARD THE APPALACHIAN IT APPEARS THAT THE SAFETY SECTION ACHIEVED ITS PURPOSE BY MOVING EVERYONE MANY MILES BEYOND ANY POSSIBLE DANGER ZONE.

EVEN VICE ADM.W.H.P.BLANDY, EXPEDITION CHIEF, WAS TWICE OR MORE THAN TWICE AS FAR AWAY AS WAS DR.J.ROBERT OPPENHEIMER, THEN DIRECTOR OF THE LOS ALAMOS ATOMIC BOMB LABORATORY, WHEN THE FIRST ATOMIC BOMB EXPLOSION OCCURRED ON THE NEW MEXICO DESERT JULY 16, 1945.

THERE WERE NO RADIOACTIVE CASUALTIES AND NO ONE ON THE CROWDED APPALACHIAN EVEN FELL DOWN A LADDER. DECKS WERE SLIPPERY DURING THE WHOLE SHOW WITH TROPICAL MOISTURE THAT SOMETIMES GATHERED IN TINY STREAMS.

BUT BECAUSE OF THE GREAT DISTANCE, THE EXPLOSION AS A SHOW WAS DISAPPOINTING TO VIRTUALLY EVERYONE ON THE PRESS SHIP. HAD THEY BEEN WITHIN SIX MILES OR EVEN TEN, AS MZNMTO

A-BOMB RADIO (150)

BY HOWARD BLAKESLEE

ABOARD THE U.S.S. APPALACHIAN, MONDAY, JULY 1-(AP)-THIS SHIP CARRYING CORRESPONDENTS COVERING THE ATOMIC BOMB TEST AND HER TELEVISION SET WHICH GAVE SOME OBSERVERS A CLOSE-UP VIEW OF THE BLAST GAVE ONE ANSWER TO SCIENTIFIC QUESTIONS POSED BY THE BOMB.

SHE PROVED THAT THE A-BOMB EXPLOSION DOES NOT SERIOUSLY INTERFERE WITH RADIO TRANSMISSION, AT LEAST ON WAVE LENGTHS USED BY THE NAVY. SHE PROVED THAT THE ATOM BOMB DOES NOT IMMEDIATELY INTERFERE AT ALL WITH A TELEVISION CLOSE-UP.

DANCING IMAGES ON THE TELEVISION SCREEN NEVER WERE DUE TO THE A-

30.24-3873

BOMB, BUT WERE DUE TO INTERFERENCE FROM A VAST AMOUNT OF HIGH FREQUENCY TRANSMISSION WAVES WHICH THE APPALACHIAN AND OTHER SHIPS AND PLANES WERE USING. THIS INTERFERENCE GOT NO WORSE AT THE INSTANT OF THE EXPLOSION, NOR THEREAFTER.

FOUR MINUTES AFTER THE EXPLOSION THE TELEVISION CAMERA QUIT, FOR REASONS NOW UNKNOWN. THIS MIGHT HAVE BEEN DUE TO A RAIN OF RADIO-ACTIVE PARTICLES FROM THE ATOMIC CLOUD THAT THEN HAD SPREAD LIKE AN UMBRELLA WIDER THAN THTLTARGET SHIP ARRAY.

JUN 1 1946

DS950PPS

ABOARD USS APPALACHIAN OFF BIKINI...1ST ADD BLAKESLEE'S WITH ATOMIC...XXX SUFFER HEAVILY.

DOWN IN THE WARDROOM HUMAN EYES SAW FOR THE FIRST TIME A CLOSE-UP OF AN ATOMIC EXPLOSION. THIS CLOSE-UP WAS NOT GOOD, BUT SOME THINGS NEVER BEFORE VISIBLE COULD BE SEEN IN THE BRIEF FLASHES WHEN THE TELEVISION SCREEN CLEARED MOMENTARILY. MOST OF THE TIME THE SCREEN LOOKED LIKE A THIN NEW ENGLAND SNOWSTORM.

THE TELEVISION CAMERA WAS ON BIKINI ISLAND, LESS THAN THREE MILES FROM THE CENTER OF THE TARGET FLEET. VISIBLE WERE THE TOPS OF PALM TREES IN THE NEAR FOREGROUND AND IN THE BACKGROUND WAS A TINY LINE OF SHIP SILHOUETTES. MOST OF THEM WERE BOW ON. BUT THE NEVADA, NAGATO AND THE CARRIER SARATOGA WERE VERY WELL DEFINED. AND TO EXPERT NAVAL MEN MONITORING THE SCREEN, NUMEROUS OTHER SHIPS COULD BE SEEN IN TINY OUTLINE DURING THE FLASHES OF CLEAR VISIBILITY.

LUCKILY ONE OF THESE CLEAR FLASHES CAME JUST AS THE BOMB LET GO. IN THE WARDROOM ONLY THREE PORT HOLES FACED THE ATOMIC FLASH. STANDING IN A SHADED AREA, LOOKING AT THE TELEVISION SCREEN, I JUST BARELY NOTICED THE FLASH. IT LIGHTED THE WARDROOM MOMENTARILY, BRIGHTER THAN ELECTRIC LIGHTS AND BRIGHTER THAN THE SUNSHINE COMING THROUGH THE OPPOSITE SIDE PORT HOLES.

A204FX

JUN 1 1946

THE FIRST NOTABLE FACT WAS THAT NONE OF THE TARGET SHIPS VISIBLY CAREENED, NONE VISIBLY WERE PUSHED DOWN IN THE WATER. THERE MIGHT HAVE BEEN SMALL MOTIONS OF THIS OR OTHER SORTS THAT COULD NOT BE SEEN BECAUSE THE TELEVISION IMAGES WERE DANCING ALL THE TIME. BUT THE DANCING MOVEMENT WAS SMALL.

AFTER THAT FIRST FLASH THE SHIPS WERE OBLITERATED. THIS CURTAIN WAS TEMPORARY, LASTING ONLY A FEW SECONDS. THE SCREEN MIGHT HAVE BEEN PARTLY SMOKE AND VAPOR BUT APPARENTLY IT WAS A RAIN OF WATER, SPLASHED UP BY THE ATOMIC BLAST HITTING THE SURFACE. SIMILAR WATER SPOUTS, NOT SOLID BUT MADE OF SPRAY, WERE KICKED UP BY "LITTLE BIKINI" TESTS IN MARYLAND WITH TNT BOMBS EXPLODED IN AIR.

IN THE WARDROOM WERE ONLY TWO OTHER CORRESPONDENTS AND A HANDFUL OF SAILORS AND OFFICERS.

AS THE SCREEN CAME CLEAR MOMENTARILY A YELL WENT UP FROM THE NAVY MEN--"THEY'RE ALL THERE--THEY'RE ALL THERE! NOT A SHIP WAS SUNK!"

THIS WAS OVER-OPTIMISTIC, BUT CORRECT FOR ALL THE BRAVE LITTLE SILHOUETTES THAT WERE VISIBLE ON THE SCREEN. AND ALL THE MAJOR SHIPS WERE THERE, STILL ON AN EVEN KEEL.

A205FX

SMOKE BEGAN TO BILLOW AWAY FROM ONE-HALF OF THE TARGET FLEET. ON THE SCREEN THIS BILLOWING LOOKED LIKE MOVING PICTURES OF A GREAT LAND CONFLAGRATION. IT WAS PROBABLY SMOKE FROM SOME BURNING OIL, SMOKE FROM EXPLODING AMMUNITION AND PERHAPS VAPOR AND SMOKE FROM THE BOMB ITSELF.

ALL THIS TIME FRONDS OF THREE PALM TRESS IN THE FOREGROUND WERE THE MOST EASILY DISTINGUISHED OBJECTS ON THE TELEVISION SCREEN. THE CAMERA WAS SHOOTING JUST OVER THEIR TOPS AND ALL THREE APPEARED TO BE CLOSE TO THE BEACH, BETWEEN THE CAMERA AND THE TARGET FLEET. NOT ONCE DID ONE OF THESE FRONDS GO INTO VIOLENT MOTION. THEY RETAINED THE SAME SLOW, MAJESTIC SWAYING THAT HAD BEEN VISIBLE IN

JUN 1 1946

EXPLOSION TESTS.

THE DANCING OF THE TELEVISION SCREEN PROBABLY INTERFERED WITH SEEING THE WIND BLAST EFFECTS, BUT CERTAINLY THE ATOMIC WIND WAS NOT AS GREAT AS HAD BEEN ANTICIPATED ON THE INNER EDGE OF THE LAGOON. NO WAVES WERE SEEN.

INSIDE THE WARDROOM NO SOUND OF THE ATOMIC BLAST WAS HEARD NO PUFF OF THE BLAST THAT ACCOMPANIES SOUND WAS FELT IN THAT ROOM ON THE OPEN DECKS ABOVE, SOME OF THE OBSERVERS SAID THEY FELT HEAT WHEN THE BLAST REACHED THEM, SIMULTANEOUSLY WITH THE THUNDEROUS SOUND. OTHERS SAID THEY FELT NO SUCH BLAST AND THAT THE SOUND WAS

EVERYONE SAW THE SPECTACLE AS A RISING SUN. THIS SUN EXPANDED TO A MILE IN DIAMETER. WRITERS LOOKED THROUGH THEIR WELDER'S GOGGLES AND THOSE WHO TOOK OFF THEIR GOGGLES QUICKLY, AS DID ASSOCIATED PRESS WRITER DON WHITEHEAD, FELT THEIR EYES BEING BLINDED. WHITEHEAD TURNED HIS HEAD AWAY, MOMENTARILY, AND THEN WHEN HE LOOKED DIRECTLY AT THE BLAZING BALL OF INCANDESCENT AIR AGAIN HIS EYES EASILY STOOD THE INTENSITY.

HIS EXPERIENCE, ALONG WITH THOSE OF MANY OTHERS, FOLLOWED SCIENTIFIC CALCULATIONS THAT THE BRIGHTNESS THAT BLINDS THE EYESIGHT DIES IN A FEW SECONDS.

AT THE INSANT OF THE FLASH SOME OBSERVERS FELT THE FLASH OF HEAT AND HAD SENSATIONS IN THEIR EARDRUMS AND THROATS. OTHERS SAID THEY FELT ABSOLUTELY NOTHING OF THIS SORT. BOTH KINDS OF REPORTS PROBABLY WERE TRUE AND DUE TO DIFFERENCES IN THE KEENNESS OF HUMAN SENSES.

A FEW ALSO REPORTED SMELL, A SENSATION PROBABLY PURELY PSYCHOLOGICAL. IT IS NOT TO BE CONFUSED WITH THE SMELL THAT COVERED THE SEA FOR MILES WHEN THE APPALACHIAN LATER APPROACHED THE LAGOON, CAUSED BY FIRE, BURNING CORDITE AND OTHER EXPLOSIVES.

JUN 1 1946

DISAPPOINTMENT WITH THE SPECTACLE WAS PARTLY DUE TO NATURE'S COMPETITION. THIS WAS THE FIRST TIME AN A-BOMB HAD EXPLODED OVER WATER. COMPETING WITH THE BRILLIANCE OF THE FLASH AND THE ATOMIC CLOUD WERE

THE TROPICAL SUN AND ITS GLARE FROM MILLIONS OF WAVES. COMPETING ALSO WERE THE TROPICAL CLOUDS WHICH THEMSELVES WERE ALMOST BRIGHT ENOUGH TO HURT THE EYES IN THE BRILLIANT REFLECTION FROM THE MORNING SUN.

AGAINST THIS COMPETITION THE A-BOMB DID WELL. EVEN AT 18 MILES, ITS FIRST FLASH FAR OUT-SHONE THE SUN. THAT UNEARTHLY LIGHT LASTED NOT MORE THAN ONE SECOND. IT FADED FAST THEN, LEAVING ONLY THE SPECTACLE OF THE INTENSE WHITE ATOMIC CLOUD UNDER NATURAL CLOUDS OF THE SAME COLOR ON THE SKY LINE.

HOWEVER WOOD ADDED THAT HE SAW NOTHING EXCEPT THE MUSHROOM AS THE B-2 DAVE S DREAM SPED TOWARD THIS ISLAND IMMEDIATELY AFTER THE DROP

THE PILOT MAJ WOODROW P SWANCUTT CONGRATULATED HIS GROUND CREW CHIEF M/SGT JOHN C GARLINGER IMMEDIATELY UPON LANDING AFTER BUZZING THE FIELD--POSSIBLY AT ONLY 20 FEET

SHE WORKED BEAUTIFULLY SWANCUTT SAID

COL.WILLIAM BLANCHARD, DEPUTY CHIEF OF STAFF FOR OPERATIONS, SAID THE BOMB WAS OFFICIALLY TIMED 14 SECONDS AHEAD OF SCHEDULE. THAT COST HIM A $5 BET WITH RADAR OPERATOR CAPT.PAUL CHENCAR,JR., WHO WAGERED WOOD WOULD MAKE THE DROP WITHIN 15 SECONDS OF THE SCHEDULE.

EVERYONE IN THE HEADQUARTERS AREA CROWDED THE RUNWAY AS SWANCOTT MADE A SMOOTH LANDING AND TAXIED UP AT 10:25 A.M. SOMEONE CALLED "NICE PITCHIN', WOODY!" AS THE BOMBARDIER STEPPED FROM THE PLANE. MOVIE CAMERAS GROUND FOR TWO MINUTES AND THEN THE CREW RUSHED INTO A SHORT BRIEFING.

CO-PILOT WILLIAM C.HARRISON SAID HE FELT "ONLY A LITTLE BOUNCE" FROM THE DETONATION AND HEARD NO NOISE. MAJOR BILL ADAMS, THE NAVIGATOR, WAS SIMILARLY COOL.

"THERE WAS NOTHING TO GET EXCITED ABOUT," HE REMARKED. "EITHER YOU DO OR YOU DON'T. IT WAS AN EXCELLENT RUN--AS GOOD AS I EXPECTED."

WOOD SAID HE BELIEVED HIS DROP WAS AS GOOD AS THAT HE MADE DURING THE DRESS REHEARSAL, WHEN HE WAS CREDITED WITH AN EXCELLENT DROP.

CAPT.WALTER RESCE (3468 SO. STAFFORD, ARLINGTON,VA.), ARMY PHOTOGRAPHER ABOARD ANOTHER B-29, WAS FAR LESS NONCHALANT THAN THE CREW OF "DAVE'S DREAM."

"I WAS SCARED TO DEATH," HE ADMITTED. "I THOUGHT I'D DIE IN THE LAST FEW MINUTES OF THE BOMB RUN."

SWANCUTT HAD PILOTED THE ATOM-BOMBER TO A PERFECT TAKEOFF AT 5:53 A.M.. BIKINI TIME (1:53 P.M. SUNDAY, E.S.T.).

THE B-29 TAXIED SMOOTHLY DOWN THE CANVAS-COVERED LOADING RAMP JUST AS THE SUN BROKE THROUGH THE CLOUDS. A RAINBOW HAD APPEARED AS SWANCUTT WARMED UP HIS ENGINES AT THE WEST END OF THE RUNWAY AND THE PLANE SEEMED TO TAXI THROUGH IT FOR THE TAKEOFF.

THREE NAVY "DUMBO'S" AND A B-29 FOLLOWED AT ABOUT FIVE-MINUTE INTERVALS FOR AIR-SEA RESCUE PATROL WORK. PHOTO PLANES LEFT NEXT SOME OBSERVER PLANE PASSENGER LISTS WERE NOT AVAILABLE WITHIN AN HOUR OF THE SCHEDULED TAKEOFF BECAUSE OF LATE CHANGES AND BUMPING (DISPLACING OF PASSENGERS BY PRIORITY) A HIGH OFFICIAL SAID PETTY PERSONAL JEALOUSIES AND FEUDS PROMPTED A NUMBER OF OBSERVERS CHIEFLY CONGRESSMEN, TO DEMAND CHANGES.

EDITORS: THE FOLLOWING STORY WAS WRITTEN FOR THE ASSOCIATED PRESS BY MAJ. HAROLD H. WOOD, OF BORDENTOWN, N.J., BOMBARDIER, WHO WILL RELEASE THE FIRST BIKINI TEST BOMB, SHORTLY AFTER WOOD HAD LEARNED THE DATE DEFINITELY HAD BEEN SET FOR THE DROP AND HAD SEEN HIS FIRST ATOM BOMB.)

BY MAJ. HAROLD H. WOOD

BOMBARDIER FOR THE B-29, DAVE'S DREAM.

KWAJALEIN, JUNE 30-(AP)-I'VE JUST SEEN THE ATOM BOMB FOR THE FIRST TIME. IT GIVES YOU A FUNNY FEELING. IT'S QUITE A THRILL.

WE'VE BEEN DROPPING PRACTICE BOMBS AND FACSIMILES EVER SINCE THE CREW OF DAVE'S DREAM WENT INTO TRAINING FOR THE BIKINI TEST AT ROSWELL, N.M., IN MARCH.

BUT, UNTIL AFTER MAJ. WOODROW SWANCUTT, OUR PILOT TAXIED DAVE'S DREAM ONTO THE LONG CANVAS-COVERED LOADING RAMP LESS THAN TWO HOURS AGO, NONE OF US HAD EVER SEEN AN ATOM BOMB.

AS MAJ. BILL ADAMS, OUR NAVIGATOR SAID, "IT GIVES YOU A VERY RESPECTFUL FEELING. IT'S FANTASTIC TO FEEL YOU HAVE SO MUCH POWER THERE."

CAPT. PAUL CHENCHAR, OUR RADAR OPERATOR, TOOK IT MORE CALMLY. ALL HE SAID WAS:

"I WAS JUST CURIOUS. NOW I'M SATISFIED."

REALLY THOUGH, I DON'T FEEL ANY DIFFERENTLY ABOUT IT THAN I WOULD ABOUT ANY OTHER BOMB, EXCEPT THAT I WANT TO PUT IT RIGHT DOWN THE NEVADA'S SMOKESTACK.

(ACTUALLY, OF COURSE, THE BOMB WILL BE TIMED TO EXPLODE "SEVERAL HUNDRED FEET" ABOVE THE NEVADA. BUT THE PHRASE "DOWN THE SMOKESTACK" IS THE BOMBARDIER'S EXPRESSION OF A PERFECT DROP.)

ALL THE CREW FEEL GOOD THAT TOMORROW HAS BEEN SELECTED FOR THE DROP. NONE OF US IS TENSE. WE FEEL ABOUT THE SAME AS AFTER A COMBAT BRIEFING. WE ARE STICKING TO OUR USUAL BEDTIME AT ABOUT 9:30 P.M. AND EXPECT TO SLEEP NORMALLY UNTIL WE'RE CALLED AT 3 A.M.

WE WILL HAVE BREAKFAST FOLLOWED BY A FINAL BRIEFING AND READY FOR THE TAKEOFF, SCHEDULED AT 5:33 A.M. AND HEAD FOR THE DROP, WHICH IS SET FOR 8:30 A.M.

THEN WE ARE ORDERED TO SPEED FOR HOME WITHOUT WAITING TO SEE THE DETONATION.

I WON'T SEE THE BOMB DROP, BUT I'LL KNOW WHETHER I'VE MADE A GOOD ONE. I ALWAYS KNOW BY THE BOMBSIGHT WHETHER I'M GOING TO HIT CLOSE. I HAVE A PRETTY GOOD FEELING WHEN I KNOW THAT.

WE WILL ALL SEE THE FLASH THROUGH GLASSES SPECIALLY BLACKENED TO PROTECT OUR EYES--ALL EXCEPT WOODY SWANCUTT, WHO WILL THROW HIS ARMS UP OVER HIS EYES AFTER TURNING FROM THE BOMB RUN.

NONE OF US WILL SEE THE DAMAGE BECAUSE WE HAVE ORDERS TO SPEED DIRECTLY BACK TO KWAJALEIN.

BROADCAST

SAN FRANCISCO, JUNE 30-(AP)-AN UNIDENTIFIED RADIO BROADCAST FROM THE BIKINI AREA SAID THE ATOMIC BOMBING PLANE HAD MADE ITS SECOND DRY RUN OVER THE TARGET AT 8:15 A.M. MONDAY, BIKINI TIME, 4:14 SUNDAY, EASTERN STANDARD TIME.

DS

JUL 1 1946

A LATER BROADCAST FROM KWAJALEIN SAID THE TAKE-OFF WAS DELAYED FOR APPROXIMATELY 30 MINUTES AT THE DIRECT ORDERS OF VICE ADM. W.H.P. BLANDY, TASK FORCE COMMANDER.

NO REASON WAS ASSIGNED AT ONCE FOR THE DELAY.

THAT WOULD MEAN THE BOMB WOULD BE DROPPED AT ABOUT 9 A.M. MONDAY, BIKINI TIME, (5 P.M. SUNDAY, EASTERN STANDARD TIME.)

IF THE BOMBER TAKES THE EXPECTED TIME TO REACH THE TARGET THE BOMB WOULD LET GO ABOUT 50 MINUTES LATER THAN ORIGINALLY CONTEMPLATED. THE GAP MIGHT BE CLOSED UP, HOWEVER, BY CUTTING DOWN ON THE PRACTICE RUNS BY "DAVE'S DREAM" OVER THE TARGET.

SHORTLY BEFORE THE BOMBER TOOK OFF, MAJ. HAROLD H. WOOD, THE BOMBARDIER, TOLD BROADCASTERS HE EXPECTED TO HIT THE BULLEYE, THE OLD BATTLESHIP NEVADA.

ASKED WHAT WOULD HAPPEN IF HIS AIM WASN'T TRUE, HE ADDED, "I'D BE LOOKING FOR ANOTHER JOB."

ABOARD USS MT. MCKINLEY, BIKINI LAGOON, JUNE 30-(AP)-BIKINI LAGOON, WHICH FOR WEEKS HAD LOOKED LIKE NEW YORK HARBOR AT NIGHT, SEEMINGLY DIED TONIGHT.

ALL BUT NINE OF THE ATOMIC TASK FORCE SUPPORT SHIPS UPPED ANCHOR DURING THE AFTERNOON AND SLIPPED OUT TO SEA. AND THE 73 TARGET SHIPS WERE LONELY BLACK SHADOWS, PEOPLED ONLY BY SKELETON CREWS WHICH WILL BE TAKEN OFF IN THE EARLY HOURS OF THE MORNING.

THE TARGET FOR MONDAY'S BOMB WILL BE COMPOSED OF FIVE BATTLE-SHIPS, FOUR CRUISERS, TWO CARRIERS, 10 DESTROYERS, EIGHT SUBMARINES AND VARIOUS TRANSPORTS AND LANDING CRAFT.

THERE WAS ANY TENSENESS ABOARD THIS FLAGSHIP TODAY IT WAS WELL CONCEALED. WHILE THE TOPSIDES STAFF CHECKED OFF THE DETAILS OF THE FINAL PHASES OF THE EVACUATION, THE CREW AND OFFICERS OFF DUTY TOOK SUN BATHS, NAPPED OR PLAYED CRIBBAGE AND OTHER CARD GAMES.

THE SHIP'S "PLAN OF THE DAY" FOR TOMORROW INCLUDED IN THE PROGRAM WITH THE ATOM BOMB EXPLOSION THE CUSTOMARY NOTE "MOVIES ON SUPERSTRUCTURE DECK AFT IN EVENING.

ABOARD U.S.S. MT.MCKINLEY OFF BIKINI, MONDAY, JULY 1-(AP)-FROM THE UPPER DECK OF THIS ATOMIC TASK FORCE FLAGSHIP, OBSERVERS WITH ANTI-FLASH GOGGLES WERE UNABLE TO DETERMINE THE PRECISE POINT AT WHICH THE ATOMIC BOMB BURST OVER THE TARGET.

A FIREBALL OF SUPER-SUN BRILLIANCY FLASHED OUT IN SLIGHTLY ELLIPTICAL SHAPE, AND VICE ADM.W.H.P.BLANDY, ATOM TEST COMMANDER, AND HIS STAFF SNATCHED OFF THEIR GOGGLES TO SEE THE SWIFTLY-CLIMBING, CREAM-COLORED CLOUD MOUNT INTO A CLEAR BLUE SKY.

MOST OBSERVERS FELT NO SHOCK WAVE NOR ANY HEAT AT THIS 11-MILE DISTANCE. THE SOUND WAS MERELY A GRUMBLING CONCUSSION.

NAVY SECRETARY FORRESTAL, WATCHING FROM THE BRIDGE, EXCLAIMED:

"IT'S TREMENDOUS!"

REAR ADM.WILLIAM S.PARSONS SAID A LATER CHECK ON THE EXACTLY INTENSITY OF THE EXPLOSION WOULD BE MADE, BUT ADDED THAT RESULTS WOULD NOT BE PUBLISHED FOR SECURITY REASONS.

LT.COL.J.D.C.BRECKENRIDGE (128 IVANHOE ST., WASHINGTON,D.C.), AN OFFICER OF THE TASK FORCE, WITNESSED THE EXPLOSION THROUGH A TELEVISION SET IN THE MCKINLEY'S WARDROOM. HE SAID HE SAW A SURGING, DOWNWARD THRUST AGAINST THE WATER WHICH IMPARTED A SHUDDERING EFFECT TO THE SURFACE. AN INSTANT LATER, THE TELEVISION IMAGE BLURRED, HE SAID, APPARENTLY AS WIND FROM THE BLAST CENTER REACHED THE TELEVISOR MOUNTED IN A TOWER ON BIKINI ISLAND.

THE PALM TREES IN FRONT OF THE TELEVISOR AND NEAR THE EDGE OF THE BEACH WERE BENT AND THRESHING, AS IF HIT BY A SPLIT-SECOND HURRICANE, BRECKENRIDGE ADDED, AND A DISTINCT SHOCK WAS TRANSMITTED INTO THE HULL OF THE MCKINLEY, PROBABLY THROUGH WATER TRANSMISSION.

TWO OF THE BIGGEST SMOKE CLOUDS CAME FROM POINTS WIDELY SEPARATED IN THE FIRST OF THE DRONE AIRCRAFT BEGAN BORING THROUGH AND WINGING AROUND THE BOMB CLOUD ALMOST BEFORE IT HAD CEASED ASCENDING.

MAJ.GEN.WILLIAM E.KEPNER, AIR COMMANDER FOR THE TEST, SAID HE WOULD TERM RESULTS OF THE BLAST "BETTER THAN GOOD."

JUN 1 1946

(ADVANCE--BIKINI, JULY--(AP)-SCIENTISTS USED SHIPS AND MEASURING INSTRUMENTS TODAY TO ADVANCE TO A NEW APPRAISAL OF THE ATOMIC BOMB, BUT THAT GREAT MUSHROOM OF FIRE AND SMOKE IN THE SKY BECAME INEVITABLE IN 1932 WHEN A BRITISH SCIENTIST J.CHADWICK OF ENGLAND DIDN'T KNOW IT THEN BUT HIS NEUTRONS WERE TO SMASH ATOMS. THESE SMASHINGS IN TURN WERE TO RELEASE OTHER NEUTRONS TO SHATTER STILL MORE ATOMS--THUS SETTING UP "CHAIN REACTION" BOMBS WHICH CRUMPLED THE JAPANESE CITIES OF HIROSHIMA AND NAGASAKI AND EXERTED ITS FORCE ON A GREAT BATTLE FLEET IN TODAY'S "OPERATION CROSSROADS."

SINCE MANY SUCCEEDING ATOM PIONEERS HOWEVER WORKED IN AXIS COUNTRIES, GERMANY AND NOT THE UNITED STATES MIGHT HAVE BECOME THE FIRST TO USE THE BOMB IN WAR. BUT MANY OF THOSE RESEARCHERS BECAME REFUGEES FROM THE NAZI, STRIPPING HIM OF SCIENTIFIC MANPOWER.

ENRICO FERMI, NOW AN AMERICAN CITIZEN, FOR ONE, WAS WORKING IN ROME IN 1934 WHEN HE BOMBARDED URANIUM WITH NEUTRONS. HE WASN'T THINKING OF ATOMIC BOMBS, BUT HE DISCOVERED HIS BOMBARDMENTS LEFT TRACES OF OTHER ELEMENTS--A FACT WHICH PUZZLED SCIENTISTS FOR FIVE YEARS.

LISE MEITNER, AN AUSTRIAN WHO ALSO BECAME A REFUGEE, DISCOVERED THE ANSWER IN 1939--THE URANIUM NUCLEUS HAD BEEN DIVIDED IN HALF. NEILS BOHR, THE DANISH SCIENTIST, STUNNED THE AMERICAN SCIENTIFIC WORLD WHEN HE BROUGHT THE FINDINGS OF MISS MEITNER AND HER COLLEAGUES TO THIS COUNTRY. QUICKLY COLUMBIA UNIVERSITY SCIENTISTS--THEN OTHERS--RUSHED TO THEIR LABORATORIES AND WITHIN HOURS HAD VERIFIED THE AMAZING DISCOVERY--THE ATOM HAD BEEN SMASHED RELEASING MORE THAN 200,000,000 VOLTS OF ENERGY

HERE WAS THE GREATEST STOREHOUSE OF CONSTRUCTIVE--AND DESTRUCTIVE--ENERGY EVER DREAMED

JUN 1 1946

30.24-3877

IT WAS THE SECOND FACT THAT SENT THE SCIENTISTS TO PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT AS THE UNITED STATES CAME CLOSE TO WORLD WAR II PROFESSOR ALBERT EINSTEIN SENT A MESSAGE TO THE PRESIDENT HE FEARED GERMANY WOULD LOOSE THE ATOMIC BOMB ON THIS COUNTRY HE THEN NOTED SIGNIFICANTLY THAT GERMANY HAD STOPPED SALE OF URANIUM AND THAT SPLITTING WORK WAS GOING ON IN BERLIN UNDER CLOSE GOVERNMENT OBSERVATION.

ROOSEVELT SET UP THE NATIONAL RESEARCH COMMITTEE UNDER DR. VANNEVAR BUSH IN 1940. IT WAS TO BECOME THE OFFICE OF SCIENTIFIC RESEARCH AND DEVELOPMENT IN CHARGE OF ATOMIC RESEARCH. IN 1942 THE MANHATTAN PROJECT WAS FORMED AND MAJ.GEN.LESLIE H.GROVES TOOK OVER

UNDER HIS DIRECTION THE UNITED STATES SPENT SOME TWO BILLIONS OF DOLLARS. IT DEVELOPED PROJECTS AT OAK RIDGE,TENN., AND HANFORD, WASH.--HUGE PLANTS UNDER THE TECHNICAL DIRECTION OF AMERICA'S GREATEST SCIENTISTS MOBILIZED SECRETLY AND SWIFTLY FROM UNIVERSITY AND INDUSTRY.

REFUGEES HELPED, TOO. FERMI BUILT OVENS IN WHICH URANIUM STARTED ATOMIC FIRES WITHOUT OUTSIDE AID RELEASING NEUTRONS FOR MORE ATOM SMASHING. THE FIRST OVENS WERE EXPERIMENTAL ONLY. HERE THE WHOLE PROCESS COULD BE STUDIED.

ULTIMATELY IT WAS FOUND THAT FIVE ELEMENTS WERE CAPABLE OF SISSION--ATOM SMASHING. URANIUM 235, THORIUM AND PROACTINIUM, NATURAL ELEMENTS, AND URANIUM 238 AND PLUTONIUM.

THEN BOMBS WERE MADE BY UTILIZING SOME OF THESE ELEMENTS. THE FIRST WAS TESTED AT ALAMAGOROD, NEW MEXICO, IN A GREAT DESERT AMPITHEATER SURROUNDED BY BARREN MOUNTAINS. HERE THE FIRST GREAT # SMOKE COLUMN WAS SEEN AND A FIRE RELEASED THAT MELTED THE VERY EARTH.

ABOARD PANAMINT...3D ADD WITH ATOMIC (BY LEE)...XXX SPECTACULAR," HE ADDED.

ONE OBSERVER WHO WAS NOT DISAPPOINTED WAS LT.COL.JUAN LOYO GONZALEZ, MEXICAN ORDNANCE EXPERT.

"I ONCE SAW 2,000 TONS OF TNT EXPLODE IN FRANCE, AT A BISTANCE OF 10 MILES," HE SAID. "I WOULD SAY THIS COMPARED FAIRLY CLOSELY WITH THAT. IT WAS ABOUT AS I ANTICIPATED."

THE BOMB WAS DROPPED FROM A SUPERFORTRESS OUT OF SIGHT, MORE THAN SIX MILES UP IN THE BLUE SKY.

AS THE PANAMINT APPROACHED BIKINI LAGOON AFTER THE BLAST, THE CARRIER SARATOGA CAME FULLY IN VIEW, WITH PLANES STILL ON HER DECKS BUT SMOKE RISING EITHER FROM OR DIRECTLY BEHIND HER. NEAR THE SARATOGA THE DESTROYER LAMSON LAY CAPSIZED ON HER BEAM'S END.

ADMIRAL BLANDY, THE CHIEF OF THE EXPEDITION, SAID IN A BROADCAST THAT INDICATIONS WERE THAT THE BOMB WAS POSSIBLY SLIGHTLY LESS EFFICIENT THAN THE BOMB USED AT NAGASAKI, BUT IT WOULD TAKE A FEW DAYS TO DETERMINE DEFINITELY.

RETURNING TO THE BASE, NO ONE WILL BE ALLOWED INTO THE LA

JUN 1 1946

UNTIL WE KNOW POSITIVELY, IT IS SAFE.

THE DRONE BASE AND RADIOLOGICAL PATROL CLASS WILL DETERMINE THAT TIME.

CERTAIN AREAS, OF COURSE, WILL BE ACCESSIBLE BEFORE OTHERS. MANY AREAS WILL BE MARKED "DANGEROUS" AND CANNOT BE ENTERED FOR SEVERAL HOURS. THE DAMAGE CONTROL AND FIRE-FIGHTING PARTIES ARE STANDING BY TO RECEIVE WORD THAT IT IS SAFE TO ENTER THE TARGET ARRAY TO COMBAT DAMAGE WHICH FOLLOWED THE BLAST. BECAUSE OF ELABORATE SAFETY PLANS, INJURY TO PERSONNEL IS HIGHLY DOUBTFUL. ON THE BASIS OF REPORTS TO THIS HOUR, THE FOLLOWING RESULTS HAVE BEEN OBSERVED ON THE TARGET SHIPS:

THE DESTROYER LAMPSON HAS CAPSIZED AND NOW LIES ON HER BEAM ENDS. SEVERAL OTHER SHIPS APPEAR TO BE DAMAGED AND THE FOLLOWING SHIPS HAVE MODERATELY SMALL FIRES ABOARD: THE PENSACOLA, THE JAPANESE CRUISER SAKAWA, THE CARRIER INDEPENDENCE, CARRIER SARATOGA AND THE TRANSPORT GILLIAM. ALSO ONE CONCRETE OIL BARGE.

WE CANNOT ACCURATELY DETERMINE THE EXTENT OF THE DAMAGE UNTIL BOARDING CREWS ENTER THE LAGOON AND GO ON BOARD THE TARGET SHIPS TO MAKE DETAILED SURVEYS.

THERE HAS BEEN NO TIDAL WAVES, NO EARTHQUAKES OR ANY OTHER UNNATURAL PHENOMENA. THE RADIOACTIVE CLOUD IS DRIFTING AS WE HAD ESTIMATED. IT WILL NOT ENDANGER PERSONNEL, SHIPS OR OTHER PACIFIC ISLANDS.

I MIGHT SAY HERE THAT AS A PRECAUTIONARY MEASURE, WE HAD ALREADY EMBARKED THE ORIGINAL NATIVES OF BIKINI, WHO ARE NOW LIVING AT RONGERIK ATOLL ON BOARD TWO LSTS (LANDING SHIPS, TANK) READY TO EVACUATE ON AN HOUR'S NOTICE SHOULD AN UNFORTUNATE SHIFT OF WIND REQUIRE IT. IT IS NOT REQUIRED. THOSE NATIVES ARE NOW BEING PUT BACK ON SHORE.

A195FX

IN SHORT, NOTHING HAS OCCURRED HERE TODAY WHICH WOULD BE CONTRARY TO OUR ORIGINAL PLANS AND ESTIMATES. WITHIN 12 HOURS I WILL MAKE ANOTHER REPORT SUMMARIZING THE RESULTS OF THE TEST AS WE KNOW THEM.

THE STATEMENT I HAVE JUST MADE MAY BE REVISED AT THAT TIME ON THE BASIS OF FURTHER INFORMATION. I THINK IT IS SAFE TO SAY AT THIS TIME THAT THIS ABLE DAY DETONATION HAS BEEN HIGHLY SUCCESSFUL FROM THE POINT OF VIEW OF AN OPERATION AND A TEST.

WE EXPECT TO LEARN FACTS OF GREAT VALUE. AS A FINAL WORD, I HOPE THAT THE PUBLIC WILL ADOPT THE SAME ATTITUDE AS WE DO IN JOINT TASK ONE AND NOT BE TOO HASTY IN JUDGING RESULTS. THERE IS MUCH MORE TO LEARN.

THIS IS VICE ADM BLANDY SPEAKING FROM THE MT MCKINLEY. I WILL RETURN TO THE AIR IN ABOUT 12 HOURS WITH FURTHER INFORMATION ON THIS TEST.

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

THE WORLD'S FOURTH ATOMIC BOMB BURST WITH TERRIFIC FURY MONDAY (SUNDAY, E.S.T. TIME) OVER 73 GUINEA PIG VESSELS IN BIKINI LAGOON AND LATE REPORTS SHOWED TWO OF THE VESSELS HAD BEEN SUNK, ONE CAPSIZED, AND 16 OTHERS DAMAGED.

THREE HOURS AFTER THE HISTORY'S GREATEST EXPERIMENTAL ASSAULT ON A FLEET OF SHIPS, THE FIRST TWO WAVES OF THE NON-TARGET FORCE HAD RE-ENTERED THE LAGOON TO CHECK RADIOACTIVITY OF THE WATER, SHIPS AND ISLANDS. THE BULK OF THE WORKING FLEET WILL COME INTO THE LAGOON ONLY WHEN IT IS COMPLETELY SAFE.

THESE ARE THE SHIPS WHICH BORE THE BRUNT OF THE BOMB'S SPECTACULAR BLAST:

THE TRANSPORTS GILLIAM AND CARLISLE, SUNK; THE DESTROYER LAMSON, CAPSIZED; THE CARRIER INDEPENDENCE, BATTERED, BURNING AND LISTING; THE NAZI HEAVY CRUISER PRINZ EUGEN, THE JAPANESE BATTLESHIP NAGATO, THE JAPANESE CRUISER SAKAWA, THE CRUISER PENSACOLA, THE SUBMARINE SKATE, HEAVILY DAMAGED; THE CARRIER SARATOGA, BATTLESHIP NEVADA, BATTLESHIP NEW YORK, DESTROYER WILSON AND TRANSPORTS BRISCOE, NIAGARA, BLADEN, BANNER, BUTTE AND CORTLAND, SET AFIRE, AT LEAST TEMPORARILY.

SOME OBSERVERS EXPRESSED DISAPPOINTMENT OVER THE BLAST BUT VICE ADM.W.H.P.BLANDY, ATOM TEST COMMANDER, CALLED IT A SUCCESS.

THE RADIOACTIVE CLOUD IS DRIFTING AS WE HAD ESTIMATED AND WILL NOT ENDANGER SHIPS PERSONNEL AND ADJACENT ISLANDS.

EARLIER AFTER SEEING THE BOMB BURST IN A BRILLIANT FLASH 10 TIMES BRIGHTER THAN THE SUN, BLANDY HAD DECLARED THE DROP WAS A SUCCESS.

BLANDY REPORTED THAT THERE WERE NO KNOWN DEATHS OR INJURIES TO ANY MEN OF THE TASK FORCE, NOR DO WE EXPECT ANY.

THE FLYING FORTRESS DRONE PLANES SENT OUT BY MOTHER PLANES FLEW THROUGH THE DEADLY ATOMIC CLOUD WHICH ROSE SWIFTLY TO 30,000 FEET. THE ADMIRAL REPORTED SAFELY CARRYING THEIR DATA ON WHAT GOES ON INSIDE ALL RETURNED.

THE MUSHROOM

THERE WERE NO TIDAL WAVES, EARTHQUAKES OR ANY OTHER UNNATURAL PHENOMENON, BLANDY SAID IN A BROADCAST FROM HIS FLAGSHIP.

BLANDY CONFIRMED THAT THE NAGASAKI-TYPE BOMB, FAR MORE EFFICIENT AND DESTRUCTIVE THAN THE FIRST ONE LOOSED IN BATTLE OVER HIROSHIMA, HAD BEEN USED IN THIS STERN TEST OF SHIPS AGAINST THE MIGHTY WRATH OF THE ATOM'S UNLEASHED ENERGY.

"NO ONE WILL BE ALLOWED IN THE LAGOON UNTIL IT IS POSITIVELY SAFE," BLANDY ADDED. "CERTAIN AREAS WILL BE ACCESSIBLE BEFORE OTHERS. MANY WILL BE MARKED DANGEROUS, NOT TO BE ENTERED FOR SEVERAL HOURS."

IN ADDITION TO THE FIVE SHIPS ON FIRE, BLANDY SAID THE DESTROYER LAMPTON WAS CAPSIZED AND "NOW LIES ON HER SIDE."

(BLANDY DID NOT MENTION THE OLD JAPANESE BATTLESHIP NAGATO, NEAR THE TARGET CENTER, WHICH HAD BEEN REPORTED AFIRE IN EARLIER BROADCASTS.)

"NOTHING HAS BEEN OBSERVED THAT WAS CONTRARY TO OUR ORIGINAL PLANS AND ESTIMATES," BLANDY CONTINUED. "IN 12 HOURS WE WILL HAVE ANOTHER REPORT."

"IT IS SAFE TO SAY AT THIS TIME THAT THIS DEMONSTRATION HAS BEEN HIGHLY SUCCESSFUL FROM THE POINT OF VIEW OF THE OPERATIONS AND THE TEST."

A POOLED BROADCAST FOR AMERICAN NEWS SERVICES FROM BLANDY'S FLAGSHIP SAID THE RUN BEGAN AT 8:49 A.M. BIKINI TIME, AND THE BOMB DROPPED AT THE OFFICIAL TIME OF 9 A.M. (5 P.M. SUNDAY, EASTERN STANDARD TIME.)

JUL 1 1946

A130FX

REAR ADM.W.S.PARSONS, DEPUTY COMMANDER OF THE TASK FORCE, GAVE AS HIS "WILD HORSEBACK GUESS THAT IT WAS A VERY INTENSE EXPLOSION COMPARABLE TO THOUSANDS OF TONS OF TNT."

PARSONS SAID A LATER CHECK WOULD BE MADE OF THE EXPLOSION'S INTENSITY AND WOULD BE FOLLOWED BY MORE PRECISE INFORMATION FROM THE INSTRUMENTS PLACED ABOUT THE TARGET. THIS INFORMATION WILL BE SECRET.

ISLANDS AROUND THE LAGOON APPARENTLY WERE NOT INUNDATED BY WHATEVER WAVES WERE KICKED UP WHEN THE BOMB BURST OVER THE TARGET, NOR WERE THERE ANY HIGH WAVES.

THE GREAT BALL OF FIRE, AWING THE THOUSANDS OF OBSERVERS STATIONED IN SHIPS 10 MILES OR MORE OUTSIDE THE LAGOON, BLOTTED OUT THE TARGET SHIPS WHICH A MOMENT BEFORE HAD SHONE CLEAR IN THE SUN.

50.24-3879

BUT AS THE CHURNING WATERS AND THE FIREBALLS THAT BURST IN MAN'S GREATEST PYROTECHNIC DISPLAY CLEARED, THE BULLSEYE BATTLESHIP NEVADA STILL FLOATED, AERIAL OBSERVERS SAID.

AN OFFICIAL BROADCAST FROM A PLANE OVERLOOKING THE SCENE GAVE THE BOMB'S AWAY CALL AT 9 A.M. BIKINI TIME (5 P.M. SUNDAY, EASTERN STANDARD TIME) PRECISELY ON SCHEDULE.

JUN 1 1946

A93FX

SO INTENSE WAS THE BLAST, HOWEVER, THAT THE PLANE'S TRANSMITTERS WENT OUT, AND THE PLAY-BY-PLAY WAS TAKEN UP BY AWED OBSERVERS ON THE U.S.S. APPALACHIAN, 10 MILES FROM BIKINI.

PERRING THROUGH THE SCATTERING ATOMIC MISTS, OBSERVERS SAW THE JAPANESE BATTLESHIP NAGATO IN FLAMES.

BUT LIMMED AGAINST THE FIERY SCENE, THE GREEN PALMS OF BIKINI STILL STOOD UNSINGED.

THE BROADCAST FROM THE PLANE SAID THE LAGOON DISAPPEARED IN A MASS OF FIRE AND WATER AS THE ATOMIC BOMB LET GO IN MID-AIR, APPARENTLY FAIRLY IN AT THE TARGET.

SMOKE AND FOG BILLOWED UP THOUSANDS OF FEET IN A MATTER OF SECONDS.

OBSERVERS ON THE PANAMINT, THE SHIP RESERVED FOR SCIENTISTS OF THE WORLD, SAID THEY SAW THE "INITIAL BOUNCE" OF LOW-LYING RED FLAME AND THE SMOKE SEEMED SLOW IN RISING.

ANOTHER OBSERVER ON THE APPALACHIAN REPORTED TWO GREAT "HEADS" OF SMOKE ROSE INTO THE SKY.

THE APPALACHIAN BROADCAST SAID THERE HAD BEEN NO REPORT OF CASUALTIES, AND IT WAS FAIRLY CERTAIN THERE HAD BEEN NONE.

IT REPORTED THAT THE BOMB DROP APPEARED TO BE "A LITTLE OFF THE TARGET" SINCE THE NEVADA COULD BE SEEN CLEARLY AFTER THE SMOKE CLEARED AWAY.

A NEARBY AIRCRAFT CARRIER, PRESUMABLY THE INDEPENDENCE, SEEMED TO HAVE LOST PART OF ITS SUPERSTRUCTURE.

THE APPALACHIAN OBSERVER GAVE THIS DESCRIPTION OF THE EXPLOSION:

"WE SAW A TERRIFIC BLAST FOLLOWED BY A SECOND THAT MADE A GREAT DOME OF FIRE OVER THE LAGOON--PEACHES AND CREAM-COLORED, BOILING INSIDE, A SORT OF INFERNO."

A99FX

WHILE THERE WAS SOME ALARM THAT THE DRONE PLANES MIGHT GO OUT OF CONTROL IN THE RADIOACTIVE CLOUD, HE ADDED, THIS FAILED TO DEVELOP.

PRESUMABLY THEY WERE OFF SAFELY TO THEIR BASES WITH INFORMATION ON WHAT GOES ON INSIDE THE RADIOACTIVE MUSHROOM, SOMETHING FOR WHICH THE SCIENTIFIC WORLD EAGERLY WAITED.

A POOLED STORY FROM THE MOUNT MCKINLEY, BLANDY'S FLAGSHIP, SAID THE BOMB WAS DETONATED AT 8:59 3/4 A.M., BIKINI TIME, WHICH WAS A QUARTER OF A MINUTE EARLIER THAN THE BOMB'S AWAY REPORT WAS HEARD IN SAN FRANCISCO.

THIS ACCOUNT SAID THE BOMB BURST ALMOST DIRECTLY OVER THE INDEPENDENCE WITH A BLAZING FLASH TEN TIMES BRIGHTER THAN THE SUN.

FROM THE MCKINLEY, 10 MILES AWAY, IT APPEARED THAT THE INDEPENDENCE WAS IN FLAMES.

THE JAPANESE BATTLESHIP NAGATO WAS DOWN BY THE HEAD. SHIPS CLOSE UP TO THE INDEPENDENCE COULD NOT BE SEEN IMMEDIATELY.

THIS ACCOUNT SAID THE RADIOACTIVE CLOUD WAS NEARLY 30,000 FEET HIGH TEN MINUTES AFTER THE BLAST.

A WAVE OF HEAT WAS FELT ON THE OBSERVER SHIPS AND AN INSTANT LATER CAME THE HEAVY CONCUSSION OF THE BLAST.

SECRETARY OF NAVY FORRESTAL, WITNESSING THE SCENE, DECLARED:

"IT'S TREMENDOUS."

"THE ATOMIC CLOUD SEEMED ALMOST OVER US," SAID AN OBSERVER FROM THE MCKINLEY. "THE NEVADA APPARENTLY IS UNHURT BUT A FIRE IS RAGING ON A TRANSPORT TO THE RIGHT.

JUN 1 1946

A107FX "THE ATOMIC CLOUD APPARENTLY IS ABOUT TO DISSIPATE ENTIRELY.

"THE LAGOON APPEARS TO BE BECOMING MORE AND MORE QUIET. FIRES APPARENTLY WERE NOT AS SERIOUS AS THOUGHT. THERE HAVE BEEN EXPLOSIONS, APPARENTLY FROM LIVE TORPEDOES ABOARD THE DESTROYERS."

FIRE APPEARED ON THE FLIGHT DECK OF THE FAMED AND GALLANT OLD FIGHTING LADY, THE U.S.S. CARRIER SARATOGA. (THE REMAINDER OF THE MENTION TO THE SARA WAS LOST BY INTERFERENCE.)

A WATCHER ON THE APPALACHIAN REPORTED IT TOOK ONLY A FEW SECONDS FOR THE CLOUD TO RISE ONE AND A HALF MILES. AN OFFICIAL REPORT SAID THE CLOUD REACHED 24,000 FEET IN NINE MINUTES, THIS BROADCASTER ADDED.

A BROADCAST FROM THE MCKINLEY SAID THE BLAST APPEARED TO HAVE SPREAD OVER ALMOST THE ENTIRE LENGTH OF THE TARGET ARRAY OF 75 SHIPS, BUT HOW MANY WERE SUNK WAS NOT IMMEDIATELY CLEAR.

THE ATOMIC CLOUD ITSELF SOON BEGAN DISSIPATING, MOVING OFF AS A THIN, INNOCENT-LOOKING SUMMER CLOUD.

ATOMIC

(ADVANCE)...WASHINGTON, JULY 1-(AP)-CIVILIAN AUTHORITIES ON STRATEGIC BOMBING LOOKED TODAY FOR THE FULL REPORTS FROM THE BIKINI A-BOMB EXPERIMENT TO TURN UP FACTS THAT WILL GUIDE PRECISION MILITARY PLANNING AGAINST POSSIBLE ATOMIC ATTACKS IN THE FUTURE.

THESE EXPERTS SAT BACK TO AWAIT COMPLETE SCIENTIFIC ACCOUNTS OF THE TEST AFTER REPORTING TO PRESIDENT TRUMAN IN ADVANCE OF THE BIKINI EXPERIMENT THAT THE DANGER OF AN ATOMIC BLITZ ON THE NATION "IS REAL." THEY MADE THE APPRAISAL AS MEMBERS OF THE U.S.STRATEGIC BOMBING SURVEY, WHICH CHECKED UP ON HOW ATOM BOMBS SHATTERED TWO JAPANESE CITIES LAST AUGUST.

-A WISE MILITARY ESTABLISHMENT," THEY SAID, "WILL MAKE SURE-- BY DISPERSAL, CONCEALMENT, PROTECTION, AND CONSTANT READINESS OF ITS FORCES--THAT NO SINGLE BLOW OR SERIES OF BLOWS FROM AN ENEMY CAN CRIPPLE ITS ABILITY TO STRIKE BACK IN THE SAME WAY OR TO REPEL ACCOMPANYING ATTACKS FROM OTHER AIR, GROUND OR SEA FORCES.

"THE MEASURES TO ENABLE THIS UNRELAXING STATE OF READINESS ARE NOT NEW; ONLY THEIR URGENCY IS INCREASED."

RELEASED BY THE PRESIDENT SATURDAY NIGHT, THE REPORT CLASSED THE TESTING OF THE ATOMIC WEAPON UNDER VARYING CIRCUMSTANCES AS "IMPERATIVE." "OPERATIONS CROSSROADS" AT BIKINI, IT SAID, WILL PROVIDE MORE FACTSABOUT EXPLOSIONS IN THE AIR AND EVEN MORE VALUABLE INFORMATION ABOUT DETONATIONS AT WATER LEVEL AND BELOW IT.

VERIFIED KNOWLEDGE, IT SAID, IS THE BEST BASIS FOR MILITARY PLANNING.

AWESOME AS IS ITS POWER, THE SURVEY SAID THE A-BOMB HAS ITS LIMITS. THAT WAS DEMONSTRATED WHEN OUTLYING FACTORIES ESCAPED MAJOR DAMAGE, AND SHELTERS AND REINFORCED CONCRETE BUILDINGS STOOD UP WELL AGAINST THE FLAME AND SHOCK OF THE ATOMIC ONSLAUGHT AT HIROSHIMA AND NAGASAKI.

JUN 1 1946

A106WX

AND THAT WAS THE BASIS FOR PROPOSING THE DISPERAL OF BOTH ARMED FORCES AND INDUSTRIES IN THIS COUNTRY AND FOR ADDITIONAL RECOMMENDATIONS WHICH INCLUDE:

SHELTERS WHICH WOULD GIVE PEOPLE PROTECTION FROM BLAST, RADIATION, AND ANYTHING EXCEPT A DIRECT HIT.

ADVANCE PLANS FOR EVACUATION OF CITIES. A NATIONAL CIVILIAN DEFENSE.

STRONGER BUILDINGS, COSTING 10 OR 15 PER CENT MORE, BUT CAPABLE OF PROTECTING THEIR OCCUPANTS AND CONTENTS AGAINST AN ATOMIC EXPLOSION LESS THAN HALF A MILE AWAY.

RESERVE SUPPLIES OF CRITICAL MATERIALS, MEDICINES AND VITAL EQUIPMENT AND MACHINERY.

AVODING WAR, BY INTERNATIONAL COOPERATION, AS THE SUREST WAY OF AVOIDING DESTRUCTION.

FOR THE MOST PART THE REPORT WAS AN ANALYSIS OF EXACTLY WHAT HAPPENED WHEN AND AFTER THE ATOMIC BOMBS WERE SET OFF OVER THE TWO JAPPANESE CITIES. A REPORT RELEASED AT THE SAME TIME BY THE WAR DEPARTMENT'S MANHATTAN PROJECT, WHICH PRODUCED THE ATOMIC BOMB, COVERED THE SAME GROUND.

THE REPORTS DIFFERED ON THE ACCURACY OF THE ARMY'S ORIGINAL ROUGH ESTIMATE THAT AN ATOMIC BOMB WAS THE EQUAL OF 20,000 TONS OF TNT.

THE ARMY CLAIMED THE COMPUTATION STOOD UP FAIRLY WELL. THE CIVILIANS SAID 2100 TONS OF ASSORTED BOMBS--NOT TNT--WOULD HAVE DONE AS MUCH DAMAGE AS THE A-BOMB AT HIROSHIMA.

THE MILITARY ANALYSIS SAID THE A-BOMBS "CERTAINLY" ENDED THE WAR WITH JAPAN ALTHOUGH THEY DID NOT WIN THE CONFLICT ALONE.

THE CIVILIAN REPORT SAID 74 PER CENT OF THE JAPANESE PEOPLE HAD DOUBTS ABOUT A VICTORY BEFORE THE BOMBS WERE DROPPED. IT SAID MILITARY SETBACKS WERE "TWICE AS IMPORTANT" AS THE ATOMIC MISSILES "IN INDUCING CERTAINTY OF DEFEAT."

BUT THE NEW WEAPON, IT SAID, DID GIVE THE GOVERNMENT A CHANCE FOR WHICH IT HAD BEEN LOOKING TO BREAK A DEADLOCK AND ACCEPT SURRENDER TERMS.

NEW YORK, JUNE 30-(AP)-THE MOTHERS OF THE PILOT AND BOMBARDIER OF THE SUPERFORTRESS DAVE'S DREAM HEARD THE BROADCAST DESCRIPTION OF THE ATOMB BOMB DROP IN A RADIO STUDIO TODAY, THEN TOLD OF THEIR PRIDE IN A BROADCAST WHICH THEY HOPED WAS HEARD BY THE SONS AFTER THEIR RETURN TO KWAJALEIN.

"I FELT VERY EXCITED BUT I KNEW WOODIE WOULD DO A GOOD JOB," SAID MRS.CAROLINE SWANCUTT OF LA CROSSE, WIS., MOTHER OF THE PILOT, MAJ.WOODROW SWANCUTT. "WHEN I SEE HIM, I'M GOING TO PUT MY ARMS AROUND HIM AND GIVE HIM A GREAT BIG HUG."

MRS.JENNIE WOOD, OF (335 WILLOW ST.) BORDENTOWN, N.J., MOTHER OF MAJ.HAROLD WOOD, THE BOMBARDIER, SAID, "I FELT VERY ANXIOUS. I SURE WAS GLAD WHEN THE BOMB WAS DROPPED. I HEARD HAROLD SAY 'BOMBS AWAY' ON THE RADIO AND I CERTAINLY FELT RELIEVED."

THE BROADCAST ON WHICH THE MOTHERS SPOKE WAS BEAMED TO KWAJALEIN.

MRS.RALPH M.SLOAN, OF (105 ELMWOOD AVE.) HEMPSTEAD, LONG ISLAND, A SISTER OF THE PILOT, AND DONALD A.WOOD, OF BORDENTOWN, A BROTHER OF THE BOMBARDIER, ALSO WERE IN THE STUDIO. MRS.SWANCUTT IS VISITING MRS.SLOAN.

DR.LEET, WHO WAS AN OBSERVER WHEN THE FIRST A-BOMB WAS EXPLODED IN THE NEW MEXICO DESERT ALMOST A YEAR AGO, TOLD NEWSMEN HE THOUGHT THERE WAS "NOT A CHANCE IN THE WORLD" THAT HARVARD'S SEISMOGRAPH HERE WOULD RECORD THE BLAST.

"I'M NOT EVEN GOING TO LOOK AT MY RECORDS," HE SAID. "IN FACT, I'M A LOT MORE WORRIED RIGHT NOW ABOUT THE RED SOX TRAILING THE SENTORS 7-2 IN THE SEVENTH INNING."

THE REV. DANIEL LINEHAN OF WESTON COLLEGE DOUBTED THE WESTON SEISMOGRAPH WOULD REGISTER AN EARTH SHOCK. HE SAID ANY AIR WAVE SET UP BY THE BLAST WOULD TAKE FIVE TO SIX HOURS TO REACH HERE. HE DID NOT PLAN TO CHECK INSTRUMENTS UNTIL MORNING.

LONDON, JUNE 30-(AP)-MOSCOW RADIO PLUMPED TONIGHT FOR A COMMUNIST-SOCIALIST FUSION THROUGHOUT GERMANY WHILE TASS, THE OFFICIAL SOVIET NEWS AGENCY, REPORTED "INCREASED FASCIST ACTIVITY IN THE WESTERN OCCUPATION ZONES."

MOSCOW COMMENTATOR BYELSKAYA SAID "THE CREATION OF AN EFFECTIVE WORKING CLASS PARTY CAPABLE OF COUNTERACTING THE REACTIONARY TENDENCIES WHICH ARE STILL STRONG IN THAT COUNTRY IS A MAJOR CONDITION FOR GERMANY'S DEMOCRATIZATION."

NOTING THAT THE COMMUNISTS AND SOCIAL DEMOCRATS IN THE SOVIET ZONE HAD MERGED, THE BROADCASTER SAID THAT "IN THE WESTERN OCCUPATION ZONES THIS STRIVING FOR UNITY HAS ENCOUNTERED DETERMINED OPPOSITION FROM THE AUTHORITIES."

TASS' DISPATCH, FROM PARIS, SAID REPORTS FROM "VARIOUS PLACES" IN THE AMERICAN AND BRITISH ZONES "TESTIFY THAT THE HITLERITE DREGS ARE REARING THEIR HEADS, ENCOURAGED BY THE LENIENT ATTITUDE OF THE OCCUPATION AUTHORITIES." THE DISPATCH CALLED ATTENTION TO A RECENT HAMBURG DEMONSTRATION IN WHICH THE NAZI "HORST WESSEL" ANTHEM WAS SUNG.

BERLIN, JUNE 30-(AP)-AN OFFICIAL UNRRA SPOKESMAN SAID TODAY THAT THE GROWING INFLUX OF POLISH JEWISH INFILTREES INTO THE AMERICAN OCCUPATION ZONE OF GERMANY IS EXPECTED SOON TO REACH A RATE OF 16,000 MONTHLY AND THAT THE OVERALL DISPLACED PERSONS SITUATION IS "A VERY DIFFICULT PROBLEM WHICH IS INCREASING RATHER THAN DECREASING."

TO ILLUSTRATE THE PROBLEM HE CITED THESE FIGURES:

ON DEC. 31, 1945, THERE WERE 677,408 DISPLACED PERSONS OF VARIOUS NATIONALITIES, IN UNRRA CAMPS IN WESTERN GERMANY. BY JUNE 14 THE POPULATION OF THESE CAMPS HAD INCREASED TO 714,187 DESPITE REPATRIATION OF IN THE SAME PERIOD OF 258,353 DISPLACED PERSONS. OF THE TOTAL STILL IN UNRRA CAMPS, HE SAID, 422,000 WERE POLES, ONLY 10 PER CENT OF WHOM DESIRE TO GO HOME.

OF THE GENERAL ECONOMIC PICTURE, HE SAID:
"CONTINUED FAILURE TO ACHIEVE THE REQUIRED QUADPORTITE AGREEMENT HAS PREVENTED THE DEVELOPMENT OF INTERZONAL TRADE ON A COMMERCIAL BASIS AND CONSEQUENTLY HAS TENDED TO TIE UP PRODUCTION IN EVERY ONE OF THE OCCUPATION ZONES.

"AS A RESULT, BUSINESS AND COMMERCIAL LIFE IS IRREGULAR AND THE FORMERLY INTEGRATED GERMAN ECONOMY IS VIRTUALLY STAGNANT."
IN CONNECTION WITH THE LAGGING INDUSTRIAL RECOVERY IN THE U.S.ZONE, MCNARNEY REPORTED THAT THE OVER-ALL OUTPUT IS INSUFFICIENT EVEN TO SUPPORT THE MINIMUM STANDARD OF LIVING PRESCIBED AT POTSDAM. BASIC FACTORS ARE THE SHORTAGE OF COAL AND THE "HEAVY DEPENDENCE OF THE U.S.ZONE ON THE OTHER THREE ZONES OF GERMANY," HE SAID.
HE OBSERVED THAT THE RECENT STOPPAGE OF REMOVING INDUSTRIAL REPARATIONS FROM THE U.S.ZONE WERE ORDERED TO PREVENT PLACING "ADDITIONAL FINANCIAL LIABILITY UPON THE UNITED STATES."
ON DEMILITARIZATION MCNARNEY SAID THAT BY JUNE 30 OF NEXT YEAR APPROXIMATELY 140,000 FORMER GERMAN ARMY PERSONNEL IN LABOR SERVICE UNITS WILL HAVE BEEN DISCHARGED AND THAT "ALL OTHER PRISONERS IN THE U.S.ZONE WILL BE RELEASED BY NOV.30 OF THIS YEAR."

FRANKFURT,GERMANY,MONDAY,JULY 1-(AP)-FIRST RETURNS TODAY GAVE THE RIGHTWING CHRISTIAN SOCIAL UNION A LEAD IN SUNDAY'S CONSTITUENT ASSEMBLY ELECTIONS IN THE GERMAN STATES OF BAVARIA, GREATER HESSE AND WUERTTEMBERG-BADEN, ALL IN THE AMERICAN OCCUPATION ZONE.
TABULATIONS FROM FIVE OF 180 ELECTION DISTRICTS IN PREDOMINATELY CATHOLIC BAVARIA GAVE THE CHRISTIAN SOCIAL UNION 369,956 VOTES, THE SOCIAL DEMOCRATS 189,900, THE COMMUNISTS 36,070, THE ECONOMIC RECONSTRUCTION PARTY 21,453 AND THE LIBERAL DEMOCRATS 16,693.
THE CHRISTIAN SOCIAL UNION IS BACKED BY FARMERS, CHURCH GROUPS AND HEAVY PROPERTY OWNERS. JUL 1 1946
ASSEMBLYMEN ELECTED IN THE BALLOTING WILL DRAFT CONSTITUTIONS FOR THE THREE STATES TO BE SUBMITTED TO A POPULAR REFERENDUM IN DECEMBER.
ALTHOUGH 7,000,000 GERMANS IN THE U. S. ZONE WERE ELIGIBLE TO VOTE IN THE FIRST STEP TOWARD CONSTRUCTING DEMOCRATIC LEGISLATURES FOR THE THREE STATES, SCATTERED REPORTS INDICATED THERE WAS LITTLE INTEREST IN THE BALLOTING--THE FOURTH FREE ELECTION HELD SINCE THE RISE OF NAZISM.
IN MUNICH LESS THAN 50 PERCENT OF THE VOTERS TURNED OUT IN CONTRAST TO THE PREVIOUS ZONAL AVERAGE OF 85 PERCENT MANY OF THE VOTERS, AND ESPECIALLY THE WOMEN SEEMED UNCERTAIN AS TO WHAT WAS MEANT BY A CONSTITUENT ASSEMBLY

BY LARRY ALLEN
WARSAW, JUNE 30-(AP)-THE VOTERS OF WAR-RAVAGED POLAND WENT THE POLLS FOR THE FIRST TIME IN 11 YEARS TODAY UNDER THE EYES OF OF THOUSANDS OF TROOPS, MILITIAMEN AND SECURITY POLICEMEN TO CAST REFERENDUM VOTES WHICH WILL DETERMINE THEIR OPINION OF THE PRESENT PROVISIONAL GOVERNMENT.
THE ELECTION WILL, IN EFFECT, ESTABLISH A SIGNPOST TO DETERMINE WHICH WAY THE POLISH POPULACE LEANS IN THE BITTER STRUGGLE FOR POWER BETWEEN THE COMMUNIST-BACKED PARTIES, HEADED BY SOCIALIST PREMIER EDWARD OSUBKA-MORAWSKI, AND THE POLISH PEASANTS' PARTY OF VICE-PREMIER STANISLAW MIKOLAJCZYK, HEAD OF THE FORMER EXILED POLISH GOVERNMENT IN LONDON.
THE 11,000,000 REGISTERED VOTERS WERE REQUESTED TO CAST "YES OR NO" BALLOTS ON THESE THREE REFENDUM QUESTIONS: JUN 1 1946
1. DO YOU WANT A ONE-HOUSE PARLIAMENT?
2. DO YOU APPROVE OF THE ACTS OF THE PROVISIONAL REGIME NATIONALIZING BASIC INDUSTRIES AND AGRARIAN REFORMS?
3. DO YOU APPROVE OF THE ESTABLISHMENT OF POLAND'S WESTERN FRONTIERS ON THE ODER AND NEISSE RIVERS?
IT WAS ANNOUNCED THAT FINAL REFERENDUM RESULS WOULD BE DETERMINED IN 12 DAYS, BUT THAT RETURNS FROM A MAJORITY OF THE 11,046 PRECINCTS WOULD BE REPORTED BY WEDNESDAY.
THE LAST POLISH ELECTION WAS IN 1935 WHEN IGNACY MOSCICKI WAS CHOSEN PRESIDENT. HE SERVED UNTIL THE GERMAN INVASION IN 1939.
MIKOLAJCZYK BASED HIS OPPOSITION TO A ONE-HOUSE PARLIAMENT ON THE GROUND THAT THE POLISH CONSTITUTION OF 1921, WHICH HE HOLDS TO BE STILL VALID, ESTABLISHED THAT THE TWO-HOUSE PARLIAMENT COULD NOT BE CHANGED BY REFERENDUM, BUT ONLY BY A THREE-FIFTHS MAJORITY VOTE OF THE ESTABLISHED PARLIAMENT.
HE URGED VOTERS TO OPPOSE THE ONE-HOUSE PARLIAMENT, WHICH WOULD ABOLISH THE SENATE, BUT TO VOTE IN THE AFFIRMATIVE ON THE OTHER TWO QUESTIONS.
THE WORKERS PARTY AND ITS ALLIES HAVE LONG ATTACKED MIKOLAJCZYK POLITICALLY, CHARGING THAT HE IS A REACTIONARY SUPPORTED BY GREAT BRITAIN AND THE UNITED STATES AND THAT MANY ELEMENTS OF HIS POLISH PEASANTS' PARTY ARE ANTI-DEMOCRATIC AND FASCIST.
ALTHOUGH THE OPENING HOURS OF THE ELECTION WERE QUIET IN WARSAW AND ELSEWHERE, MIKOLAJCZYK SAID THAT THOUSANDS OF HIS SUPPORTERS HAD BEEN ARRESTED, MANY MERELY FOR SHOUTING "LONG LIVE MIKOLAKCZYK."
IT WAS EXPECTED, THAT MIKOLAJCZYK'S STRENGTH WOULD BE DETERMINED BY THE RESULTS OF THE VOTE ON THE QUESTION CONCERNING THE ONE-HOUSE PARLIAMENT.
ALTHOUGH THE GOVERNMENT DID NOT INVITE ANY OFFICIAL FOREIGN OBSERVERS TO VIEW THE VOTING, BOTH THE BRITISH AND AMERICAN EMBASSIES SENT THEIR SECRETARIES AND OTHER ATTACHES ON ELECTION DAY TOURS OF ALL STRATEGIC CITIES, TOWNS AND COUNTRY DISTRICTS.

Vatican City, June 30--(AP)--Pope Pius XII, in a radio broadcast [redacted], closing the Bolivian National Eucharistic Congress, expressed the hope that "Christian peace" would spread over all of South America as a result of the congress.

JUN 1 1946

He gave the pontifical blessing to the delegates and to the Bolivian people, who, he said, were "present always in our heart of a father."

IN SPANISH

He spoke in Spanish.

"It is quite appropriate," the pontiff said, "that this congress is taking place in Bolivia which has as its capital La Paz (Spanish for 'peace').

JUN 1 1946

"How is peace achieved? Many say by hatred, others say with love. The eucharistic sacrament is the essence of love and charity. May this congress be a new incentive to love both at home and abroad, among social classes, in religious and family life and in the holiness of the clergy.

"Since there are represented in this congress various Latin American nations--such as Peru, Chile, Argentina, Uruguay, Paraguay and others--may it be a point of departure for renewed peace for the entire South American continent."

JUN 1 1946

In a broadcast in French today, the pope closed a eucharistic celebration at Liege, Belgium, commemorating the seventh centenary of the institution of the "Corpus Domini" ceremony in that city. He asked for divine blessings and "the abundance of all grace" for Liege residents.
